[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TINTIC JUNCTION (Utah) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "Dispatched by Imperial Courier from the flying caravan of the Imperial Potentate as it enters the great desert south of the oasis of Salt Lake City, at the setting of the sun, on this fourth day of May, 1907:

"To the Nobility of the Mystic Shrine of North America, Nobles of Al Malaikah Temple, and the faithful from everywhere assembled in the Oasis of Los Angeles:

"I send greetings and assurances that with the continued protection of Allah, the God of our Fathers and the Controller of our Destinies, accompanied by a distinguished escort, it will be my great pleasure to pitch the Imperial tent in the delightful Oasis of Al Malaikah Temple, Sunday, May 5.

"Word has been brought to me of the great welcome which the people of the Oasis of the Angels are preparing for us. My wise men have told me of the beauties of sea, valley and mountain which will greet us at our pilgrimage's end. The great Allah has so indorsed your Southland that our pathway will be bordered with trees and flowers of wondrous beauty.

"For this, all praise to Allah, and for the festal days' joy which are before us thanks to the faithful of the Southland. A. P. CLAYTON, "Imperial Potentate."

"On board the Imperial Special at the border of the desert southwest of the Oasis of Salt Lake City."

NOBLES TRAIL HITHERWARD

The special train of Imperial Potentate A. P. Clayton is being whirled across the hot sands of Nevada desert, and, should no delay accur, will enter the Oasis of Los Angeles with the setting of Sunday's sun.

This twentieth-century caravan consists of seven standard Pullman sleepers, two dining cars and two baggage cars specially fitted for commissary service. From St. Joseph, Mo., this train has run solid and will convey Imperial Potentate Clayton, his Imperial Council, personal escort and guests through an extensive tour which, besides Los Angeles, will embrace the entire Pacific Coast and the Northwestern States.

Arriving in Salt Lake City at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday, the imperial party was given time to view the sights of Zion while their train was prepared for its desert journey over the Salt Lake route.

POTENTATE'S SUITE.

Up to the Mormon capital the train had journeyed over the Missouri Pacific and Denver and Rio Grande systems with brief stops at the most interesting oases en route. The imperial party numbers 167 and includes the following: Imperial Potentate A. P. Clayton, Mrs. Clayton and Robert G. Clayton of Moila Temple, St. Joseph, Mo.; Past Imperial Potentate Lon B. Winsor and Mrs. Winsor of Reed City, Mich.; Potentate J. J. Schneider of Abon Ben Adhem Temple, Springfield, Mo., and Mrs. Schneider; Potentate J. Slemmons of Mohammed Temple, Peoria, Ill., and Mrs. Slemmons; Potentate Will S. Guthrie of India Temple, Oklahoma City, Okla., and Mrs. Guthrie; Potentate Joe Seinsheimer of El Mina Temple, Galveston, Tex., and Mrs. Seinsheimer; Benton Quick, Past Potentate of Moia Temple, St. Joseph, Mo., and Mrs. Quick; George L. Bonney and Mrs. Bonney of Molah Temple, St. Joseph, Mo.; Capt. H. G. Getchel and Arab Patrol of Molah Temple, the personal escort of the Imperial Potentate.

At Salt Lake City the train was met by Assistant General Passenger Agent T. C. Peck of the Salt Lake route, who, with his staff, is personally looking out for the quick and comfortable dispatch of California's imperial guests while their caravan is journeying over his line.

The present pilgrimage of the Imperial Council is one of several such journeys which have distinguished the rule of Imperial Potentate Clayton. The last one prior to this California pilgrimage was to the City of Mexico for the purpose of installing the Shrine in the southern republic. All of these pilgrimages have been under the direction of Benton Quick of the Missouri Pacific Railway, who, as on former pilgrimages, is in personal charge of the present imperial party.

PROHIBITS WATER.

Many imperial edicts are enforced upon the present pilgrimage, a principal one of which has been drawn from the rules governing caravans in times before camels were superseded by Pullmans.

This edict forbids the use of water save for the purposes of ablution while the desert is being crossed. Consequent upon this edict comes the addition of two fully stocked commissary cars to the imperial train. Never in its history has Los Angeles had the opportunity of welcoming a more jovial party or one more interested in her feast of flowers than this one which is escorting its Imperial Potentate. When Owens River comes to Los Angeles, prohibition of water may be raised.

The programme for Fiesta week has already been memorized by the majority of the party and everyone will reach the City of Angels filled with enthusiasm over their visit to the Southland.

With constant desires for information upon subjects of deep scientific importance the imperial travelers have busied the philosophers of the party in the solving of the question "What makes the wild cat wild" and at imperial request this question is forwarded so that the nobles of Al Malaikah Temple may give it much thought prior to the time when they will be called upon to answer the imperial query.

Should the schedule be maintained as laid out the imperial special will reach Los Angeles at 7 p.m., Sunday.

ZION NOBLES HEADED WEST.

THEY INTEND TO TAKE PART IN ALL EXERCISES.

With the Salt Lake Mystic Shriners Are More Than Half a Hundred Ladies, and Famous El Kalah Patrol Already Entered in the Drill. Royally Entertained.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SALT LAKE (Utah) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Not on camels, but in luxuriant Pullman cars, members of El Kalah Temple, the local mystic shrine lodge, started across the burning sands toward Los Angeles tonight.

A special train of six sleepers and a dining car left the city by the Salt Lake route at 8:45 o'clock. In the party were 95 men and 54 women. The Nobles of the El Kalah Patrol, which is entered in the patrol drill in Los Angeles, are on the train. In charge of the patrol are F. H. Carrel, captain; W. H. Young, first lieutenant, and F. J. Gustin, second lieutenant.

The Salt Lakers expect to participate in the various parades of the week. Potentate S. D. Evans, representative of the Schramm, and Representative J. M. Marriett made arrangements for the trip and are in charge of the Zion party. The delegation expects to reach Los Angeles in time for the first exercises of the convention.

The Hollenbeck Hotel will be the headquarters, and the train carrying the Salt Lake crowd was one of the ten specials to leave this city for Los Angeles over the Salt Lake route tonight. Seventeen specials arrived here on the Rio Grande Railroad today, ten of them leaving over the Southern Pacific.

The visitors were royally entertained by the local Shriners in the New Masonic Hall, and many of the fez-wearers visited the temple grounds, where special recitals on the grand organ in the tabernacle were given.

DOFF FEZES HERE.

POTENTATE GIVES A HINT.

Red fezes of Shriners, visiting or home, are not good form in thirst parlors, shooting galleries, billiard parlors and other places to which the wearers would not take their wives, sisters or sweethearts. Potentate Flint has thrown out the hint that the little red top-piece should be taken by the nape of the neck by the man underneath upon entering such places and stowed away in a pocket or carried in the hand.

The suggestion of the Potentate was quite generally observed last night. It was a common sight to see hatless men ranged in rows at drink troughs in various cases about the city, the red fez protruding from their pockets and dry red tongues hanging from their mouths.

LONDON CHANGES HATS.

King Edward Returns After Diplomatic Holiday and Begins Fixing Up New Fashions.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] King Edward, who derived great benefit from his holiday, while at Palermo, wore a white bowler hat. Within a few hours of its appearance the fashion dealers were writing urgent orders to manufacturers to make "Edward the Seventh" white hats in large quantities for immediate delivery.

On publication of the news in London there was a similar demand for this headgear with the result that in a few days' time West End hat shops will be full of white bowlers. King Edward's headgear always becomes him, because he possesses what a hatter calls a good head. He takes a 7¼ size.

The white bowler hat, by the way, is not the only fashion which King Edward has set this year. His Majesty also intends to popularize a tall walking stick of the kind used by Gilbert's grandee in "The Gondoliers," but not quite so high. Deportment has to be studied very carefully in the use of this stick. It is grasped about a foot from the top and the arm is flung out a full length while walking, the attitude of the body being of Johnsonian dignity and gravity.

IAN McLAREN VERY ILL.

In Pain and Unable to Sleep, Owing to Formation of Abscess in Ear.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MOUNT PLEASANT (Iowa) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The condition of Dr. John Watson (Ian McLaren) is critical, as he suffered a relapse last night. An abcess in the ear is causing great pain and he is unable to sleep.

Dr. Watson came here about ten days ago, expecting to lecture before the students of Wesleyan University, but he was taken ill on his way from Minneapolis and went to bed immediately upon arrival. His wife was telegraphed for and has been constantly by his side. He was first stricken with tonsilitis but seemed to improve until last night. His pulse is low and physicians admit the gravity of the case

THE WORM TO TURN.

Lockout Planned in San Francisco.

Secret Compact Is Made by the Well-nigh Ruined City-Builders.

Work to Be Stopped on Every Structure That's Now Going Up.

Governor Asked to Hold Force of State Troops in Readiness.

BY HARRY C. CARR.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] One of the most remarkable defensive moves ever attempted against labor unions began in San Francisco today.

If the carmen go on strike, the capitalists of San Francisco will retaliate by tying up the work on every building in the city.

Every working man in the city will have a chance of finding himself out in the street.

The whole industrial machinery of the city will be allowed to run down.

A secret compact is said to have been entered into today by the big moneyed interests.

Realizing that rioting will surely result, Gov. Gillett has been requested to hold the State troops in readiness.

A cavalry captain at the Presidio said today that the regulars were being held in readiness and that San Francisco might wake up Monday to find soldiers in the streets.

All day long, latter-day Paul Reveres in automobiles were hustling around the city, signing up bankers and business men. Some of the signers were the sons of Vigilantes who in their day ran the ruffians out of this city.

My authority for the truth of this story is one of the highest officials in the Union Iron Works, one of the "big men" in the commercial life of San Francisco.

The reckless, foolhardy union men probably do not dream of the masked battery into which they are running. They imagine that the city is quailing before them, as it has so often done before. They were given a last chance to withdraw their brutal demands today. A committee went to each striking organization and tried to show them that it would mean the industrial annihilation of San Francisco to grant their ultimatum. The iron men were shown how the local foundries are being wrecked, trying to compete with Eastern men who are not forced to pay such ruinous wages as are already paid here. They were shown that the Union Iron Works has lost $1,000,000 in a year and has been obliged to ask the government to finish two cruisers now in the ways.

Nothing doing.

The striking telephone girls were shown that they are already paid the highest salaries of any 'phone operators in the world; that their pay exceeds that of any other class of women employés whose positions do not require special education.

An appeal was sent to the carmen, asking them not to strike today, couched about in this language: "We the merchants and business men of San Francisco, ask you, as a matter of civic pride, to avert destitution and want and arbitrate your differences."

To show that they do not suspect any retaliatory move, witness this statement made to me by a conductor today: "If they strike," he said, "I'm going to work on some of these big buildings until it is over. I can stand it as long as the United Railroads can."

If he goes on strike, he may not find any big buildings to work on, and will have a wife and children on his hands whose condition he will seek to improve by throwing brickbats at passing street cars and yelling "scab."

Perhaps this may seem like a cruel move. But it is not. The unions are fighting for dirty little increase in wages and the merchants and business men are fighting for life.

San Francisco simply cannot go on enduring these demands for increased wages. In some jobs it is claimed that plumbers are now paid $16 per day. Owners of buildings will have to rent offices by the square inch to make a profit if wages get any higher. One of the big steel men said today: "There

STRIKERS CUT PHONE CABLES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Shortly before 10 o'clock tonight the cables containing all the wires running into the "West" exchange at Steiner and Pine streets were cut on one of the poles near the exchange.

Until repaired, this leaves a large portion of the city entirely without telephone connections.

GUATEMALA REFUSES REQUEST OF MEXICO.

Cabinet of Big Latin Republic Holds Special Session to Consider Advisability of Severing Diplomatic Relations With Central American Nation—Corea Seeks Aid of United States.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CITY OF MEXICO, May 4.—Guatemala has refused to comply with the request of the Mexican government that José Maria Lima and Col. Onofre Bore, charged with complicity in the assassination of Gen. Barillas, be extradited.

The Cabinet is now in session and it is said that the Ministers are discussing the advisability of immediately severing diplomatic relations with Guatemala.

"El Diari," says in its morning edition today: "We have been officially advised that Guatemala will refuse Mexico's request for the extradition of Gen. José Lima.

"Upon receipt of this advice, Mexico will recall her representatives and the United States will do likewise."

SEEKS AMERICAN AID.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ambassador Creel of Mexico, was at the State Department again today to discuss conditions in Guatemala, which are represented to be growing daily more serious. As a result of the attempted assassination of President Cabrera, the authorities of Guatemala are making arrests indiscrimately and a condition bordering on social anarchy prevails.

Advices received by the Mexican Ambassador are that arrests are not confined to citizens of Guatemala, but many foreigners, mostly Mexicans, are now in prison.

There has been a general protest from diplomatic representatives against the conditions and particularly concerning the treatment of some of the foreign prisoners.

Creel is seeking joint action between the United States and Mexico to elleviate the conditions. Should Mexico sever diplomatic relations with Guatemala; as may occur at any time on account of the failure of Guatemala to extradite José Lima, the friend and adviser of President Cabrera, who is charged with the complicity in assassination of General Barillas, the United States will be asked to represent Mexico at Guatemala City.

UNITED ROADS ISSUES BONDS.

Bear Not Less Than Six Per Cent. and Taken Up by Investment Company.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—The United Railroads of San Francisco, it is made known in the annual report of the Railways Investment Company, has authorized an issue of $5,000,000 first preferred stock, to bear interest at the rate of not less than 6 per cent. per annum.

This issue has been authorized to provide funds for a new construction and improvements and $1,500,000 is to be issued in the near future. All of this stock will be taken by the Railways Investment Company, which owns all the stock of the United Railroads of San Francisco, as well as a controlling interest in the Philadelphia Company of Pittsburgh.

CARMEN REFUSE ALL REASONABLE TERMS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Members of Carmen's Union met, for the second time within a week, at the Central Theater this morning at one o'clock to decide whether they would enforce their demands against the United Railroads by a strike. At a meeting last Wednesday morning the conditions confronting the men were much different than those this morning. At that time the men were called to consider two alternatives. They met this morning to consider but one.

At the first meeting there were three parties, namely, those who wanted to strike, those who wanted to carry the negotiations farther and those who did not want a strike in any event.

The middle party prevailed and it was decided to carry on the negotiations before resorting to extreme measures. A resolution was passed by a vote of about seven to three to let the conference committee, working together with Rev. P. C. Yorke, arrange the best terms it could with the company and report back a week from the date of that meeting, which would have been next Tuesday night. The conference committee had one meeting with President Calhoun on Wednesday afternoon in the offices of the company at Oak and Broderick streets and another yesterday afternoon in the office of Mayor Schmitz at his special call. All parties to these conferences admit that they have been futile.

The company made three offers, or, at least, agreed to grant three different scales, none of which was acceptable to the committee. They want the present scale, the Oakland scale, and a modified Oakland scale, which increased the wages of the older men in the employ of the company and permitted the company to hire new men at a lower wage.

The offers of the committee were all conditional on their acceptance by the men and the only one that it was empowered to make unconditionally was the original demand of the union—$3 for eight hours.

When it was deemed impossible to arrange a settlement, a special meeting was called by the executive board of the union for this morning, instead of letting it go over to Tuesday night, as was originally intended.

As no adjustment had been made and the negotiations had been broken off, there was no third party to be considered at the meeting this morning. But one alternative faced the men. They could vote to accept the offers of the company or to strike to enforce their demands.

Before the mass meeting was called, the executive board of the union went into session on the stage of the theater to discuss details in connection with the meeting and to arrange for the report of the conference committee, which was appointed from its own membership.

President Calhoun of the United Railroads said last night:

"At the request of the Mayor, Mr. Holbrook and I representing the United Railroads met the conference committee of the carmen's union at the Mayor's office this afternoon at 2 o'clock. While the conference was entirely friendly the railroads company declined positively to recede from its position. Much of the old ground was gone over and we tried to make it perfectly clear:

"First, that the railroad company had been just and generous in proposing to continue for another year the high rate of wages fixed by the Board of Arbitration.

"Second, that the Carmen's Union had never authoritatively proposed any scale of wages except the flat rate of $3 for an eight-hour day, and that this was the identical proposition submitted and passed upon and disallowed by the board of arbitration.

"Third, that in the company's opinion the eight-hour day was not economically practical and would not be allowed.

"Fourth, that the company in its own interest, in that of its employés and in that of the public, wanted to avoid a strike, and sincerely sought industrial peace.

"Fifth, that if the union caused a strike under present conditions, its relation with the railroad company would be permanently severed.

"Sixth, that in that event the company would operate its cars independently of the union; that resistance by force of members of the union would be unlawful and the company would demand from the city and State authorities the full protection guaranteed by law."

UN-DUNNE CHICAGO.

Grand Jury Indicts Grafters.

Chief of Police and Three of His Satellites Are in Toils of Law.

Further Expected Charges Demoralize Democratic Party in City.

The Jurors Accuse Entire Force of Constabulary of Bad Conduct.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] As a climax to the saturnalia of graft in former Mayor Dunne's police department and the prostitution of that body to the ends of Democratic political leaders, indictments were returned by the April grand jury this afternoon against John M. Collins, former Chief of Police; Frank D. Comerford, former police attorney; E. H. Roche and William L. O'Connell, Mayor Dunne's campaign managers, and Detectives James McGrath and Patrick J. McNulty.

Collins was included in three indictments, one of which charges him with the mutilation of public records, while the others are based on charges of conspiracy to do an illegal act. The other indictments are all based on charges of conspiracy, and in the cases of Detectives McGrath and McNulty the allegation is made that the two sought to collect bribes from South Chicago saloonkeepers.

ACCUSE POLICE FORCE.

Coupled with the indictments which were returned before Judge Pinckney, the grand jury in its report severely arraigned the entire police department, and asserts that inspectors, captains and lieutenants who carried out Collins's orders with reference to the campaign assessments are guilty of reprehensible conduct.

Immediately upon the return of the indictments, capiases were issued by Clerk Harris of the Criminal Court for the arrest of the defendants, and these were placed in the hands of deputy sheriffs.

It is probable, however, that the men indicted will not be arrested until Monday morning, for it is customary to allow defendants in criminal cases sufficient time to present their bonds.

DEMORALIZES DEMOCRATS.

The Democratic organization was thrown into a state of excitement when it was gleaned from the report submitted by the grand jury that State's Attorney Healy has not by any means finished his investigation and that the matter will be taken up again by the next grand jury, which convenes May 20.

Mr. Healy admitted that he has additional evidence against the police and politicians, and he said that if he decides it is sufficient to warrant a conviction he will present it to the May grand jury.

Collins was struck harder than were any of the other defendants. In the first indictment against him the former chief is charged with having wilfully and maliciously mutilated public records, and in this reference is made to the special order books, the pages of which were ordered torn out when Mayor Dunne's chief found he was under investigation by the Civil Service Commission.

PATROLMEN MADE HEELERS.

The second indictment against Collins charges him with conspiracy with Frank D. Comerford to do an illegal act. The two are charged with having conspired to deprive the city of the services of policemen by ordering the police to do campaign work in behalf of Mr. Dunne.

Roche and O'Connell are caught with Collins in the third indictment, which is based on charges of conspiracy to violate the civil-service law. This indictment grew out of the testimony of commanding officers of the police department, who told the grand jury that they had turned over to Messrs. Roche and O'Connell the proceeds of the assessments ordered by Collins.

The penalty in case of conviction on the first indictment against the former Chief of Police was not less than one nor more than five years in the penitentiary. On the second indictment the law provides for a $2000 fine and from one to five years' imprisonment or both, and on the third indictment the same penalty is provided.

Should Collins be convicted on all three indictments it will mean a term of fifteen years at Joliet.

On the other indictments each of the defendants is liable to a penitentiary service of from one to five years, except in the case of Comerford, who may also be subjected to fine of $2000. While it has been freely predicted that Collins would be caught in the grand jury's net and hinted that O'Connell, Roche and Comerford would also be indicted, the indictments against Policemen McGrath and McNulty of the South Chicago station came as a complete surprise.

This action on the part of the grand jury is taken to indicate that a thorough investigation of the conditions which are said to exist in South Chicago will be made by the State's Attorney when the next grand jury convenes and that wholesale indictments may be returned. The men are charged with having sought to induce eight saloon-keepers of South Chicago to give them bribes and their indictments followed the testimony of the liquor men, who appeared before the grand jury Friday afternoon.

RAILROAD RECORD.

FIGHT SAVES FAST TRAINS.

Plan to Lengthen Schedules Starts Fisticuffs.

Friends Rush Between Irate Railway Magnates.

Prevented from Blows They Make Air Blue.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A fight with bare fists to a finish between Samuel M. Felton, president of the Chicago and Alton Railroad, and J. W. Kendrick, vice-president of the Santa Fé system, threatened to be the wind-up of a meeting of executive officers of western railroads, called to settle a dispute between the passenger officials over the lengthening of schedules of through trains.

Before any blows were struck by President Felton or Vice-President Kendrick, the meeting of executive officers was hastily declared adjourned by the chairman, J. Kruttschnitt, director of maintenance and operation of the Harriman systems. The meeting was being held in his office.

When Chairman Kruttschnitt declared the meeting adjourned, the other presidents and vice-presidents surged in between Mr. Felton and Mr. Kendrick and led them away in opposite directions.

The strife between President Felton and Vice-President Kendrick followed a meeting last Thursday of the passenger officials of the Western roads. They had almost reached an agreement for lengthening the schedules of through trains when W. J. Black, passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fé system, declared he was "the man who would have the say about the time of Santa Fé trains, and not Mr. Kendrick."

Mr. Kendrick's attitude finally exasperated President Felton of the Alton, who bluntly asked whether Mr. Kendrick was there to get an agreement or to obstruct and prevent one.

This pertinent interrogatory angered Vice-President Kendrick, and he intimated unmistakably that he did not consider the president of the Alton railroad a gentleman. Then came the linguistic pyrotechnics. Both President Felton and Vice-President Kendrick made a fine display, according to the spectators.

As a result, the plans to lengthen through-train schedules on western railroads is again laid on the shelf.

STEAMERS ICE BOUND.

Service Between Canada and Europe Unusually Delayed by Extreme Cold.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

HALIFAX (N. S.) May 4.—The Allan line steamer Sardinian, from London and Havre for Montreal, which was forced into this port yesterday to land her 600 passengers, reports that imbedded in the ice fields are two large steamers, the Allan liner Ontarian and the Dominion liner Vancouver. The Allan liner Ironian is also believed to be ice bound. The fields stretch across Abbott Strait for a distance of a little over fifty miles and to add to the difficulty of navigation, a thick fog hangs over the coast.

Not for years has the opening of the summer service to Montreal been so delayed as this year and as a result immense quantities of freight designated for that port, which in the summer is one of the great shipping terminals upon the continent, have been severely delayed. During the winter the trans-Atlantic business on Montreal is suspended on account of the ice in the St. Lawrence rivers.

The ice conditions this winter have been worse than for many seasons, and the government ice-breaking steamers have been helpless for weeks at a time, having been caught in their efforts to relieve other vessels. The sealing fleet has run thousands behind that of last year owing to the sealing grounds being walled in by ice fields. Several of the steamers already badly damaged in the ice are still imprisoned somewhere along the coast.

Burnham killed the animal with his pistol.

Second Attempt to Assassinate President Cabrera of Guatemala Is Made With "Mine."

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Another attempt to assassinate President Cabrera of Guatemala, according to a dispatch received today by Minister Toledo, was made yesterday. In this instance, what is described in a general way in the advices as a "mine," was placed not far from the mansion of President Cabrera, apparently with the intention of exploding it when it would be most destructive. The mine was discovered, the attempt at assassination thus being rendered futile.

The news of the second attempt upon President Cabrera's life was received in a cablegram, of which the following is a translation:

GUATEMALA, May 4.—Minister Toledo, Washington, D. C. Yesterday a great mine was discovered placed in front of the barracks of the guard of honor, 120 feet from the American Legation and 170 feet from the presidential mansion. This scandalous attempt at assassination has created great indignation among all classes of society. BARRIOS.

Señor Barrios is Minister of Foreign Affairs of Guatemala. The guard of honor is the special guard of President Cabrera.

PANIC FOLLOWS ATTEMPT.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—It appears from advices which the Mexican Ambassador has received from the City of Mexico that a condition of chaos exists in Guatemala, following the recent attempt to assassinate President Cabrera. The Mexican account is that indiscriminate arrests are being made of men, women and children of Guatemalans and people of other nationalities and that these prisoners are being harshly treated.

LAMENESS THREATENS HER.

Mabelle Gilman Summons Surgeons to Examine Foot Injured by Horse in France.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Threatened with permanent lameness of the left foot, Mabelle Gilman summoned two surgeons to the Hotel Gotham today. After making an examination they ordered her to remain in her apartments as much as possible and to avoid standing on the injured foot. She walks with a noticeable limp.

Miss Gilman was thrown from her horse near her villa in France recently and was confined to bed for five weeks as a result.

William E. Corey does not neglect his fiancée for any great length of time and telephones at least three times during the day. Each night Mr. Corey calls at the Hotel Gotham and at the family gathering they discuss the wedding plans and arrange for the decorating of their new Fifth-avenue home.

One of the Gilman party at the Gotham told today of Mr. Corey's lavish gifts to Mabelle. To date his presents of diamonds, strings of pearls and other gems exceed in value $150,000. A diamond pendant, once owned by the royalty of France, will be worn by the future Mrs. Corey, and its value is not less than $50,000.

COLD BREAKS RECORD.

Middle West Experiences Lowest Temperature in History for Month of May.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) May 4.—The coldest may weather on record was experienced here last night, and in this part of the Middle West. This morning the temperature rose rapidly. At Kansas City, Kan., and in the northwest portion of Missouri, 27 degrees was recorded. This is 9 degrees colder than any previous May record.

POLICE FORCE CONVENT DOORS.

NANTES (France) May 4.—Fifty mounted gendarmes today surrounded the convent of the Ursulines here and when refused admittance they battered in the doors. The Sisters were found assembled at prayer in the chapel, but after the mother superior had read a protest against the action of the authorities the officiating priest removed the holy sacrament and the Sisters withdrew.

In the meantime an excited crowd gathered outside the convent shouting maledictions upon the soldiers. Several persons were arrested.

GRAND JURY TO VOTE ON BRIBERY CHARGES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Following the refusal yesterday of President Calhoun and General Manager Mullally to testify, and the subpoenaeing by telegraph of Chief Counsel Tirey L. Ford in Los Angeles, it was learned today that it is the intention of the grand jury to vote on the returning of bribery indictments against certain officers of the United Railroads some time next week probably not later than Thursday.

Apprised of this information and asked against whom these indictments would be proposed District Attorney Langdon replied: "I cannot discuss this matter at all or make any statement concerning it. Too much advance information has already found its way into public print and it has been openly hinted that the prosecution has 'leaked.'"

It was learned that the number of prospective indictments to be voted upon next week with reference to United Railroads officials is 57, comprising the alleged complicity of three men in the bribing of eighteen supervisors, and another and higher municipal official. At the same time the grand jury will vote on the returning of nineteen other indictments charging a political boss with the same crime in the same deal. The amount of money, part cash, part bonds, alleged by the prosecution to have been expended is approximately $750,000.

On Tuesday morning the grand jury will meet in Judge Coffey's department of the Superior Court, when William Abbott of the United Railroads' law department; Mrs. Francis and Miss McDermott, stenographers in that department, and Secretary Wilcutt, will be reported to the court as having refused to submit to interrogation in the grand jury chamber and the court will be asked to order them to answer all questions excepting such as in the court's opinion might call for an incriminating answer. Dist.-Atty. Langdon is authority for this statement. President Calhoun and General Manager Mullally will not be called before the court.

Abbott, Francis, Miss McDermott and Wilcutt were before the grand jury today. Each of them declined to answer questions, on the ground that by answering they might incriminate one or another of the officials of the company—persons other than themselves.

Two brief sessions of the grand jury were held today. No witnesses were summoned in the forenoon, but in the afternoon several officials of the local mint and of the sub-treasury were called to the stand. Treasurer Julius Jacobs and Cashier Thomas Burns of the sub-treasury, and Superintendent F. A. Leach and Clerk Nat Selig of the mint were questioned as to the withdrawal of large sums of gold and currency from those institutions within a stated period after the fire and during the reconstruction and electrification of the United Railroads systems.

Burns recalled that upon one occasion Treasurer Starr of that corporation came in an automobile to the mint and withdrew $200,000 in gold, which he loaded into the motor car with the assistance of two men. This was at a time when, according to a recent statement by General Manager Mullally, the United Railroads was expending huge sums in restoring its ruined tracks and replacing its destroyed equipment.

The grand jury adjourned until Tuesday.

AMERICANS BUY BIG MEAT HOUSE.

YANKEE PACKERS INVADE FIELD OF FRANCE.

Gallic Merchants Are Greatly Exercised Over Purchase of Large Tract of Land by Men from the United States to Be Used for Slaughtering Purposes.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The French meat industry is considerably exercised over the news that at the Pointe Du Hoc (predestined name) just out of Havre, an American company has taken an option on 375 acres of land, where it proposes to build a market, immense slaughter-houses and factories for preserving and canning pork and other butchers' meats, and for the working up of the by-products. Land and buildings alone will represent a first outlay of more than $2,000,000 without speaking of machinery and the rest.

Again, near Bordeaux, the same phenomenon occurs. The American company—it is not said if it is the same as at Havre—is already pulling up a vineyard where it is going to build.

Finally, at Bonnueil, close to Paris, an American company, with a capital of $8,000,000, is treating for a slaughter-house. French butchers say that the result will be regular raids on French cattle, with a raise in prices, which will force the government to consent to the importation of foreign, American animals.

WILL RESTORE POPE'S POWER.

SCHEME OF AMERICANS IS FAR-REACHING IN SCOPE.

Big Project Is Concealed Behind Plain Statement of Enterprise Projected by Yankees in Rome. Forty Millions of Dollars Needed to Carry Out Plan in Entirety.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There is a far bigger news story than appears on the surface back of the short cablegram received from Rome Tuesday that R. C. Kerens of St. Louis and Martin Maloney, a well-known Easterner, were arranging for the purchase of a narrow strip of land extending from the Vatican to the seacoast in order to give the Pope a village on the seashore. Back of this statement is a scheme to restore the temporal power of the Pope in a way that the Quirinal may acquiesce in.

There is interwoven in this a plan for the advancement of the Catholic church in the United States and the addition of at least three American prelates to the list of members of the Sacred College of Cardinals. It is one of the biggest schemes that is under way in the world today.

Those who enjoy Mr. Kerens's confidence in this city say that the plan has been in process of formation for several years and that the initial amount of $10,000,000 necessary to put it into execution has already been secured. The Pope will step from his prison to reign once more, the entity of Italy will not be inured and the Quirinal will remain undisturbed in Rome.

Kerens would naturally ask for Glennon and Maloney or Ryan as cardinals. They would not be refused. To even up the matter, geographically, either Chicago or St. Paul would also be included in the list of new cardinals and the Pacific Coast in addition.

The entire plan calls for the use of a great deal more money than will be gathered at first, so much that an appeal will be necessary to Catholics generally in this country. About $40,000,000 will be needed, all told, in the next five or ten years.

FOLK TO WIELD PROBE.

KANSAS CITY, May 4.—Gov. Joseph W. Folk, who, before he became Chief Executive of the State, prosecuted the boodlers in St. Louis, intends to come to Kansas City and personally investigate recent charges of police corruption. He announced this decision last night. The Police Commission has decided to begin an investigation on Monday next, and it is intimated that there will be a reorganization of the force, and that will include some of the higher officers. Gov. Folk is not expected to come here until the adjournment of the Legislature, probably in ten days or two weeks.

PITH OF NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The May blizzard tooks its departure in the early hours today but the northeast wind still refuses to budge, and consequently there was no improvement in the way of temperature. From the 34 deg. minimum the mercury ranged upward to 40 deg. maximum, but that altitude was maintained only for a few minutes. Mean for the day was 15 deg. lower than the normal.

RIOT VETERANS CELEBRATE.

Forty-two veterans of the Haymarket riot answered "roll call" tonight, when the twenty-first anniversary of the riot was celebrated. John Kinsella read the names of the 130 policemen who were in the riot, and the frequency of the "dead" in contrast to the occasional "here," brought tears to the eyes of the veterans. After the "roll call," Kinsella and others attempted to make short speeches, but none of the veterans was able to finish his address.

TRIED TO ROB PREACHER.

An audience of worshippers who were listening to Rev. D. A. Mortison at the corner of Randolph and Peoria streets tonight were thrown into confusion when pickpockets attempted to rob the minister of his collections.

Rev. Mortison was preaching to his band on the Ten Commandments as the "foundaton of proper living," when he felt a hand in his pockets. The offender was chased several blocks before the minister caught him.

TURKEY MAKES CONCESSIONS.

All American Demands Conceded by Recent Imperial Irade and Old Difficulties Are Removed.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 4.—The power of withholding its consent to the increase of 3 per cent. in the Turkish customs dues has given the American government the necessary leverage to secure the Porte's assent to a settlement of the long-standing question between the United States and Turkey in accordance with the wishes of the United States government.

The imperial irade issued Friday authorizing the ministers to take action in the matter was quickly followed by a communication from the Porte to Ambassador Leishman, in which the Porte declared that the American schools and other institutions for which original recognition was demanded, will hereafter be treated upon the same footing as those of other nations.

All other American demands are conceded and all the obstacles to a complete solution of the difficulties which have existed between the American representatives here and the Porte for three years seem to have been removed.

GIBSON MAKES DEBUT.

Paintings of Noted American Artists Are Neglected and Badly Treated at French Salon.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, May 4. — [Exclusive Dispatch.] Charles Dana Gibson makes his real début as a painter at the Salon Des Artistes Francais, which has just been opened. It is a fact worthy of notice that three pictures of perhaps the most interest to Americans have been entirely ignored by French critics.

The first of these is Mr. Gibson's well-executed portrait of his wife, which has been praised by other American artists now in Paris. It failed to get on the line, and otherwise received scant consideration from the salon jury. The second picture, by MacMonnies, is a portrait in shooting costume of "Jack" Roudebush of New York, which, although attracting the attention of a multitude of Americans, has been entirely passed over by reviewers of this year's exhibition.

The third picture is a portrait of Mrs. Booth Tarkington by Ernest Blumenschein, a well-known New York illustrator. Although the portrait is admirable and the likeness excellently painted, the canvas is so badly placed that the effect is utterly lost, its quiet tones being killed by the gaudy pictures surrounding it.

FLASHES FROM WIRES.

Absolute confirmation has been secured of the complete failure of the Mission of King Leopold of Belgium to Paris, which was indirectly designed to secure the support of France against Great Britain in the matter of the Congo independent state, by inducing a French financial institution to convert the Congo debt, hypothecating for that purpose the railroads and other franchises of the Congo to the French government, which already enjoys preference in the matter of taking over the Congo, should Belgium decline to refuse to consider the proposals made on the subject to that country.

The Earl of Aberdeen, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, opened the Irish International Exhibition at Herbert Park, Ballsbridge, yesterday. The function was marked with much ceremony. The Knights of St. Patrick, wearing the insignia, the Castle officials and a number of naval and military officers as well as representatives of many public bodies and crowds of spectators were present.

It is understood at Berlin that it is the intention of the Hungarian government to invite a sort of world's parliament of journalists from Great Britain, America and all continental countries to participate in the festivities at Budapest in September in celebration of the fortieth anniversary of the coronation of Emperor Francis Joseph as King of Hungary.

Dr. N. A. Stein, leader of the British Indian government mission to East Turkstan, has made important archaeological discoveries in East Turkstan. At Miram he found nearly a thousand Tibetan records and many interesting art remains were discovered in a ruined Buddhist shrine, including Colossal stucco relics closely related to the Graeco Buddhist culture of the first centuries of the Christian era.

JAP FALLS FROM CAR.

WASHINGTON.

ESPEE QUITS COMBINATION.

Fearing Prosecution, Road Spurns Contract.

Tries to Escape Consequences of Its Acts.

Scheme May Yet Prove to Be Unavailing.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After having been pushed into a corner by the government for violating the Sherman anti-trust law and when prosecution was about to begin, the Southern Pacific Railway, in the hope of escaping the consequences of its acts, today notified the Interstate Commerce Commission that it has abrogated its agreement with the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake road to maintain identical rates. It is by no means certain that it will escape prosecution.

E. H. Harriman is the controlling factor in the Southern Pacific Railroad, and former Senator Clark of Montana built the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake line. These two roads had a long fight to secure the right of way for the road built by Clark, and as the outcome of this contest the two roads agreed to maintain the same local freight and passenger rates at all times. This was a clear violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and the government now has enough evidence to secure a conviction.

This agreement is one of the points developed during the investigation in New York by the Interstate Commerce Commission of Harriman's operations in securing control of the Illinois Central Railway and his operations in the Chicago and Alton and some of the stock transactions involved in it.

Notice of the abrogation of the agreement was given the Interstate Commerce Commission by R. S. Lovett, general counsel for the Southern Pacific road, with headquarters at New York. The reason given for the abrogation of the agreement to maintain rates is that the Legislature of California, at its last session, adopted a law making such agreements within California illegal.

But the Interstate Commerce Commissioners are by no means certain that this is the real and only reason. The two roads have known for months that the government has been gathering evidence in this case, which is now practically made out. The facts will be turned over to the Department of Justice and there are strong probabilities that a prosecution will be made.

It will be recalled that a part of the commission's inquiry into the Harriman lines was conducted at Los Angeles. In that inquiry J. Ross Clark, an official of the San Pedro line, and a brother of former United States Senator W. A. Clark, president of the San Pedro road, admitted that he understood when the traffic agreement was made between his road and the Southern Pacific that for ninety-nine years on the class of traffic mentioned in the agreement the San Pedro officials could not make a change of rate without the consent of the Southern Pacific. Mr. Clark further said that the proposition was not put into the agreement at the instance of his line. The examination then continued:

Commissioner Lane: Why did you consent to the making of such a contract?

Mr. Clark: Why, that let us into Southern California. There is a provision in there that they can interchange with us on the same terms as they interchange with the Santa Fé Company. Now at that time we probably had a little over 100 miles of railroad in Southern California and that would give us access by interchange to 300 additional miles already constructed by the Southern Pacific and in operation.

Commissioner Lane: You say that lets you into Southern California. Could you not have gotten in without that?

Mr. Clark: In time, yes; at an enormous expense. Those lines were already constructed and in operation.

In response to further inquiries Mr. Clark said the contract applied only to "local traffic, that is, traffic picked up in California and laid down within the State."

When his attention was called to a clause which provides that no changes should be made in the rates unless such changes as made necessary by requirement of State and national law, and was asked by Attorney Severance, for the commission, if that did not show clearly that it was never the intention that the provision should apply to traffic local to the State of California, Mr. Clark said he would not undertake to answer this.

Mr. Clark admitted further that he was unable to give any reason for the insertion of the provision. He could not say that the provision had been drafted by Mr. Harriman or Mr. Harriman's assistants, but he was quite positive that it was not drafted by the San Pedro road officials. It developed that the San Pedro company agreed not to construct, during the life of its contract, additions to its lines that would compete with the Oregon Short Line, "northward of the parallel of Salt Lake City, Utah."

MEDICAL MEN MEET.

TALKS BY NOTED PHYSICIANS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The American Therapeutic Society began its annual meeting here today, and will continue until Tuesday evening, when it will be brought to a close by a complimentary dinner by the local members.

The feature of today's session was the address by the president of the society, Dr. Robert Rayburn, of Washington, his subject being "Fifty Years in the Practice of Medicine."

Addresses were also made by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry of the Department of Agriculture, and Dr. F. M. Pottenger of Los Angeles.

ELLEN TERRY SAILS.

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After a tour lasting four months through the principal cities of the United States, Miss Ellen Terry and the members of her company returned home today on the Atlantic transport Minnetonka. Accompanying Miss Terry was her daughter and stage manager, Miss Edith Craig. "I won't say good-by," she said, "but au revoir. I hope I shall come back soon. I have been treated lovely everywhere. America is the place to work in."

LOSES AN ARM.

John Bittler of Compton stepped from a Pacific Electric car at that town last night so that he fell in front of it. The car ran over his right arm and mangled it. He was brought to the Receiving Hospital in that city, where the surgeons stated it would be necessary to amputate the arm.

"We will lose money by a lock-out and lots of it. But we might as well lose it all now as to have the profits squeezed down month after month as the unions are doing."

It is the steel interests which are behind this movement. It was at the meeting of the foundry owners last night that it was first intimated that their real estate and banking interests would take a hand in the fight. The leading man in it is J. J. Tynan, chairman of the Executive Committee of the California Iron Trades Association. He is Schwab's right hand man in this field.

Tynan is a remarkable man. He is one of those fascinating Irishmen who smile with the sweetness of a child as they fight. He is tall and long-faced and blue-eyed. Before coming here he was the assistant manager of Cramps' Ship Yard.

SCHMITZ MAKES FUTILE APPEAL.

HIS FORMER DUPES REFUSE TO AVERT WALK-OUT.

Bassoon Mayor Invites United Railroads Officials and Union Agitators to Conference in His Office Which Fails to Save Situation in San Francisco.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Mayor Schmitz made a futile effort to bring President Patrick Calhoun of the United Railroads and the executive committee of the carmen together in a compromise that might avert a tie-up of the street railway system of this city.

The conference was productive of no results. The situation is now declared to be hopeless, and that the carmen will vote to strike when they gather in mass meeting at 1 o'clock tomorrow morning is regarded as a certainty. This morning Mayor Schmitz for the first time since the controversy arose between the United Railroads and its platform men as a result of a demand for $3 a day, and an eight-hour day, tried to intervene to bring about a settlement and prevent a strike. He sent a request to President Calhoun and to the carmen's Executive Committee to meet him at his office at 3 o'clock. After being in session for nearly two hours the conference broke up and it was announced by President Cornelius of the union that the meeting had failed and that the situation remained unchanged. This was echoed by Mr. Schmitz and Mr. Calhoun. Both sides remained firm and refused to recede from the position which they have taken. The carmen were to gather at the Central Theater at 1 o'clock, but it will probably be 3 o'clock before the vote will be taken.

It was learned late tonight that if the carmen declare a strike on the United Railroads the union will also call out the platform men on the Geary and California streets cable lines. This would leave the city without a single car line in operation. At the last strike the men on these two lines were not called out, which relieved the situation to some extent.

The Executive Committee of the carmen has been in session nearly all day and will remain in session until midnight.

HELLO "LADIES" ARE REAL RUDE.

THEY MUSS UP THEIR SISTERS WITH EQUINE ORDURE.

Just to Discourage Non-union Young Women from Working, Strike-Crazed Females Shower Their Persons With Handfuls of Filth from City Streets.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Union telephone young ladies throwing horse manure in the faces of non-union telephone young ladies was the social event that occurred today in the telephone strike.

Nasty incidents took place at nearly every telephone exchange in the city, but the worst scenes were at Steiner and Pine streets, where the doorway of the exchange is bespattered with the remnants of invalid eggs.

This morning when the girls who have remained loyal went to work a big crowd of strikers and their friends were waiting.

Two policemen and a sergeant were on duty and astonished the natives by making an arrest. Just before the girls came to work an express wagon arrived on the scene loaded with a bunch of typical south-of-Market-street toughs—half-baked, unshaven boys about twenty-five years old. They had evidently been sent from labor headquarters, and hung around the telephone office all day making trouble.

The telephone company sent automobiles for its girls. When they drew up at the curb a young tough ran out of the crowd and scooping up a handful of dried filth where horses had stood in the gutter, threw it in a girl's face. He ducked back in the crowd. A moment afterward the same tough dragged a messenger boy from a telephone auto and took from him a list of names of the loyal operators. He tried to run away but policemen gave chase in an automobile. He was arrested but gave bail at the O'Farrell-street Police Station and came back.

At five o'clock the girls went off duty. Waiting for them on the sidewalk were the union young ladies doing strike duty. They were got up regardless with Marcel waves, French heels and chewing gum.

The bitterest was a middle-aged old tart in black—evidently mother of one of the strikers, who shook her fist in the faces of the "scabs" and shrieked abuse like some wild thing. The police made no effort to interfere with the taunts and jeers as each girl left the building escorted by a male employé of the company.

When one young girl with her skirt to her shoe tops, flung a mess of filth in the faces of the "scab" girls, the police told her severely she was no credit to the union.

Your correspondent asked one of the policemen why he did not do his duty and clear the sidewalk; he said in a voice of pained reproach, "Now, what could I do when ladies is talking."

Of the 327 officers who took the examinations under the act for the separation of the Coast and Field Artillery, five first lieutenants and two second lieutenants failed physically, six first and three second lieutenants mentally.

DEATH BRINGS DEEP SLEEP.

Gov. Hughes's Legal Adviser Takes His Life.

Overwork in Public Service Is Cause of Deed.

His Chief Is Greatly Moved by Tragedy.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ernest Wilson Huffcut, legal adviser to Gov. Hughes, reviser of the much-discussed Public Utilities Bill and until recently Dean of the Law School of Cornell University, committed suicide today. He shot himself early in the morning on the promenade deck of the Hudson River steamboat C. W. Morse, on which he had taken passage from Albany.

Mental depression, caused by overwork and insomnia, and possibly aggravated by the defeat of the effort to overthrow Otto H. Kelsey and the fight on the Utilities Bill, is given as the reason for his act of self-destruction. A letter to his sister, which was found in his stateroom, indicates that he was suffering from brain-fag and that he had long considered the finding of "sleep after toil" by taking his own life.

He boarded the steamboat yesterday at Albany. He obtained room No. 76, to which he retired at 10:30 o'clock. That he did not occupy it long was evident later, for the berth was not disturbed.

His body was found at 6 o'clock in the morning by John Eagan, second mate, who was making the rounds after the craft had been warped into her berth in the Hudson River at Canal street. The body was still propped up in a chair, with the head leaning a little to the right.

The clothing was wet, although there was an awning overhead, which indicated that the body had been exposed for hours to the gale and mist as the Morse came down the stream. Lying on the deck was a half-burned cigarette, which evidently had been smoked just before the fatal shot was fired, and near it lay the revolver which had been the means of ending a brilliant career. A hole in the right temple revealed where the bullet had entered the brain and had caused instant death.

Col. Treadwell informed the Governor, who is in this city. The Governor went at once with his aide to the undertaking establishment. There he made the first positive identification of the body. The Governor stood over the temporary coffin gazing down upon the face of the dead.

"Oh, Huffcutt," he said, as his voice trembled with emotion, "I cannot understand why you did it."

TOTS BURN TO DEATH.

WEST BRANCH (Mich.) May 4.—Four small children were burned to death last night at the home of Martin Campbell, seven miles from here. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell had gone to a dance, leaving their six little ones locked in the house. They left a big fire in the stove, and in some manner this ignited the house, which was destroyed. The children were awakened by the flames and the two oldest, aged 9 and 10 years, managed to escape. The four smaller ones perished. The parents of the children are prostrated.

FRENCH PRIESTS AT WORK.

Deprived of Official Positions They Adopt Various Methods of Earning a Living.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The "Separation Act," which deprived the French Catholic clergy of official position and stipends, has led many to adopt curious forms of coöperation with a view to earning their living in Paris.

The priests have formed a syndicate, the chief object of which is to procure coal and provisions at wholesale prices. There is also a federation of clerics who do manual labor, and many priests who are capable gardeners and carpenters find employment from Catholics through the federation.

Its members undertake to copy the celebrated Socialist division of the day by giving eight hours to manual work, eight to clerical and eight to rest. In the Department of the Cher priests have formed a beekeepers' association and make a yearly income from the sale of honey, about $150, almost their former stipend.

TO REINTER GAMBETTA.

Efforts Made by His Admirers in France to Have Body Buried in Pantheon.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Efforts are being made by the friends and admirers of Gambetta to have his remains removed from their present resting place in Nice, and transferred to a tomb among the illustrious dead of France in the Pantheon.

The reason that Gambetta was not buried in the Pantheon was advanced by his father, Gambetta, Sr., who subsequently withdrew his objection, provided his son's remains were not transferred until after his father's death, and that his grandchildren, on the female side, should add Gambetta to their family name. The conditions are now fulfilled and therefore, it is claimed there is nothing to prevent the transfer to the Pantheon.

MAJOR IS REDUCED.

Son of Gen. Francis P. Fremont Is Found Guilty of Disgracing Military Service.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Maj. Francis P. Fremont of the Fifth United States Infantry, son of Gen. John C. Fremont, has been found guilty on seven specifications out of twelve on which he was recently court-martialed, and on the recommendation of Maj.-Gen. Frederick D. Grant, commander of the Department of the East, has been reduced sixty files in the lineal list of Majors of Infantry.

Gen. Grant in his sentence says that the charges that Maj. Fremont had made representations of being owner of property which he did not own were proved "beyond any doubt that in reason could exist."

Gen. Grant takes exception to some of the findings of the court on certain specifications, and says: "The facts found by the court that he borrowed money on promises of payment from his official pay, which payment he has neglected and evaded to the scandal and disgrace of the military service, undoubtedly constitute conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman in violation of the sixty-first article of war, and should have been so found."

RAIN AND SNOW RUIN COTTON.

TEXAS CROP CUT IN HALF BY BAD WEATHER.

Unprecedented Wet Season and Attacks of Boll Weevil Ravages Plant in Lone Star State—Estimates of Yield Now 40 to 60 Per Cent. of First Prediction.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GALVESTON (Tex.) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The experts in charge of the government experiment stations have compiled reports from the cotton-belt section which declare that the cotton plant is cut on an average of 50 per cent. by the rain and snow.

The counties in the northwest section of Texas have suffered the greatest damage by the unprecedented wet season for this time of year, which rots the plant. In some of these counties the damage will reach 60 per cent.

The severe cold and rain in the southwestern section of the cotton belt has reduced the coming crop on an average of 40 to 50 per cent.

Up to the present time the crop gave evidence of a heavy yield, with estimates of from 3,500,000 to 4,000,000 bales. But the heavy rains, with the appearance of boll weevils in at least twenty counties, have reduced the estimates anywhere from 40 to 60 per cent.

The records of precipitation show excessive rain of from two to four inches in ten days, above the normal average for this season of the year, over the entire cotton-producing area of Texas.

LABOR BRIEFS.

Dispute Ties Up Industry.

PLAINS (Mont.) May 4.—The differences between the Industrial Workers of the World and the Montana Federation of Labor have resulted in practically tieing up the lumber industry in Western Montana. The operators are willing to accord recognition to the Federation of Labor, but refuse to recognize the Industrial Workers of the World. Wednesday after the men voted, it is understood, in favor of returning to work, all the preparations to resume the drive were made, when representatives of the Industrial Workers ordered the men to continue the strike.

OBITUARY.

Alfred Wilkie.

OAKLAND, May 4.—Alfred Wilkie, well known as a tenor singer and music teacher, died at his home in this city today. He was 66 years of age, and was born in Lancashire, England. His first public appearance in this country was May 2, 1873, in a concert with Mme. Elena Bishop.

TEST PANAMA ROCK.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Secretary Taft today submitted to the President the report of the engineers who inspected the five pits dug on the Panama Canal to determine the character of the rock. Tests to determine its resisting power were made by the engineers with the result that when subjected to the pressure test it failed only at 1240 and 1470 pounds per square inch.

Refinery's Good Run.

C. L. Burges, general manager of the Eastern Consolidated Oil Company, has just returned from Bakersfield and states that the company's refinery, that has been running just one month, has turned out more asphalt than during any similar period before. This is the first run since the pick-up in the market, and general conditions, and since the company's reorganization.

Col. Richard E. Thompson, Signal Corps, is relieved from duty as chief signal officer, Department of California, and will proceed to Seattle, Wash., for duty as chief signal officer of the Department of the Columbia, and as officer in charge of the Washington-Alaska military cable and telegraph system, relieving Lieut.-Col. William A. Glassford, Signal Corps, who will proceed to San Francisco, Cal., for duty as chief signal officer of that department.

Figures That Tell!

Significant compilation showing aggregate number of separate classified advertisements printed in daily newspapers of Los Angeles.

As the compass points the way for mariners, so the volume of "WANT" advertising in a daily newspaper shows its worth; and when that volume in a single newspaper exceeds that of the combined total of five competitors, the statement is doubly significant, and no room is left for argument or comparison.

This is the exact situation in Los Angeles, as the following indisputable figures giving the number of separate announcements printed in The Times and the five other local dailies, combined, for each of the past fourth months will show:

	THE TIMES	ALL OTHER PAPERS
January	53,258	45,767
February	44,469	42,504
March	59,856	48,877

Union and Standard.

The Standard is evidently getting desperate over the inroads made by the Union in its trade in the Northwest. A dispatch from Seattle says that an ordinance, evidently drafted at its dictation, that is pending in the city, prohibits the storing of crude oil and petroleum within 300 feet of the water front, but a special clause exempts any firm or corporation that now owns property in that area.

The Standard Oil Company owns water front property and has tank capacity for 2,700,000 gallons of crude oil. The Union Oil Company has a lease on water front property and a tank capacity of 1,500,000 gallons. By the peculiar wording of the ordinance the Standard Oil would be exempted while the Union Oil Company would not. The California corporation is fighting the ordinance desperately.

Safe Company Busy.

The Safe Oil Company at Midway has begun the work of rigging up for its first well. A good price has been refused for the land. It is owned by Timothy Sullivan, Thomas O'Brien, C. A. Barlow and associates of Bakersfield.

"My Wife and I Consider Pe-ru-na a Household Remedy."
—Victor Patneaude.

In different seasons of the year, catarrh assumes different phases. Systemic catarrh is very common during warm weather and is sometimes the after-effect of some acute ailment experienced during the preceding winter.

Mr. Victor Patneaude, 328 Madison street, Topeka, Kas., a well-k carpenter and member of Knights and Ladies of Security, writes:
"Twelve years ago I had a severe attack of la grippe and I never recovered my health and strength, but grew weaker every year, was unable to work.
"Two years ago I began using Peruna and it built up my streng that in a couple of months I was able to go to work again.
My wife and I consider it a household remedy."

BOWEL TROUBLE.
Mrs. Maggie Durbin, 1217 Water St., Little Rock, Ark., writes:
"I was troubled for five years with a chronic disease. I tried everything I heard of, but nothing did me any good.
"Some doctors said my trouble was catarrh of the bowels, and some said consumption of the bowels.
"A friend of mine advised me to try Peruna and I did so. After I had taken two bottles I found that it was helping me, so I continued its use and it has cured me sound and well.
"I can recommend Peruna to any one, and if any one wants to know what Peruna did for me, if they will write to me, I will answer them gladly."

NERVES ALL UNSTRUNG.
Mr. D. A. Gebhardt, 573 6th avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

ATHLETIC SITUATION RELATING TO SOUTH.

ON ACCOUNT of some hitch in the north, the track team of the Pacific Athletic Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, which will participate in the great field day at the Jamestown Exposition in September, was not selected last week.

Al Lawton, representive for the P.A.A., has been awaiting word from headquarters in San Francisco as to what southern men will be given places on the team, but now learns that the personnel of the crack Coast aggregation will not be announced until Tuesday or Wednesday of this week.

The Pacific Athletic Association, a branch of the Amateur Athletic Union, no longer will have jurisdiction over the amateur sports of all California, as the State has been divided into a northern and southern division. Hereafter, the control of the P.A.A. will extend only as far south as Bakersfield, and the amateur sports of the southland will be conducted by local officers appointed directly by the A.A.U. The officers of the new southern division have not been chosen as yet, but it is certain that Al Lawton will be at the head of local affairs, which insures the proper handling of amateur sports in this section of the country.

Charlie Parsons is the only southern athlete who is sure of a place on the Jamestown team, although Himrod of Pomona College stands an excellent chance of being selected. The only formidable rival the crack U.S.C. sprinter will have at Jamestown is Dan Kelly of Oregon. The East has not produced any great sprinters this year, and the century race has not been negotiated in less than 10 seconds by any one in the country except Parsons. Kelly will have to equal his record of 9 3-5 seconds in order to outsprint the local boy, when the two western stars leave their marks at Jamestown, and Parsons's numerous supporters in the West are confident that the northern man is not capable of such a performance, or even of running the distance under 10 seconds.

It was a great disappointment to sport enthusiasts all over the country that the two great sprinters did not meet in the Olympic games, held in San Francisco two weeks ago, as the event had been awaited with great interest. Parsons was on hand eager to match his prowess with that of the Oregonian, but Kelly sustained a sprained ankle while training, and sent word at the last minute that he would not be able to compete.

MAY TAKE HIMROD.

Himrod should be given a place on the all-star team, as his time of 4m. 24s. in the mile race, made in the last intercollegiate conference meet, stands as a Coast record. DeMana[illegible] of the University of California ran the distance in 4m. 33 2-5s. in the Olympic games, and he may be given a place on account of his ability in the shorter distances. Himrod's time in the two-mile race is 10m. 11 2-5s., which is the southern record, but as Connelly of the Olympic Athletic Club has run this distance in 9m. 51 2-5s., the Pomona man will not be selected for this event.

It has not been decided whether the Jamestown team will be composed of six or twelve men, but in either case Parsons is the only southern man sure of a place, and Himrod is the only additional athlete being considered. The majority of the members of the team will be chosen from the crack athletes who compete under the colors of the Olympic Athletic Club. The San Francisco aggregation is stronger than ever this year, and possesses track and field men equal to any in the country.

Glarner, Cheek, Powell, Connelly and Snedigar are some of the Olympic men who are sure of places on the Jamestown team. These men are able to hold their own, if not surpass, all comers in their respective events, and can be counted on for nothing less than first places in the East.

Glarner smashed the Coast half-mile record this year by sprinting the distance in 1m. 58 2-5s. If the northern crack will succeed in equaling this mark at Jamestown, he should have no difficulty in annexing first place, as it is not probable that the eastern universities and athletic associations are able to produce a man who can run the 880-yard race in faster time. The best time that has been made in this event this year by eastern runners is a second slower than that set by Glarner.

Cheek and Powell will be the P.A.A. hurdlers, and their performances over the sticks this year have been a revelation to western sportsmen. Cheek established a new Coast record in the 220-yard hurdle race in the recent Olympic meet, when he covered the distance in 25 seconds flat. A repetition of this performance at Jamestown will land the San Franciscan well in the running, as the low sticks are not being run in faster time than that by eastern hurdlers. Powell has a record of 15 4-5s. in the 120-yard high race, and ranks as one of the best hurdlers in the country. However, [illegible] of Dartmouth College and Hubbard of Amherst are running the high sticks in 15 3-5s. or faster, and Powell will have to run the race of his life in order to land better than third place.

TWO-MILE GRIND.

Connelly is looked upon as a sure winner in the two-mile grind as his time of 9m. 51 2-5s. has not been equaled by any runner this season. The admirers of the Olympic crack believe that he can cut ten seconds off this time if hard pressed, and are hoping that some one will appear at Jamestown to make him exert himself to the limit.

Snedigar is the best all-around man and will have a place on the team, as he will enter the 100 and 220-yard dashes, the shot put, hammer throw and broad jump. While at the University of California, Snedigar was the fastest sprinter in the North, and is still able to run the shorter distance in 10 seconds flat and the 220-yard race in 22s. Snedigar has a record of 23 ft. in the broad jump, and as O'Connor of the N.Y.A.C., one of the best broad jumpers in the East, is not going over 22 ft. 6 in., this year, the California graduate has an excellent chance to take first place in this event. The northerner is being counted upon to place in both weight events.

Lanagan, the crack pole vaulter of Stanford, and Hall of California, who have been doing sensational work in the high jump event, undoubtedly will go to Jamestown, and they are ranked among the best performers in their respective events. Lanagan has demonstrated his ability to clear the bar at 12 feet, which is better than eastern performances this year. In the relay carnival held at the University of Pennsylvania, April 27, Al[illegible] of Syracuse won the pole vault at 11 ft. 10½ in. If the Syracusan is not able to do better than this at Jamestown, Lanagan should have no difficulty in taking first place.

Hall is capable of jumping 6 ft. 2 in., and therefore ranks with the best high jumpers in the country. Moffitt of Pennsylvania is jumping 6 ft. very consistently, and will give Hall a hard battle for first place. Risley of Columbia is also jumping around the six-foot mark, and it is very likely that a new amateur record will be established when these three men meet.

With this bunch of stars, the P.A.A. team stands an excellent chance of carrying off first honors at Jamestown. Every man is a top-notcher in his event, and northern followers of the sport believe that the Californians will make the greatest clean-up ever executed by a representative team in any similar meet. Parsons will bring renown to the southland, and Himrod, if he is chosen, will also give a good account of himself.

High School Wins.

The Los Angeles High School baseball team defeated Downey High School at Downey yesterday afternoon by the score of 7 to 2. The visitors took the lead early in the game and held it throughout. Capt. Bricker of L. A. H. S. was not in the game on account of a broken arm sustained in a recent contest, but nevertheless the team put up a strong game.

HISS PRESIDENT AND LAUD DEBS.

EAST SIDERS PARADE IN NEW YORK FOR MURDERERS.

Procession Crowds Grand Central Place and the "Marseillaise" Brings Forth Howls of Approval and Scores of Red Flags—Resolutions Condemn Idaho's Acts.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—Two long lines of men and women, probably 20,000 of them, trailed through the streets of the upper and lower East Side, as a demonstration of their sympathy for Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone, officials of the Western Federation of Miners. A part of the paraders crowded Grand Central Place to wind up the demonstration in one of the biggest union labor and socialist meetings seen in New York in a long time.

There was no disorder. Here and there was heard a faint cheer, particularly on the down-town streets, but as a rule the crowds viewed the archers, who made little attempt at parade functions, with only curiosity.

The first real enthusiasm came after the crowd had entered the hall, when a fife and drum corps played the "Marseillaise:" The crowd howled and scores waved small red flags.

The meeting was called to order by John C. Chase, secretary of the Socialist party, who introduced Morris Hilquist as chairman. When the chairman mentioned President Roosevelt the name was received with a storm of hisses. "If he has any information regarding the guilt of these men it is his duty to give that information to the people," he said.

His defense of Debs was received with prolonged cheers. "It was not," said the speaker, "the fact that Debs, Moyer and Haywood had disobeyed the laws or done any of the things which they were charged that made them 'undesirable citizens.' It was the fact that they were honest, law-abiding, earnest workers for their fellow men that induced the President to make the statements he did against them. To the laboring man," he said, "Debs, Moyer and Haywood are not 'undesirable citizens.' The "undesirable citizens" to the laboring man are the capitalists, the mine owners, the Governors of the States of Colorado and Idaho.

"To us," he said, "the man who has been elected to the highest office in the land and who uses his power to trample down men whose very lives may depend on the openness and fairness of the public mind, has violated his solemn oath. He is the 'undesirable citizen.'"

Resolutions were passed protesting every step of the case. The President's statements in regard to the case and the Idaho authorities' acts in appropriating money for the prosecution, were condemned.

A copy will be sent to every Member of Congress, the Justices of the Supreme Court and the President. A collection was taken up for the defense fund.

Following this, William Coakley, representing the Central Federated Union, spoke. "Organized labor," he said, "will be with the officers of the Western Federation of Miners in every way under the law."

"Organized labor is not for treason," he said. "We are Americans first, last and all the time. We believe that the Constitution grants to these men and to every other man a free and fair trial, and we are going to see that they get that fair trial, even if we have to go to Washington for it. Organized labor believes these men are innocent and has gone into its pocket to prove them so. All we ask is a fair trial. If Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone are guilty of this crime they ought to be hanged. But if they are innocent, and we believe they are, they must go free."

FIRE STARTS PANIC.

KANSAS CITY, May 4.—Fire tonight in the wholesale district that for a time threatened the wholesale destruction of property, destroyed the seven-story building and its contents at Nos. 812 and 814 Broadway, occupied by the Goldstein-Powell Hat Company, caused a loss estimated at $200,000. A panic was started in the Orpheum Theater, a vaudeville house a block and a half distant, and several hundred people in the audience made a wild rush for the exits. Several were slightly injured before quiet was restored.

SUCCESSFUL CO-OPERATION.

ASHLAND (Wis.) May 4.—The successful organization of the Northwestern Coöperative Coal and Dock Company and the beginning of the construction of a modern coal dock, has aroused considerable interest throughout the Northwest. The movement was designated originally the Farmers' Coöperative Company of the Northwest, but under the terms of the organization no person can secure coal except the stockholders, and many other coal consumers who have become incensed at the arbitrary dictation of the coal trust have become members of the company.

Maj. Beecher B. Ray, paymaster, is relieved from duty in the Department of the Lakes, and will take station at San Francisco.

THE KAISER'S ECONOMY.

Learned by Accident That He Had Too Many Salaried Men About His Stables.

The Kaiser is angry at the waste and extravagance in the imperial mews at Berlin, my correspondent writes, and has ordered far-reaching economies. It happened in this wise. The other day the Kaiser was exercising in the riding school and noticed two or three men clad as grooms loafing about in the passages. He asked them what their duties were, and they returned as answer that they were the assistants of the official who plaited the tails and manes of His Majesty's horses.

"Oh," said the Kaiser, "How many more of you are there engaged in this onerous occupation?" Five, altogether," was the reply. "Well, just go and assemble these five men in front of me," said the Emperor. They came, and were dismissed on the spot, with three months' wages, the Kaiser remarking that, as lusty young fellows, they ought to be ashamed of themselves, filling so absurd a post and with nothing to do. And then His Majesty began to look into matters, and discovered that he could do with less than 400 persons in his Berlin mews, and with less than 350 horses and 240 carriages of all sorts. He remembered that he had also huge stables at Potsdam, at Cassel, at Cadinen, and that there were three breeding establishments as well.

He began to reckon up and found that he owned over 900 horses and nearly 500 vehicles, and that the head master of the horse had a regiment of nearly a thousand men under his contral. And then began a revision of things. The grooms and the coachmen, the saddlers and the stable boys, the vets and their assistants, the smiths and carriage builders were all weeded out, and scores of men were informed that they had better look out for other employment.

The Kaiser heard, for the first time, that he had a carriage which had cost nearly $195,000, and a set of harness, ornamented with gold mountings, which had cost $125,000. Looking through the stables where the veteran horses are kept, he remarked to his master of the horse that these beasts were here eating their heads off, and must be disposed of. The master had a happy thought, and sent two or three to each of the royal theaters and operahouses, so that when "Carmen" or "Gessler" or "Rienzi" is played the managers will not have to hire horses for the stage processions.

ANNAPOLIS RACE POSTPONED.

ANNAPOLIS (Md.) May 4.—The two-mile boat race betwen the Yale University eight and the first crew of the Naval Academy, which was to have been rowed over the Severn River course here today, was postponed until Monday because of bad weather.

REPORT IS EXAGGERATED.

NEW YORK, May 4.—The report that Samuel L. Clemens is missing on Henry H. Rogers's yacht Kanawha, which was given wide circulation today, is untrue. Mr. Clemens is at his home in this city, and says reports of his death by drowning are greatly exaggerated.

VOICES FROM THE STATE.

Should Stand Pat.

If Uncle Sam's courts and his Department of Justice take a hand in the San Francisco graft muddle it is not likely that months will be spent in impaneling a single jury to try a minor case. Uncle Sam's courts are not sparring matches.—[Sacramento Union.

Going Out of Business.

The Chronicle makes the suggestion to travelers who are fond of ruins, and who make it a point to see those worth seeing, that they had better get a move on in this direction if they wish to see those produced by the fire of April 18, 1906. If they fail to act promptly, the privilege will be denied them, for San Franciscans are resolved that as a permanent industry the exhibition of ruins is not a desirable one, and they propose to go out of the business of showing them as quickly as possible.—[San Francisco Chronicle.

Tilting at a Windmill.

The San Diego Union is out with a vigorous attack on State's division. The grounds of opposition are that Los Angeles would dominate the new State and that San Diego would be taxed to build a "free harbor" at San Pedro, and to do other things to help promote the interest of the new capital. San Diego never did love Los Angeles in any riotous and exhuberant manner, and it was hardly to be expected that there would be any general enthusiasm there over a new State with Los Angeles as the capital city. The Union need not worry, however, for even in Los Angeles there is no organized movement in favor of division, and the strongest friends of division recognize the futility of talking about it at this time.—[Riverside Press.

State Needs Representation.

The fact is that when any question affecting the railroads arises in Congress, California has no representation. The whole delegation, from the senior Senator to the junior Representative, belongs to Harriman and was chosen by Herrin. There is nothing new in this statement. It is known to nearly every man in California, but it is right that it should be restated and borne in mind on occasions.—[Santa Barbara Independent.

Gen. Murray, Chief of Artillery, says that of eight new torpedo companies authorized under the recent act of Congress, seven will be formed in or around San Francisco, but that some of them will be assigned later to duty on Puget Sound and the Columbia River.

Lungs Diseased--Appetite Gone and Could Not Sleep

MISS ELLA AGARD

Miss Ella Agard of Eureka Kan., who had grown weak and frail, from a deep cough, caused by diseased lungs, loss of appetite and sleeplessness, joins the throng to sing the praises of DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY, which cured her after all other remedies failed.

The following unsolicited testimonial of Miss Agard is similar in its words of praise to many letters received daily from men and women throughout the world, in all walks of life, who have been permanently cured by DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY, the greatest of all medicines.

"Having seen your advertisement in one of the papers, I spoke to a lady friend of mine about it and she gave me a bottle of your Malt Whiskey, as I was very much run down and scarcely able to go out. My lungs were badly affected, I had a deep cough, ached all over, had no appetite and could not sleep. I had taken different medicines for my troubles but found no relief and was just about discouraged when I began taking DUFFY'S MALT WHISKEY. It helped me from the start and very quickly cured me.

"I have just been taken with neuralgia and a cough, same as I was before. Will you please send me six bottles of your valuable whiskey C.O.D. I will pay for it here and I will be a great advocate of it among my sick friends. I could have sold a lot of it when my friends and neighbors found how much good it did me. Thanking you, believe me, ELLA AGARD, Eureka, Greenwood Co., Kansas." Nov. 22d, 1906.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

TEAMSTERS DESPERATE.

Now Seek to Embroil Other Union Workmen.

Sympathetic Strike Possible, but Not Expected.

Truck Companies Have Fight Practically Won.

"We have surely broken the strike. The trucking business of the city is being satisfactorily handled. We are getting scores of applications from men who want work and before the end of the month every striker's place will have been filled." That is the word which went out from the truck companies yesterday.

STRIKERS GO TO EXTREMES.

The members of the Teamsters' Union are beginning to realize that they are beaten so far as this strike is directly concerned. They worked hard yesterday and succeeded in persuading three men to quit work and leave their teams in the streets. They threw potatoes and epithets at others who laughed at their arguments, and endeavored to take two men from a wagon in front of the wholesale store of Blake, Moffitt and Towne at Second and Los Angeles streets. While they were putting forth their energies thus vainly, the truck companies, aided by the Blair agency, had put to work more than forty additional men and materially added to their working force of teams.

Today at a meeting to be held at the union labor headquarters on San Pedro street, the striking teamsters will make a last desperate effort to bolster up their lost cause. At this meeting, it is said, an appeal will be made to other unions. An effort will be made to induce the drivers of the transfer teams to quit work at the end of Fiesta work. It is also expected that the several unions connected with the Miscellaneous Trades Council will be asked to order sympathetic strikes. To further their selfish and unreasonable ends the beaten teamsters would do what they can to throw 6000 men out of employment and tie up a portion of the city's business at a time when every loyal citizen is doing everything he can to make the city appear at its best.

MAY CALL STRIKE OFF.

That such an effort to precipitate a general strike in the city can succeed is not at all likely. The business men do not expect it. They say that the working men of Los Angeles are too well treated and too well satisfied to seriously contemplate a step which would almost certainly be disastrous to them. It it also true, beyond doubt, that many of the strikers themselves have little confidence in the measures which will be proposed at their meeting tomorrow night. It is possible that a failure to produce enthusiasm among the members of the other unions may so discourage the men that before the meeting is ended a suggestion will be made and favorably received to call the strike off. So early a surrender, however, is not expected. A considerable sum of money is said to have been received by the Teamsters' Union last night and the union leaders will doubtless wish to test the efficacy of cash before they give up. A part of the money will probably be used Monday in bribing such men as can be approached to throw up their jobs, with threats and attempts at intimidation as another part of the programme.

BUSINESS MEN PREPARED.

Whatever action is taken, the business interests of the city are prepared to meet it. The sentiment in favor of the open shop was never stronger than now. Fair play and a square deal for working men but no surrender nor truckling to unions, is the slogan and if a strike comes it will be fought vigorously to a successful finish if it takes years.

"We have raised a larger fund than was ever before raised in Los Angeles for strike purposes," said Secretary Zeehandelaar of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association last night. "If it is a question of endurance or money we are prepared to fight forever, or until we win this fight for the open shop.

"The possibility that the teamsters will succeed in causing a sympathetic strike does not disturb us in the least. If the issue has to be fought out we are just as ready and willing to enter the contest now as at any other time. We do not expect that it will come, but we shall not be caught unawares or off our guard.

"The Pioneer Truck Co. had 60 teams out today, the California Truck Co. had 32, and the Citizens 27. No company is embarrassed and there has been no tie-up of business. Everything is moving satisfactorily to us and we have no fears as to the outcome."

THEATER TRUST GETS A HOUSE.

Leases the Hotchkiss for a Term of Five Years and Will Present Melodrama.

Calvin Heilig, president of the Northwestern Theatrical Association, yesterday closed a deal whereby Klaw & Erlanger (the theatrical trust) secured a lease on the Hotchkiss Theater for the next five years. The house is to be devoted to a high-class melodrama business.

Mr. Heilig has been in the city for the last few days in the interests of Portland, Or., theatrical people who are seeking funds to start a new theater in Portland. Yesterday he received a wire from Klaw & Erlanger asking him to act as agent for them and lease the Hotchkiss for the next five years.

It is stated that Stair & Havelin plays, which are a sort of refined-melodrama affairs, will be featured in the new house. Workmen have been busy for the last few weeks remodeling the Hotchkiss in preparation for the new feature, and June 30 is expected to be the date of the opening.

Road Problems.

PIOCHE (Nev.) May 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I have just been reading in your issue of the 28th the article entitled "On Way to Good Roads," and am delighted to know that such substantial progress has been made in this most important movement. I do not remember any other place in the United States where the people have acted so expeditiously as have the citizens of Southern California since they determined upon getting relief.

I have watched this movement with hearty sympathy, and thus far have been pleased to see that all steps taken have seemed to show good judgment. The next step will be to get the money, and the next to go to work. Then will come the crucial test. Will the money be expended judiciously and the people who vote the bonds get value received? It is a large sum to have available for the beginning of a system of highway improvement. In other States they have gone more slowly and have tried conscientiously and as wisely as possible according to their light to evolve methods suited to their conditions, physical and financial.

The statement cannot be made too emphatically that road problems in Southern California differ greatly from those in other portions of the United States, and to a considerable extent from those in parts of Northern California. If the money to be raised from bonds issued under the new law is to secure the best results in finished roads and the largest mileage of such roads, the subject must be studied by, and plans evolved from, the experience of Southern California road builders.

I notice that at the gathering in Blanchard Hall reported in the article above referred to, the statement was made by Mr. Anderson that "oiled macadam is one of the best road-making materials that can be used in this country." I do not know exactly what he meant, but in a general way I considerer it true that the best road which can be made in Southern California would be a standard macadam, protected by some kind of oiled envelop. Notwithstanding that fact, I should consider it criminal to raise money on bonds to be repaid by posterity and expend it in that character of road construction. Suitable rock for standard macadam road construction would be very expensive in most places in Southern California. The so-called "niggerheads," which are found in some of the creek beds of Southern California would make very good macadam roads. In the hill immediately north of Hollywood is an intrusive dike of olivine basalt, which is an ideal material. It is the equivalent of most of the traps used in New York and New England. As a road material I believe it would compare favorably with the trap from the Palisades of the Hudson, West Rock, New Haven, Conn., and Newton, Mass. The granite commonly found in the hills of Southern California contains certain constituents which decompose on exposure to the weather, probably principally biotite and pyrite. To see how this behaves when used for macadam one has only to visit Orange Grove avenue in Pasadena. Los Angeles has spent considerable money for decomposed macadam, and people have generally felt that it was unsatisfactory. Now, because a road with a standard macadam base, protected by some kind of oiled envelop, would be the very best, to advise that money raised by bonds should be expended in constructing such roads would be like advising that all floors be constructed of hard wood, because hard wood makes the best floors.

It would be manifestly improper for me in a newspaper article to suggest specifications for the kind of roads to be built with the money to be raised, but I do not hesitate to say that the same money which would have to be paid for standard macadam, properly protected, ought to build double the mileage of road, which would cost no more to maintain and would be to all intents and purposes as satisfactory as the kind which would cost twice as much.

I notice that L. W. Page has offered to send an engineer to report on the best system of road construction and that his office will make the necessary tests of building material, etc. If it is desired to have tests made, to satisfy any kind of curiosity which any person in California may feel, it should not do any harm, although as a general proposition it may be said that any one competent to give advice on road building doesn't need any such tests. So far as my observation has gone, and it has been quite extensive, and I have consulted personally with the best road engineers in the United States and Canada on the subject, the main advantage in this pounding up of rocks and backing them, and uttering incantations over them and then writing a lot of unintelligible gibberish about them called "reports" has been manifest principally to the young men who drew a salary for doing it and to the others up the line who participate in this feature.

The ability to give reliable advice about road building is derived from two and only two qualifications, experience and common sense. The State of California has at Sacramento a Highway Commissioner, Mr. Ellery, who has had vastly more experience of all sorts of road building problems in that State than has Mr. Page and all his employés put together. He has plenty of common sense. The wasting of 1 per cent. of $3,000,000 means the loss of $30,000. It is desirable to have the best advice attainable on the subject and that advice can be secured only from people who have had the proper experience. How would it do to appoint a commission, consisting of the city engineers of Los Angeles, Pasadena, Monrovia and Riverside, and with them Mr. Ellery as chairman? Let this commission thoroughly study every character of good road so far built in Southern California, and prepare three sets of specifications for three different classes of roads. The requirements of the different communities for which roads must be built will be covered by three varieties of roads. These specifications then could be used as guides for the highway commissions provided for by the new act of the Legislature. Even then it would be found that the commission will acquire its own experience and that later any specifications made under present state of knowledge of the art would have to be modified. But such specifications on the start should be the crystallized experience and good judgment of the road builders of the State. It wouldn't be expedient to hire a farmer whose experience had been confined to South Carolina to advise the agriculturists of Siberia. As in farming so in road building the serious problems are local ones. There are plenty of road builders in California just as competent to deal with general road problems as any in the government service and they are the only ones fitted by experience to deal with the local ones.

SOUVENIR PROGRAMME.

Handsome Official Schedule of Event of Fiesta-Shriner Week Is Issued for Visitors.

The official programme of the Fiesta and Shrine entertainment, which has just been issued for distribution to visiting Shriners, is a beautifully-conceived booklet of sixteen pages. It presents in an attractive way and in convenient form the complete schedule of the events of the week of festivity that opens today with the arrival of special trains bearing thousands of visitors, and closes next Saturday in a blaze of glory.

Fiesta colors and the approved poster of the Feast of the Flowers adorn the cover, and a mass of information is contained in the little publication that is not to be found elsewhere in similar form. Each event that has been arranged by Al Malaikah Temple for the entertainment of the visitors is set forth in detail, with such directions as are necessary to guide strangers about the city and to the different places of amusement on the programme.

This official programme, issued under the direction of Potentate Motley H. Flint, will be of but a limited edition and no doubt will be extremely hard to get after its distribution is started among the visitors, for it not only will be an invaluable source of information to strangers, but will be prized as a souvenir of the conclave. The booklet is not to be distributed by The Times.

HORSES DASH INTO STORE.

A team of runaway horses attached to a wagon belonging to Anderson & Chanslor, crashed into a plate glass window of the Auditorium Drug Store at Fifth and Olive streets yesterday noon. The animals started from a hitching post during the absence of their driver and ran south on Olive street until they reached the corner. They literally threw themselves into the store and frightened a number of the customers. Two women whose names the police did not learn fainted from the shock. The horses were severely cut and were led away to the stables of the firm.

PENDLETON'S INJURIES SLIGHT.

Ernest Pendleton, who was taken to the Receiving Hospital Friday apparently in a critical condition as the result of a beating administered by his brother, Homer Pendleton, who used a weight as a weapon, was discharged from the hospital yesterday. His injuries proved slight. He will not prosecute his assailant.

FALLS FROM TRAIN.

Charles Crandall, an aged laborer, was sent to the Receiving Hospital from the La Grande Station, last night, suffering from injuries received at Oceanside, Cal. Crandall fell from the train when he attempted to board it.

A Fair Deal for Fullerton.

The history of a recent effort on the part of saloon people in Santa Ana to influence their Board of Trustees to make the saloon question an issue at their recent election seems to be duplicating itself in Fullerton. It is reported that a petition for the saloon is to be submitted to a vote of the people of Fullerton, is being stealthily circulated, notwithstanding the fact that only a year ago the people voted almost two to one straight against the saloon. As soon as a petition goes into the hands of a City Council, it is public property in custody, and any citizen can have access to it. The names to the petition at Santa Ana were published thoroughly the next day.

It is the positive determination of the moral people of Fullerton to publish the names in full and thoroughly. The patronage of saloon people to any business in Fullerton is in the minority, the bulk of the patronage of saloon people going to Anaheim. For business as well as social reasons, no man can expect lasting success in Fullerton who lines up with saloon people. The class of people coming to Fullerton are of the clean, sober American type. One man built quite a structure in Fullerton, boasting that not a pound of material nor an hour of labor was procured in Fullerton, although he made his money in Fullerton.

There are forces in Fullerton "pulling" for Anaheim. Let all loyal Fullerton citizens support home industries that employ home labor and stand for the sobriety of young men and the purity of young women. Temperance Federation.—[Adv.

SPORT AT ORANGE.

ORANGE, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Santa Ana won the championship of the Orange County High School league this afternoon at Fullerton, by defeating the Orange High School team by the score of 6 to 2. The game was rather slow and unsatisfactory, as neither team played a good game. It was witnessed by a large crowd, nearly a hundred being present from Orange. The batteries did the best work for both teams. Santa Ana will now be entitled to represent this league in the Southern California league semifinals. The grammar grades of Fullerton and Orange also had a series of contests today before and after the big game. The Orange girls basket ball team defeated the Fullerton team by the score of 8 to 3. The Fullerton boys won their basketball game, however, by the score of 17 to 10, and also defeated the Orange grammar team in baseball by a score of 6 to 5.

WANTED IN OHIO.

R. P. Hawes was arrested last night by Detectives, on request from Bowling Green, O. The telegram states Hawes is wanted on an indictment charging grand larceny.

PAINS IN THE BACK

are generally danger signals, warning of kidney disease that will lead to fatal results unless looked after in time. Thousands of men and women have kidney disease and do not know it until too late. If any of your family in this or past generations have had kidney disease you should guard against its attack by taking.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE

A TRIAL BOTTLE OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY CURE SENT ABSOLUTELY FREE TO EVERY READER OF THE TIMES WHO SUFFERS FROM KIDNEY, LIVER, BLADDER OR BLOOD DISEASE.

MR, WILLIAM MELLLIN

Mr. Wm. Meilin, Franklin, Mass., who tried many so-called remedies for kidney trouble without results, is loud in his praise of what WARNER'S SAFE CURE did for him.

He writes: "It is with great pleasure that I write you recommending your very valuable remedy, WARNER'S SAFE CURE. For years I have been suffering with kidney trouble, which many times forced me to take to my bed. I had awful pains in my back which caused me intense suffering. I spent a great deal of money for so-called cures, but they were not of any benefit to me.

"Seeing your numerous advertisements I tried your medicine. After taking the first bottle, I felt much stronger and continued taking it. I now feel in the best of health, better than I ever felt in my life. I owe all this to your wonderful remedy. I always recommend and consider it the best remedy in the world.

"You may publish this letter, as I cannot thank you too much for what your medicine has done for me.

"WM. MELLIN."

"Franklin, Mass., Feb. 6, 1907."

Cures Kidney Disease.

When the kidneys are diseased the uric acid is not carried off and this causes Gout, Lumbago, Rheumatism of the Joints, Rheumatism of the Muscles, Rheumatism of the Heart, Rheumatism everywhere.

BIGAMY CHARGE HE SCOFFS AT.

ANOTHER IS CLAIMING HUSBAND OF BALDWIN'S NIECE.

Mrs. Irene Johnston Arrives in Town and Interviews Alleged Lord and Mrs. Helen—Women Weep in Each Other's Arms and No. 1 Receives Roses from No. 2.

Robert Johnston, who was deserted by his professed wife, Helen Johnson, "favorite niece" of E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, in Death Valley, four months ago, is in more trouble.

Mrs. Irene Remington Johnston, who arrived in this city today from Beatty, Nev., declares that she is the lawful wife of Johnston. She may prefer a charge of bigamy against him, she says, and, in any event, will institute divorce proceedings.

Mrs. Irene Johnston is not jealous of the other Mrs. Johnston, and says that all she wants is legal separation from a man who, she avers, has proved false to her. Accompanied by a Times reporter yesterday afternoon she went to the home of Robert Johnston, satisfied herself that he really was her missing husband; talked with him and with Helen Johnston, and departed with a huge bunch of La France roses, the gift of the latter.

Mrs. Irene Johnston takes the whole matter very calmly.

After the trouble at Saratoga Springs Johnston and "Mrs. Plucky," as she is called in Death Valley, made up and returned to Greenwater. They are now in this city, arranging for the launching of a mining scheme, which Baldwin is said to be backing.

Mrs. Irene Johnston says that she was married to "Handsome Bob" in Erie, Pa., on February 10, 1900, when he was an engineer on the Lehigh Valley Railroad. Later, according to her story, they moved to Flaxton, S. D., where he established the Flaxton Eagle, and ran the newspaper for three years. Then they came to San Francisco, where Johnston found employment as a detective, making a specialty of tracing for machine and piano houses. He was employed by one McCurdy to watch the movements of that man's wife. He watched them so closely, says Mrs. Irene, that when divorce proceedings were instituted he refused to testify against the woman, and later disappeared with her.

A dramatic scene was enacted at the Johnston residence yesterday afternoon, the two women weeping in each other's arms. It seemed evident that serenity seldom abides in the household of the dashing young miner, who has been emulating in Nevada the notorious "Scotty." Gun display is alleged to have played a sensational part in all of Johnston's matrimonial troubles.

Johnston refused to discuss this latest development in his career, but admitted that he had been married to Irene Remington. He scoffed at the suggestion of a bigamy charge.

AN ORANGE BLOSSOM.

Bishop's Souvenir Is Real California. Sending Sweet Flowers Throughout the East.

Exhibitors at the "Made in Southern California Exposition" are putting out souvenirs of many kinds at their booths in the show, all calculated to give an idea of the article they manufacture, but Bishop & Company, manufacturers of jams and jellies, hit upon a novel and truly California souvenir.

They prepared a mailing card describing some of their goods, and attached to it a sprig of an orange tree, containing a blossom. The whole was first dipped in wax to preserve it, but not in the least to the detriment of the perfume of the blossom. The cards are delivered to callers at the exhibit with a stamp already attached, and all the caller has to do is to address it to some friend in the East, and it carries with it a whiff of real California atmosphere.

FLAG FOR MINISTER.

Stanton W.R.C. will present a flag to Rev. Dana Bartlett at the Auditorium at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Members of Stanton Post, G.A.R., and of the corps will assemble in Central Park at 2:20 o'clock, when, preceded by the drum corps, they will march to the church.

MISSING BOY'S BODY IS FOUND.

HORACE MARVIN MYSTERY IS PARTIALLY CLEARED.

Dressed in the Same Clothes He Wore When Missed, the Boy's Corpse Is Discovered in a Marsh a Few Miles from His Father's Farm by Neighbor Hunting Ducks.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

DOVER (Del.) May 4.—The body of Little Horace Marvin, who disappeared from the farm of his father at Kittshammock, near here, March 4, was found this afternoon in a marsh in a state of preservation.

The spot where the body was found is half a mile east of the farm house toward the Delaware River. Kittshammock is between seven and eight miles from here. From information brought by a horseman it is learned that the clothing upon the child is the same he wore the day he disappeared. The body was face downward. Dr. Marvin at the moment the body was found was not ready to say whether the body was placed where it was found or whether he believed the child had wandered into the marsh and lost his life.

The marsh was frozen over the day the boy disappeared, and there is a theory that the boy was murdered and his body placed in the marsh, as the long grass where the body was found was burned and cleared four weeks ago.

The body was found by Ollie Pleasanton, a neighbor, who was hunting for ducks. Pleasanton is the man who reported having seen two strangers who were inquiring about the topography of the country three days before the boy's disappearance.

Fiesta Week—20 Cents.

The Times will be delivered by carrier anywhere in Los Angeles, or sent postpaid to any address in the United States during the seven days of the Fiesta-Shriner celebration, May 5 to 11, inclusive, for 20 cents. AMERICAN PLAYS IN LONDON.

Seven High-Class Theaters Are Americanized by Actors or Scene of the Plot.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Never in all its history has London experienced such an American invasion, theatrically speaking, as it is undergoing now. At no fewer than seven theaters, plays by American playwrights or dealing with American subjects or starred by American actors, hold the boards and the number will be still further increased next week.

At the Waldorf are E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe, now in the midst of their six-weeks' season. At the St. James "John Glayde's Honor," though by Mr. Pinero, deals with American characters. Luis N. Parker's play, "Mr. George," at the Vaudeville is an American play, with scenes laid in Boston. Miss Billie Burke is playing the title role. Clyde Fitch's comedy, "The Truth," is having a successful run at the Comedy Theater, and "Lady Tatters," at the Shaftesbury, has two American actresses, Miss Claudia Laselle and Miss Marie George, in the principal roles.

Los Angeles County—Its Cities and Towns.

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

HIS CONDITION IS SERIOUS.

PASADENA ATTORNEY HAS AN APOPLECTIC STROKE.

Former City Counsel J. C. FitzGerald Is Victim—Uncommonly Good Baseball Is Anticipated at the Game to Be Played in the Crown of the Valley Today.

Office of The Times, No. 78 S. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, May 5.—J. C. FitzGerald, former City Attorney and one of the best-known lawyers of Pasadena, was seized with an apoplectic stroke, yesterday afternoon, and is in a very precarious condition. It was impossible at a late hour last night to tell how the case would turn out, but Dr. Sherry, who is attending the sufferer, hopes for the best. The patient was resting comfortably and there was a fair chance of his recovery.

Just the nature of the sick man's complaint is a puzzle to the physicians. It is apparently a case of hemorrhage of the brain, though there are several symptoms which are worrying the attending physicians. Mr. FitzGerald's advanced age makes the case a very serious one, but it is hoped that his remarkable vitality may pull him through.

Yesterday morning Mr. FitzGerald went about his business the same as usual, though he complained of feeling unwell. As he had been in rather poor health for several days, the case attracted no uneasiness on the part of his confreres, however, and nothing was thought of the matter until his sudden seizure.

Mr. FitzGerald has been constantly in the public eye during the past two years. When Mayor Waterhouse took office, his first act was to appoint him City Attorney. This caused considerable comment, as he was known to be firmly opposed to the idea of a municipal water plant and it was feared that he would work against it.

When he retired and J. Perry Wood was appointed to succeed him, Mr. FitzGerald was still retained to represent the city as special counsel in water suits pending, and looked after the interests of the city until Friday, when he asked the Council to relieve him.

BASEBALL TODAY.

When the Pasadena baseball team crosses bats with the Morans of Los Angeles on the home grounds, this afternoon, it will be probably the strongest aggregation of players that has ever represented the city. Manager Dexter has been working steadily to improve the team and he believes that he has at last secured nine men who are worthy of defending the Crown of the Valley in the league. The seesawing maneuvers which the team has gone through with of late have somewhat discouraged the fans, who have alternately had their hopes bolstered up by a string of victories and then thrown down by a series of defeats.

PRIZE MARE IS SOLD.

May Stannard, the prize-winning mare which took away a number of honors at the last horse show here, has been sold by Dr. L. C. Deming to Mrs. Fleming of San Pedro. The sale price has not been made public, but it is said that the animal brought pretty near to $1000. The horse attracted particular attention at the show through the fact that, in a light combination class for three-gaited horses, she managed to carry off the ribbon, though herself rightly belonging to the five-gaited class. Her performance was, under the conditions, noteworthy, and her owner received several offers for her before the show was over. May Stannard is of Morgan blood and is the perfect type of the American-bred horse.

DEATH ACCIDENTAL.

The Coroner's jury called to decide the cause of the death of M. Tadoja, the workman killed by the explosion of a charge of dynamite on Mt. Wilson Friday afternoon, brought in a verdict of accidental death yesterday.

SPECTACULAR RUNAWAY.

A spectacular runawayy occurred on Union street yesterday morning. A horse hitched to a grocery wagon took fright at a passing Santa Fé train and bolted. In attempting to pass another vehicle the animal made a wild dash for the sidewalk, passing between the side of a building and a telephone pole without injuring the wagon to any great extent, and then continued down Fair Oaks avenue. It was captured just before it reached Colorado street. In its dash for the sidewalk the animal managed to collide with a motorcycle, and the machine was completely demolished.

EAGER TO GREET SHRINERS.

Pasadena is decked in gala attire in anticipation of the coming of the Shriners. The merchants have entered into the spirit of the occasion and have gone to considerable expense in decorating their places of business. The crescent and scimiter is to be seen over every doorway and on every hand are tokens that testify to the fact that the city is about to hold high carnival.

Though the Shriners will spend but one day in Pasadena the residents of the city have not stinted themselves in the way of decorations and the visitors will be given a rousing welcome. Their entertainment has already been arranged for and it is the intention to make "Pasadena Day" one of the notable occasions of the visit of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine to the Pacific Coast.

BABY BADLY SCALDED.

Pearl Rice, the 4-year-old daughter of Policeman George Rice was scalded by boiling water yesterday. She is suffering acutely, but is not dangerously injured.

The little girl attempted to pull a teakettle of boiling water from the top of the stove, and overturned it.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Miss Ethelwynd Foote, whose engagement to Mr. Bennett of Los Angeles was recently announced, was the guest of honor at a prettily-appointed luncheon given by Miss Marjorie Sinclair at her home on Bellefontaine street yesterday. Cecil Brunner roses ornamented the table, and the appointments were appropriate to an ante-nuptial function. The place cards were golden hearts, tied with pink ribbons.

Mrs. W. J. Williams of Madeline Drive, assisted by her niece, Miss Sallie Dexter, gave one of the prettiest children's parties of the season in honor of the birthday anniversary of her little daughter, Dorothy. May baskets and sun bonnet babies were conspicuous in the accessories, and there were present forty of the young misses and masters who will, in a decade, take their places as reigning belles and beaux of Pasadena society.

Miss Mabel Gordon, whose wedding occurs Tuesday, and Miss Thirza Green, whose engagement was recently announced, were given a complimentary ante-nuptial dinner yesterday by Miss Grace Fordyce of Altadena.

Mr. and Mrs. William St. John Ranney and Mr. and Mrs. Linto Tedford went to Riverside yesterday in a touring car, and expect to return today.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Twombley are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Orin Donaldson, who arrived yesterday.

The marriage of Miss Elsie Tileston and Harker B. Spensley of Dubuque, Iowa, will occur at the Church of the Angels on May 8 at high noon. Informal invitations have been issued to a few friends of the bride, who is a daughter of Mrs. A. W. Tileston of Montana. The young couple will live in Dubuque.

Mrs. Mary K. Miller and daughter, Miss Elizabeth Miller, of Helena, Mont., who have spent the winter at Hotel Maryland, left on last evening's Overland for their home.

The marriage of Miss Bertha Twinting and Dr. A. L. Day—of Trenton, Iowa, was solemnized last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Twinting, of Columbia street. The drawing-room was beautifully decorated with Bride roses and asparagus plumosis, and the library was effectively ornamented with pink ivy geraniums and pink roses. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Malcolm McLeod. Dr. and Mrs. Day will leave the latter part of next week for Trenton, Iowa, where they will live.

EL MONTE.

EL MONTE, May 4.—Citizens of El Monte declare that they want light and want the best, and as soon as the Pacific Electric road runs into the city they propose to negotiate with them for lighting the city and its residences.

The Building Committee of the Masonic lodge announces that plans are nearly completed for the new block.

W. K. Raphael believes there is money in potatoes and he has put his entire ranch to this crop. The El Monte country will soon be known as the spud country as much as the walnut belt.

About twenty-five ladies of the Shakespeare Club spent yesterday in the Sawpit Cañon above Monrovia.

Miss Eva Farmer will spend several of the summer months visiting in the East and in Canada.

Corn is king and Cleminson & Kauffman are putting in fifty acres of this product this season. The field begins to put on the appearance of those in Iowa.

John Sappington has purchased the Sappington cottage and will occupy the same.

SOUTH PASADENA.

SOUTH PASADENA, May 4.—Miss Harriet Willis is to be married to D. Doderburke Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Church of the Angels.

Dr. H. J. Riesling of the Fergus Falls (Minn.) Hospital is visiting his parents on Mission street.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Calvary Presbyterian Church had its monthly meeting Friday at the home of Mrs. E. L. Eldredge.

Mrs. A. Cash has left for St. Paul.

H. S. Colton has returned from New Orleans.

Mrs. M. E. Wood and Mrs. S. A. Barden have left for the East.

An informal lecture is to be given by Miss Ada Chase in the auditorium of the High School Monday, May 6, the subject being "The Artist and the Public."

SANTA MONICA.

SANTA MONICA, May 4.—The British ship Falls of Garry arrived at Port Los Angles this morning, 139 days from Antwerp. She is commanded by Capt. Macfarlane, and brings a cargo consigned to Balfour Guthrie & Co. The ship has a tonnage of 1992 tons and is one of seven big ships expected at this port. The German bark Furst Bulow and the British bark Samoa are following the Falls of Garry closely, having set sail from Newcastle-on-Tyne only four days after the Garry cleared. The British bark Procyon is coming from the same port, the British bark Socotra from Rotterdam, the British steamer Strathnairn from London and the British ship Dumfrieshire from Antwerp.

The reorganized Santa Monica baseball nine will play its first game here tomorrow with the Young Men's Athletic Club team of Los Angeles. The contest will be on the diamond in the Southern Pacific Park.

Mrs. Emma Markham has purchased a lot in The Palisades and has had the plans drawn for a residence that will cost $15,000.

Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Hunt and daughter, Miss Henrietta, departed today for Europe, where they expect to spend the summer.

R. A. Wickenden has been spending a few days at Santa Barbara.

VENICE.

VENICE, May 4.—Up to today the Shriners who are anticipating delicious bits of sea food seemed destined to disappointment. A famine of food fishes has been feared, but today the fishermen returned with an encouraging catch. For several days the edible varieties of fish have not been running well, and all dealers were many hundred pounds behind with their ordinary orders. Today's total catch was in excess of 500 pounds of yellowtail, halibut and bonita.

Tomorrow is the day set for the reopening of the pleasure park in Midway Plaisance. Today there arrived a minstrel band of colored artists and the high wires have been strung for the aerial acts of a trick bicyclist. Other attractions are billed and the one-time popular pleasure place promises to again become the rendezvous of beach visitors.

It has at last been decided, owing to the Shriner visitation and other events, to abandon the Louisiana-day celebration for this year. The date had twice been set, but each time something happened to cause a change of plans and now the project has been abandoned altogether.

OCEAN PARK.

OCEAN PARK, May 4.—Miss Elma French, school-census marshal for the Ocean Park district, finds that there are 407 children of school age. The increase over last year is 19 2-3 per cent. There are 527 persons in the district who are under the age of seventeen years.

Mrs. M. W. Spencer, who has been visiting friends in Redlands, has returned.

Mrs. H. E. Buford, Mrs. Belle Brown and Miss Elsie Buford have come to the beach from San Bernardino, and will remain for some time.

O. A. Kirkelie and Mr. and Mrs. Dan W. Baker have returned from Murietta.

CHOOSE SEASHORE TEACHERS.

Appointments Made by School Trustees Are Announced at Long Beach Town.

LONG BEACH, May 4.—In order that they may enjoy their approaching summer vacation without worry, the trustees of the Long Beach school district, with the approval of William Schilling, the member-elect who will succeed Rev. Charles Pease in July, today selected eighty-four teachers for the season of 1907-08. There remain sixteen positions to fill among them, those of the supervising principal, principal of the High School, and fourteen grade teachers.

As anticipated, Profs. Morgan and Clayton will not be reappointed, they having incurred the enmity of H. L. Enlo, who will be the dominant factor on the next board. As a result of today's session Harry Barndollar, the remaining member of the old board, pleading enforced absence from the city for several months, tendered his resignation, to take effect July 3, after which time a successor will be appointed by County Superintendent Keppel, and who will be in accord with the two remaining members.

The selections made today are nearly all old teachers. They are:

High School—(principal to be selected); mathematics, Warren Loree and Gertrude Upon; commercial, H. C. Hadley; history, Misses Harnett and Knowles; Latin and Greek, Katherine Mosher; English, Misses Bessie Wood, Mattie Paine and Ada M. Minor; science, (two to be selected); modern languages, Helen Kleinknecht; reader, (two to be selected).

Special teachers—Music, Miss I. P. Singer; drawing, Misses Lola Holton and Moresite Waite; manual training, Miss Mary Riley; domestic science, Misses Effie Flucker and Bertha Ellis.

Atlantic-avenue, grammar—H. H. McCutchan, principal; J. W. Gastrich, Fannie Dull, Elsie Elder, Jessie Chandler, Mabel Griffith, Mildred Claypool, Francis Conrad, Louise Alexander, Daisy Morris, Josephine Harnett, Lorena Edgar, Olla Revis, Lula M. Morgan, Amy Eno, Nita Ellis, Emily Tower.

Alamitos, grammar — William A. Huff, Ruth L. Smith, Abigail Baker, Luella Hutchinson, Bessie McCord, Minerva O. Emery, Nellie Moore, Elizabeth Yoder, Lillian Doods, Ethelyn Adams, Helen Ziely, J. J. Goetz.

Daisy-avenue, grammar — Melvin Neel, Eva D. Edwards, Bessie Arnold, Lena Higgins, Arthur, M. Abbots, Mary Adams, Marjorie Curts, Madge Adams, Velma Curtis, Maud Judson, Emma Whittaker, Vida Berry, Myra Drachman, Nellie Gray.

Librarian—Mrs. A. Wellborn.

QUEEN IS CROWNED.

The Elks' jubilee which has been in progress all week wound up tonight with glory, and a fitting climax of one of the most successful and entertaining weeks in the history of the city. The main feature tonight was the crowning of Mrs. Juanita Rogers, elected queen of the carnival. Seated on a throne in a magnificent court dress, the center of a shaft of light, a little maid of honor deftly placed the crown upon the queen's head making a scene of pretty impressiveness. Misses Health, Mussetter Lanphere, the unsuccessful canidates each received a consolation prize of a monogrammed gold watch. Tonight several voting contests were closed and most of the unsold articles were auctioned off. The carnival has been finacially a success and several thousand dollars is realized which will go into the building fund of the Elks.

SEASHORE POINTS.

While using a sewing machine today, Mrs. L. J. Kennedy got her index finger under the needle, the instrument piercing the member and carrying the thread through two or three times. She was unable to withdraw her hand and remained sewed to the machine for half an hour before a physician could be secured.

Miss Estelle von Pizzer, a song writer, has presented 100 copies of a new composition, "The Norse Love Song," to be sold for the benefit of the Ella Linton Home for Boys, a local institution, which is doing good work in reclaiming wayward youngsters.

As a result of the last annual inspection of Company H, Seventh Regiment, N.G.C., made in January, the company received a rating of 89.23, which is considered good.

Manager J. C. McMillan of the Pacific Electric has acceded to a petition asking for a late car from Los Angeles to Long Beach during Fiesta week and will continue the service until 1 a.m. each day of next week.

Building Inspector Newcomb reports that in April he issued 47 permits of the contract value of $68,870, which is the lowest for the same month for three years.

The City Trustees have agreed to an amendment of the building ordinance which permits of the erection of less expensive buildings on the beach and will result in a more rapid improvement of the ocean frontage.

Capt. Lucian Young, former commander of the Bennington, who is visiting here, was the guest of honor this evening at an informal banquet tendered by officers of the Chamber of Commerce and a few business men of this city.

District Deputy S. G. Long last night installed officers recently elected to fill vacancies in the Pythian lodge. The new officers are: J. H. Brakeman, C.C.; W. J. Barton, V.C.; George Miller, prelate, and George Osborn, M.A.

George Cordell, for ten years a resident of Long Beach and a well-known dairyman of this county, died at the hospital this morning after several weeks' illness. A widow and two children are left.

The Sunday-school of the Downey Methodist Church, South, picnicked at the beach today. The prevalence of whoopingcough at Downey prevented many from coming, but the hundred who came in charge of Rev. W. L. Whisnaut and Joseph Smith enjoyed themselves to the limit.

Two special cars brought the Phi Du Delta fraternity of the U.S.C. to the beach today. Lunch and dinner were enjoyed at Alamitos Bay, the intervening hours being spent at Long Beach.

HOLLYWOOD FAREWELL.

Foothill City Woman Is Hostess Just Before Departure for Long Eastern Trip.

HOLLYWOOD, May 4.—Nearly one hundred and fifty handsomely gowned women called this afternoon at the H. C. Beville residence in attendance on an afternoon reception given by Mrs. Beville as a farewell to her many friends previous to her departure with Mr. Beville for an extended tour of this country and possibly Europe. The arrangement of the large rooms made possible the carrying out of a most artistic idea in the placing of flowers. Opening to the left as the guests entered the reception hall was the drawing-room, where Mrs. Beville stood to receive her friends. With her stood Mrs. Samuel Whitmore and Mrs. Marcella Robson, both of Los Angeles. In this room enormous American Beauty roses and ferns were the only flowers. In an alcove to the west end of the room was a bowl, nearly three feet wide, filled with great pink roses and asparagus fern. The den opposite was fragrant with deep red roses and poppies.

To the right of the reception hall was the dining-room, softly aglow with pink lights. The table was covered with a pink silken cloth caught to the corners with wide ribbons, and there was a basket of Cecil Bruner roses for a centerpiece. The great shade of the overhanging electric light was fringed with Cecil Bruner roses and pink bowknots, alternating at the ends of pink baby-ribbon. The sideboard and buffet were ladened with pink roses and pink poppies. Mrs. Lewis Campbell and Mrs. C. J. George served coffee and ices.

In the reception room was the punch bowl presided over by Mrs. S. T. Wier and Mrs. Paul de Longpré. A harpist and violinist were stationed on the stairway in the reception hall behind a forest of palms and ferns.

Mrs. Beville wore a handsome costume of white Japanese silk heavily embroidered with yoke of point lace and diamond ornaments. Mrs. Whitmore's gown was of dark blue silk and cream lace. Her jewels were diamonds. Mrs. Robson wore lavender chiffon satin and lace, with ornaments of diamonds and opals. Costumes worn by ladies assisting about the rooms were: Mrs. Lewis Campbell, black net over pink liberty silk with rose point coatee, diamonds; Mrs. E. G. Waldron, Valenciennes lace costume, diamonds and opals; Mrs. A. B. Barett, lingerie embroidered muslin and lace costume, diamonds; Mrs. Willington Clark, princess gown of white lace over liberty satin, diamonds; Mrs. C. J. George, Dresden liberty satin, yoke of rose point lace; Mrs. De Longpré, white Japanese crepe costume embroidered in lavender; Mrs. Philo Beveridge, elaborate costume of Takagi lace, white, over rainbow slip of gauze over white liberty satin, bertha embroidered in pink and blue forget-me-nots, pearl ornaments; Mrs. S. T. Wier, light figured silk, point lace yoke.

HONORED BY LUNCHEON.

Mrs. O. H. Churchill gave a luncheon at Hotel Hollywood yesterday for Mrs. Philo J. Beveridge. The decorations were sweet peas, the color scheme being pink. The guests numbered seventeen ladies from Pasadena and Los Angeles.

The Colegrove team defeated the men of the Hollywood club in a billiard tournament at the Hollywood clubrooms last evening by fourteen points.

ARE GOOD TO WOMEN.

Monrovia Trade Board Men Planning a Spread for Their Wives and Sweethearts.

MONROVIA, May 4.—The members of the Board of Trade of this city are to do the "handsome" toward their wives and sweethearts. On May 17 they have decided to banquet them, a sort of aftermath of the regular annual banquet which was given several months ago at which the ladies were not invited. The following are the officers nominated by the Board of Trade to be voted on the 20th of May: President, C. A. Sargent; vice-president, H. M. Siemmons and S. L. Boyd; treasurer, F. N. Hawes; secretary, H. G. Udell; directors, C. A Sergent, H. M. Slemmons, S. L. Boyd, H. G. Udell, W. A. White, W. H. Evans, C. E. Slosson, George A. Barry, C. F. Renaker, H. E. Rader, A. P. Seymour, I. S. Allison, George O. Monroe, Walter F. Dunn, R. B. Cowan and E. A. Bovee.

Raymond A. Rockwood of this city has invented a new type of clarinet which promises to revolutionize playing on this instrument. With his latest improvements he has a clarinet with range of four and a half octaves. The tones are clear, strong and flute-like from the lowest to the highest tones. The mechanism enables the player to manipulate the highest notes, which have heretofore been almost unknown to the clarinetist, with ease, placing much new music in range of the instrument.

J. B. Eason has purchased the Miss Fannie Foss residence on Lemon avenue, between Ivy and Charlotte. Purchase price $2200.

The ladies of the Saturday Afternoon Club enjoyed this afternoon as a social day, with Mrs. Hugh Haven hostess. Next Saturday will be given over to a reception to the children.

Coronado never disappoints.

AVALON.

AVALON, May 4.—John Brinkley, better known as "Chicken John," is puzzling over a mystery. Brinkley keeps a chicken ranch up the canyon above the golf links, where he raises chickens, turkeys, pigeons, etc., supplying the island with these delicacies.

He landed on the island about twenty-two years ago, and has been content to remain there, never once in all that twenty-two years having visited the mainland, but pursues the even tenor of his way year in and out.

A little while since John heard a great commotion—among his turkeys one evening, just at dark. He went out to see what the matter was, but when he appeared on the scene all became quiet. The next evening and the next at dusk the same ruction occurred on the turkey roost; but he had so far failed to find the source. The next morning, chancing to get up very early and before the turkeys had left their roost, another disturbance began, and then he discovered that a female peacock had invaded his premises and was roosting with the turkeys and was also making herself very disagreeable. She took to flight on seeing John, but returned nightly to the roost. In a short time she began to appear during the day, and, finding no harm came to her, she has at length adopted Chicken John as her godfather and provider.

And now what bothers John is, from whence did she come? To his knowledge there has not been a peacock on Catalina. Yet here one turns up, wild as a partridge. He can account for the phenomenon in no other way than that she flew over from the mainland —and the channel is twenty-five miles wide. He is still puzzling over the problem.

POMONA.

POMONA, May 4.—Deputy County Assessor Frank Wheeler is seeing the beginning of the end of the systematic work he has been doing for several months in this locality. He has made a complete readjustment of the assessments on all property in the valley. A careful poll-tax canvass is being made also.

So great has become the demand for the granite rocks and boulders that years ago were such a pest to the settler who cleared land for cultivation that the rocks now sell for $1.50 per load and more is paid for those of finer surface and graining. The rocks are used for building purposes, and as the settlement of the valley and the building yearly increases, the rocks have been becoming more scarce. Several ranchers, who were formerly ridiculed for piling up little mountains of rocks near their places, when clearing the land, are now turning the result of former years' foresight into cash.

The warm sunshine of the past few days is welcome to alfalfa and vegetable growers, as it means death to the army-worm pest, which was becoming very obnoxious.

ALHAMBRA'S CLUB.

ALHAMBRA, May 4.—At the Alhambra Improvement and Social Club meeting, last evening, the following were appointed a committee to arrange for the immediate incorporation of the club: Dr. F. E. Corey, F. D. Jones, C. E. Striffer, George G. Hawley, H. E. Rose, William Hall, R. C. Devereaux, Mrs. H. J. English and Mrs. L. T. Anderson. Addresses were made by visiting officers of the Garvanza Club.

CROWD TEARS FENCE DOWN.

Barrier Erected by Southern Pacific Across Street at Wilmington Is Removed.

WILMINGTON, May 4.—Following the action of the Southern Pacific in placing a fence across Canal street at the water front, the city authorities are conferring with counsel with a view to getting a restraining order to keep the company from again putting up the fence, which has been removed.

A decided sensation was sprung on the city yesterday, when it was found that the Southern Pacific Company had constructed a strong fence across Canal street just south of its main track.

During the afternoon it was noticed that a heavy freight train was remaining on the track near the foot of Canal street for an unusual length of time. It completely hid the operations which were in progress on the opposite side. About 5 o'clock the train pulled out, disclosing a board fence which effectually barred the way to the water front.

A. Gregory drove up to go out to the landing place after his usual load of clams which had been brought in from the day's catch. His astonishment at finding the street barricaded knew no bounds, and soon turned to anger. He rushed back uptown and collected a posse of men to break the fence down. Soon a crowd of indignant citizens gathered ready for active operation, and it seemed that the fence must come down at once, but moderate counsel prevailed and it was thought best to await developments.

City Attorney Wideman went down late in the evening and collected a crowd of men, who proceeded to demolish the fence. No opposition was offered to the demolition.

The purpose in erecting this fence seemed apparent to all. They accepted it as the first skirmish of the Southern Pacific and Bannings against the United States government in the contest for the retention of the complete control of the harbor.

Two years ago, after the application of the railway corporations for developing the harbor on the peninsula plans had been denied by the War Department, the Bannings, claiming the entire inner harbor below high tide, erected a line of fence along this line as a boundary of their tideflat claims. For a year the fence remained unmolested, but during the past year one after another of the owners of property bordering on this high-tide line has been pulling this fence down until it has all disappeared.

A few months ago when the city of Wilmington began operations for the grading of Canal street and had declared the street to be a public thoroughfare to the water's edge, the Southern Pacific placed signs on this street at the point where its track intersects it, having the warning, "This is no thoroughfare. Keep out."

The City Trustees ordered these signs to be taken down, so they went down.

The contract for grading Canal street from Second to the water front has been let to J. Heim of Los Angeles, and the work will begin at once. It is believed here that the fence is intended to prohibit improvements south of the railway track and also is a challenge to the city, on the ground that it has no jurisdiction over this part of the street.

Canal street has long been a public thoroughfare. In old days ships landed at the foot of the street. It is stated by some of the old residents that the elder Banning conveyed the title of this street to the county and that ever since then no question has been raised concerning it. Former City Engineer Victor Hayes says that Canal street was dedicated to public use by the elder Banning many years ago and that a deed to that effect is on record.

The city of Wilmington has also ordered the construction of a wharf at the foot of the street for the landing of boats for traffic.

WILMINGTON BRIEFS.

A shoe factory for Wilmington is an enterprise which is now under negotiation. President Brennan of the Anti-Rubber Tire Company has the assurance of locating such an industry on property adjoining his tire factory where he manufactures leather. This company is making a success of its patent leather tire for automobiles. So far it has confined itself to experimenting and preparing the leather for their use and also for other purposes.

J. M. Picherit of Los Angeles has established a boat building plant in Wilmington, using temporarily one of the old warehouses on the bay front. He will build launches and small craft.

NEWS REPORTS FROM CORRESPONDENTS OF THE TIMES.

DESERT EXCITED BY LAND BOOM.

RAILWAY MEN, MERCHANTS AND MINERS INTERESTED.

Filings, Covering Two Thousand Acres in Silver Lake District Made at San Bernardino—Locators Expect to Raise Splendid Crops in Soil of Extreme Richness.

SAN BERNARDINO, May 4.—The biggest land boom in years has struck the desert country. The excitement found an echo in the County Clerk's office, where filings were made covering over two thousand acres. Crowds of locators from the Silver Lake district thronged the office all day, anxious to get their first application papers into the hands of the County Clerk. Back of the excitement is a belief that the land which has been located will equal Imperial Valley in richness, and the lucky locators expect to find a great market for their crops in the mining camps of California and Nevada.

The excitement centers in the Silver Lake country. Four miles from the depot of Silver Lake, along the Tonopah and Tidewater Railroad, Mohave River has for centuries deposited a rich soil, spreading out into the lake bed, and covering thousands of acres. Tests of the soil have demonstrated its adaptability for agricultural purposes. In fact, Prof. George Monroe, a soil specialist from New York, states that the composition to a depth of many feet shows great richness, though he says that the agricultural lands are possibly limited to an area of 2500 acres.

Chief Engineer C. N. Rasor of the Tonopah and Tidewater road was recently retained to locate the corners of quarter sections covering the rich soil. He and other prominent officials of the railroad, besides wealthy miners and merchants of Silver Lake, have joined interests, and today the result was indicated by the wholesale filings mentioned.

Judge Charles E. Sexton, one of the locators, stated that he and his friends propose to place their homesteads under immediate cultivation. He states that there is an assurance of abundance of water for irrigation purposes, and that indications are good for a boundless supply of artesian water. Artesian wells will be sunk at once. Several wells are being pumped, but the pumps will probably be abandoned if artesian wells are developed.

About fifteen years ago that section was the scene of a great Italian colonization movement. A promoter lured hundreds of Italians to the section, and thousands of dollars were expended in trying to cultivate the land. Failure came because of the ignorance of the farmers, but an evidence of their work remains—an immense canal, which they built to drain Felice Lake. Before these Italians went to the [illegible] probably over a hundred years ago the ground in sections seems to have been tilled by Indians. In numerous places Indian canals are found, and farming implements which show [illegible] man's hand.

The locators who filed today were [illegible] Hoagland, Judge Charles E. [illegible], James D. Hicks, G. A. Parker, C. J. Ennis, assistant superintendent of the Tonopah and Tidewater; Lewis Byers, locomotive engineer; J. W. Hoagland, mine owner; G. A. Heath, Silver Lake merchant; W. W. Cahill, superintendent of the Tonopah and Tidewater; C. H. Schurtz, Tonopah and Tidewater agent at Front; C. E. Bearne, Tonopah and Tidewater agent at Silver Lake; W. R. Alberger and J. M. Williams, traffic manager and assistant traffic manager, respectively, of the Tonopah and Tidewater; Charles Cannall and Chief Engineer C. N. Rasor.

UNION HIGH TROUBLES.

Upland Citizens Annoyed by Injunction Recently Obtained by Upland Parties.

UPLAND, May 4.—The recent move of parties at Ontario in securing an injunction against the organization of a union high school for the Ontario and Upland districts, has again opened the old wound. Many citizens favor divorcing Ontario absolutely from all school plans which Upland may make. Cucamonga has at various times expressed a desire to unite with Upland in forming a high school district, and Etiwanda would also probably be glad of an opportunity to come in. This plan would set at rest any further high school troubles between Upland and Ontario.

On the other hand, there are those who, in view of the recent decision of the Attorney-General to the effect that Upland and Ontario constitute a union high school district, think that the matter should be fought to the end, along the lines laid down by that decision.

UPLAND JOTTINGS.

The proposed establishment of a summer camp in San Antonio Cañon is hailed with delight in this end of the Model Colony. The need of some such resort has long been felt, and it is hoped that the patronage of the coming season will prove sufficient to induce the promoters to go in on an even more elaborate scale another season.

The annual convention of the San Bernardino County Christian Endeavor Societies was held here today, at the Presbyterian Church, and was largely attended.

E. S. Quigley and family, who have resided here for a year, left today for their new home in Oregon.

Mrs. A. J. Clark, who has been treated for rheumatism at Elsinore Springs, has returned home, feeling much improved in health.

George Colborn, Jr., has purchased the Otto Seichert residence on Third avenue, and C. A. Cook has bought the Haythorne property on Second avenue.

James Sourwine, a local real estate dealer, has gone to Reno, Nev., on a trip combining business and pleasure.

The car shortage has been very severely felt here and a vast amount of fruit still awaits shipment. So far this has proven no serious detriment, as good prices still prevail and the fruit is in prime condition. A good deal of interest is felt in the recent action brought by the exchange against the railways. Mr. Woodford, manager of the exchange, is an Upland man.

CATCH SUSPECT IN QUICK TIME.

RIVERSIDE OFFICERS CAPTURE ALLEGED SHOOTER.

Evidence Tending to Connect Mexican Prisoner With the Shooting of Veranze Mansibai on Lonely Road Near West Riverside Is Discovered. Victim's Injuries Probably Fatal.

RIVERSIDE, May 4.—Quick work was made of the apprehension of the Mexican charged with having shot Veranze Mansibai, Wednesday night, on a lonely road near West Riverside. This morning Sheriff Wilson and Under Sheriff Evans, by a clever bit of detective work, located him in Colton and brought him in to the County Jail to await trial for the brutal attack. The name of the alleged assailant is Jesus Chavez.

The Sheriff and his officers have carried on a systematic search for the criminal ever since the news of the shooting was learned. This morning Wilson and Evans were looking over the ground at Colton when they saw a spring wagon answering the description given to the officers by Mansibai. Searching further, they found the white and the bay horses which the assailant was driving when the crime was committed, and inside a little cabin near by was Chavez.

As additional evidence, the gun with which the unfortunate Mansibai was undoubtedly shot was also found in the possession of Chavez. He had come from his home at El Monte a few days before for the Mexican celebration, and since his arrival had been under the influence of liquor constantly. It is believed that he did the shooting while on his way from El Monte to Colton.

Chavez was brought in by the officers and will have his examination as soon as he has had opportunity to recover from the effects of his spree. He will undoubtedly have to answer to the charge of murder, as Mansibai's condition has grown more critical and it is not believed that he can recover from his frightful injuries.

RIVERSIDE NOTES.

A big gain in the circulation of books at the City Library is shown by the report of the librarian for April. The total circulation for April, 1906, was 6006, and for the corresponding month of 1307 the circulation was 7007.

Dr. C. B. Dickson of Los Angeles, high chief ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, and Frank E. Hand, also of Los Angeles, supreme organizer, were the honored guests of the local lodge of Foresters last evening, and a special programme marked the occasion. Addresses were delivered by Dr. Dickson and Mr. Hand, piano solos were given by Mrs. G. E. Tucker, readings were given by Miss Sadie Alena Roberts, a flute solo was played by R. Bumstead, and vocal solos were rendered by Leonard Coop and Miss Alma Mills.

The Enterprise will tomorrow morning announce its sale to the Journal Publishing Company, recently incorporated. C. W. Barton will be editor of the paper under the new management.

FATAL RUNAWAY IN SAN DIEGO.

ONE MAN KILLED AND ANOTHER MAY NOT RECOVER.

Team, Frightened by Engine, Dashes Into Light Wagon—Attorney Boone's Auto Tips Over—He Is Dangerously Hurt—Elks Postpone Benefit.

SAN DIEGO, May 5.—J. D. Redford, 65 years old, was instantly killed, and Charles Gill, 25 years old, was critically injured this morning in a runaway accident. A truck team ran from the freight depot at the foot of B street, where the horses were frightened by an engine. C. E. Hewitt, the driver, tried to stop the team and narrowly missed death under the wheels.

At B and India streets the runaways collided with a light wagon in which Redford and Gill were riding. Both were thrown out and the wagon was smashed to kindling wood.

Redford landed on his head and was almost instantly killed. Gill was taken to the sanatorium, and may die.

ATTORNEY BADLY HURT.

Ex-Judge L. L. Boone, prominent as an attorney here for years, is at the Hearn Sanatorium, near to death, because of an automobile accident Thurday evening in which his machine was overturned. The attorney was seriously bruised, but was not thought at first to be dangerously hurt. He does not rally from the shock, and some serious internal injury is feared.

BENEFIT POSTPONED.

If the Elks of this city ever had any admiration for Katherine Tingley and her work for the "uplifting of humanity," they have lost it, for she has caused the lodge to give up its annual benefit, for which preparations have been in progress for several months. They supposed that they would be able to secure the use of Isis Theater for a reasonable sum, but were met with the demand that they pay $100 for each performance, $100 for each rehearsal, and engage the amateur orchestra and stage force attached to the theater.

In the announcement to the public, the Elks' committee says: "As we had not contemplated giving our performance for the benefit of the Isis Theater owners, solely, these terms were deemed a trifle inadmissable; and as no other suitable theater is available, or likely to be for several months, we are reluctantly compelled to postpone our performances indefinitely—which means until some theater is built, the owners of which are willing for us to realize part of the proceeds."

REDLANDS.

REDLANDS, May 4.—The first of the Shriner special trains to arrive in Redlands got in at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon. The visitors are members of Murat Temple of Indianapolis and number 120. They were given a drive through Cañon Crest Park. Four other special trains are due to arrive about dusk this evening. The night will be spent in Redlands, and tomorrow a drive over the city will be given to the easterners. Local Shriners are doing all in their power to make the visit an eventful and happy one.

Mrs. Harry C. Wheeler won the W.C.T.U. gold medal in the Redlands oratorical contest, Friday night.

VANDAL HANDS MAR MISSION.

CORNER-STONE DISTURBED AT SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO.

Some One Digs Under the Chapel and Removes a Stone That Has Lain There for a Century—Mexicans of the Town Are Much Disturbed Over the Occurrence.

SANTA ANA, May 4.—In search of treasure of historical relics, some one has dug under the cornerstone of the old mission chapel at San Juan Capistrano, disturbing a stone that has lain at the corner of the foundation of the famous church erected by the Indians and the mission padres over 100 years ago.

The Mexicans of the mission town are much stirred up over the occurrence. For many years there has been a tradition among them that there rested beneath the corner-stone mysterious somethings that the world would like to have, but no one of all the thousands of curious people who have gazed on the old stone with its strange and mysterious carvings has before now ventured to place a shovel or a pick at its base. Just what the prying midnight intruders got away with is not known.

The corner-stone lay at the southwest corner of the foundation of the old church that was ruined by the earthquake of 1812. On the face of this stone were carvings, similar ones being found in the keystone of the big arch over the old chancel.

Marah Ryan in her book, "The Soul of Rafael," the scene of which is laid at San Juan Capistrano, exploited the idea that these carvings were inscribed by a stone carver brought from among the Aztecs. Dr. C. D. Ball recently made an investigation into the markings of the old mission, and in a paper presented to the Monday Club of Santa Ana he said he believed the markings were symbolical of the rosary.

BEES WORKING AGAIN.

The honey crop is no longer in the balance. Sunshine and a fine bloom of black sage seem to be taken as assurance by bee men that the season for them will turn out all right. There has been some complaint about the long damp spell, but, unless weather conditions vary greatly between now and the first of July, the bees in the foothills of this county will make a crop.

"The last three days have been fine bee weather," said County Bee Inspector J. E. Pleasants this morning. "The bees are busy bringing in honey."

Low R. R. rates to Coronado.

NEW PASTOR WELCOMED.

OCEANSIDE, May 4.—Wednesday evening the ladies of Grace Church tendered a reception to the new rector, Rev. Dr. Van Deerlin, and Mrs. Van Deerlin. A feature of the occasion was the presentation to the rector of a gold watch by the ladies of the Mission Circle; a silver card receiver by J. T. Morrison, a jewel case by Miss Sue Sharp, and a sum of money by the younger members of the congregation.

Rev. W. W. Catherwood has resigned the pastorate of the Baptist Church here to take charge of the Huntington Beach Baptist Church. On Wednesday evening his many friends gave him a farewell reception. He was also the recipient of a number of gifts.

E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fé, and Frank A. Miller, proprietor of the Hotel Glenwood, of Riverside, came here yesterday to make plans for improving the roads in this vicinity.

CORONA WIDE AWAKE.

Movement Started for New City Hall and Other Improvements—Salt Lake Spur Possible.

CORONA, May 4.—At the annual meeting of the Humane Society in the Baptist Church last evening Prof. Miller of the Los Angeles Normal School gave an instructive talk on "Birds and Their Use to Man." Upon request he imitated the songs and whistles of many birds.

Following are the directors of the society: Mmes. E. P. Newton, A. C. Wood, W. H. Jameson and Miss Stella Platt; Rev. George B. Cliff, Dr. J. C. Gleason and W. J. Pentelow.

SPUR TO CORONA POSSIBLE.

At various times there have been reports that the Salt Lake was to build a spur to Corona. Recently a representative of the road conferred with alfalfa ranchers in this vicinity. In this section are about 4000 acres of alfalfa. The shipping of this and other products would furnish remunerative business for the Salt Lake. Two routes for approaching this town are suggested, both branching from the main line near Ontaria.

WANT NEW CITY HALL.

A movement for the erection of a City Hall, more extensive improvement of streets and a sewer system has been started by the Board of Trade. W. J. Pentelow, president of the board, conferred with the City Trustees upon these matters recently. It was suggested that the City Engineer make a survey and furnish an estimate of the cost of a sewer system.

Trustees Joe Smith and Albert Le Gaye were appointed to confer with the Board of Trade regarding a visit to neighboring towns to investigate the cost of proposed municipal improvements.

CORONA BREVITIES.

Rev. Dana Bartlett of Los Angeles will preach the baccalaureate sermon on the evening of June 16.

Dr. E. McClish of Los Angeles is to deliver the class address on the evening of June 17.

F. P. Cooper and wife of Coleman, Tex., are guests of Mr. Cooper's mother.

Harry Scoville of Seattle is a visitor here.

Nineteen ladies of the Auburndale district surprised the school teacher, Mrs. Matthews, yesterday. A picnic luncheon marked the close of school.

C. A. Tuers and wife, after a two months' stay here, left yesterday for their home in Newark, N. J.

Mrs. Benjamin MacAllister, with her daughter, Mrs. Birdsall MacAllister, and the latter's son, all of Omaha, Neb., were guests this week of the Misses Platt.

BLIGHT OFFSET PRICE.

Big Crop of Walnuts, but Growers Will Not Be Proportionately Benefited.

VENTURA, May 4.—The walnut crop of this county will be a big one this year, and prices will be high, reports William McC. Ramsey, one of the largest of the growers in this part of the State. But Mr. Ramsey says that the yield and price will be offset to a great degree by the walnut blight, which is greater this year than any year previously. While the heavy rainfall made the yield an immense one, it also brought on the blight heavily, and it is considered that, on the whole, the returns to the grower will be no greater than in other recent years.

FORMER RESIDENT DEAD.

George B. Simpson, a former resident of this city, died a few days ago at Santa Rosa. The body was brought here for burial this afternoon.

NEW FARMING COMPANY.

A farming company has been organized here to exploit the lands of the Dixie Thompson rancho, or several hundred acres of it, which have been acquired by the corporation. The capital stock is $250,000, and the directors are Clarence Chrisman, G. W. Chrisman, J. A. Driffill, E. P. Foster and George E. Farrand. It is understood that the company's ultimate intention is to place the lands upon the market and boom the tract as a residence district.

Robert Sheridan of this city, and a student at Berkeley, is clerk of the Hotel Sentinel in the Yosemite Valley.

VENTURA NOTES.

Andy Rea, a farmer on Ventura avenue, is talking of a damage suit against the scorching automobilists who last week swerved from the road and ran into his fence, breaking it down. Rea says he is getting weary of having auto drivers break down his fences.

John Bowman, an employé of the local gas company, in order to escape an explosion at the works, jumped and broke the ligaments of his left foot.

SANTA BARBARA.

SANTA BARBARA, May 4.—The air is full of rumors about government work to be done in this city. The newest thing that is handed out is the construction of a naval hospital at this point. The reason for locating the hospital is said to be to provide a place somewhere on the southern coast. At the present time there are only two naval hospitals on the Pacific Coast, located at Mare Island and at Bremerton. The negotiations have been kept well covered. It is only through the inquiries made by the person supposed to represent the government regarding a tract on the Mesa suitable for a hospital site that the news got out.

The Santa Barbara County Club will build a new home to cost $50,000 on the seven-acre tract west of the present site of the club. All of the stock has been subscribed for the improvement. The new site is situated on rolling land and offers unlimited opportunities by picturesque landscape gardening and the construction of an attractive clubhouse and stables.

The new mission bridge which spans the Santa Ynez River near the Santa Ynez Mission, will be completed and ready for use by autos and other vehicles on May 10. The old bridge was destroyed by floods in the heavy storm in January. The new bridge has seven spans and six abuttments.

PIONEER'S FUNERAL.

GARDEN GROVE, May 4.—The funeral of John W. Hill was held at the Methodist Episcopal Church on Thursday. Mr. Hill first crossed the plains from Wisconsin in 1852. After spending ten years in the mines of Northern California he went to Illinois, where he enlisted in the Fifteenth Illinois Infantry. After the war he moved with his family to Elgin, Illinois, where he lived until 1881, when he returned to California. Mr. Hill leaves a widow and three sons.

FULLERTON.

FULLERTON, May 4.—The City Trustees last night let the contract to George B. Croner of Fullerton for the erection of the new Carnegie Library buildinb, he being the lowest bidder, at $9300. Other bidders were: J. M. Woodward and C. H. Smith, Fullerton; Crookshank & Somers of Los Angeles, who are now erecting the $40,000 High School building here, and Miller & Laerson, also of Los Angeles. The building will be of Spanish design.

"LARK ELLEN" DELIGHTS.

SANTA PAULA, May 4.—Before an audience that exhausted the combined seating capacities of the auditorium and lecture room of the Universalist Church, Ellen Beach Yaw tonight again demonstrated her right to the exalted rank she holds among the world's great song artists.

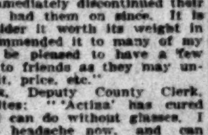
The concert was given under the auspices of the ladies of the Universalist Church, many of whom are personal friends of the great soprano, and it was only in consideration of this friendship that Miss Yaw consented to make the engagement for Santa Paula.

Maxmillian Dick, the violinist, and Miss Georgiana Lay, pianist, assisted.

EYEGLASSES NOT NECESSARY

Eyesight Can Be Strengthened and Most Forms of Diseased Eyes Cured Without Cutting or Drugging.

That the eyes can be strengthened so that eyeglasses can be dispensed with in the great majority of cases has been proven beyond a doubt by the testimony of hundreds of people who publicly claim that they have been cured by that wonderful little instrument called "Actina." "Actina" also cures most cases of sore and granulated lids, Iritis, etc., also removes Cataracts and Pterygiums, without cutting or drugging. Over 70,000 "Actinas" have been sold, therefore it is not an experiment, but an absolute fact. The following letters are but samples of those that are received daily:



Mrs. M. E. Champney, 242 West 135th Street, New York City, writes: "The 'Actina' cured me of Iritis, after the doctors said there was no cure outside an operation. I have been entirely well for over four months, can see to read and sew as well as before. I can honestly recommend 'Actina' for all afflictions of the eye."

Miss E. F. Tucker, of 2041 San Antonio ave., Alameda, Cal., says: "I am more than pleased with the 'Actina.' When I received it I had been wearing glasses for more than 3 years for Astigmatism. I immediately discontinued their use and have not had them on since. It is wonderful. I consider it worth its weight in gold. I have recommended it to many of my friends. I would be pleased to have a few circulars to hand to friends as they may understand more of it, price, etc."

E. R. Holdbrook, Deputy County Clerk, Fairfax, Va., writes: "'Actina' has cured my eyes so that I can do without glasses. I very seldom have headache now, and can study up to eleven o'clock after a hard day's work at the office."

"Actina" can be used by old and young with perfect safety. It is impossible to do harm with one. Every member of the family can use the one "Actina" for any form of disease of the Eye, Ear, Throat or Head. One will last for years, and is always ready for use. It will be sent on trial, postpaid.

If you will send your name and address to the Actina Appliance Co., Dept. 89N, 811-813 Walnut st., Kansas City, Mo., you will receive, absolutely FREE, a valuable book—Professor Wilson's Treatise on Disease.

Shoes Cheap.

There is a unique shoe store in the Bryson Block, Second and Spring streets. Every shoe in the place is sold at a dollar a pair, men's, womens', boys', misses, or children's, regardless of styles, size or quality. There has been a great deal of talk about a big advance in the price of leather, but this store seems to have the goods.

Clothes Torture

"NOW I have you"—said Old Dr. Goose to the Misfit. "You've been wrongly and badly made—you're a Suit Cripple—that's what you are—

And it's up to me to Press and Stretch and Shrink you until all your defects are Masked and you look like a well-made Suit.

Your collar sets away back; for there's not enough cloth in the Back of your Coat—that Scantness I'll have to stretch out—

And your Shoulders have no Shape at all—I'll have to press and sizzle until I get them round and smooth.

And when that's all done, I'll have to go all over you carefully and "dope" a false Shape into you—

Oh! I have my work cut out all right—for you're just like all the tough jobs I have to make appear right—

And I'll make you "sweat" and ache for it, too—I'll make you remember me, you Wretch, for I know You'll surely lose all the fine Shape I've "doped" into you—your collar will bulge again—your Coat will draw away from the back of your neck, and your shoulders will become flabby and shapeless a short time after I'm through with you for you can't help yourself.

You're not like "Sincerity" Suits in any Respect.

"Sincerity" Suits don't need me or my work.

Why?

Because "Sincereity" Suits are designed and Cut Properly and because they're tailored by Expert Needleworkers.

There's hardly a defect in a "Sincerity" Suit when it is finished—

And, if there should be some trifling alteration required—an alteration that no one except the trained inspectors of "Sincerity" Clothes could discover—you can bet all you have—the Suit isn't given to me, the hot Flat Iron, to "dope" into a temporary Shape Resemblance—

—No indeed—the Alteration is made by means of the Needle in the Busheling Department—Slowly, Carefully and Expensively.

Of course, the result of this "Sincereity" in the Making is Shape Permanence.

For "Sincerity" Clothes retain their Shape until the Cloth Pattern becomes monotonous—

"Sincerity" Clothes are retailed by all the Better Class Dealers in the ready-for-use garments—Look for the label below in the Coat—It insures Style, Service and Satisfaction.

Drs. Shores, Specialists

Drs. Shores & Shores have spent their lives in the study of Chronic, Nervous and Special Diseases of Men, Women and Children. They have treated over 100,000 cases in the past 15 years, an experience rarely ever granted any specialists, and have gleaned therefrom information that is invaluable to sick people. They would not attempt to treat Scarlet Fever or Diphtheria at any price, not because they don't know how but because they have not given it the thought and constant study that other doctors have, and, in short, it is not in their line of specialties. Every moment is given to studying CHRONIC DISEASE. That is where they excel and that is where they can serve you better than any one else.

They know what causes Catarrh. They know how to cure it. They know what causes Stomach Trouble. They know how to CURE it, instead of merely relieving it. They have studied the Liver, the Kidneys, the Ears, the Throat, the Lungs and Private Diseases, and they know what to do for these troubles. That is all they claim. That is all they treat. Consultation is always free at Drs. Shores' parlors or by letter.

Yesterday's Forecast and Report.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, May 4.—[Reported by A. B. Wollaber, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 29.79; at 5 p.m., 29.81. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 53 deg. and 58 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 87 per cent.; 5 p.m., 66 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., southeast, velocity 1 mile; 5 p.m., west, velocity 14 miles. Maximum temperature, 65 deg.; minimum, 53 deg. Barometer reduced to sea level.

Weather Conditions.—During the last twenty-four hours, a marked disturbance has made its appearance over Nevada, and unsettled weather again prevails on the South Pacific Slope. In the Middle West, the weather continues fair and cold, under the influence of a high-pressure area, and killing frosts are reported in Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois. A storm central over the Middle Atlantic States is causing unsettled, rainy weather at nearly all points east of the Mississippi River. The weather in Los Angeles and vicinity will continue unsettled and threatening, possibly with an occasional shower tonight or Sunday.

Forecasts.—Local forecast for Los Angeles and vicinity: Cloudy and threatening, possibly with an occasional shower tonight or Sunday; fresh to brisk westerly winds.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The depression over Southern Nevada this morning is moving slowly southeastward, and now overlies Northern Arizona. The temperature has fallen about 20 deg. in Southern Nevada, and risen in the Sacramento Valley. Conditions are favorable for showers Sunday in Southern California and generally fair weather north of the Tehachepi. Forecast:

San Francisco and vicinity: Fair Sunday; brisk northwest wind.

Sacramento Valley: Fair Sunday; fresh north wind.

San Joaquin Valley: Partly cloudy Sunday; brisk north wind.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Cloudy, with showers, Sunday; fresh west wind.

YUMA (Ariz.) May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch from the U. S. Geological Survey.] Gauge height Colorado River, 23.20 feet.

ARIZONA—Fair in south, rain or snow in north Sunday. Monday fair.

OIL STOCKS SHOW DOWNWARD TENDENCY.

THE feature of the local stock market yesterday, as reflected by the call on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange, was a continued weakness in Associated Oil stock, the security selling down to 38.50 on sales of only ten shares of stock. The close quoted the stock at 38@39.50, each quotation showing a loss as compared with Friday's close of 39.87½@40.50.

Columbia Oil was a leader, 5000 shares changing hands yesterday. The price was inclined to sag, the opening sales being made at 73¼, while the last lot went under the hammer at 71. Olinda Land Company stock was handled to the small amount of 2000 shares at 15¾. Mexican Petroleum was on the sales sheet with transactions of 1000 shares. The price was firm at 1.35. The close was at 1.33@1.36. Other oil stocks were inactive.

Home Preferred stock was sold again at 61, ten shares changing hands at that price. The close was at 60.87½@61, no movement having been noticed as compared with Friday's close. The remainder of the listed securities were inactive.

The mining call was a sluggish affair. Trade was carried on in only two listed stocks. Nineteen thousand shares of California Hills went under the hammer at 2¼@2½, the stock showing a slight strengthening tendency at the close. Searchlight Western was the only other trader, 1000 shares selling at 3.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

As usual Saturday business was decidedly active, especially during the early hours of the morning. All the best fruit on display and in reserve was quickly purchased by retail fruit dealers and by the peddlers, and by noon the stock generally was greatly reduced. Prices held firm for fancy stock. Cherries are coming in more freely and they sell readily. Strawberries, raspberries, dewberries and loganberries are in good supply, selling at a wide range of prices, according to the variety and quality. The cherry crop this year will be about half as large as it was last year. Heavy rains in the northern cherry sections caused the fruit to drop off. Royal Ann cherries will be in moderate supply, but blackberries will be scarcer than ever before. Lemons are active at firmer prices. Grapefruit are steady and in fair request. Medium sizes of navel oranges continue to lead in favor, and the scant stocks available are strongly held at full outside quotations.

Eggs were the center of keen attention in the produce market yesterday morning. The price of local ranch candled was advanced to 21½ cents, and case count locals to 19½ a dozen. Among the trade satisfaction was expressed at the change, as stocks are none too freely offered, and the advance was the result of scant supply under increased trading for La Fiesta. Egg jobbers say that prices have reached the top, and clearly reflect the actual market. Butter was exceptionally scarce yesterday morning. Saturday's demand was sufficient to clean up most stocks and the market was practically bare by evening. Prices were not altered on 'change. Heavy shipments of beans came in by steamer from the North yesterday.

Potatoes were without important feature; the better grades held firm at full figures. New potatoes are arriving freely from local points. Receipts of eastern potatoes were light. Onions were in free supply and were barely steady.

Receipts of garden truck were large. Prices changes were unimportant. Rhubarb firmed up to 1.50 a box.

Fish cleaned up early. Poultry is scarce and wanted. Sales on 'change: Ten boxes of fancy rhubarb; 25 sacks of small white beans; 100 pounds of domestic Swiss cheese; 30 cases of local ranch eggs; 10 crates of Imperial Bermuda onions.

The receipts of produce as reported for yesterday's exchange were as follows: Eggs, 350 cases; butter, 16,348 lbs.; cheese, none; potatoes, 1391 sacks; onions, none; beans, 336 sacks; sweet potatoes, none.

NEW YORK MARKETS.

SHARES AND MONEY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—The stock market today was a dull affair with some evidence of forces of depression in operation to which a desultory resistance was offered. The opening declines were generally recoverd at one time but the bank statement forced the market down again. The showing of the bank statement was complicated by the inclusion of the figures of a new member of the clearing-house and this was held to account for a large part of the increase in loans and decreases. The decrease in cash was somewhat larger than expected, owing to some outgo to Canada. The firmer tone of the money market toward the end of the week confirms the poorer showing of the banks. Union Pacific's reaction today was against the market and the substitution of Reading for a sustaining force proved inadequate. Yesterday's poor returns of net earnings by the Harriman Pacific roads. New York Central and Southern Railway received further discussion and were not a helpful factor to the market. The report that most of New York Central's heavy increase in operating expenses for the quarter was found in the payroll negatived the assumption that special outlay for improvements was responsible for the showing and gave it increased influence as an index of general conditions.

Reports from the wheat country of weather conditions revived the uneasy feeling over the crop prospects. The last prices of the day were near the lowest. The tone of the bond market was heavy. Total sales, par value, $900,000.

GENERAL EASTERN MARKET.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, May 4.—The wheat market was inclined to be weak all day and trading lacked the activity that had been manifested in the two previous sessions. The continued wet weather in Kansas and other sections of the West and Southwest completely offset the numerous crop damage reports which were received from all parts of the winter wheat territory. The market became very dull late in the session. The close was steady. July opened 1-8c lower to 1-8c higher at 84 1-4, sold down to 83 5-8, and closed at 83 7-8@84. The corn market closed fairly steady. July opened unchanged to 1-4c lower at 49 5-8, sold off to 49½, and closed at 49 5-8. Improved weather for the growing crops caused scattered selling among smaller holders of oats, which resulted in moderate weakness. July opened 1-8c higher at 43 1-8, sold off to 42 5-8@49 3-4, and closed at 42 3-4. Moderate purchases of lard by local packers imparted some firmness to provisions. At the close July pork was up 2½c, lard was up 5c, and ribs were 2½@5c higher.

New York Cotton Market.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO FRED DORR.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—Cotton market showed further nervousness, which is traceable directly to the Price injunction suit. Although members of exchange feel certain tha nothing will come of the litigation, the situation in the old crop months is unsettled, and further liquidation was noted. Visible supply showed decrease of about 121,000 bales. Market moved up sharply on bad weather news, and ran off on liquidation in the July option. Undertone was nervous, and the net change from yesterday was small. Southern spot markets steady and unchanged. Port receipts, 7000, against 12,117 last year.

Dick says:

Our market was due to open about 2 points higher this morning around 10.22 for July and 10.31 for October. Liverpool spot cotton quiet at 5.63d. for American Mids on sales of 6000 bales, including 4000 American. Imports none. The Price injunction suit complicated matters greatly, and about the only thing that seems reasonably clear is the belief that Mr. Price, who is thought to be long of July and short of October, will have a hard time maintaining present differences.

There is a strong probability that July will sell considerably under October, a prospect which justifies our advice of yesterday to our customers in suggesting that they take profits on their longs.

Week-end statistics are not as bullish as they have been recently. Spinners takings are only* 213,731 against 234,481 last year. For the season 9,971,413 against 8,848,822.

Visible supply shows decrease of about 120,000 against the same decrease last year. Visible supply of American cotton, according to the Chronicle is 3,376,972 against 2,642,925 last year. Port receipts about 8000; last week 8224; last year 12,117.

SAN FRANCISCO LIST.

[Exclusive Service to The Times by the Los Angeles Stock Brokerage Company, ground floor Citizens' National Bank Building. Quotations are guaranteed by the Western Union Telegraph Company.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—There was practically no change in the share market today and prices continued to sag. Triangle again took the lead in the amount of sales on the morning call, 28,600 shares changing hands, closing weak 30@31. Combination Fraction and Goldfield Consolidated held steady at yesterday's quotations. Florence lost 12½ points and Silver Pick 5. In the Bullfrog list Mayflower was traded in to the amount of 11,000 shares on the call, closing 44@45. The balance of the list was weak and inactive.

The ore shipments over the Tonopah Railroad for the week ending May 3, as reported by the Western Ore Purchasing Company, aggregated 1600 tons. Divided as follows: From Tonopah—Tonopah Company, 1020 tons; Montana, 135 tons; Belmont, 515 tons; Midway, 45 tons; Lone Mountain, 30 tons. The tonnage sent to the mill by the Tonopah Mining Company amounted to 2855 tons. DO you own any property in Los Angeles county? Have you filed statement of same with the Assessor? If not, do so at once and avoid possibility of an arbitrary assessment. By doing so you will get your property assessed to you, thereby saving mistakes and delay in paying your taxes when the time comes. We close down in a few days. Get busy. If you have not seen deputy, call at office or write for blanks. Send $2 check for your poll tax and avoid penalty of $1 which attaches on July 1, whether you own real estate or not. Don't forget this.
BEN E. WARD,
County Assessor.

Fiesta Week—20 Cents.

The Times will be delivered by carrier anywhere in Los Angeles, or sent postpaid to any address in the United States, during the seven days of the Fiesta-Shriner celebration, May 6 to 11, inclusive, for 20 cents. Besides all the news of the world, each issue will contain full illustrated descriptions of the previous day's events.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

Percy H. Clark Company, managers of the Beverly Hills tract, report that the roads to their tract are now in fine shape; the best way to go by automobile or carriage being via West Pico street or along Sunset boulevard, to Hollywood, thence west. The improvement work, which has been somewhat hampered up to quite recently, owing to the unfavorable weather conditions, has begun with renewed vim again with a large force of men. The expenditures, it is reported, in improvements to date on this high-class foothill property has been about $250,000, and the appropriation just passed by the board of directors for the next four months, beginning May 1, will exceed, it is said, $100,000. One of the most important features that will be started on this tract within a short time will be the installation of a complete sewer system.

A large hotel was opened to the public this week at Oceano Beach, on San Luis Obispo Bay. The structure is said to be modern in every particular. It has been leased to Long Beach parties by Williams & Brownstone of this city, and will be operated throughout the year. Building activity, according to reports received, continues at this resort unabated. Contracts are said to have been let for the building of two rooming-houses, and a number of bungalows along the ocean front, to be completed by this summer. The pavilion at the foot of Pier avenue is being enclosed in glass on all sides. Los Angeles capital is said to be heavily interested and a big season is anticipated by the promoters.

The Grider-Hamilton-Oswald Company reports a demand for lots in Manchester Heights, the recently-opened tract on the southwest corner of Vermont and Manchester avenues. Since the first report, two weeks ago, the company reports lots sold aggregating in value $25,000, to forty-one different purchasers. The improvements in the tract are being pushed as rapidly as possible. The new grammar school building, erected at the cost of $14,000, is only two blocks from the tract. There is also a Catholic school within a short distance. Two rapid-transit electric lines afford excellent transportation facilities. They pass directly in front of the tract. The Grider-Hamilton-Oswald Company has decided to continue the free excursions to the tract. Special excursions will be run today.

Emil Firth reports that he has just let the contract for the improvement of his new residential tract, Pico Park. The improvements, so it is said, will aggregate fully $100,000. The tract lies one block south of Wilshire boulevard and one block north of the Los Angeles-Pacific Railway. It is only a short ditsance west of the Country Club grounds, and consists of eighty acres. The contract provides for a grade of improvements in harmony with the high-class surroundings. There will be cement gutters and curbs. The walks will be six feet wide and the parkings nine feet. The streets, which will conform to city specifications, will be seventy feet in width. Ornamental stone pillars mounted with electroliers will adorn the main frontage, and electric lamps of pleasing design will be placed throughout the tract. Palms and all kinds of ornamental trees will be planted in the parkways and on the lots. The lots will be cut to appeal to the modern home-builder; seeking elbow room, and will range from fifty to sixty feet in width to a depth of 171 feet, and high-class building restrictions will be enforced. The ground lies handsomely, is high and level, and will be improved with a view to maintaining all the natural beauty of the situation. It is exceptionally favored in transportation facilities, as besides the four-track Harriman system, which has bought a right of way through the tract and entered into an agreement to have the road in operation within a short time, the Pico-street line is now being extended to, and beyond the new Pico Park.

The Home Extension Association opened the Elysian Garden tract, of 140 lots, half way out on the Glendale car line, about April 1, and on the 25th of April distributed two-thirds of the entire tract to its fifth homeseekers' club. The remaining lots are being offered to close out in the usual retail way on easy terms.

The McCarthy Company reports that it is building for any and all of its purchasers, in any of its tracts, homes to suit upon the rental-terms plan, and will continue with this liberal proposition as long as there is a demand for homes of the moderate-cost type. Several houses are said to have been started on this plan in the Florence Heights tract, and others are soon to be started in the Greater Los Angeles tract.

Benjamin Wilson of Winnipeg, Can., has bought the ten-year-old ten-acre navel orange orchard belonging to George Freeman, situated on San Antonio avenue and G street, Ontario. The consideration is stated at $15,000. This ranch, which was sold through the Ontario Land and Improvement Company, is considered one of the finest in the colony.

Maj. John Biddle, Corps of Engineers, is retired from duty as one of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and will proceed to San Francisco and relieve Maj. William W. Harts as chief engineer officer of the Pacific Division. Maj. Biddle is also detailed as a member of the Examining Board at San Francisco, vice Maj. Harts.

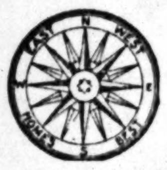
BANKING



There are some that think that banking merely constitutes the act of depositing and drawing money at a bank. You'll find this one a little different from that. We make our depositors and patrons feel at home here, in fact, a part of the institution itself, and our officers (who attend to business details in person) make it a point, and are glad to lend their experience in solving financial problems.

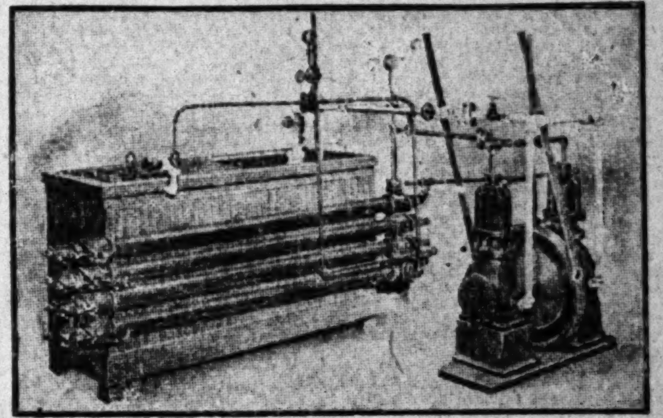
Gillette Ice Machine Co.



Ice Less than One Dollar a Ton

The Gillette Ice Machine Co. manufacture ice and refrigerating machines on an entirely new and economical principle—producing ice at an expense of less than ONE DOLLAR per ton. The machine will pay for itself in two hundred days use at prevailing rates for ice.

Ice and refrigerating machines from ¼ to 5 ton furnished. Ammonia (high pressure system) is entirely dispensed with, thereby eliminating danger of fumes emanating from leaky joints, an unavoidable contingency in other systems. We use a SPECIAL HARMLESS GAS and operate on a LOW PRESSURE. Any kind of mechanical power may be employed. A ONE-HALF HORSE POWER MOTOR will automatically make 1000 pounds of ice per day, or in lieu of ice the same machine will yield 500 pounds of ice, and give in addition 1000 pounds of refrigeration. The machine occupies a minimum space. Our pressure never exceeds 75 pounds as against 160 to 235 pounds by the ammonia system.

These machines work up to full capacity during the hottest weather, and the simplicity enables a novice to run the machines; in fact it is automatic and therefore requires no engineer.

It is extremely simple having few working parts, all of which are interchangeable made of best material and by skilled mechanics.

These machines are adaptable for Hotels, Apartment house, Restaurants, Markets, Grocers, Cafes, Steamships, Yachts, Dairies, Country Homes or Private Houses, or wherever ice or refrigerating is required. By a system of flues or pipes by connecting with registers in your home any desired temperature may be maintained during the hot Summer months. The illustration above represents one of our small machines.

State Rights For Sale

I am now in California to sell the State Rights, to make and sell these machines, and therefore invite interviews with desirable parties concerning this proposition.

Respectfully,
C. FORD SEELEY,
Representing the Gillette Ice Machine Co.

Notice to Stockholders.

At a meeting of the directors of the Luitweiler Pumping Engine Co., held at the office of the company, 707 North Main street, on the sixth day of April, 1907, it was resolved: To increase the authorized capital of the company from $200,000 to $1,000,000. A meeting of the stockholders will be held at the company's office, No. 707 North Main street, Los Angeles, Cal., on the eighth day of June, 1907, at 12 o'clock m., for the purpose of voting upon the same.

H. L. MILLER, Secretary.

THE CITY IN BRIEF

BREVITIES.

The Poole & Jones Tract lying between Normandie and Budlong, Twenty-ninth and Jefferson streets, is to be sold at auction, this includes lots on Kenwood, Raymond and Van Buren Place. In order to close up the entire interest of the estate of Isaac N. Reed in the property known as the Poole & Jones Tract, all the remaining unsold lots will be offered and sold at public auction by A. W. Louderback, the well-known auctioneer, on the property, Monday, May 13, beginning at 10 o'clock in the forenoon and continuing until sold. Mr. Walter G. Hopkins, trustee for the property, has come on for the express purpose of closing the matter up and is determined to get it into cash and interest-bearing securities immediately. Little need be said as to the character of the property as it is in a high-class neighborhood surrounded by palatial residences in the fashionable southwest. All the improvements are now in—not in the mind—but actually in the property, including both telephone companies, both electric companies, water, gas, five-foot cement walks, cement curbs, graveled and oiled streets. A three-minute car service is had on two distinct lines, the West Adams and the University West Jefferson lines. The title is absolutely perfect, having been in the Reeds for upward of thirty years, the certificate is by the Title Guaranty and Trust Company and deeds can be had at once. This is a sale of unusual interest as the property has stood vacant all these years while the city has been expanding way beyond it, leaving this as the last available inside tract. Full particulars as to the sale will later appear in the daily papers, and maps can be had at Mr. Hopkins's office, 530 Bradburk Building. This is without doubt a great opportunity to pick up choice lots in an exclusive section at your own price and upon your own terms and an opportunity all the greater because it can never again be duplicated.

Obituary.

Andrew Hanna, beloved husband of Katherine Hanna and father of Dr. Edward A. Hanna, of this city, died at his home, 1627 Georgia st., Friday, May 3, 1907.

Mr. Hanna was born at Utica, N. Y., in 1841, was married at Auburn, N. Y., in 1863, removing to Chicago, Ill., that same year, making that city his home until his removal to Los Angeles in 1902.

Mr. Hanna was a pharmacist by profession, carrying on that business for many years, when failing health obliged him to make a change. He was afterward engaged in the optical goods business for fifteen years, until he came to Los Angeles, since which time he has not been actively engaged.

Mr. Hanna and his wife united with the Union Park Congregational Church of Chicago soon after making that city their home; remaining members of that church and others of that denomination until they came to Los Angeles. Since coming here they have worshiped with the people of the Gospel Tabernacle, of which Rev. J. Hudson Ballard is the pastor.

Mr. Hanna is survived by one brother, Mr. George S. Hanna, of Fulton, N. Y., and his wife, Katherine, and son, Dr. E. A. Hanna of this city. The funeral will be held at his late home Sunday, May 5, at 3 o'clock. The remains will be cremated and the ashes placed in the family lot in Graceland cemetery, Chicago, Ill.

Officers and members of Los Angeles Lodge, No. 42, F. & A. M., are requested to attend the funeral of our late brother, George Mehr. Meet at Masonic Temple, 431 South Hill street, on Sunday, May 5, 1907, at 1:30 p.m. Master Masons are invited.

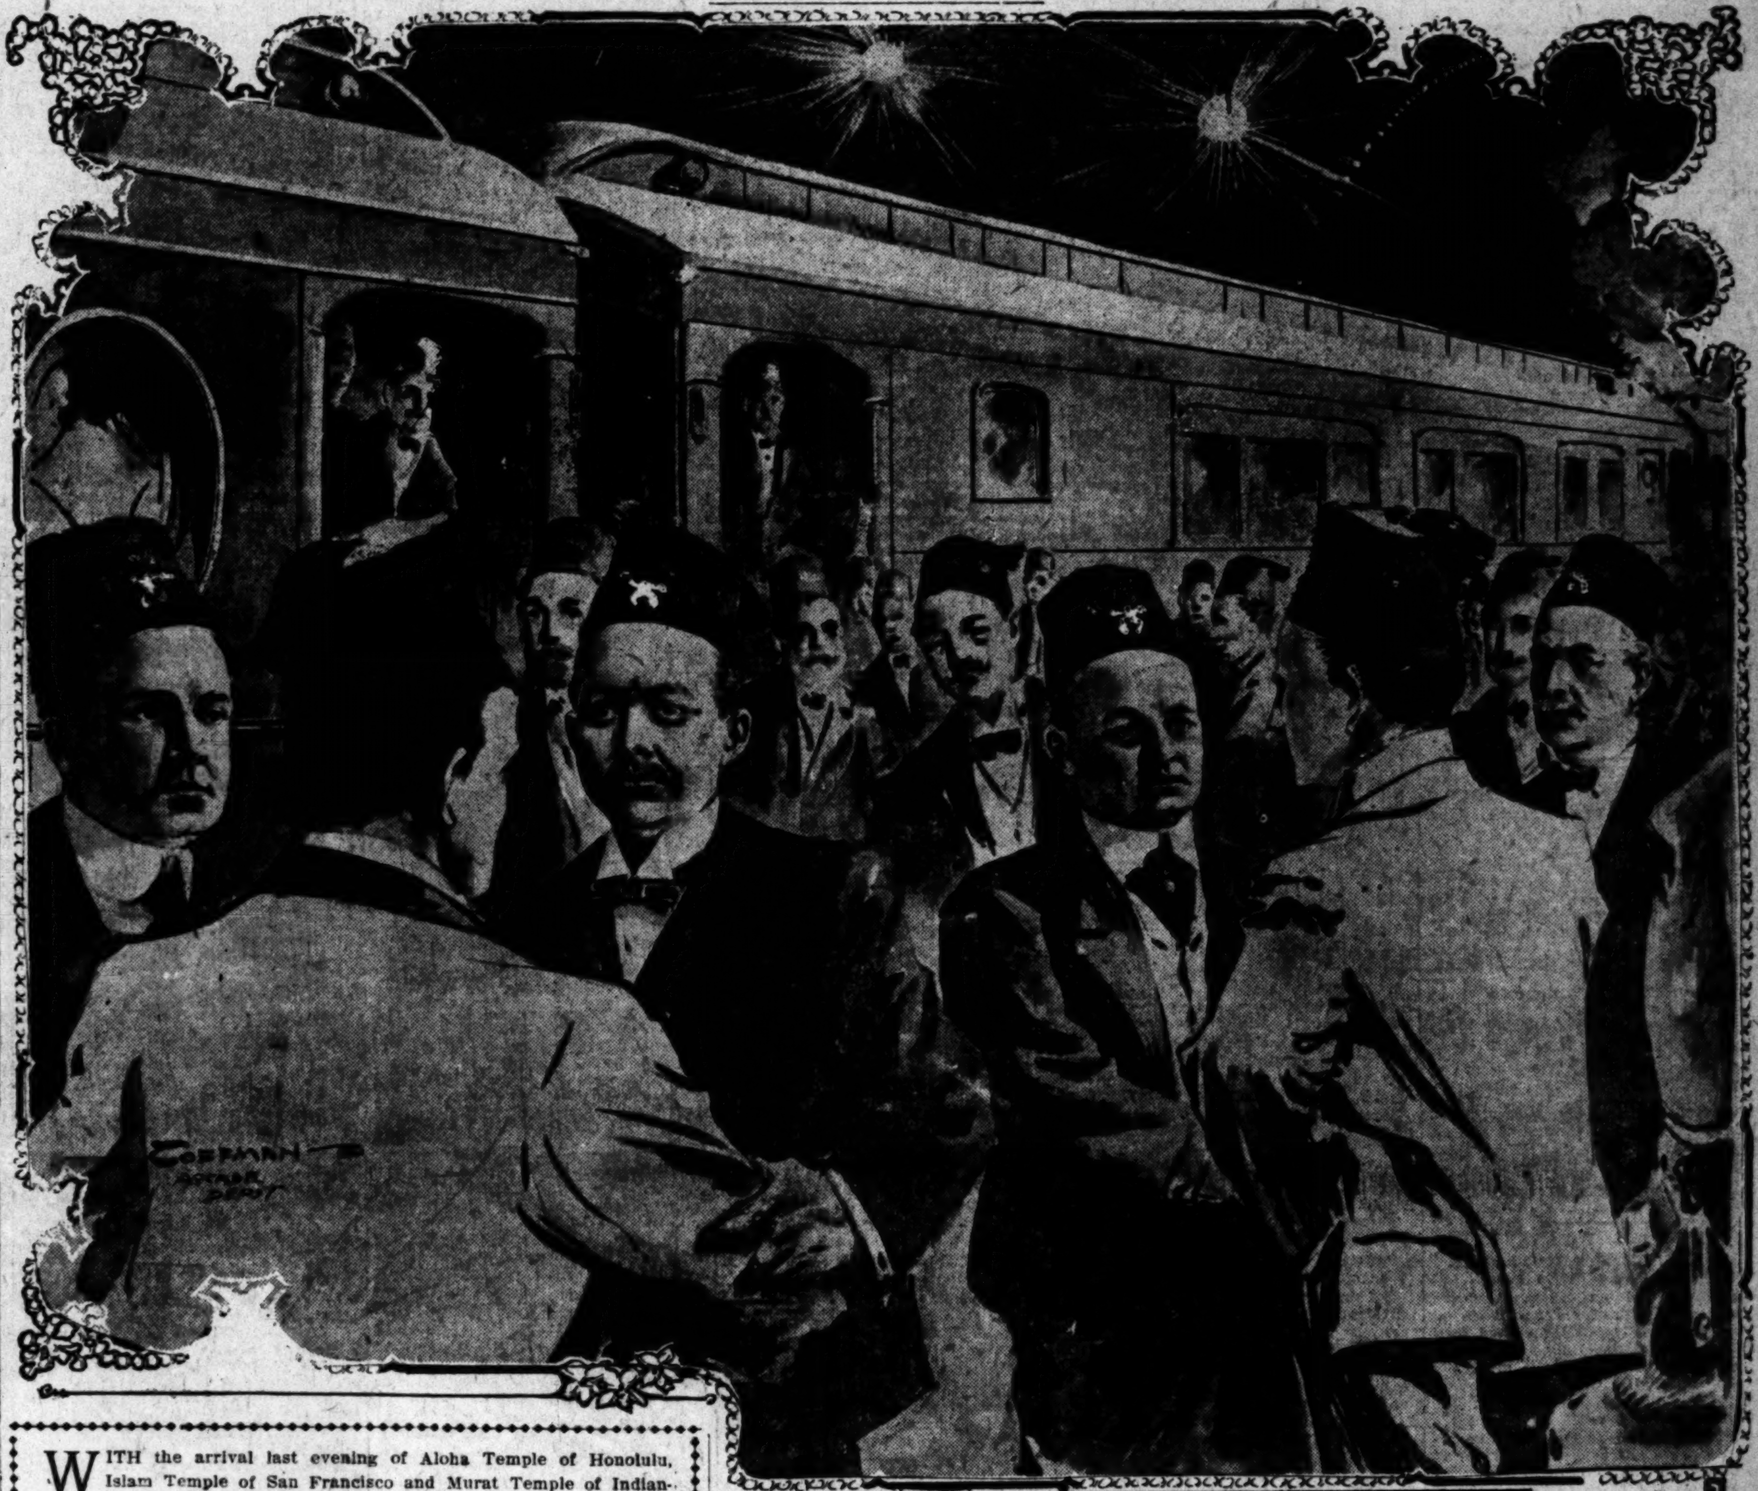
XXVIth YEAR. SUNDAY MORNING. MAY 5, 1907. On All News Stands. Trains and Streets. 10 CENTS

ACROSS THE SEA, FROM NORTH AND EAST, THE THREE FIRST TEMPLES REACH HERE.

Welcome of Welcomes Is Extended by Al Malaikah to Its Many Guests. Hawaii, San Francisco and Indianapolis Come In.



Thousands of "glad hands" in Arcade Station last night—Al Malaikah Shriners greeting their first guests, the Nobles of Islam Temple, San Francisco, and Aloha, from Hawaii. Below is a photograph of the Bedouin Patrol marching to La Grande Station to act as escort to Murat Temple of Indianapolis.

WITH the arrival last evening of Aloha Temple of Honolulu, Islam Temple of San Francisco and Murat Temple of Indianapolis, the cork was pulled on the Shrine festivities and the fizz of the fezes began to flow.

More than a thousand visiting Shriners poured into Los Angeles on the three special trains that reached here shortly before 7 o'clock. Aloha and Islam temples came in on two Southern Pacific trains and were met at the Arcade depot by the Arab Patrol and more than three hundred members of Al Malaikah Temple of Los Angeles.

Murat of Indianapolis reached here over the Santa Fe and its members were greeted by the Bedouin Patrol and another large detachment of Al Malaikah's members.

Thousands of Los Angeles citizens thronged the railroad stations and lined the streets as the Shriners arrived from afar. They were given a hearty greeting. Marching up through the brightly lighted and gaily decorated streets, the visitors were cheered at every step on their way to their headquarters. They seemed glad to be here. They found quickly that Los Angeles is happy to have them.

Los Angeles Shriners had their arms open for the visitors when the special trains pulled in with their heavy loads. Al Malaikah was out in the greatest stregnth it could muster. Potentate Motley H. Flint, who is the mainspring of the local celebration, was at Arcade Depot with his red fez and golden tassel, tired, but ready for anything that might happen. With his befezzed brothers and the Arab Patrol, the members of which were all in white, from cap to shoe, he gave the incomers the kind of a greeting that only Shriners know.

PROGRAMME FOR TODAY.

All special trains arriving will be met by reception committees. The Arab Patrol and Bedouin Patrol of Al Malaikah Temple of Los Angeles, and Islam Patrol of San Francisco, will escort all arriving Patrols and Nobles from the trains to their headquarters.

Ladies accompanying the visiting Nobles will be taken to their hotels in special cars. All trains passing through Riverside will be met by Nobles of the Mystic Shrine in that city and gifts of fruit and flowers will be distributed.

All Nobles are expected to register at the information and registry bureau in the Masonic Temple on Hill street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, at the earliest possible moment.

This evening there will be special divine services at Christ Episcopal Church, Twelfth and Flower streets, at which Rev. Baker P. Lee will officiate.

As the first of the two special trains from the North clanged into the big station, the band accompanying the local Shriners got in its gleeful action, the Arabs straightened up in single line and the hundreds of plain Shriners and many more hundreds of plain citizens let out a whoop that brought the travelers tumbling from the steps of the sleepers into the arms of the live ones.

Islam Temple tumbled off first—that part of it that was on the first train, which carried twelve cars. Aloha was right with them, and with all of them were scores of ladies, packing heavy suit cases and grips.

Waiting for Aloha Temple from the far-away isle was an orchestra of native Hawaiians from the nearby sea city of Venice. They entertained the waiting throng with native songs and music during the wait for the specials, and quickly got into action when their half-brothers from oversea got in on the first special.

TRAVEL IN ENGINE.

So anxious were some of the members of the Islam Patrol to reach Los Angeles that they traveled in the engine of the first special. They were the first to set foot on Los Angeles soil. They leaped out of the cab into the arms of a dozen Los Angeles Shriners and were smothered in hugs and squeezed in hand-clasps.

Potentate George Filmer of Islam Temple, who has been chosen as grand marshal of the big parade on Tuesday night, was among the first to leave the cars. He was seized by the members of the Arab Patrol and initiated at once into one of the mystic by-products of the big secret organization. Then he was allowed to go into the hands of our own Potentate, Mott Flint, who bustled him into an auto and shot him up to his hotel.

Islam Patrol, natty in light-blue uniforms piped with black, was given a rousing reception by their brother Arabs and by all the rest of the local Shriners. They bring an excellent band with a wondrous drum major with high bearskin cap and bright red coat, who set every street urchin on fire with his baton and his pomp.

Members of Islam, outside the patrol; took the street cars, automobiles and carriages for their hotel, the King Edward on East Fifth street, while the Hawaiian visitors were escorted by the Arab Patrol, Islam Patrol and Los Angeles Shriners to their quarters in the Hotel Ohio on North Broadway.

ALOHA ATTRACTIVE.

Aloha Patrol, which promises to be the hit of the conclave, attracted the greatest attention when they left the train and as they marched through the streets. Twenty-five of them lined up for the march through the streets.

At the railroad station the Hawaiians were met by the Hawaiian orchestra and by many local friends and relatives. They are a striking aggregation. Several of them are six-footers, and as straight as telegraph poles. They wear baggy red trousers, red stockings, red shoes, a wide purple sash, a purple velvet Eton jacket and a yellow shirt, with embroidery over everything. They carry spears, attached to which is the native flag of the olden times. Their headgear is a wonderful creation with a great yellow hood.

As they lined up in the trainshed, the members of the Aloha Patrol sang with zest, "Aloha Oe," the native song of greeting.

One of the members of this patrol was very much bekissed on his way in line to the street.

"Oh, where is he? Where is Harry?" shrieked three women dashing in among the ranks of the Hawaiians.

Somebody piped off the only Harry they knew and the women took a chance on him.

They fell all over the figure in the fantastic garb. They planted kisses on his ears, on his cheeks, on his mouth, and on his back hair.

Luckily, it turned out to be the right Harry.

He is Harry Simpson, formerly of Los Angeles, now of Honolulu, who has been away from home several years, part of the time in the United States army.

The ladies who greeted him so gloriously were his mother and two sisters.

BRINGS ELEVEN HUNDRED.

Islam Temple is represented by more than a third of its entire membership, 1100 having arrived on the two sections of the train last night.

The Shriners' train reached Santa Barbara at 10 o'clock last night, four hours late. A rousing greeting was tendered the visitors, however, and they were conducted to the Hotel Potter by a large crowd that had awaited their arrival.

"They used us out of sight," was the report of one, approved by all.

Beautiful Santa Barbara was viewed by the merry throng of red-fezzed pilgrims from automobiles, and at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the men of Islam and Aloha Temples continued their journey toward the meeting place of the Imperial Shrine.

Among the Shriners of Islam Temple in Los Angeles are Col. George Filmer, potentate; J. W. Anderson, recorder; Col. William Edwards, captain of the Arab Patrol, and Charles L. Field, past-potentate of Islam Temple and past-imperial potentate.

From far Hawaii came more than a third of the members residing in Honolulu, with an Arab Patrol which is expected to share the highest honors, in spite of the loss of a valued member.

So eager were the men of Aloha Temple to join the great throng in Los Angeles that they paid first-class rates for steerage passage on the Siberia.

Between the Caucasian steerage and that assigned to men of other races stretched a rope, intended to be kept waist high. One night it sagged to within a foot of the deck. Running across the deck in the dark, R. B. Lishman, an athlete of distinction, was thrown heavily, suffering concussion of the brain. Acute mania developed, and Lishman was left in Lane Hospital, San Francisco.

So was one of the Arab "fours" of Aloha Temple broken, but still the patrol expects to hold its own.

The accident to Shriner Lishman was the single unhappy circumstance in a pleasant trip, and reports that he is doing well have served to cheer his brothers of the Mystic Shrine.

With the Aloha Temple contingent are Dr. C. B. Cooper, representative, and Col. Samuel Johnson, commanding the Arab Patrol. The Hawaiians are quartered at the Ohio, with headquarters at the Hotel Alexandria.

MURAT'S BANNERS OUT.

Marking the trail over the hot sands to the oasis of Los Angeles, two members of Murat Arab Patrol flung to the breeze in front of the engine which pulled the caravan of five special cars two great banners.

They were the Stars and Stripes and the big banner of Murat Temple of Indianapolis.

With the 130 members of the Temple are the Arab Patrol of Murat and the Arab band. Hardly anything so artistically gorgeous as the costumes of the Patrol, which is in command of Capt. Gustavus A. Haler, and of the Oriental band, in command of Drum-Major William S. Mitchell, has ever been seen outside of the Janizaries of the old Sultans.

When the train rolled in at Le Grande Station over the Santa Fé tracks, the Bedouin Patrol of Al Malaikah Temple was waiting to greet the visitors, and so was Chairman A. W. Skinner of the reception committee, and a number of the Nobles of the local temple.

Cheers were given, the band played, hands were clasped, and, like a great family of brothers, greetings were exchanged.

With Bedouin Patrol as an escort, the Murat Arab Patrol formed up in front of the station, and, accompanied by Illustrious Potentate Elias J. Jacoby, for many years a partner of Vice-President Fairbanks, and Nobles of Murat, they marched up Third street to Main and thence to Roslyn Hotel, where their headquarters will be for Fiesta week.

IT IS SEVENTH LARGEST.

Murat Temple is the seventh largest in the United States with 2400 members and at the last initiation 166 crossed the burning sands, including Vice-President Fairbanks and Congressman Watson.

The twentw-two members of Murat Patrol are picked men and their drill on Main street called forth the plaudits of the Al Malaikah Bedouins. Their costume is a bright green velvet jacket heavy with gold braid, yellow blouses and crimson Zuave trousers. The members of the band wear the burnouse of the desert Arab with head-dress and flowing garments. Their instruments are truly of the dismallest desert style that stirs the blood.

The temple was organized March 13, 1884, and it sends four delegates to the Imperial Council's conclave. They are Illustrious Potentate Jacoby, Forrest E. Smith, Denton F. Billingsley, all of Indianapolis, and Abram S. Pilkington of Greenfield.

Murat Patrol is out for the prize.

The special Murat train left Indianapolis last Monday at 3 p.m. and made a stop at the Grand Cañon and again a stop yesterday morning at Redlands. The train was only one hour late and the first question asked by nearly every Murat Noble was:

"Are we the first?"

Alas for them, Islam Temple beat them in by about fifteen minutes.

"We had a most delightful trip," said Mr. Jacoby last evening. "There was nothing unpleasant occurred and there was not one single 'kick' from start to finish."

Every Murat Noble brings his wife with him.

SHRINE'S OWN HOME.

AL MALAIKAH WILL BE HOST.

Al Malaikah Temple will keep open house each day of this week in their new clubhouse at the Auditorium Building at Jefferson and Royal streets.

This entertainment is in the hands of the Building Committee, whose officers are: Noble John W. Edwards, president; Noble Mat Everhardy, vice-president; Noble M. C. Adler, treasurer; Noble Charles P. Wagar, secretary.

President Edwards has appointed the following Reception Committee from the class which traveled the hot sands of Venice a week ago: Nobles S. S. Boothe, S. F. Butler, Harry R. Callender, Bernal Dyas, Fred Detmers, Frank E. Edwards, W. P. Fishburn, Ed A. Geissler, N. F. Hirtz, Horace Henderson, Ben Johnson, H. J. Kramer, Sam G. Levy, Fritz Shute, Chas. F. Turner and M. K. Young.

Wednesday is the official reception day, at which time the Building Committee will assist the Reception Committee in receiving.

FIRST NIGHT PARADE.

THE SHRINERS AND FLOATS.

One hundred and thirty Shrine patrols, bands and temples are to take part in the brilliant night parade on Tuesday, preceding the fourteen gorgeously-illuminated electric floats that by comparison will put the brilliancy of the sun in the tallow-candle class. Perry W. Weidner, chairman of the Committee on Parade, has issued his final instructions for the guidance of the marchers and everything is in readiness for the starting signal.

Noble George Filmer of Islam Temple, San Francisco, will be the grand marshal, his aides being Noble Frank O. Evans, Des Moines, Iowa; Noble H. S. Getchell, St. Joseph, Mo.; Noble John C. Slater, Seattle, Wash.; Noble John G. Hunter, Dallas, Tex.

Assignments of division commanders have been made as follows: First, Noble S. A. Cutts, Savannah, Ga.; second, Noble Al G. Field, Columbus, O.; third, Noble Thomas B. Walker, Washington, D. C.; fourth, Noble James McGee, New York City; fifth, Noble Nelson N. Lambert, Chicago; sixth, Noble Joseph A. Stern, Erie, Pa.; seventh, Noble Forest Adair, Atlanta, Ga.; eighth, Noble J. H. Lewis, St. Paul; ninth, Noble F. E. Turner, Kansas City; tenth, Noble Austin D. Brown, Manchester, Iowa; eleventh, Noble William B. Trumbull, Jr., Louisville; twelfth, Noble W. A. Hammel, Los Angeles.

Headquarters of Grand Marshal Filmer will be at the intersection of Seventh and Main streets, where his aides will report to him at 7 o'clock on the evening of the parade. Division commanders will report at the place of rendezvous of their respective divisions, where automobiles will be provided for their use. The divisions will be formed and ready to march at 7:30 o'clock p.m., and will rendezvous as follows:

First, Arab and Bedouin patrols on south side of Seventh street, right resting on Main, deploying west; Al Malaikah Temple on north side of Seventh street, right resting on Main, deploying west.

Second, on east side of Spring street, right resting on Seventh, deploying south.

THROTTLE WIDE OPEN FOR JOURNEY OF JOY.

WITH the arrival last evening of the first special trains bearing temples of the Mystic Shrine began the practical celebration of the thirty-third annual session of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine.

All Los Angeles is a-tip-toe today to welcome them, to admire them and to extend to them the joyous greetings of La Fiesta de las Flores. Es Salamu Aleikum!

Al Malaikah Temple of the Oasis of Los Angeles, is in charge of all arrangements and these have been completed in such detail that there is every indication that the business and festivities of the week will move as smoothly as it is possible for intelligent effort and lots of golden grease can make them.

All the incoming special trains bearing the Nobles will be met today and tomorrow by members of Al Malaikah's Reception Committee, of which Noble Alden W. Skinner is chairman. The Arab and Bedouin Patrols of Al Malaikah, and Islam Patrol of San Francisco, will form the escorts for the visiting Nobles and Patrols to headquarters.

GUIDE OVER DESERT.

Last evening Noble J. L. Mathews of the Reception Committee, met the special train of twelve pullman cars at San Bernardino which carried the three temples of Zem Zem, Erie, Pa.; Saladin, Grand Rapids, Mich.; and Zenobia of Toledo, O. He gave them the first welcome to the Southland and was their pilot to the Oasis of Los Angeles across the burning sands of the Colorado Desert.

While today will be a busy day for the members of the Reception Committee and the Executive Committee, headed by M. H. Flint, the visitors will make of it for the most part a day of rest, or be free of any programme to wander through the gaily decorated streets of the City of the Angels, and become acquainted with its beauties.

This evening there will be divine service in Christ Episcopal Church especially for the Nobles and their ladies, and Rev. Baker P. Lee, himself a member of Al Malaikah Temple, will preach the sermon.

MAKE A CHOICE.

Tomorrow will be a busy day for every body within a radius of twenty miles of Los Angeles, for it is both Glendale Day and Redondo Day. At Glendale there will be a big Spanish dinner at the Casa Verdugo and automobile rides, besides which 20,000 boxes of strawberries will be distributed to all the visitors. The Shrine badge will be the passport upon the Glendale cars for the visiting Nobles and their Ladies.

At Redondo there will be a set table a quarter of a mile long on the sea sands, at which a clam chowder in Redondo style will be served; there will also be steamboat rides on the ocean, a continuous band concert, besides bathing and lots of other interesting things.

It will also be the day for the Indian Crafts Exhibit at Eastlake Park, where on fifteen acres will be found the various tribes of Indians from Alaska to Arizona, in all their primitive fascination. The blanket weaver, silver worker and basket maker, all will be seen at work in their rude but wonderfully skillful way.

There will also be a trip to Avalon tomorrow by special electric cars from the Pacific Electric building at Sixth and Main streets to San Pedro at 8 a. m. sharp, for the Imperial Council and their ladies, and at San Pedro a special boat will be in waiting to carry the Imperial Council to the Magic Isle of Catalina.

With all of these prospects, a good Shriner will have to think hard to make his choice.

WORLD'S BIGGEST ORANGE.

Just as soon as Imperial Potentate Alvah P. Clayton reaches Los Angeles he will be presented with the biggest orange in the world—no lemon is in sight. This orange was grown on the Adams ranch at Covina, and will be presented by Fred L. Hines of the Imperial Council, with the compliments of Covina and Postmaster J. L. Mathews. This orange measures 17½ inches in circumference, and weighs two pounds and three ounces. It will be properly decorated with blue ribbons and the shrine badge.

Tuesday morning promptly at 9 o'clock the Imperial Council will be escorted by all the visiting Patrols and the Arab and Bedouin Patrols of Al Malaikah, from the Alexandria Hotel to the Scottish Rite Cathedral, for the opening session of the Imperial Council. They will be guided by Imperial Oriental Guide Frank Treat.

The journey to the meeting place over the sands of the oasis will not be an arduous one, fanned by the cool breezes and shaded by the palm leaves as the pilgrims will be. However, there will be zem-zem water on hand to revive the fainting and encourage the weary.

EARLY THIS MORNING MANY SCHEDULED.

WITH a flourish of trumpets, Fred A. Hines, chairman of the Shriners' Reception and Entertainment Committee, and the other members, walked into the lobby of the Alexandria Hotel yesterday afternoon, seated themselves at two long mahogany tables, and announced that the committee was ready for business.

Immediately followed a deluge of Shriners who had arrived on the regular trains and had been wandering about the city in search of some definite headquarters where they could get in touch with the faithful.

Badges and cards telling each delegate where he could find the headquarters of his particular temple were given out, and those who had not secured accommodations were cared for.

Telegrams began coming in by the score to Mr. Hines, and for the first two hours his committee was in session there was a constant stream of messages received and sent out.

A telegram was received that Zem-Zem Temple of Erie, Pa., would arrive at 3 o'clock this morning over the Salt Lake, and Joseph Stern, J. W. Spaul, J. C. Grove of the Imperial Council would be among those coming. Then Saladin Temple of Grand Rapids, Mich., signaled the Reception Committee by wire that they would arrive at the same time and that Lou V. Winsor, Past Imperial Potentate, and C. E. Gerhard and wife would be with them—all members of the Imperial Council.

Zenobia Temple of Toledo, O., bringing A. W. Payne, J. W. Longnecker, E. O. Reed and W. B. Church, members of the Imperial Council, was due to arrive at the same time.

Mr. Hines had charge of the members of the Imperial Council solely last night, and busied himself with keeping tab on them and the time of their arrival. Aad Temple of Duluth sent a flash from Las Vegas that it would arrive on the Salt Lake train at 2:30 o'clock this morning and that S. C. Frazer, J. Norton and J. W. Lyder of the Imperial Council would be with them. Osmand Temple of St. Paul, accompanied by G. C. Nispel, J. W. Owens, Elmer Durth and L. G. Hoffman of the Imperial Council, were also slated to arrive between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning.

Zurah Temple of Minneapolis had with them C. E. Ovenshire, O. C. Moody, F. M. Hutchinson, J. F. Ellis and W. A. Elliott of the Imperial Council. They also came in over the Salt Lake road. Tangier Temple of Omaha, escorting H. C. Aiken, past imperial potentate, and Aleppo Temple of Boston sent word to Mr. Hines that they would be in about 5 o'clock this morning. In a special car Benjamin W. Rowell, imperial recorder, accompanied by ten other gentlemen, was scheduled to arrive at 10 o'clock over the Southern Pacific.

All of these announcements Chairman Hines received during the afternoon and he kept tab on the trains as they moved on Los Angeles from each way station. The entire Imperial Council will make the Alexandria its headquarters.

BRIGHT FIESTA WILL DAZZLE.

WILL PROVE MOST WONDERFUL DISPLAY EVER SEEN.

Los Angeles Decked in Gay Attire With Miles of Bunting, Myriads of Lights and Festoons of Flowers. Great Floral and Electric Parades and Line of March.

Almost lost sight of in the flood of celebration which has broken loose in connection with the annual conclave of the Imperial Council of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, yet the individual celebration of La Fiesta de las Flores next Friday will be one of the most interesting Feasts of Flowers ever held in Los Angeles.

It is in honor of Fiesta week as well as for the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine that the city has decorated herself in such gorgeous attire. Among all of the displays of the week it is the floral parade on Friday morning which is the most important, the one which the thousands of visitors from all over the country will remember longest with wonder.

With all of the other celebrations of the day it will be the parade which will make it distinctive, a feature typical of the City of the Angels. Nothing like it can be seen elsewhere, nothing like it as it will be this year, has ever been seen before, and it may be a long time before another such will delight the eyes of those who gaze upon its beauties and its wealth of flowers.

FIESTA IS KEYNOTE.

It is under the auspices of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association that the arrangements for La Fiesta have been made and the busiest man in Los Angeles last week was undoubtedly Secretary F. J. Zeehandelaar, who has had practical charge of the arrangements as well as in raising the big fund which enables Los Angeles to celebrate this year as never before.

They are the Fiesta colors which are blooming along the miles of streets in Los Angeles this week, it is the Fiesta scheme of decoration and electrical lighting which are making brilliant beauty spots of a thousand fine buildings in this great city of the Southland. It is in fact, the Feast of Flowers which dominates the time and is the keynote of the festival joyiousness which pervades the air.

The night flowers of light will rival in color and grouping the natural flowers of the day and brilliant and striking will be the illumination of Los Angeles during Fiesta week. Thousands of colored lights, strung in graceful lines and artistic designs, will be ready for the touch of a button at 7 o'clock this evening, when the week's celebration will be formally inaugurated.

LIGHT FLOWERS BLOOM.

Roofing the streets and overhanging the intersections in the shape of festoons or canopies, with each light made beautiful by an enclosing lantern, the illumination will comprise the principal business section of the city, where the thousands of visitors will spend the greater part of their stay.

The lights have been strung along Main and Spring, from Temple to Ninth; on Broadway, from Second to Ninth, and on Hill, from Third to Seventh. Each street will have a distinctly predominant color, and in each case tests have been had to bring out to best advantage the elaborate and unequaled system of lighting the streets of Los Angeles by the use of softened cluster globes.

Three beautiful designs, each containing hundreds of colored lights, will blaze throughout the week on each of three principal thoroughfares. At Third and Broadway will be the Stars and Stripes. At Fifth and Spring the fez and the Shrine emblem, and the Shrine emblem will be reproduced at Fourth and Main. Each design will be eighteen feet in height.

In the daytime the general decorations arranged by the Fiesta Committee will be scarcely less beautiful, particularly in the eyes of eastern visitors, who will witness such a lavish use of flowers as has probably never before been attempted. Each ornamental lamp post will be entwined with green vines and date palm leaves and from each branch will depend a wire bracket holding deep red carnations.

THE FLORAL PARADE.

FORMATION AND LINE OF MARCH.

Through the beautifully-decorated streets and between sidewalks lined by the scores of thousands who will witness the display, will move the great parade of La Fiesta. The old life and the new will both be represented by those in costume and on horseback, but it will be the wonderful decorations of living flowers which will make it noteworthy.

Surely it will be a Feast of Flowers. Grand Marshal W. A. Hammell will blossom like a full-blown rose. The second division, composed of the various Arab and Bedouin patrols, will present the appearance of a multi-colored flower garden on a stroll.

Then there will be the sailors and marines of the navy from the flagship Charleston, in command of Admiral Swinburne. They will have the right of way after the Grand Marshal and his staff, and will prove the contrast to accentuate the feast of flowers and the joy of peace.

The really striking feature of the parade will be the floral floats of the third division, but all along the line there will be the same wealth of flowers arranged in a thousand different effects and not two alike. It will form as follows:

FORMATION OF PARADE.

Classes K and L—Decorated automobiles, preceding main body of parade.

Platoon of police.

The parade will form on Main street at Seventh and other side streets, and will march up Main to Temple, thence down to Spring street to Ninth street, west to Broadway, north on Broadway to First street, and disband.

LINES OF MARCH.

ROUTES OF FOUR PARADES.

The line of march for the four important parades of this week will remain as originally planned, the parade zone extending from Temple Block to Ninth street, along Main, Spring and Broadway. The parade committee has the assurance of the Barber Asphalt Paving Company's representative that the pavement along Spring street, between Eighth and Ninth, will be completed before Monday, and in condition equal to any other block.

The line of march for the opening electrical parade, Tuesday evening, May 7, will be as follows:

From starting point at Seventh and Main streets, north on Main to the Temple Block, south on Spring to Ninth, west on Ninth to Broadway, north on Broadway to Second, east on Second to Spring and south on Spring to the car barns.

The second and third presentations of the electrical parade will follow the same route, except that the head of the parade on these evenings will start from Ninth and Main streets.

The floral parade, May 10, will start at Seventh and Main and follow the same route except that in passing north along Broadway it will continue on to First street instead of turning east at Second.

All the streets comprised within the line of March will be wired off to prevent interference with the floral and first electrical parades. Because of the immense crowds expected in the streets on these occasions the police will be asked to prevent congestion on Spring and Main streets, between Second and Fifth. As the parade may be seen with equal advantage at the southern limits of the parade zone, people will be urged to scatter along the three thoroughfares until the probability of crushes and accident is prevented.

GRAND SHRINER BALL.

FIESTA'S BRIGHT FINISH.

Following the parade and in continuous celebration of La Fiesta will be the opening of the Midsummer Water Carnival at Venice at which souvenirs will be presented to all the visiting Nobles and their ladies.

In the evening will be the great Shriner Ball and an exhibition of fireworks. So many have been the invited guests for this event that the Auditorium and Dancing Pavilion have both been set apart for the occasion and two full bands will play the dance and promenade music.

The Reception Committee, which will be composed of members of Al Malaikah Temple of Los Angeles, is expected to make this closing also the crowning social event of the big week.

The members of the committee are: W. P. Jeffries, chairman; Leo V. Youngworth, John H. Nightingale, Jushua H. Marks, Frank L. Miller, W. L. Valentine, E. W. Gillette, Phil Kitchin, Henry L. Jones, R. W. Bailey, Dr. E. Janes C. J. Lehman, Earl W. Mueller, H. L. Cornish, Sam G. Levy, M. C. Adler, John F. Kitchin, J. M. Danziger, Horace O. Smith, A. J. Daniels, A. L. Daniels, Louis M. Only 1-2 Mile County Seat

160 Acre Farm With This Pumping Plant

160-ACRE-FARM, nearly all in alfalfa, one-half mile from town limits of thriving town, the County Seat of prosperous County in the San Joaquin Valley.

There is a small 4-room house, large barn and outbuilding. The place is fenced into six fields, and thoroughly prepared for irrigation at great expense. It is surrounded by highly productive orchards (including oranges,) vineyards and alfalfa ranches.

It is situated on one of the main irrigation canals of the county, and besides has its own irrigation plant (shown above,) ready to use at any time and fully as cheap as canal water. This plant is one of the most complete and successful in the State. It could not be duplicated today for less than $3300. The place has been flooded with it at an average cost of 40c per acre. It throws 2000 gallons per minute of pure, clear water.

This place under competent management can be doubled in value in 3 years. Eighty acres of it has produced $4000 in a single season under favorable circumstances.

The owner offers it for much less than it cost, as he is obliged by a change in his business affairs to leave this part of the State.

The place is offered for $17,500—only part of which is required down; the balance can stand on mortgage with long time to run at 6 per cent. interest net.

With proper management, the place should furnish a good living for a family, and easily net the payments required, and allow a large amount to go into improvements.

lding Materials Market in Fine Condition.

ces Easier Here Than in Most Coast Cities.

ll for Property to Rent Stimulates Activity.

e price of brick has dropped a thousand within a few weeks. ber is $2 less per thousand than as a little more than a month ago. e is an abundance of cement, grav- and most other materials for use buildings of all kinds. Some slight y is experienced in obtaining steel Los Angeles for use in reinforced te buildings. The lime supply short, but working quantities are ys available. On the whole, build- conditions in Los Angeles are de- ed by contractors and material alers to be excellent. They all look r a steady, healthy growth of build- g.

After all this loud wail about the high cost of building materials and lleged activity in building, con- ctors say they have all they can do, ntal agencies declare that they can- t supply the demand for houses and s and hundreds of families are ing up with temporary and unsuit- le quarters until they can find the d of homes they want.

Builders say this shortage of rental erty is felt keenly; that many ers of real estate, stampeded for rt time by the hullaballoo over pposedly great advance in the cost aterials, are going in with renewed r to improve their property and to t by the demand for houses.

"Such advance as there may have n in the cost of building materials two months ago would figure tly from $25 to $50 on an average nce," said a prominent con- r yesterday. "An exaggerated somehow has been allowed to that houses built now cost hun- of dollars more than those built r three years ago. A little care- dy of the situation would prove ity of this notion.

LOST RENTS BY DELAY.

"ners of property who have held back have lost in rent sev- times the additional amount that might have had to pay for build- aterials.

"e fact is becoming patent now t is noticeable that the wise ones roceeding to build so that they ll be in a position to supply the de- for houses."

here is no fiction in the statement houses are hard to get. This is d by the experiences of many s in the city who have sought eks to rent the kind of homes want. Many of these families iciled in flats and apartment and want places with a bit of round them so that the chil- ay have the advantage of a f their own in which to play and r families are getting along ey can in old-fashioned and ntly arranged houses, simply ting until they can find modern enough, lumber is cheaper Angeles simply because there is a shortage of cars at the lumber mills of Washington and Oregon. If there were an abundance of cars the price would be higher here.

Our supply of lumber comes entirely by vessel, so, on the surface, it is difficult to understand how a car shortage or a car surplus could affect the local market.

The truth of the matter is, however, that Los Angeles and Southern California take but a mere handful of the product of the northern forests. The great market is in the East, and it is supplied entirely by rail. When cars are not to be had, the lumber accumulates at the mills. It must be moved, and water transportation to the south affords an excellent outlet for a small part of the accumulation.

On this showing, it is not unreasonable to supose, according to a prominent local lumber dealer, that, when cars finally are available in sufficient quantity to carry the bulk of the shipments east, the shipments by boat will fall off, there will be a shortage here, and prices will go up.

Because of the never-ending demand from the big markets in the East, it is said to be extremely unlikely that prices will drop below present figures at the mills.

As do the contractors, the lumber dealers ridicule the statement that the advance in the price of lumber in the last few years affects to any great extent the cost of building.

The cost of lumber, they say, represents probably only one-fourth of the total cost of a house. Even an advance of several dollars on a thousand feet would not boost the cost of a house very greatly; certainly not to the extent that has been claimed in numerous wild statements that have been set in circulation.

SAW "DIRT FLY" ON BIG DITCH.

NEW YORKER TELLS CITY CLUB TO HELP PRESIDENT.

Work Progressing Favorably—Sentiment in Favor of Sea-level Canal. Yellow Fever Stamped Out—Will Appeal to President for Better Moral Safeguards in Canal Zone.

The City Club was addressed yesterday at noon by W. P. F. Ferguson of New York, editor of the Defender, who has just returned from a visit to the Isthmus of Panama, where he has been on a quiet tour of inspection of the canal, in the interest of private parties.

He received a warm reception from the club, which is rapidly growing in popularity. It is being demonstrated that at these informal gatherings at noon, a man can get the best thought under the best conditions, and without unnecessary consumption of time, and the membership is constantly increasing. L. C. Gates is the newly-elected president of the club, and L. R. Wharton is secretary.

Mr. Ferguson began his talk concerning the canal by reviewing briefly earlier efforts at the accomplishment of the same great work. There were, in his opinion, two insuperable obstacles in the way of success to the latest attempts of the French—the devilishness of champagne and the deadliness of the mosquito.

He demonstrated that the United States has conquered the mosquito but declared that in the matter of drink the Americans are surpassing even the bibulous Frenchmen.

His real sentiment concerning the construction of the Panama Canal, was best expressed in one of his last sentences, and was received with great applause.

"We ought to hold up the President's hands," he said. "If he has to fight the railroads to build that canal, it is our duty to hold up his hands and help him to build it."

In the stability of the southern republic he has no confidence. He said: "Nobody who has been on the isthmus twenty-four hours, can fail to realize that the republic of Panama is a fiction, and that the real power is the will of the President of the United States. Nicholas himself in Russia is not so much of an autocrat as the man in the White House is on the Isthmus of Panama.

"I am glad to say that as far as I could discover, work is going on as well as might be expected—the real work of digging the canal. Aside from the stupendous task of getting ready, and the building of cities, I actually saw the 'dirt fly.' They are working right along, and the blasting goes on as steadily as if it were gunfire at sea.

"There is no yellow fever on the isthmus, and there has been practically none for the past six months. Incidentally, the mosquito is responsible for yellow fever, and it was ignorance of this fact that caused the French to die off like flies when they attempted to dig the canal. You can actually sleep in the room with a yellow fever patient without danger, providing a mosquito does not get hold of you that has first got hold of the patient."

Sanitary conditions are generally good, he said, but moral conditions are bad, and he proposes to appeal to the President, personally, for the protection of young girls along the canal zone.

"I was surprised and much interested," said Mr. Ferguson, "to learn that all the men in connection with the construction of the canal, are in favor of a sea-level canal. They say that the eighty-five-foot canal will in a couple years be changed to sea-level by digging straight through the mountain."

He declared that it looked difficult to him, but that this is the universal opinion of the men on the work. His closing remarks, concerning the stamping out of vice in the canal zone, elicited marked applause.

CRUEL TEAMSTER FINED.

G. M. Slobohm, a teamster, was caught by an S.P.C.A. officer on Sunset boulevard yesterday beating an overworked mule with a section of heavy trace chain. The man was fined $15 in Police Court on a cruelty to animals charge, to which he pleaded guilty.

WHISKY STOLEN BY BARREL.

George Deitruck and Ira Homes, who are accused in Owego, N. Y., of having stolen whisky by the barrel from box cars, were taken through Los Angeles yesterday by Tioga county officers, who stopped to pick up George E. Crum, wanted in their county on a charge of having swindled two buyers on a timber land deal. Crum was arrested here by local detectives. Deitrick and Homes were captured in San Francisco.

FINING THE AUTO MEN.

Ten autoists who had broken speed ordinances and two who had failed to place rear lights on their machines in accordance with the city ordinances were fined $15 each in Police Court yesterday morning. The police are beginning to make a special effort to enforce compliance with the light provision, and more arrests will follow.

EIGHT NEWSPAPER PARTS AND SUNDAY MAGAZINE

Pen Points

Now for cap and bells! This is our week of play.

"Whosoever will, let him come." The show is for everybody.

The easiest way to make money is too often the easiest way to jail.

"Advance our colors to the outer walls. The cry is still they come."

After all, it will be the pretty girls who will really make good our boasts.

The Shriners are coming from everywhere, and lots of people from other places.

The only thing that seems to want to stay in the East is the winter weather.

Every race on earth will be represented in the parade, including the police force.

Meat and drink for the Arabs and hay for the camel! We are ready for all comers.

The San Francisco delegation will no doubt spend part of the time in watching us grow.

An then to think that the Shriners have lots more members who had to stay at home!

The pilgrims will find that this is about the biggest and best oasis they ever landed on.

The outlook for the dark horses in the next Republican National Convention is not bright.

The country is well acquainted with Mr. Taft, and Mr. Taft is well acquainted with the country.

When all the night illuminations are turned on, a man will be able to see his way clear to Redondo.

If peace suddenly struck Central America the people down there would probably die of heart disease.

The signs are that the hello girls in San Francisco will soon get tired saying hello to empty stomachs.

Pretty soon those Middle West and Eastern cities will be boasting as to which one has the most snow.

The police have been instructed to arrest no Shriner except at the Shriner's own personal request.

The next best thing to having Roosevelt, himself, is to have a Roosevelt man and a Roosevelt platform.

Moreover, all the visiting brethren are notified that any old password will admit them to the best we have.

The Nobles will find the "zem-zem water" on tap at 200 different places in town, not including the drug stores.

Also the visitors should get away from the glare of the lights along about midnight to hear our mocking birds sing.

It will be hard to make some of them believe that they are not looking at a mirage instead of the real thing.

The cheerful idiot with the tin horn will be abroad as usual. Let him blow himself. He doesn't always have the chance.

With both a strike and a lawsuit on his hands we should say that Patrick Calhoun must be somewhat of a busy man.

After it's all over we trust every Noble will find himself able to wear the same sized fez without a pain in his head.

If warm weather doesn't soon strike the Middle West the Fairbanks boom will be taken out and murdered in cold blood.

We don't think Los Angeles ever looked as pretty as it does now, except that other time when it looked just about the same.

"Why are we so bad?" asks the New York Tribune. One reason is that you have a climate that would make a devil out of a saint.

Then, too, the number of floats in the electrical parades can be considerably increased by a few floats taken beforehand. But we hope not.

We can furnish souvenirs of everything except the climate. That's something that is anchored here and can't be taken away even in pieces.

The guests within the gates will notice that we are able to supply them all with beds without having to sleep out in the back yards ourselves.

The great recommendation that mustard blossoms have as a decoration is that the farmers are perfectly willing to spare any amount of them.

We don't just know how many brass bands we will have on hand this week, but there will be a great many. There will be tooters here who can make a horn sing tunes that delight the heart and that cause a dray horse to prance like a two-year-old in a meadow pas-

WE WILL SHOW THEM.

This is the gala week of the year in Los Angeles. The greatest Fiesta of the decades is to take place during the next six days. There are greater reasons than ever before for this celebration.

The city has grown greatly for all the ten years past, and more rapidly last year than ever before. Here is a city of a quarter of a million people, with business structures and private houses as magnificent as are to be found anywhere. The year has been prosperous beyond former experience for all, from the laboring man and the shop-girl to the big merchant, manufacturer, or broker. We all have enough of the profits of business left over to give us an abundance to spend on the Fiesta and not miss it.

Then we will have here as guests the largest and most distinguished body of visitors who ever honored this city with their presence. The thousands of Shriners have traveled far, not so much over "burning sands" as over ice-bound plains in their own homes, to pay us this very welcome visit. They come here with all sorts of preconceived notions of us, of our State. They have heard more of modern Los Angeles than of ancient Babylon, of Athens, the great seat of wisdom, or of Imperial Rome. They have heard almost as much of the glories of California scenery and of its climate as of the joys of the New Jerusalem.

This is a great city, a well-built city, a magnificent city. What our people have done in the past in the matter of making a city will be duly impressive. Eastern people sometimes doubt the stories of our wonderful productions, of our great growth, of our flowers, sunshine and skies. Well, these will be in evidence to speak for themselves, and if there is any deception it must be that of the visitors' own eyes.

There will be no more question of our California hospitality than of the beauty of California roses and the size of California turnips. The mocking-birds will take care of their part of the programme and no Shriner will go back in doubt about the music from his glorious throat. As to the hospitality the Shriners of this city and the people generally will make that as manifest as the poppy makes his beauty or the mocking-bird his music.

Guests, the city and all therein is yours! If you want anything, ask for it. You shall have it, from a draught from the Zem-Zem spring to an orange, a bank, a ten-story building, or a smile from one of California's prettiest girls. You are our guests, our masters. We are your servitors, your slaves. With us, to hear is to obey. If you lack anything necessary to make your visit pleasant, it will be your own fault.

The biggest orange on the table is yours. We are tired of them, anyway. The first cut from the roast-beef is at your service. You shall lead the dance and your partner shall be in all cases "the prettiest girl in the room." Every man, woman and child will give you "the right of way." We will "wait for the next car" every time and give you the best seat on the first.

We are all effaced, "pushed off the map." The city is yours.

MADE IN LOS ANGELES.

The manufacturers of Los Angeles are showing the right way to build up a city. Their exhibit of "things made in Los Angeles," on Main street between Third and Fourth, in the old Panorama Rink building, is as inspiring an object lesson as has ever been given here.

The average visitor from abroad is prone to say: "Your climate and scenery are everything that could be desired, but what is there to support a population?" The resident or the "stranger within our gates" who will take the trouble to visit this exhibition will have the question aswered better than could be done in a large volume. There are few of our own people who know half the story that is told in this concrete shape upon the floor of the Panorama building.

Take, for example, a partial sketch of some of the industries established and flourishing here. The exhibit includes tiles, strawboard, a cascade of port wine, pipe organs, automobiles, candy, perfumes from native flowers, mosaics cut from native rocks, Indian baskets and blankets made upon the spot, said to be the only exhibit of its kind in the world; silk, sewer pipe, 14,000 air-tight stoves turned out in a year by one local manufacturer, heavy mill and mining machinery, gems of native production, rubber goods of many kinds, sugar, and at least two products unknown elsewhere. There is a very interesting exhibit of what they call "woodstone flooring," and quite as interesting an exhibit of leather made in a local factory without the use of oak or other wood tannin. This is called anti-oak leather.

How many of us know that half of these commodities were produced among the manufacturing industries of the city? You can buy there, "all made in Los Angeles," a bag of peanuts or a bag of gum drops, a beautiful little gem, a twenty-horse-power automobile, a patented steam engine or a new pump, an immense ore separator, or paper products made from the refuse straw of the country, and so to a silk ribbon for a lady's neck or sugar to sweeten your morning coffee. Of course, there are all sorts of cereal products, of the package types many, all kinds of pastes, and raw meals of every kind.

The benighted intellect laboring under the delusion that there is nothing here of a substantial industrial nature to support a large population, will be illuminated by a few moments' talk at one of the big booths where a hundred varieties of soap are exhibited and learn how many men are employed constantly at high wages in one of these factories. Pass from there to the booth where the beautiful exhibit of tiles is set out, all made just on the outskirts of the city, and all from clays produced in Southern California. These tiles are as pretty as go into the construction of the most costly houses in the country. The plant is capable of turning out an immense amount of work. Visit then the sewer pipe exhibit, and see cylinders made of local clay from the size of a fruit can to those large enough for a man to walk through, standing up.

Los Angeles is not a Pittsburgh nor a Paterson, a Lynn nor a Fall River. The prosperity of this country rests upon a basis made of many elements. Besides our attractive climate, on which we depend for our perennial crop of tourists, a very important and valuable one, we have our rich agricultural plains stretching hundreds of miles around, producing 25,000 to 30,000 carloads of citrus fruit and all the other valuable crops of the country. But besides these we have a very solid foundation in the way of manufacturing industries. While not so large in any one line as in other cities which might be selected, it would be difficult to name one city where manufacturing presents a greater variety.

Besides the unique display of Indian baskets, drawn work and blankets, Los Angeles will challenge comparison with the world in the cascade of wine running at the exhibition in an immense stream from morning until night.

THE WAY TO WIN.

The Draymen's Association, Jobbers' Association and employers of truckmen in this city are in a fair way to win the battle that has been forced upon them, and that right speedily.

There is just one winning plan of campaign, and the employers in this instance seem thoroughly committed to it. It is the plan which has won every fight of the sort in Los Angeles—and is expressed in the motto: "All stand together and no parleying with belligerents with clubs in their hands."

The misguided truckmen have declared war, and war let it be. The employers cannot afford to make a single concession. Concessions are no part of successful war. Any form of surrender in this case would only invite further trouble, would encourage the laborite bosses, would fat up the loafing delegates, would breed future strikes. The safety of the business prosperity of the city lies in the steadfast pursuance of its time-honored policy of no compromise with armed industrial belligerents.

It would be folly for the employers of the strikers to yield one inch from the ground they took at the opening of the fight and which they pledged themselves to maintain. It would be suicidal to restore any trouble-leader or violent striker to his place. The only course is to teach the walking delegates once again that they cannot dictate to the business men of Los Angeles how they shall conduct their business, and to let the dupes know once for all time that when these business men take a position for justice and right, they will defend it to the end.

Experience has taught that it is a great mistake for employers who have organized for a battle of this kind to treat with, separately, to hold "talking-matches" or conferences individually, with the labor-union bosses, or to listen to any individual propositions. Safety lies in holding faithfully together and referring all communications or approaches from the common enemy to the Executive Committee or other body or representative of the unified employers empowered to make terms. To stand together and to stand fast, to win this fight first and then talk about losses or rearrangements—that is the policy that is bound to triumph. The vital thing is to win the fight, to win it at all costs.

It will be unnecessary for the employers of truckmen to fight this fight but once if they stand resolutely where they have declared they would stand. The only mistake they can make is to let it be known that their formally-promulgated word is not good. The certain road to victory is the course of "no compromise" which they originally marked out and which The Times is sure they will follow.

And, by the way, in reference to the alleged "untimeliness" of this fight, what more profitable exhibit could Los Angeles give to the visiting thousands this coming week than an illustration of the Los Angeles method of suppressing walking delegates and maintaining industrial liberty?

The Times does not believe that any considerable number of other trades will join in the despicable conspiracy hatched by the bosses of the truckmen's union to interfere with the progress of La Fiesta. That menace looks very much like a bluff. But it were a thousand times better that La Fiesta should be obstructed than that the enemies of industrial freedom should gain a footing in Los Angeles. To this sentiment The Times believes the prospering independent workers of Los Angeles, as well as the managers of our business interests, will heartily say "Amen."

SAN FRANCISCO'S SECOND REGENERATION.

More than half a century ago San Francisco, then a far-off and newly-born outpost of civilization, fell under the domination of as vicious a gang of grafters and cutthroats as the world knew. The Vigilance Committee of 1856 by drastic measures ended the reign of terror which was threatening the existence of the city. The regeneration was thorough and its effects lasted for years.

During almost twenty years following the violent outburst of public fury in 1856, San Francisco offered a model of city government. The best men in the community stood for office and were in almost every case elected by large majorities. During these years the Mayors of the city were men of remarkably high standing.

Then came hard times in business; and the people, forgetting the lesson their fathers learned in early days, allowed the city government to fall into the hands of a clique of demagogues brought into prominence through the sand lots agitation. From that day to this, a period of over thirty years, things have gone from bad to worse until in some respects the earlier corruption is fully matched.

The present troubles came to a head when the indifference of the people to the welfare of the city and a general neglect of civic duty resulted in foisting a gang of labor-union agitators and their sympathizers upon the city as its governors. Almost every office, from Mayor to poundmaster, has been held by these plunderers and ruffians. The conditions brought about by this misrule are too well known to require recapitulation.

The interesting thing at this moment is that after patient toleration of the corruption an awakening has at last come, similar to that of the days of vigilantes, and the people declare that the misgovernment of the city must come to an end.

The last phase of this awakening is the most hopeful. Under the protection of men of their own kind in office, the labor-union organizations have "run" the business interests of the city in their own way. They have held the people under the heels of their hobnailed boots and trampled on the rights of business men and of independent workers, and no man has had courage to protest.

How patient the people of San Francisco have been while these wrongs have been perpetrated and their peace has been destroyed. All the people without notable exception have submitted to this ruinous dictation as to how business should be done and have looked on without protest while the city treasury was looted and business men held up with as little regard to law or right as the highwayman observes. Employers have let the agitator place his rough heel upon their necks and have been afraid to cry out for help. The small dealers have with gross cowardice expressed hypocritical sympathy with men out on strike because unjust demands would not be conceded, or impossible ones could not. Then retail business men have condoned cowardly crimes committed by strikers because they were customers whose trade was worth a dollar a day gross. The newspapers, with a timid regard to the few nickels taken in for street sales, did not dare to tell their readers of the injustice of labor union demands, or of the violence of toughs out on strike. What could be hoped?

An awakening, and that has come! The employers, driven to desperation, and with the courage of a rat in a corner, declare that they will show their manhood and be free. The public at last refuses to condone violence and stand for tyranny. The people say they no longer sympathize with the gang of boodlers and grafters who have been robbing the city and holding up business men. They declare after due deliberation that they will no longer stand for violence and condone murder. They even condemn the newspapers, heretofore as cowardly as themselves.

Very well. All this is a good beginning. But it is only a declaration of war. The people of San Francisco must not expect the gang drunk with a long reign of plunder and bloodshed will throw down their arms and capitulate at the beating of a tom-tom. At least a show of battle will have to be made. The boodler, the bully, the criminal, is always a coward. He never stands up to a fight excepting when he faces a bigger coward, who runs away without striking a blow. If the San Francisco business men will be as good as their word, the victory will soon be won. We shall see.

THE LAND OF BEAUTY AND CONTENT.

"The sunlight of the morning across the far hills broke,
From the dawn the veils of mist fell and faded as I woke;
The sea was bathed with glory in a mist of swirling fire,
And I wandered with my soul in the Land of Heart's Desire."

To the thousands who are within our gates as guests this bright May morning, and to the thousands who are still coming with every onrushing train, we extend our greetings and felicitations. The presence of most of these welcome strangers here in our California of the South will prove the realization of long-nurtured dreams. For, it is true that throughout all America it has been the dream of every man and woman from earliest childhood to some day set foot in the Golden State of California.

This is the Land of Heart's Desire, and there is no other like unto it on all the round earth, travel whithersoever you will. It is the land God made that one day when He was happiest. It is the land that He made nearest like heaven. Into it He put His dreams and His love. He filled it with the sun of His glory by day and the beauty of His stars and great mellow moons by night. He placed the grandest of mountains behind it, and the fairest of oceans at its feet.

Here is the land of beauty and content. The year swings on its pathway leaving us always with the same things that people in other lands long for through dreary months of snow and cold but to hold for the merest fleeting happiness of enjoyment. Here are highways aflame with flowers in January as in June. The mountain tops are covered with eternal snows and the valleys with blossoms that never die. What we call winter is only a happy season of singing rains that fall soft as music in a dream. What we call summer is a season of gleaming skies, of pleasant airs borne from the loving and kindly sea. It is a land that grows never old. It lives in an undying springtime, drunk from the springs of eternal youth.

Here, as God surely intended we should do, are we to grow the future race—men with strong hearts, yet kindly, strong-limbed, brave of soul and ingenious of brain, and women the fairest in the world. Here shall sweep as in a giant eddy, some day, the commerce of all the seven seas. Cities like unto our own shall crown a thousand hills and lift the roar of endless traffic from a thousand valleys. Yet beauty shall remain, and gladness and content. The laughter of childhood and the peace of old age shall mingle then as now.

The Land of Heart's Desire is soft with dreams yet strong with doing. It clings lovingly to a past holy with memories, yet looks to a future sublime with promise. It is "Just California."

"Sun and dews that kiss it,
Balmy winds that blow.
The stars in clustered diadems
Upon its peaks of snow;
The mighty mountains o'er it,
Below the white seas swirled—
Just California stretching down
The middle of the world."

What San Francisco must do is to get somebody to cast out the devils. It requires the working of no miracle, either. All it needs is a stiff backbone and a liver that doesn't turn white when a walking delegate froths at the mouth.

We desire to impress upon the minds of the strangers that we could decorate this town and a thousand others like it with flowers any day in the year and still have enough left to do it over again.

HOROSCOPE FOR THIS DAY.

Sunday, May 5, 1907.

BY COZETTE.

"Avoid animals."

This is the 125th day of this year. Moon is the last quarter; age 23 days. Jupiter is evening star. Venus is star of the morning.

Mars, the governing planet for this day, betokens antagonism. Do not jeopardize your life by trying to ride or drive horses that are not thoroughly broken, for this is a period when even the gentlest and most faithful of family horses are liable to show signs of obstinacy and waywardness. If occasion demands that you assume the risk, exercise patience when any indication of trouble arises. Use persuasion, but do not provoke further difficulty by an attempt to compel obedience to your desires.

Do not plague, harrass or irritate wild animals in the open or in cages. It would not be wise even to tease or annoy the tamest of house pets, from parrots to lap dogs. A sudden retaliatory snap at you may mar you for life. Take heed.

Those whose birth date this is are threatened with accidents. They will soon hear great good news from abroad. They will soon attain a position high in the estimation of the public.

A child born today will meet with much success in life—will rise rapidly and be highly respected. Extravagance will prove its greatest fault.

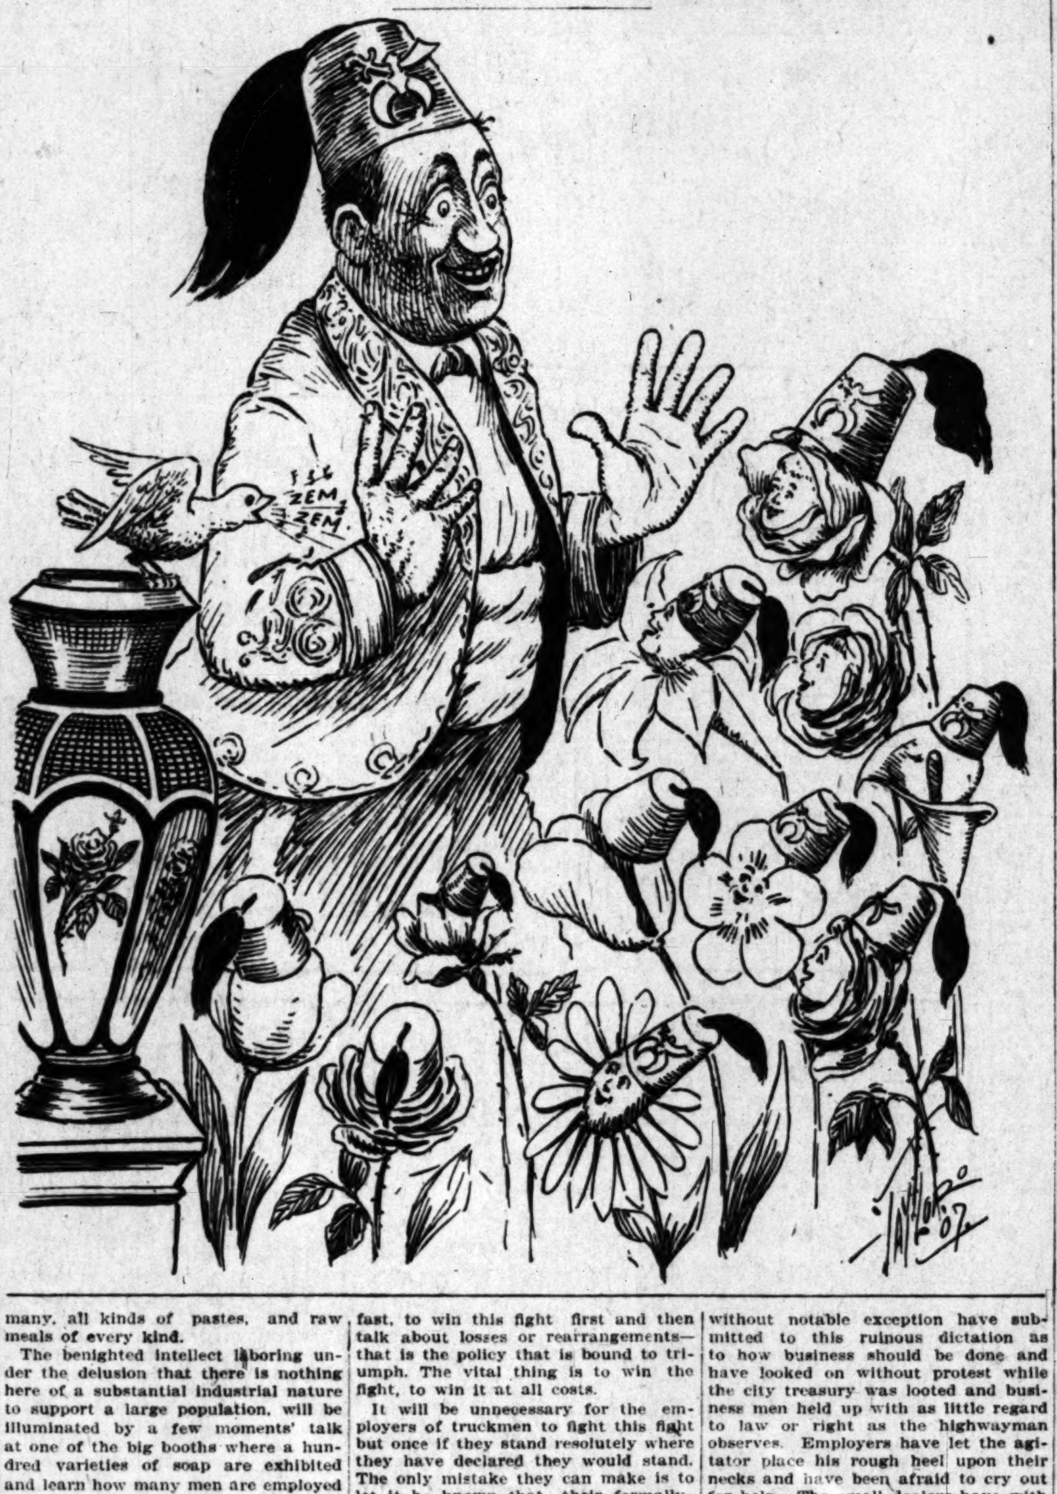
THE POSIES' WELCOME.



Gold Bullion

Through the courtesy of The Gold Roads Mining and Exploration Company, we will exhibit in our South Window, Fiesta Week, two immense Solid Gold Bricks—containing pure gold valued at —— $80,000.00 ——

United States Mint assay.

This gold is exhibited to our Shriner visitors as one of the many sources that give Los Angeles its wonderful prosperity. Such an amount of pure gold has never been placed on exhibition anywhere.

We would ask our own people to call our visitors' attention to this wonderful display. Remember, this is not an exhibit to sell our Diamonds or Fine Gold Jewelry, or to promote any mining scheme (no stock for sale,) but an ocular demonstration of the fact that California produces gold and Los Angeles people share its prosperity.

Your inspection cordially invited.

Visitors welcome.

WHAT'S SAID IN SAN FRANCISCO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.—The tortuous ramifications of the graft investigations in this city, extending into territory extraneous to municipal looting, would seem to indicate that larger results are sought for than the conviction of a political boss and his official puppets. The man in the street, with his air of mystery and his secretive whisper, is busy nowadays with plausible theories as to the real power behind Prosecutor Frank Heney and Detective W. J. Burns. It is well known that the two men are thoroughly loyal to the administration at Washington and enjoy the complete confidence of the President of the United States. Already our vanity at living in the greatest graft center of the world is diminished by the thought that the whole muss is to settle the status of the most recent member of the Ananias Club.

In the annual debate between Stanford and the University of California it was decided that President Roosevelt was justified in extending Federal power beyond the limitations defined by State grants. Close on the heels of this decision from this high court of last resort came an order from Washington, reading as follows: "Protection to the public revenues renders it necessary to restrict the issuance of passes on revenue vessels to those granted for good and sufficient cause." Thus is home rule relegated to the shelf, and the picnics many of our citizens have enjoyed on government boats, through courteous officials, are abruptly cut off.

Jack London, the author, sailing through the Golden Gate with the Socialistic flag at the masthead of the bark, his stanch ketch, smiled at the futile attempts of creditors to hold him. As a hobo he had often escaped detention, and this time he was pleased at the chance to call his foiled creditors "plagiarists."

The present population of the city is a wide-open question, with a liberal margin for the imagination, and judging from the guesses, it strongly resembles a game of poker, where everyone raises every one else. The school superintendent, with the expectation of an increased appropriation from the State, boosted the school census away up and patted himself on the back when his estimate of the population approached 400,000. The postmaster, judging from the difficulty his men had in delivering mail in the burned district, saw the bet and raised the pedagogue to 470,000. While the other men were at sixes and sevens, the chairman of the Promotion Committee, believing in multiples of ten, raised to 480,000; and now it is up to the editors to make it an even half-million.

Most of our citizens are good-natured to a fault, and are always ready to help the oppressed when an injustice is being done; but the laundry strike was enough to try the patience of Job. The grievances of the employés may have been "some," but when they asked their employers for what was practically a 40 per cent. increase in wage, no one was surprised when the bosses said "This is so sudden." This ungallant answer of the magnates to the laundry girls brought on the strike, and made most of us realize that patience ceases to be a virtue and cleanliness is far from godliness after a man has turned his [illegible] three times.

It's comforting to think that the [illegible]line long ago reached the vanishing point, and the soup kitchens swept out of existence, and that [illegible] are so high that even the poorest of us can afford a cigar and a glass of beer; but there is still want and [illegible]ation in this city of wonderful bank clearings. The other day the police arrested a hungry man for breaking into a restaurant, and in his pockets were six doughnuts, a hard-boiled egg and a prayer book.

Police Capt. "Jack" Martin, like some other distinguished publicists, is a practical man, but he sensibly confines himself to talking and seldom commits his opinions to paper. Standing the other night at the corner of Turk and Larkin streets, he pointed out to me eight saloons within half a block from where we stood. "Now," said he, "these liquor dealers are foolish to press the limit that way and attract attention to their numbers. They don't seem to realize that prohibition is gaining ground everywhere, and that even in Texas counties are closing out saloons and gambling hells." Just then a full realization of the proximity of the awful danger came to the captain, and he snapped out, abruptly: "By the way, how far is Texas from here?"

PLUTO.

WHEN THEY FORGOT.

Went to Bed for Dinner.

An amusing incident is told of the absent-mindedness of the late Justice William G. Keogh of Ireland. It was at a bar dinner at his own house, and he had excused himself from the guests who had already assembled, to go upstairs to dress.

Time went by, but he did not reappear. The company sat patiently for some time, till at length, when their appetites were getting the better of their manners, and they were about to send a messenger in quest of their absent host, he appeared and explained with many apologies that, imagining that he was retiring for the night, he had undressed and got into bed. After an hour's sleep he awoke, and it suddenly dawned on him that his guests were waiting to dine with him below.

Looked Into the Wall.

Another peculiar case of absent-mindedness was that related of Peter Burrowes, an Irish lawyer. A friend who called on Burrowes at an early hour one morning found him shaving with his face held close to an empty wall. "What on earth are you assuming that attitude for?" he asked.

"To look in the glass," was the reply.

"But there's no glass there," laughed the acquaintance.

"Bless you! I didn't notice that before," said Burrowes, and then calling his servant he asked him what had become of the mirror.

"Why, sir," said the man, "it was broken six weeks ago."

Forgot His Dinner.

A business man and financier of the first rank in Boston is so absent-minded that he occasionally forgets to go to his dinner. His customary hour for this meal—when he remembers it—is 2 o'clock. The other day, quite absorbed in business, he worked steadily on until 4, and then began to have a quite natural sense of emptiness and yearning in his stomach.

"Dear me," he said musingly, applying the flat of his hand to his waistcoat. "I wonder what I ate for dinner that disagrees with me?"

When Jerome's Father Forgot.

Dist.-Atty. Jerome is responsible for a story concerning the absent mindedness of his father. He says this was the cause of the occurrence, though the elder Jerome was of a humorous nature, and inclined to facetiousness.

The present District Attorney, then a mere boy, and his father were riding in a crowded Fifth avenue stage in New York. So cramped was the space that the son was seated on his father's lap. Preesntly a stylishly attired woman wedged herself into the stage, and stood in front of father and son. For some distance the elder Jerome had appeared to be busy with his thoughts. Suddenly the youngster was shocked to feel his father nudge him, and hear him say in a far away tone of voice, "I am ashamed of you, Travers. Why don't you get up and give the lady your seat?"

A Scholar's Embarrassment.

Ex-President McCosh of Princeton was celebrated for his absent mindedness.

In spite of his failing, as long as he was the head of the institution, it was Dr. McCosh's greatest ambition to remember the name of every student. Sauntering across the campus in his preoccupied fashion one morning, the president met a senior face to face.

"Good morning, Mr.—Mr.—" he began, hesitatingly.

The student supplied the name.

"Why, certainly, Mr. Blank. Are you quite well, sir?"

That question being answered in the affirmative, inquiry was made regarding the health of the student's mother, which was answered.

Then followed the inquiry, "How is your father?"

"I had the misfortune to lose my father sometime ago, as you will recollect," was the answer.

Mr. McCosh apologized humbly to the student for having allowed the fact to escape his memory.

Next morning the two met again in the same manner, and the identical list of questions was gone through. At the end the doctor propounded as before:

"How is your father?"

"Still dead, sir," said the senior, and left him sorely puzzled.

Scientists Have Best Brains.

Famous brains are of four sorts. The lowest group contains the minds that are stimulated greatly by alcohol, tea, and other drugs, and by impressions derived from the senses; the second group contains the infant prodigies whose intellectual powers wane in middle age; the third group contains the pathological cases usually terminating in insanity; the fourth and highest group is that of true geniuses whose powers remain unimpaired until old age. This is Hausemann's classification. Spitzka has come to the conclusion that men eminent in exact sciences like astronomy and mathematics have the greatest average brain weight. Next come the men of action, including statesmen and artists, and after these come the biologists, geologists, and other representatives of the descriptive sciences.

$1.75 Silks 75c

Never before has a Novelty Silk attained such universal popularity as that won this season by "Nouveaute en Rajah."

For weeks back it has been impossible to keep assortments replenished--the mills couldn't fill one-tenth of their orders.

With such a demand while the price was $1.75 a yard, what will it be tomorrow when we put them down to SEVENTY-FIVE CENTS!

Close to four thousand yards---undoubtedly the broadest variety now on the Coast---yet, so long as we cannot fully replenish the assortment, we take drastic measures to close out every piece in one day. No mail or telephone orders. None sent on approval.

A Wealth of New Wool Dress Fabrics

Plaids are immensely popular for suits, for waists and for skirts.

Last week's arrivals give us a seemingly endless variety in Serge, Foule, Poplin, Panama, Shelma and Mohair weaves. 75c to $2.50 a yard.

Splendid assortment of Scotch Tartans in Foule Serge—especially desirable for skirts—$1.50 a yard; 44 inches wide.

Tartan checks and stripes in Panama and Shelma weaves—extensively used for separate skirts—$1.25 a yard; 44 and 46 inches.

Gray and tan mixed Panamas in indistinct plaids and checks, $1.00 to $2 a yard; 54 and 56-inch widths.

Auto cloths in silk-and-wool, cravenetted, 48 and 50 inches wide, $2.25 to $3 a yard, greens, reds, browns and blues.

42-inch rubber-back Lansdown for auto coats, in black, brown and red, $2.50 a yard—certainly the ideal fabric for this use.

Priestley's Clifton suitings in soft shades of gray and black and gray effects; invisible checks and plaids, $2.25 and $2.50 a yard; 54 inches.

At $1, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2 we are showing an exceptional array of light-weight suitings designed especially for summer suits and skirts; indistinct plaids, checks and stripes; choicest assortment we have EVER shown at those prices.

The grace and character in the hats shown here are inimitable in the "cheap sorts." Robinson Company millinery possesses a distinctivenes, an individuality, which will command the respectful attention of all fastidious dressers.

Unmatchable Values in Women's Suits at $25 and $35

In richness of materials, cleverness of cut and perfection of tailoring the street suits we have ready for tomorrow's selling at $25 and $35 entirely outclass any we have ever before been able to offer at anywhere near those prices.

Elegant light wool fabrics in Prince Chap, Cutaway, Pony and tight-fitted back Cutaways. Some with velvet collars. All lined with silk. Pleated skirts, some with stitched bands as well. Mostly in light gray and tan stripes, checks and plaids.
(Sedond Floor.)

$1 and $1.50 Combs . . 50c

$1 and $1.50 back combs of imitation tortoise shell— and it's a mighty clever imitation, too—to be sold tomorrow at fifty cents.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

City Treasurer Hance has declined to pay demands aggregating $15,000 on the advice of the City Attorney that they are not valid claims against the city by reason of certain irregularities; the Council will investigate the claims and approve payment of all bills where the supplies were used by a city department and cannot be returned, provided the price asked is reasonable.

Staff differences at the library have been amicably adjusted and no charges will be preferred with the Civil Service Commission; Mayor Harper acted as peace envoy.

The Council committee of the whole recommended that the fender ordinance be amended so that the guards may be carried five and a half inches above the rail; twenty-five of the new safety fenders have buckled under cars, causing derailments.

James G. Fleenor yesterday was sentenced by Judge Smith to fifteen years in San Quentin Prison.

Charged with assault with a deadly weapon for shooting a cabman, R. H. Hill yesterday was allowed to plead guilty to simple assault. His anxiety to return to his mines induced Judge Smith to impose a fine instead of keeping Hill longer in jail.

The Dotter will contest again was continued, and the argument will be concluded tomorrow.

AT THE CITY HALL.

NO MONEY FOR THESE DEMANDS.

CLAIMS REPUDIATED BY CITY TREASURER.

Conference Results in Agreement to Pay Reasonable Sum Where Goods Have Been Used and Cannot Be Returned—Jail Penalty for Future Violations.

Payment has been refused by the city on 250 demands, aggregating $15,000, pending an investigation of the prices paid and the uses to which the supplies have been put.

For two hours yesterday the Council, Board of Public Works, Treasurer and Auditor considered in executive session what action shall be taken on these demands. City Attorney Hewitt gave the opinion that the demands themselves are not valid claims against the city by reason of the irregular manner in which the supplies were secured.

But he further advised that in cases where the city has received the supplies and used them, where restitution is impossible, the city is liable for a reasonable price for the goods.

City Treasurer Hance precipitated yesterday's conference by declining to cash demands which the City Auditor has declared irregular.

The final conclusion reached is that there shall be an investigation of the conditions under which each item was secured, the use to which it has been put, and whether it can be returned uninjured.

City Auditor Mushet told the Council that the prices named in most of the demands are reasonable, but that to this there are exceptions.

"The city is not bound by any prices in those demands," said Mr. Hewitt; "it is the articles or the service that must be considered. The city must agree with the firms only on a reasonable consideration for the articles."

City Treasurer Hance will be protected, according to the City Attorney, if the Council and the Board of Public Works pass resolutions to the effect that each demand is for supplies already used and that the price named is a reasonable one.

Last year several hundred thousands of dollars were paid out of the treasury on demands now declared invalid. If the "reasonable-price" rule had been applied on all these, the percentage of saving to the city would be considerable.

In order that no further "irregular" demands may be presented for payment, the Council committee of the whole approved an ordinance yesterday making it a misdemeanor offense for any person to purchase supplies in the name of the city without first securing requisitions therefor. This ordinance has been opposed by a number of officials. It required the act of the City Treasurer, in declining to pay such demands, to bring these officials to their senses.

Seemingly, charter requirements which have been a dead letter for years are about to be observed. During former administrations, any official or employé went to a store and ordered what he thought he needed in the name of the city. There would be no question of price, and a demand would be made out when the bill was presented. Bills were presented in duplicate. There are scores of instances on record where both original and duplicate were paid. At times the firm receiving the overpayment would make restitution; oftener, the double payment was accepted as a gift from the political gods, and no questions were asked.

City Auditor Mushet thinks the saving by observing the letter of the charter will be at least $50,000 a year. This is but 5 per cent. on the purchase price of supplies secured in one year by the different departments. It has been the rule to consider the city a retail buyer, even though supplies were ordered wholesale. Commissioner Hubbard of the Board of Public Works has made a creditable record in securing wholesale prices on purchases made by the city.

For years Mr. Hubbard was one of the high officials of the "brick trust." He knows the discounts which he then secured, and he has insisted that the city shall receive similar recognition. Of course, he has not succeeded in all cases, but he has done enough that the saving to the city on the wholesale prices he has secured will amount to probably $20,000 this year. This saving includes purchases of material for use on the storm drains and the outfall sewer.

HARMONY IS RESTORED.

LIBRARY MUDDLE CLEARS.

Peace that passeth the understanding of the uninitiated has settled over the Public Library. There will be no charges preferred against the Gleason girls with the Civil Service Commission. Librarian Lummis again presides over a happy family.

A week ago Director of Research Jones reported to the Librarian and to the president of the Library Board "certain matters" in connection with alleged utterances of Pearl and Celia Gleason.

To the City Hall came rumors of a possible library investigation. Mayor Harper took one morning off and devoted it to the library. First came President Dockweiler of the Library Board. His conference with the Mayor lasted for an hour. Miss Pearl Gleason came next; then Miss Celia Gleason was sent for. Last came the director of study and research.

All the conferences were behind closed doors. The following afternoon the director of study and research confided to certain of his friends that due apologies had been made for unpleasant remarks and that the charges will not be pressed.

To members of his official family the Mayor said:

"Don't worry; there isn't going to be any library investigation."

At the library a ban has been placed on a certain lampoon commencing:

"Burn my body and break my bones
But don't take me to Jakie Jones."

FENDER A MENACE.

COUNCIL AMENDS LAW.

Attorneys representing the local electric railway companies won from the Council committee of the whole yesterday a recommendation to amend the ordinance requiring fenders on street cars to come within three inches of the top of the rails on the street.

Seven members of the Council met to listen to arguments for and against the ordinance. Speaking for the railway companies Attorney W. E. Dunn said that they desire the fenders raised not to permit greater speed for the cars but to provide greater safety for passengers.

During the last winter twenty-five of the new safety fenders buckled under cars; in most cases this threw the cars from the track and two slight accidents resulted. Mr. Dunn argued that it saves the company nothing to raise the fenders two inches higher; the cost of operation is just the same. He said that experience has shown that fenders three inches from the rail on level ground will dig into the street when a loaded car is climbing a grade.

After a brief discussion the Council committee agreed to a recommendation that fenders shall be placed not more than five and one-half inches from the car rails.

There was a general discussion over the question whether the suburban lines should be equipped with safety fenders similar to those used on street cars. Attorney Dunn agreed that to so equip the beach cars is to make them a menace to passengers. He said that the object of the guards on the suburban cars is to enable them to clear the track; the safety of those in the car is of more moment than that of the animal or person that may be on the track. If a fender were to buckle under a suburban car running sixty miles an hour the result would probably be that the car would go up into the air, leave the track and maim many passengers.

The question to the companies, according to their attorneys, is not one of expense but of safety; a safety fender is no protection to a person struck by a car running sixty miles an hour, and it is a great menace to passengers.

Unable to reach an agreement on the question of fenders for suburban cars the Council committee recommended that a day be set aside Monday for an investigation. To this the companies readily agreed. A committee will be appointed to make a careful investigation of fenders of suburban cars and report back to the Council.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

MAY STRAP ON HIS ARTILLERY.

MINER WHO SHOOTS CABMAN IS FREE AGAIN.

Judge Smith Fines Him One Hundred Dollars After Advising Him to Omit Revolvers from His Outfit When Visiting This City—Returns to Desert.

Although charged with assault with a deadly weapon, because he introduced a revolver into a misunderstanding with a cabman which occurred on the night of March 22, R. H. Hill yesterday was allowed to plead guilty to simple assault and was fined $100 by Judge Smith.

As told by counsel for the culprit, supported by testimony, the story was that Hill had come to Los Angeles from the desert, where he has mining properties, on March 21, and proceeded to celebrate his visit to civilization. By the following midnight he had grown weary, and longed for home and rest.

Stopping at a cigar stand at the corner of First and Main streets, he asked the attendant to call a cab to take him to his lodgings on Figueroa street. The cab came, R. C. King being the driver. King asked $1.50 for the trip, and the miner declined his services. The cab driver insisted that as he had been called he must be paid. It appears that he insisted in an aggravating manner, such as some cab drivers are capable of assuming on occasion, and got down from the cab to lend weight to his insistence.

Now, it chanced that the miner had neglected to separate himself from the sidearms he was in the habit of wearing in the wilds of San Bernardino county, and it occurred to his befuddled mind that the possession of a gun gave him a certain advantage over the sober and aggressive cabman. He forgot that arguments conducted with six-shooters are looked upon with displeasure in social centers, in the general interests of peace and safety if not out of regard for cab drivers.

Scarcely had Mr. Hill prevailed in his argument with Mr. King, by shooting the latter in the neck, than he found himself under arrest.

For forty-one days Mr. Hill has remained in Los Angeles, the guest of Jailer Aguirre, though he had intended making but a brief stay before returning to his mines.

From the desert those mines seemed calling to him, promising ever greater riches with each day of enforced absence, until Mr. Hill began to think he was losing millions while he languished in jail.

Wherefore, when told that the extenuating circumstances of his assault had induced the District Attorney to allow him to plead to a lesser offense than the one charged, he accepted the opportunity.

After Judge Smith had lectured him upon the advisability of leaving off revolvers when visiting the city, and had begun the preliminary, "It is the judgment of the court——" the offender whispered eagerly to his attorney, and the latter asked that the time already spent in jail be taken into consideration, and a fine imposed. This request was granted, and R. H. Hill now may strap on his artillery and return to his mines.

The cab driver recovered.

"BAREFOOT'S" PENALTY.

FIFTEEN YEARS FOR FLEENOR.

"Stand up, Mr. Fleenor.

"It is the judgment of the court that you be confined in the State prison at San Quentin for the term of fifteen years."

As quietly as he has taken all else in his trial for a burglary committed in the home of Harry Cook on December 1, the "barefoot burglar" accepted his sentence. Yet he had a further plea to make.

Through his counsel, Mr. Thompson, he asked that execution be delayed until next Wednesday, to give him time to settle his affairs in this city.

"He's been in jail here six weeks," objected C. C. McComas, "and he ought to have all his real estate business closed up by this time."

Judge Smith, too, seemed disinclined to allow delay.

"They tell me you are a disturbing element over there," he said. "I think we'd better get you where you'll be safe. Aren't you liable to explode and blow up everything, eh?"

"Give us till Tuesday, then," asked Mr. Thompson, willing to accept small favors.

Jailer Aguirre stated that the presence of Mr. Fleenor in the County Jail did not disturb him, and on this statement Judge Smith granted a stay of execution till Wednesday.

Mr. Thompson moved the dismissal of the untried charge against his client, but Mr. McComas announced that he preferred to let it stand for awhile.

"In the course of time it may be dismissed," he said, chuckling, and added in a low voice to Mr. Thompson: "We can't give him more than fifteen years, anyhow?"

Judge Smith continued the second charge, now impotent against Fleenor except as it may obviate all possibility of parole throughout the term of his sentence, and it will come up next Saturday for setting.

CARLSON DEFENDED.

Again the Dotter will contest has been continued, this time to Monday afternoon, when Attorney J. D. Works will continue the final argument. The case has been the matter of chief interest in Department Two of the Superior Court for nearly six weeks.

In opening the final argument, Mr. Works read from Milton Carlson's testimony on redirect examination, and declared that to maintain the will which his clients are contesting it is necessary for the defense to establish the truth of the many charges brought against Carlson in the course of the trial.

This, maintained Mr. Works, has not been done.

NEW TRIAL ORDERED.

PETERSON IS FORTUNATE.

Because it was shown, in the Superior Court yesterday, that the jury in the case of Nels Peterson, who was tried in Arcadia for selling liquor to a minor, had been called by the complaining witness, Judge Smith set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial in the Superior Court.

Nelson was found guilty and fined $200. The complaining witness was the City Marshal of Arcadia, and it appears that he called the jury as usual, in ignorance of the law.

CAPT. HALL'S SON.

COMMITTED TO ORPHANAGE.

An order was made by Judge Wilbur, yesterday, committing Harry Hall, son of Capt. A. W. Hall, who once commanded the Rover, to the Golden Gate Orphanage in Sonoma county for five years. Capt. Hall is to pay $10 per month for the care and support of the boy.

The Pasadena officer who arrested young Hall for theft declared that the boy was in the habit of stealing everything he could lay his hands on, but in the Detention Home, since his arrest, he has made a very favorable impression.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

DEATH CAUSES SUIT. A suit was filed yesterday in the Superior Court by Olivia M. Beamer and Jane Beamer, widow and daughter of F. O. Beamer, against Robert H. Ingram, W. P. Young, Clarence E. Holland and the National Automobile Company, asking $15,000 damages. The complaint alleges that F. O. Beamer was killed by an automobile belonging to the defendants, and operated by their servants, on Fifth street on March 12.

ANGELS' FLIGHT SUED. A suit was filed yesterday in the Superior Court against the Los Angeles Electric Incline Railway Company, for $5501.50 as damages for personal injuries. The plaintiff, Adelbert F. Kinney, alleges that a car on which he was a passenger, on November 5, 1906, was stopped for the alighting of passengers before reaching the platform, and that as a result he stepped off onto the edge of the platform, causing a sprain and double fracture of his ankle.

SCHOOL FOR CHINATOWN.

Chinese Imperial Government to Bear the Expense—Native Teachers Only.

Chinatown will soon have a public school, and it will be maintained at the expense of the Chinese imperial government. Yet C. Owyang, one of the editors of the Chinese Daily World, is in communication with the Chinese Consul at San Francisco on the subject. The Emperor of China recently appointed Liang Hing Wing as a Lord High Commissioner to visit this country and establish Chinese schools in every city where there is a sufficient Chinese population to justify the expense.

These schools will be taught by Chinese who have been graduated from the colleges of that country, and who are capable of teaching the classics and are well read in the "Five Books." The idea is to perpetuate in the youth the language and literature of their ancestors. Two schools will soon be established in San Francisco, one in Oakland, and one in Los Angeles. Perhaps there will be two in this city, as our local Chinatown is next in population to San Francisco, the number of Chinese of school age being about 200. At present, there is a private Chinese school, which has an attendance of twenty-five. This is maintained by the merchants, each pupil being charged from $2.50 to $5 a month. The older pupils are charged more than the younger ones, according to the Chinese custom. The government school, being free, will perhaps supersede the private school, and this will enable all Chinese youth to attend, as there are many families who cannot afford the fees.

Editor Owyang, who is a nephew of Consul Owyang, is very much interested in the enterprise, and has made a favorable report as to its necessity. Yet C. Owyang's father was formerly Consul at San Francisco, and was succeeded by his brother, the present Consul.

These schools will, of course, have no connection with the mission schools. The pupils will be taught only in the Chinese language, by native teachers.

CROWLEY COMING UP SATURDAY.

E. H. Crowley, the labor agency man, who is accused by the police of having violated the local ordinance in conducting his place, will come up for judgment next Saturday morning. His case was completed during yesterday morning before Justice Chambers and long arguments were made by the City Prosecutor and Crowley's lawyer.

TAXES ALIKE ON THEM ALL.

Surprises in Prospect for Rich Land Holders.

Must Share Burden With the Working Ranchers.

Deputy Assessors Fix Rate on Real Values.

There will be many surprises in store for the taxpayers of Los Angeles county this year. Many a small rancher who has for years helped to pay his wealthy neighbor's taxes, will find that the Lord and Ben Ward, County Assessor, have answered his prayers, and that at last both are assessed on the same basis.

Hard as it is to believe, many a rich man's taxes have been paid by his poor neighbor. A man owning only ten or twenty acres cannot hide it; he cannot lie about it. It is there when the assessor calls; he can see the whole of the acreage at one glance, and it is often assessed at its full value.

Not so with his wealthy neighbor who owns thousands of acres of land. When the deputy assessor calls on this man he says to him, "You own sections so and so?" "Yes," replies the man, "that's on the hills; we cannot plow a foot of it, we use it all for pasture, not worth $5 an acre."

The easily-worked deputy leaves the valuation as before at $5 an acre, regardless of the fact that perhaps only thirty acres are in the hills, and the balance of the section is rich orchard or grain land. And so year after year much of the land owned by large landed proprietors has escaped its just share of taxation.

Not only is this the case in Los Angeles county, but throughout the State. A Pomona man recently bought a small tract of land from a rich corporation doing business in San Bernardino county. The tax bill on this land when assessed to the corporation was $7, but when it was assessed to the new owner he had to pay $27, while the remaining land of the corporation was assessed as before.

NONE OF HIS BUSINESS?

Only a few years ago a Los Angeles man owning a small tract of land in Kern county, which was assessed at $20 an acre, discovered that the neighboring land, owned by a rich corporation, was assessed at only $4 an acre. He appeared before the Kern County Board of Equalization to complain and was told it was none of his business what his neighbors paid so long as his was all right.

During the early part of this year Assessor Ward picked out a few men of experience and judgment to make assessments on ranch property. He ordered a square deal to everyone. Their orders were not to raise values but to equalize them; that all property owners should bear their fair share of taxation equally.

The maps furnished by the county, while showing sections, and the boundary lines of all sections, do not show the location of the hills or the mountain ranges, and the deputy assessor is often at the mercy of the property owner, and has to rely on his honesty as to the number of acres in any section which may be in the hills.

One of these deputies, however, relied on no man's statement. He provided himself with the maps of the United States Geological Survey. These maps show the contour of the hills and it is an easy matter to tell accurately just how many acres of each section are in the hills and how many in the plains.

INTERESTING DISCOVERIES.

Since these men took the field, it is reported that they made some interesting discoveries. In one district in the San Gabriel Valley a poor rancher, who was living in a shack and owned ten acres of unimproved land, was paying taxes on an assessed value of $80 an acre. Around him were thousands of acres, owned by a corpulent politician, who had spent a good deal of money to convey water to this land for irrigating purposes, and thereby made the land more valuable, and was selling it at $300 per acre. But he was only paying taxes on an assessed valuation of $4.50 an acre.

In another portion of this county the same deputy discovered that two whole sections, supposed to be in the hills and used for pasture, and owned by a very wealthy man, were assessed at $4 an acre, while they were really in the valley adjoining a prosperous city, and every one of the 1280 acres contained in these two sections should have been assessed at $80 per acre. In another part, walnut groves, selling for $1000 an acre, were found to be assessed for only $18 an acre.

Strange as this statement may appear, the land owners around Duarte were assessed far in excess of the actual land values. Land east of Duarte, through which the San Gabriel River flows, was assessed for $220 an acre. When an owner was asked why he had not complained about his taxes, he replied: "What would I get for howling; the Supervisors would tell me to go to 'ell."

In nearly every case, the records show that the reductions in the values were made by the Board of Supervisors when sitting as a Board of Equalization. In this way, it is said, political debts have been paid.

ADDRESS ON OWENS RIVER.

Assistant Chief Engineer of the Aqueduct to Discuss Important Subject Monday Evening.

The Academy of Sciences will meet at Symphony Hall, No. 226 South Hill street, Monday evening. Thirty minutes before the time of meeting vote will be taken for directors of the academy for the ensuing year. The academy will be addressed by Engineer J. B. Lippincott on the subject of the Owens River Aqueduct, giving the topography of the country, the engineering features of the undertaking, the character and quantity of water, the progress of the work, etc., and answering all questions that may be asked concerning it. Mr. Lippincott is thoroughly familiar with the conditions and is assistant chief engineer of the project. His address will be illustrated by stereopticon.

TRIBULATIONS OVER A HAT.

As old hat, worth perhaps about 25 cents, was the point at issue in a somewhat long-drawn trial before Justice Austin in the Police Court yesterday. W. G. McCandless was accused by G. W. Woodward of having stolen the headpiece. It turned out during the trial that McCandless is subject to attacks of vertigo and that he fainted during a religious meeting at Sixth and Hill streets two days ago. He was resusitated by some of the workers, who, he said, gave him the hat. It turned out to belong to Woodward, and McCandless, hatless, but discharged, departed from the courtroom after the proceedings.

Suits at $16.50

Some of the Season's Latest Styles

THIS is a sale of shirt waist, jumper, Princess and suspender suits of silk; Eton, pony, blouse and semi-fitting styles of pretty wool materials—in plain and fancy—including club checks, plaids, stripes and mixtures. The styles are right in every single instance. There is not a suit in the sale but is well worth its regular price, $35, $30, $25 or $20. The fact that in most cases there is but one suit of a size does not detract one whit from the desirability of the different models, but on the contrary it assures a broader assortment to select from. Doors open at 8 o'clock.

Suits on Second Floor—Take Elevator.

The suits in this sale at $16.50 are positively worth up to $35.00.

SUPERIOR buying facilities, together with an unalterable determination to undersell any and all competition, at all times, account for the matchless values we tell of from week to week in women's suits; and such suits! So decidedly different from the ordinary run of styles. Our customers have learned to expect a great deal of us, and rightly so. They come here feeling fully assured that their wants will be economically and satisfactorily supplied—and they are never disappointed.

Music Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays from 2 to 5 P. M.

MANY DELIGHTS FOR DELEGATES.

WHY LOS ANGELES IS IDEAL CONVENTION CITY.

Attractions Possessed by no Other Place Draw Visitors, Political and Fraternal, Here—Duties Happily Combine With Sightseeing and Delightful Vacation.

Several things unite to make Los Angeles a convention city, which it may now properly be termed. In addition to the accommodations possessed by other cities, it has superior climate and scenery unequaled in its variety, beauty and grandeur. Though on the confines of the Far West Los Angeles offers to conventions advantages superior to many cities in the East where national nomiating conventions have been held. It has superior accommodations to those of Kansas City, Minneapolis, and of St. Louis. These conventions are usually held in mid-summer, when the heat by day is very oppressing, and the murky air of night is stifling. Here the climate is balmy by day and cool at night. There is never sunstroke, and there is no oppressive heat at night.

A large convention held in Los Angeles must draw its delegates across the continent. They come from the Middle West, the South, and the East. With their educational, fraternal, or other duties, they desire to combine the pleasure of sight-seeing. In no other city of the West could a convention be held where the delegates could meet after such a long journey, and enjoy so much sight-seeing, as in Los Angeles. These delegates from various sections are whirled through an extensive country in comfort and see the beauties and natural wonders of the intervening sections. But in California they see more than all these. And, this is one of the advantages in holding conventions here—they see it all, from the beginning to the end of the route.

Perhaps it may be urged that this is the strongest reason for the claim of Los Angeles as a convention city. In addition, the cosmopolitanism of the city makes possible the meeting together of so many large and diversified bodies. Nearly all social, educational, fraternal, religious and political organizations of the United States are largely represented here, and these furnish a nucleus for the assembling of the delegates of these organizations. The objects of interest en route to the West are easily accessible to the coming delegate, and neither these nor those in California are turned into mendicant "show places" as in Europe. All along the line, and at this end of it, the delegate see greater objects of interest than are found in Europe.

But, the delegate cannot live upon climate and scenery, nor do we expect him to do so. Therefore, Los Angeles is provided with a large number of as commodious and well-kept hotels as can be found in any city, excepting New York and Chicago. In addition, there are hundreds of restaurants, private boarding-houses, and good rooming-houses by the acre. All these have modern conveniences, and reasonable prices. Prices are not raised as is done in Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, and in New Orleans during the Mardi Gras Festival.

With all these objects in view, added to the hospitality of our private citizens, the stay of visitors is one of feasting and pleasure, and one long to be remembered. They see the mountains, the picturesque foothills, pretty valleys, magnificent driveways, and gardens of delight, beautiful with the luxuriant growth of a semi-tropic land, and in a climate unequaled for its health-giving qualities. These, then, are the qualities that unite to make Los Angeles the Convention City of the West.

MINES AND MINING.

Crackerjack Will Soon Ship Its First Ore to the Smelter—Claims Sold.

The new Crackerjack mining district, in the Avawatz Mountains, San Bernardino county, will soon make its first ore shipment. The Crackerjack Bonanza Mining Company will be the shipper. This company has on its dump over one hundred tons of ore, averaging $100, and about fifty tons more that will go over $300, these values being in gold. Shipping is to begin in a couple of weeks. The Crackerjack Bonanza owns four claims, known as the Red Pass group, and with a tunnel run in about eighty feet has opened up two veins of honeycomb quartz. One of these veins is eighteen inches wide and its ore assays are said to run as high as $1000 per ton. The main ledge on the claims is eight feet wide on the surface, and a shaft has been started to determine its character and trend. A lower tunnel will also be started to tap this ledge. The surface indications of the Red Pass group are very promising, four well-defined ledges, carrying good values in gold, being easily traceable. The company will ship its ore to the new smelter at Roswell, N. M.

The main tunnel of the Crackerjack Gold Mining Company is in about 260 feet. Within the last half a hundred feet three gold-bearing veins have been cut; these veins show values of from $15 to $120 per ton. The company's general manager is confident that another fifty feet will see the cutting of a big ledge for which the veins referred to are feeders. The company is also sinking two shafts, one of which is to be sent down 1000 feet, if need be, and the other fifty feet, where the vein will be crosscut. All of these stringers carry free gold.

The latest deal in Crackerjack properties is the sale of the Blue Bucket and Ram's Horn claims, which lie just northeast of the holdings of the Crackerjack Gold Company. The sellers are Messrs. Moore and Tomlinson, and the buyers are comprised in a Goldfield syndicate which acted on the advice of Engineer Flaherty of Boston. The consideration reported is $50,000 The principal development is on Blue Bucket claims, where a has been run eighty feet and up a three-foot ledge going gold and copper. A shaft will be sent down 600 feet with cr at each 100-foot leevl.

DEATH VALLEY AND THE FUNERAL MOUNTAINS CONQUERED BY MAN, WONDER TREASURE FOUND.

Towns Spring Up on Brink of Forbidding Sink, and Capital Brings Marvelous Changes—Gold Awaits Los Angeles and Merchants Do Not Go After It.

BY FRED R. BECHOLDT.

RAILROAD construction and mining development have in the last few months made towns on the brink of Death Valley. Unless some of the best mining experts in America have lied to their employers concerning underlying deposits, one or two of these town will soon grow to cities. And the crest of the Funeral Mountain will see the world's greatest copper camp.

With copper development is being accomplished development of enormous borax deposits, inter beds and gold mines. Such men as Charles M. Schwab and "Borax" Smith are spending millions of dollars already to get at this wealth.

These men and this money have brought wonderful changes into the Amargosa Desert and the Funeral Mountains. For nearly fifty years prospectors have tempted fate by seeking wealth in this region of mirages. Suddenly the wealth was found—and was shown to the world.

The Old was at once replaced by the New. Up to one year ago the survivors of the old race of prospectors—whitehaired men with bent shoulders—comprised most of the pick wielders in the section. Today you may find everywhere their successors—rough clad, large-chested miners gathering in crowds about shaft houses at the hours of going on shift; slim-bodied, neatly-dressed mining engineers with gold-rimmed glasses and clean-shaven faces.

In former days burros climbed slowly up the rocky ridges, one behind the other, heavy laden, and mule teams dragged creaking, broad-tired wagons through the shifting sands of the glaring chalk-white flats.

Today the automobile coughs its way through shadowy cañon beds and even English lords on pleasure bent have gazed from cliff tops into the abyss of Death Valley at sunset.

This is one of the last steps in the metamorphosis of the western desert. Capital is doing it—slowly and with system. There is no rush—none of the excitement of free gold discoveries. Men of millions have hired men of brains, and these men of brains are going ahead in a cold-blooded, methodical way, boring into arid mountain sides and laying steel across wastes which looks as though the world had cooled suddenly there in the making.

People need borax, copper, niter and gold. And because they do, you may today enjoy a course dinner at the brink of Death Valley's sink.

In this region, where one year ago men went mad and died of thirst, there are now two younger towns—Greenwater and Furnace. Three hundred men are working in the copper mines of the district. Eight hundred are toiling on "Borax" Smith's railroad.

There are in Greenwater two weekly newspapers, a semi-monthly magazine, a bank, several general stores, eight automobiles, a social set which enjoys dancing parties every week or two, two barber shops, a postoffice, a telephone and telegraph office. And the town is only about nine months old. At Ash Meadows they are getting ready now to build a $2,000,000 smelter. The material has already been ordered in the East.

All along the route of "Borax" Smith's Tonopah and Tidewater railroad are tent cities, some of which are the beginning of permanent towns, others construction camps. One of these, at Silver Lake, occupies the site of the old fort where soldiers for years held in check ugly Indians.

Young men of technical education are breaking roads into the desert, looking for new mines at Death Valley's edge.

And all this, which is attracting no attention from Los Angeles merchants, has roused the business men of Salt Lake to action. Their representatives are in Greenwater at brief intervals, and they may be seen in Furnace and other camps almost any day. Said a business man of that district two days ago:

"I am a Californian. I like Los Angeles. So do others here. But it looks to me as though Los Angeles does not want us or our trade. We would welcome anyone looking for business for that city were he to come."

With Death Valley exactly twenty-four hours from this city—a day which is filled in by a railway journey and a swift auto ride—it is, to say the least, remarkable in the eyes of the men of that section that this city has not turned its eyes in that direction. There is gold waiting there for Los Angeles.

Two Railroads Going in.

Two railroads are now building into Death Valley. One of these, financed by John W. Brock of Philadelphia and known as the "Brock road," will come from the north and will be an extension of a line already built into the Tonopah country from that direction. Its purpose is to get the traffic of the copper and the gold mines now being opened in the Amargosa desert. The other, which "Borax" Smith is building from Ludlow to Beatty, has in view a different end.

Death Valley's borax deposits will again supply the world when this road is completed. The locomotive and freight car will do what the twenty-mule teams did in the '80's.

Originally the floor of Death Valley furnished most of the borax which was used. This mineral lay in level beds and low-rounded hills in the lowest parts of the sink. It was there put through a crude refining process. Then the famous twenty-mule teams hauled it in huge twelve-inch-tired wagons across the desert to the railroad.

Later a prospector discovered, in the Funeral Mountains, ledges of rock borax, now called colmanite. This deposit had originally been borax mud. Pressure and age and heat had hardened it. A large ledge near Daggett on the Santa Fé Railroad was acquired by Smith. While his men mined this ledge, the owner set to work to acquire every other borax deposit in the country. He sent out prospectors, paying these wages and a bonus for each claim they located. His men were instructed to purchase all favorable locations which others made, and so Smith got a monopoly on the product from which he was nicknamed. He sold the world its borax.

SMITH STARTS A ROAD.

The world needed much and the miners working near Dagget delved deep—so deep that progress became difficult. Then Smith got ready to build a road to open up the deposits in the Funeral Mountains. He started to build from near Las Vegas. He found he could not get junction privileges from the Salt Lake route. He pulled up fourteen miles of track and talked business with the Santa Fé. Then less than a year ago, he began to build from Ludlow. Today he has laid more than 100 miles of track. About 50 more miles will bring him to the "Lida C" mine in the Funeral Mountains.

Meantime, Smith did much more in this railroad building than to open up borax mines. He helped to open a country which, since he began, has proved to be rich in many minerals. Most important of these is probably the copper district in the Funeral Mountains, near Greenwater. There are, however, many others.

The road passes in a rough way, along the course of the Mojave River to Silver Lake. Here the Mojave sinks. Where it ends, there is in winter and spring a large shallow body of water. In days of old this was a deep lake and had an outlet into the then raging Amargosa. Now the Amargosa hides beneath the desert sands, appearing briefly at long intervals.

Near Silver Lake are some long dry lakes. Here are vast soda deposits. A company is now at work developing them. Extending many miles, they contain thousands of tons of the alkaline mineral.

THE NITER HILLS.

Back of Silver Lake is the Crackerjack gold and copper mining district. And a few miles farther on the railroad drops into the Amargosa's dry bed. Lofty ash-gray cliffs border this bed. They are forbidding to the eye. At their feet the sun's reflected rays bite fiercely. These are the Niter Hills. The mineral is found throughout their extent. It is just now especially valuable commercially. The development of these niter deposits has begun with the advent of the railroad.

The road leaves the Amargosa Cañon and climbs to Borax Flat, where the old refining works, used twenty years ago, still stand. The flat is a long dry lake. Its snow-white surface reflects in blinding light the sun's rays. At this place the Santa Fé Pullman car, which will run over the new railroad after June 1, will be sidetracked. Automobiles will carry passengers to the copper district and the borax mines beyond.

GENUINE DEVELOPMENT.

The railroad will be completed next winter. Along the desert today are half-made towns and tented camps. Eight hundred men are toiling on construction. It has brought with it a series of genuine mining developments whose effect on Southern California and Nevada is already remarkable. These are the sort of developments that make cities, not stock excitements. Already they have made markets for Los Angeles goods; and these markets, of which Los Angeles is seemingly ignorant, are being eagerly sought by Salt Lake.

A typical scene of such development is the Greenwater copper district. Here are towns where newspapers are printed; roads where automobiles whiz by almost hourly, and hillsides already dotted with gray-green dumps. The sky line in places is made ragged by newly risen gallows frames and the walls of cañons echo the sharp bark of gasoline hoisting engines.

NOT APPRECIATED HERE.

The fact that the world's greatest copper district and the world's greatest copper camp may within a few years be situated on the brink of Death Valley—and in the valley itself—isn't appreciated by even Southern California. And yet this prophecy comes from seers who have honor both in and outside of "their own country." If the properties of the Greenwater district don't prove to contain an enormous mineral body of high values, men who are now known as America's best mining engineers will probably be seeking new jobs; and one or two geologists whose works have made them famous will lose the prestige which, to put it in commercial phrase, is their only stock in trade.

The story of how and why these ragged and sun-baked steeps came to be noisy with the clank of mining machinery—of how and why men swarmed across the desert until towns sprang up in America's most desolate wilderness and women began to hold dancing parties and exchange afternoon calls in the heart of the Funeral Mountains—is in itself a bit of that genuine romance of the West which so seldom comes to the knowledge of the rest of the world. It is as interesting a tale as the legend of Breyfogle's lost mine.

THE ROMANCE OF IT.

In the days which we have already come to call "days of old"—the days immediately following the Comstock excitement and other northern Nevada mining booms—prospectors began to wander forth from these then-prosperous camps, lured by thoughts of free-milling gold, and seeking for it. Some of these strayed into the Amargosa and the Mojave deserts. They were sun-browned, iron-limbed men. They had gained their education among the camps which others had found and in which they had worked. Their outfits were simple, and their methods of seeking for precious metals were crude. They were for the most part men of high courage and wonderful endurance—such men as Bret Harte described in matchless prose, of whom Joaquin Miller sang and, singing, became famous. You may still find a few of them—long-bearded, dreamy-eyed and reminiscent when, by waterhole or in dry camp, the mood seizes them. And when they do talk they wander on from wilderness to wilderness, from desert to desert, over shadowy mountain ranges and arid, steep-walled cañons, until the fancy passes and they are again close-mouthed.

These men looked first for gold or silver. And this they never got over—save a few whom Borax Smith employed while he was acquiring the fields of colmanite which finally gave him his monopoly. Many of them drifted to Resting Springs in southwestern Nevada, where for a long time a mine war was working. Eventually some of them discovered leads which were developed, some of those along the Funeral and Panamint ranges. Most of them wandered on and then on until they had penetrated remote corners among the desert mountains. Always they looked for gold or silver.

They passed through a terrifying country. Its water holes were then unknown to any but the Indians, and these savages themselves were ugly, sometimes openly hostile. But the men of iron had learned some of the lore of the desert and they found for themselves the springs—found them by watching the birds and by following coyote trails. And some who failed in such search or whom prowling Indians ran across, left their bones whitening in the sands.

A number of these men passed over the southern end of the Funeral Mountains. Some of them walked right over the copper outcroppings which thrust themselves from the scarred buttes above Greenwater. There was one such party whose story is now interesting.

FINDS THE COPPER.

This party consisted of desert rats and squaw men. Of these there were many in the oases along buried river beds of the Amargosa country. Some were renegades, who had been driven from the South and the East into these fastnesses. Others had abandoned their race from sheer worthlessness, and had lapsed into as complete a savagery as that of their greasy, copper-hued mates. Of this caliber were the men with whom this particular incident deals.

One of their number found the copper outcroppings which have been found and abandoned and found again since their time. The party took the specimens which he had brought with him to camp. The green coloring brought to them suggestion of silver. They tested it for that metal, and to their rough test it failed to yield results. They were on the point of tossing it aside when one of their number had a bright thought. A Portuguese, himself looking for silver—a man of some means—was known to be in the country, headed toward their abiding place. They salted the ledge from which the copper specimens had been brought for silver. In time they sold it to the luckless Portuguese; and in time he abandoned the claims.

Years went on. Many others of these old-time prospectors walked over the ledges and paid no heed to them, or, stopping to look, cast aside the specimens which they had picked up. They passed on, seeking Breyfogle's ledge for buried Mormon treasure supposed to have been left in Death Valley by members of Bennett's hapless party; or, again, and with as blind and as hopeless a faith, for free gold. They perished, or they grew bent and old—but they never abandoned their quests until age left them with trembling limbs or death claimed them.

Two years ago with the development of the country south of Tonopah, a wave of other prospectors—men schooled under different conditions and to new desires than were these pioneers—swept out over the Amargosa desert, and reached across the Funeral Mountains into Death Valley. At the same time other seekers for metals of commercial value came up through the Mojave desert into the sink, into the Panamint range, the valley that bears its name, the Slate and other ranges. They were everywhere and they worked persistently as true prospectors always work while the fit is on.

These were men of a different type from those who had preceded them. For the most part they were young men. Few of them have reached middle age. They were men for the most part of education; many were graduates of universities whose names are known wherever learning is recognized.

Like the other men, they encountered perils, and many died. The desert is as cruel today to those who dare too much or reck too little as it was in the days of '49, and it will be as cruel so long as any of its wastes remain unconquered. The skeletons of some of this new generation of prospectors still remain unburied in Funeral Mountain canyons and in the terrible salt marsh of the flat sink which lies beneath the steep walls of this range.

KUNZE AND GREENWATER.

Arthur Kunze, who has been called the discoverer of Greenwater, though he was really—and it amounts to much more—the man who brought capital to Greenwater, was among these newcomers. He was then a mining engineer. He had prospected on the desert for about fifteen years. He had failed to strike it in Goldfield or neighboring camps. He made up his mind to seek fortune elsewhere. He knew of the Greenwater croppings, and he sent two men to them. This was less than two years ago. These men located for him. He followed them, and he found among his Tonopah associates partners. These set to work to explore the deposits. They staked out much ground. And then it came to the difficult proposition of getting capital to develop it.

Now, copper mining is expensive mining, for which very reason it doesn't appeal to a certain class of prospectors. These love the glamor and the excitement; the big chances and the brief prosperity of high-grade gold excitements. For this reason, copper mining, above all other western mining, takes promotion. The Greenwater district saw a series of promoters. While Kunze and his associates were working on their ground, Patrick Clark of Coeur d'Alene fame had gotten another group of claims near theirs, and was setting to work on these.

At this time Charles M. Schwab—himself a king among promoters—was becoming interested in desert mines. Schwab had then employed Donald Gillies, formerly ex-Senator W. A. Clark's right-hand man in Butte, and Malcolm McDonald as his mining experts. As such, they are two of the most widely known in America, and their judgments are rated among mining men as about as close to infallible as are the opinions of any of their calling. Schwab had gotten anxious to become a copper king.

Which was natural. For at this period copper was making Eastern people excited. It got Eastern and European money. The Guggenheims were building a $5,000,000 smelter at Salt Lake; such men as Samuel Newhouse and W. A. Clark were looking for more holdings. On Eastern streets and in Eastern offices copper was a magic word.

And Arthur Kunze—who was a prospector of the new school, which in many cases includes promotion in its curriculum—found the ear of Schwab. He did it by getting Gillies and McDonald to look at his holdings.

COMES THE PROFESSOR.

These mine experts tramped along the mountain side above the present town of Greenwater, over its edge and down the wall which borders Death Valley. They spent several days in the vicinity and in that time they said nothing. Then they went away. One day there came another, a gray-haired, spectacle-wearing man. He walked over the same mountain side, and climbed down the slope toward the Death Valley sink. He was a querelous old man, and he was perhaps a bit eccentric. But he knew the rocks which make up the earth's crust so well that he is famous for his works on geology. He examined the copper outcroppings and closely scanned the country rock of the region. He spent two days doing this utterly obvious to the singing rattlesnakes and the scurrying lizards. Then he, too, left. When he got to Tonopah it is reported that he talked with Gillies and McDonald and the conversation ran something like this:

"Well, professor, what did you find?"

"Gentlemen, if you'll give me time to go over to the bank across the street, I'll bring back $100,000 and you will do me a favor by using that for me on two of those claims."

At any rate the professor made out his report. And then another set of visitors came. These were men from New York, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. They came in big red automobiles, and in these one party crossed Death Valley. Charles M. Schwab, his father and one or two others—the total wealth represented by the crown was $500,000,000—composed this group. They visited Greenwater. They looked at the outcroppings, and examined the mineral which had been taken from shallow holes. The deepest of these was eighty-two feet.

WHAT THEY SAW.

Now what these visitors—the experts, the geologist, and the capitalists—had seen was this:

A series of veins which thrust themselves out from the surrounding country rock, showing green-streaked red-brown sides.

One great vein into which several of these others converged—its width in places is 600 feet, and for all that distance you can see the color of the copper.

A monument built of $300-to-ton ore picked up from the surface.

And running down the hill into Death Valley some of the same ledges to a depth of 3000 feet below the mountain's crown.

What this meant, according to the report of the experts and the geologist, was this:

The living rock had one time cracked, some of the cracks radiating from others. Into these crevices from a mass below, the copper-laden rock had erupted. Probably for several hundred, perhaps 2000 or more feet, beneath the surface water and the action of other elemental substances had leached it into the oxides which showed on the surface. Thus had gone much of the metal itself. But with this departure the surface rock was so rich that on some of these claims a steam shovel could scoop up hundreds of tons of marketable ore. What then must be the richness of the main deposit beneath?"

The men of capital set to work to find out.

FINDING OUT.

Meantime the properties had come into the hands of the easterners. Kunze, his backers and the men who had worked for them locating claims got pay in money and in stock. At once began the second stage of mine making, the process where the big investor freezes out the small fellow, where the big promoter in taking the place of his predecessor, annihilates the latter. Schwab, who, with the ultimate development of Greenwater, will become a copper king, was in this case the big promoter. While the little camp of Greenwater was standing by rejoicing at the presence of red automobiles, the men whom these had carried across Death Valley were very effectually exterminating some of the camp's budding financiers. They were forming what is now known as the Schwab merger.

The eastern men put under the control of one company all the properties which they had acquired and a $2,000,000 smelter which is to be built at Ash Meadows to handle the ores of the Greenwater and adjacent districts. The claims which they thus financed into embryo mines cover an area greater than that of the famous Butte Hill. The capital stock of the merger company was placed at $25,000,000. Of this the original owners, the men who had sweated and endured the desert's thirst, got blocks of varying size in part payment for their services, cash forming the rest of the payment.

The formation of the merger company did two things—it made possible on the brink of Death Valley a great copper mine—a king of copper mines—and it put out of the way many men who might be good for finding mineral, but were, from an eastern standpoint, at least, worthless in a stock company. It was a case of high finance on the desert; and in individual cases the men of the desert got the worst of it. One example will illustrate. It is the case of the Furnace Creek Kid.

FURNACE CREEK KID.

He was born on Furnace Creek ranch about nineteen years ago. He grew from babyhood to youth in Death Valley. He worked as a teamster across the arid desert. He prospected in the shadowy cañons of the Funeral Mountains. When Arthur Kunze began staking copper claims this big-boned boy helped him, and stuck loyally by his side. As a consequence his name was written on a number of location notices. After the red automobiles had gone coughing over the hills to Beatty bearing their load of $500,000,000 worth of capitalists, the raw-boned boy found that he was a rich man. The realization of manhood came with the knowledge of riches. His stock amounted to something like 15,000 shares.

At the same time, realizing herself to be now a mining camp, Greenwater started to act as mining camps have always acted since men first carried picks. On tent fronts flashed saloon signs. There was gambling; there were women, and champagne flowed.

And the Furnace Creek kid in the midst of this knew he was a man—and rich.

To him came a pleasant man with shrewd eyes offering money for the mining stock. The click of the roulette wheel's marble and the hum of many voices had already teased the young product of the desert. He did what thousands like him had done before he was born. He sold his stock. The shrewd-eyed man turned it over to someone else who in turn took it to the eastern people, and the Furnace Creek kid spent $22,000 in something like one month. Now he is looking for more mines.

There were others who did not sell so readily as the Furnace Creek kid. They had played the game before. Some of them held large blocks of stock. A heavy bear movement, started in the East, hurt Greenwater in the eyes of the outside world and made many part with their shares. Now there remain outside of the eastern people only a few who hold stock in any of the merger companies.

STEADY SINKING.

Development started soon after the merger was accomplished. An issue of $250,000 treasury stock was made for this purpose. John W. Brock of Philadelphia tried to buy it all on the spot, but got only $150,000 worth. The other $100,000 was snapped up in Tonopah, Goldfield, Salt Lake and Denver within 24 hours by friends of the directors.

Since these things happened steady sinking has been carried on not only on the Schwab properties, but through the district. Plans have been drawn for the smelter and the material has been already ordered in the East. A water company has now pipe on the ground to supply Greenwater with water from Ash Meadows. At present the fluid is hauled 25 miles in tanks and costs $7.50 a barrel. The average water bill of a household of three runs from $25 to $50 a month.

Last winter there were two towns of Greenwater. One, at the min called Kunze. The other two over the hill on an open beach was known as Ramsey. There rivalry, a fight for one postoffice then the townsite companies and business men got together. As a sequence Kunze moved over to sey en masse. They hitched mule teams to their buildings jerked them over the hillsides. The occasion saw the one instance on ord of where a stage driver had whip up his horses to catch the office. The stage from the railroad into Kunze at dusk. To his the driver found nothing where been the postoffice. Someone told what had happened and pointed the route over which twenty-horses had taken the building. the stage came on the postoffice team had been unhitched and building on wheels was making time down a hillside. There was brief chase; the men in charge of work finally stopped operations enough to let the driver throw his sacks into the door; and then res

HOLLYWOOD'S BEAUTY WAY.

Sunset Boulevard to Be Paved Clear Out.

Vitrified Brick from Plaza to the Foothills.

Cost Will Be Quarter of a Million Dollars.

Paving of Sunset boulevard with vitrified brick, from the Plaza to the western city limits, is now a certainty. But in addition to this project, there is likely to be an extension of the work which will give a beautifully-improved highway for a distance of fully six miles.

Not content with carrying the paving to the city limits, property owners will now undertake to have the mile-and-a-half stretch of the boulevard lying between Los Angeles and Hollywood improved under the same specifications as those of the city work. This is to be done under the provisions of the Vrooman Act as applied to county highways, if the consent of the County Supervisors can be obtained.

It is planned to have the paving on Sunset boulevard begin at Marion avenue and proceed westerly, as the highway from that point to the city limits is 100 feet wide, while the western end of the boulevard is awaiting the slow process of legal requirements to complete its widening to the same standard. By the time the westerly sections are completed, the obstructions in the way of work on the east will have been cleared up.

FIGURES ABOUT IT.

The Executive Committee of the Sunset Boulevard Improvement Association has just issued an interesting array of statistics in regard to this extensive improvement. The committee believes the move will result in a regeneration of the northwest section of the city, and that within a year after the completion of the street improvements these hills will become one of the most popular residence sections.

The assessment district includes 2200 acres, and there are 10,340 lots. Of these 640 face on the boulevard and [illegible] are lots lying adjacent to this highway.

The total expense of $250,000 is to be divided equally between these two classes of property. The Sunset boulevard lots will be assessed $125,000, or approximately $200 a lot; while the lots nearby will pay the other $125,000 in assessments ranging from $4 to $25 per lot, according to their closeness to the improved street. The average price will be $13 per lot.

After having corresponded with officials of fifty leading American cities regarding their experience with paving materials, the Executive Committee of the Improvement Association found there was a large percentage in favor of the use of vitrified brick. This decided the property owners in using this material for Sunset boulevard.

Plans are maturing for the connection of this boulevard, by side streets improved on the same plan, with three principal parks of the city—Echo Park, Elysian Park and Griffith Park.

It is now reported that the people of Hollywood will undertake to carry through that municipality the improvement of Prospect avenue, its main thoroughfare, so that it will form a continuation of the paved boulevard, and this would add at least a mile and a half to the original plans.

There has been formed an organization known as the Sunset Boulevard Improvement Company, which is to take charge of various improvements in connection with the paving of the street, and to keep closely in touch with the work, so that it may be hurried to completion by the earliest possible date. This company, it is said, has various important plans in view for the improvement of the northwest hills. It will undertake a system of general improvement of the lots along Sunset boulevard on the plan adopted by the Hollywood Improvement Company a few years ago, and which resulted in such a remarkable increase of valuations in that subdivision within a year's time.

BALLOON PARTIES HELP HER SON.

LADY LLANGATTOCK IN ENGLISH SOCIETY'S LATEST FAD.

Has Money Enough to Indulge in Expensive Tastes and Spent Twenty-five Thousand Dollars to Make Her Drawing-room Look Like Kaiser William's Apartments.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, April 23.—Lady Llangattock (pronounced Hlang-a-tock) is one of the leaders of the latest society fad—ballooning. She has given several balloon parties at her husband's ancestral Welsh seat, The Hendre. [illegible] these balloon parties are [illegible] for her enterprising son, Hon. C. S. Rolls, who is interested in a business way in aëronautics as well as in motor cars. Ballooning is no longer the expensive pastime it used to be. A good balloon, capable of carrying four passengers, costs only $750 and can be filled with gas for $25. Guests at balloon parties are generally expected to provide their own balloons, but Lord and Lady Llangattock keep three or four on hand.

LADY LLANGATTOCK.

Lady Llangattock is an enthusiastic yachtswoman and travels far with her husband on their fine steam yacht, the Santa Maria. She is a woman of varied tastes and interests, fond of painting and music and a good judge of art in all its branches. Any special style of decoration which strikes her fancy in her travels abroad she tries to introduce, if suitable, into her London home. Her drawing-room at South Lodge is an exact copy of a reception-room in the Kaiser's Palace at Berlin. In another room is the duplicate of a famous European frescoed ceiling which an Austrian artist painted for her at a cost of $25,000.

The Hendre, which in Welsh signifies "The Old Home," is a picturesque medley of gables and turrets, standing in a park a thousand acres in extent, in which roam some 600 deer and a herd of Scotch cattle. The house is full of interesting things, including some notable relics of Nelson and a big case of gold medals won by Lord Llangattock, who is a successful breeder of shire horses, at various shows.

THE ORGANIZED MILITIA.

Government Should Stop Doing Anything or Else Do Far More for It Than at Present.

Capt. James A. Cole, Sixth United States Cavalry, takes the position that the Federal government ought to stop doing anything for the organized militia or should do far more than it is doing at present. "Instruction of militia officers during a State encampment by officers of the regular service," says Capt. Cole in an official report recently published by the military authorities, "is not enough. Young, able and zealous officers should be detailed to visit militia companies at their home towns, stay with them a week or ten days at a time, drill them every night, hold gallery practise with acurate gallery rifles, with an unlimited supply of ammunition during this period of instruction, all males of sound physique between the ages of fifteen and thirty years, whether militiamen or not, being urged to come in and shoot under instruction. The Krag-Jorgeasen rifle should be retained by the militia and as large a quantity of ammunition as is possible issued for their use. Recitations, lectures, talks about the army, anything to interest the men, should accompany these nightly drills. It is believed that the militia need hard training in their homes more than Governors of States need attachés, military advisors or aides from the regular service, and that officers of the regular service detailed for the State militia would be more valuable in a capacity as indicated above than at the State capital. A smart non-commissioned officer who is a good shot, boxer and all-round athlete would be an immense aid to an officer personally instructing militia. The ridiculous custom of electing company officers should be done away with. State authorities should try to induce men of local prominence to enter companies with a view of making them officers.—[Army and Navy Journal.

REVELATION OF OUR PROGRESS OPENS EYES OF THOUSANDS.

Exposition of Southern California's Manufactures Is Full of Wonders for the Crowds.

NOBLES with red fezes and streets ablaze with colors of La Fiesta do not absorb all the interest of the people. One factor there is which has such a substantial backing by the commercial and industrial bone and sinew of the city that it is attracting its thousands of visitors daily: This is the "Made in Southern California Exposition."

A success from the hour of its opening, the show has increased in attendance constantly, and its exhibitions have been augmented until the like has never been seen before on this Coast—certainly it is a revelation of the progress of Los Angeles and Southern California in the manufacturing line.

The exposition hall is the Panorama building, on South Main street. The interior of the mammoth structure has been transformed into a labyrinth of booths and aisles, each booth a magnet that attracts and holds the crowds until they become so dense that the outer edges fall away to immediately attach themselves to the next throng and so on until the circle of the building has been made.

VISITED BY THOUSANDS.

The opening night fully 8000 persons visited the exposition. Friday brought forth an attendance of over 10,000, and yesterday the records brought the figures up to 12,000.

There were visitors yesterday from many of the Southern California towns, and in the crowds were noted numerous Shriners, the advance members of the ingathering hosts.

The Catalina Island Marine Band gave an attractive programme yesterday afternoon and another last night. Tomorrow a new attraction will be a band of Apache Indians, who will carry on their basket weaving for the inspection of the public. The Catalina Band will play every afternoon and evening.

Today the exposition will be closed.

One of the striking features of yesterday was the playing of the electrical cascade erected by the Western Gas Engine Company. A high ledge of rocks, vine-covered and "woodsy" in appearance, is the setting for the cascade of waters which flow down over a glass bed that flashes forth prismatic colors constantly changing. Back of the cascade is the exhibit of the Western Gas Company which attracts constant attention.

As one enters the building the first attraction is found in Newspaper Row. Outside of the exhibition hall stand these booths, representing all of the daily papers of Los Angeles. Each is making some distinctive display of the operation of newspaper craft, and nothing in the entire display receives more notice than the booth of The Times, where the latest improved Mergenthaler linotype of the No. 6 model is in constant operation, casting name slugs for those who desire them.

MILK, WINE AND HONEY.

The famous "lily" cow which has attracted much notice on the streets is making a hit in the exhibit of the Pacific Creamery Company. The cow, gay with her high-class trappings, and with bitted bridle the same as used for a horse, is hitched to a mammoth can of the "lily" brand cream, while her driver, a handsome colored lad, in spick and span uniform, gives her close attention. The outfit is the center of a general exhibit of the goods of the Pacific Creamery Company.

Then, one is attracted by a flowing fountain of wine—a real fountain that sends forth real port, a boundless supply. This is the showing of the Southern California Wine Company, and at the base of the fountain, mingled with the rocks, lie the bottles of choicest vintage and carrying names well known to the connoisseur. The company has a maximum storage capacity for its products of 584,300 gallons of wine, and a reserve storage of 400,000 gallons. The various departments of its winery cover 55,750 square feet of space. It has a vineyard of 620 acres.

The land of milk and wine and honey! Sure enough, for here is the booth of H. J. Mercer, with a real hive of busy bees standing forth as the main attraction. The walls of this booth are lined with strips of beeswax pressed into shape as artificial foundation for honey. Here in Los Angeles is located one of the five institutions of the kind within the entire United States. From this city each year the Mercer concern sends out thousands of pounds of this beeswax foundation to bee men along the Coast and through the Western States. Here are shown fine displays of strained honey and honey in the comb; and yesterday the first crop of orange-blossom honey from Hollywood was placed on show.

An exhibit that always holds the crowds is that made by the Pacific Metal Works. Here there are in operation two can machines which turn out the small-sized cans so rapidly they cannot be counted. One of these machines has a capacity of 40,000 a day, while the other, known as the "squeezer," can finish up 15,000 cans a day. The capacity of the Pacific Metal Works plant, which is located in East Los Angeles, is 30,000,000 cans a year. It employs 110 men at present and in summer gives employment to 160 men and boys.

In the booth of the Los Angeles Pottery there is a potter's wheel in operation, and on this wheel Joseph Cantello, moulder, turns with his dextrous hands the most fascinating designs for vases, flower pots and baskets out of the white clay that is shipped here from Elsinore. Another attraction at this booth is the largest vase ever made in Southern California, the joint work of Messrs. Matthews and Cantello. It is ornamented with branches of pepper boughs in berry and is a work that is attracting unusual attention. This firm has been established in Los Angeles for the past six years and its ware finds a market all through Southern California and sections of Arizona.

PIONEERS IN SILK WORK.

A loom in which is woven yard-wide silk is the attraction at the space allotted the Los Angeles Silk Works. This concern is the pioneer in the silk industry of Southern California. It has the raw material shipped directly here from the Orient, and manufactures it here on a small scale, but has plans maturing for the extension of its plant. The concern is in charge of D. I. Newton, who for many years was connected with the silk-weaving industry at Paterson, N. J., and Meadville, Pa. He has six looms en route to Los Angeles for the new plant, which will probably be located opposite Eastlake Park, and which is to become one of the show places of the city.

The Murray M. Harris Organ Company shows the keyboard for the magnificent pipe organ to be installed in the new First Presbyterian Church at Pasadena, a keyboard two stops larger than the one of the famous organ in the Mormon Tabernacle at Salt Lake City. There is also shown in the Harris exhibit the main pipe for this instrument, thirty-two feet high, and measuring 24x27 inches. This instrument is to be installed at Pasadena in September. The Harris company is also making an exhibit of its piano player, manufactured at the new plant in East Los Angeles.

U. R. Bowers & Sons have in operation a paint-grinding plant that proves of much interest to the general crowd. This firm is giving out samples of its enamels which are ground on the spot. It is also showing an extensive line of paints and varnishes prepared here.

The Pioneer Roll Paper Company has a miniature cottage located underneath a scene of stormy clouds from which patters a heavy rain. The roof is always dripping wet, but turns the water "like a duck's back."

The Pacific Gem Company keeps a crowd interested watching the work of expert gem cutters who operate a complete lapidary's outfit. The Pridham Box Company makes boxes for the edification of the multitude, and the W. P. Jeffries Company has in operation its steel-plate presses, the same as used in the United States government work, and the only ones of the kind in Southern California.

At the Pacific Stove Company's booth there is a display of stoves that make an attractive showing of one of the city's rapidly growing industries. The record given here shows that for 1906 this concern turned out 14,000 stoves, 10,000 ovens, 2000 gas hot plates and 2000 camp stoves, and their market reaches out through Arizona and Nevada, down into Mexico, and up the Coast as far as Portland. The castings for this concern are made by the Axelson Machine Works of this city.

An attractive showing is that made by the American Olive Oil Company in charge of J. A. Gage. This concern will have an output of 25,000 gallons of olive oil, 1500 barrels of green olives and 25,000 cases of pickled olives this season. It will use 15,000 tons of fresh olives, and during the winter season gives employment to 200 persons.

The Bailey Ornamental Iron Company has erected two elevators and a spiral iron stairway, from the landing of which there is a fine view of the general exhibitions.

H. Raphael Company sets forth its fine art glass work, and in this booth are displayed several pieces of work designed and executed by Albert E. Brain. One especially handsome piece is a mosaic, "Music," in which delicate tints and artistic work are blended to form a piece of work that attracts close attention. This is to find a place in one of the handsome Los Angeles homes now under construction, and is valued at $1000. This concern employs twenty skilled men, and claims to handle work equal to any in the country.

The Z. L. Parmelee Company has an attractive showing of gas and electric fixtures and gas stoves made in Los Angeles, and is displaying many exclusive patterns.

HOUSE OF SOAP.

Probably no more artistic work can be found in the exhibition hall than that of the Los Angeles Soap Company's booth. The exhibit is made entirely of soap, and in its composition portions of toilet and laundry soap are used, there being almost 15,000 pounds of soap used altogether in the general design.

The pillars, counters, tops of counters, beams of ceiling, etc., are built of white and mottled Cocoanut Oil Soap. Of this character of soap 2500 pounds alone were used in its construction.

The base supporting the embossed trade-mark of the company, "The Mermaid Queen," is one huge piece of mottled soap, made of cocoanut oil and weighs 1000 pounds. The camel is carved out of a block of gray soap (Anvil Pumice stock) and originally weighed 1400 pounds, but in carving it out in the form that it now has, perhaps three-fourths of the weight was necessarily wasted. The base, or pedestal, which the camel stands on is a frame of soap weighing 900 pounds, made of Western Star Soap.

The emblems of the Shriners which are suspended from the beams are soap, various kinds and colors being used in the work. The round ball of soap suspended from the ceiling is solid soap, and originally weighed about 200 pounds, but reduced about 100 pounds in its present form, and is made of mottled Castile soap.

The display was designed and worked out by Samuel L. Boeckel, who has been connected with the Los Angeles Soap Company for over twenty years in the capacity of foreman in one of the departments, and he has at various times designed other exhibits for the company, which have been admired so much, particularly the exhibit of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association held at Hazard's Pavilion several years ago.

To the casual observer, it would not occur to them that so much work has been expended on some of this exhibit, but on the emblems and symbols of the Shriners, alone, much work is represented, requiring artistic skill, particularly on the camel, which was carved from a block of soap weighing 1400 pounds. The carving was executed by F. R. Leon, who occupies the position of sign writer for the Los Angeles Soap Company. Critics who understand this work pronounce it of a very high order.

WELL WORTH SEEING.

One might go on for an indefinite space, mentioning the various attractions of the "Made in Southern California" exposition, but the best advice is: Go and see. It will be a surprise to you, as it has been to hundreds of others, to have this ocular demonstration of the rapidly-increasing importance of the manufacturing industry here.

The list of exhibitors includes the following-named:

American Olive Company, Anti-oak Leather Company, Advance Buggy Company, Auto Vehicle Company, Tourist auto; Anita Cream, J. Avon (Marble Mosaic Company,) Bishop & Co., catsup, crystallized candies; Brownstein, Newmark & Louis; U. R. Bowers & Sons, paints; Bailey Ornamental Iron Company, Bowles Bros. & Co.; F. W. SOME CHOICE BULLS.

Mixed Metaphors and Crooked Sentiments Gathered from Varied Sources.

During her stay in Dublin, an American lady picked up the following in a store on Sackville street. She was buying some silk of a shock-haired youth, a terribly earnest salesman.

"I hope it will wear well," his customer said, as she fingered the goods.

"Is it wear?" echoed the wild one. "Sure; silk like that, ma'am, will last you forever, and make a petticoat afterwards!"

There seems to be something conducive to bulls in the Irish atmosphere. It was an aristocratic British Lord Lieutenant at Dublin Castle who commenced a pompous proclamation as follows:

"Whereas, the greatest economy is necessary in the consumption of all species of grain, especially potatoes——"

The well-known orators in Hyde Park, London, loud-mouthed Socialists, to whom a little learning often proves a dangerous thing, produce excellent specimens. Declaiming against landlords and capitalists, a red-nosed gentleman said, with savage cynicism: "If these were landed on an uninhabited island, they wouldn't be there ten minutes before they'd have their hands in the pockets of the naked savages!"

But this was easily beaten by a precious dictum of a French Senator during a debate in the Chamber on Morocco. With arms extended and eyes flashing, M. G—— thundered from the tribune: "All along the untrodden paths of the future we can see the hidden footprints of an unseen hand!"

An eminent Salvationist thus ventured into the thorny paths of metaphor: "We pursue the shadow," he said, mournfully, to the sobbing occupants of the penitents' bench; "the wretched bubble bursts, leaving only ashes in our hands!" Somehow it sounded like a conjuring trick!

"I hope, my lord," said a Cork squireen to the Earl of Kingston, his landlord, "that if ever you come within a mile of my house you will stay there all night."

"Your son," remarked a philanthropic district visitor to an old Irish woman in the East End of London, "seems an enterprising lad?"

"Indade, ma'am," was the reply, "an' since the worrid was a worrid there's bin no cleverer bhoy than my Mickey. Why, he's just made two chairs an' a stool out av his own head, an' has plenty av wood left for two more!"

Nor are even the greatest orators free from absurd slips. It was Mr. Gladstone himself who exclaimed in an impressive admonition: "We must not take our stand on the shifting sands of schemes which are hatched from day to day!" And it was a Liberal follower of Gladstone—not by any means an Irishman—who told the House during an Indian debate, "You may depend on it, sir, that the pale face of the British soldier is the backbone of the Indian army!"

"It would be better, Mr. Speaker," said a Scottish member of the British House of Commons, who spoke very rarely, "to give up not only a part, but, if necessary, the whole of our constitution in order to preserve the remainder." The same taciturn member on another occasion spoke bitterly of "amendments which make matters worse"!

During a debate in the German Reichsrath an important tax was under discussion and a Socialist member warned the government. Then turning to his followers he declared: "They'll keep cutting the wool off the sheep that lays the golden eggs until they pump it dry"!

"One drop of poison placed on the tongue of a cat," remarked the professor of chemistry in one of our own great universities, "would be sufficient to kill the strongest man"!

They used to tell at Quaritch's famous bookshop in Piccadilly a capital story about that great litterateur, the late Sir Leslie Stephen. "I'm in a hurry," he said, walking swiftly in one morning, "and want to see all the books you've got on the history of the world before the creation"!

An Irish showman under canvas in the suburbs of Limerick was much disappointed to find an audience one night consisting only of two elderly women and a small boy. Much perplexed to know what to do, he finally addressed them as follows: "Ladies and gentlemen, as there is nobody here I must dismiss you. I regret to say that tonight's performance will not be performed, but will be repeated tomorrow."—[New York Sun.

The Fiesta-Shriner Celebration.

Los Angeles will have the greatest number of visitors during this fiesta that has ever been entertained here, and those in charge are aiming to make the celebration the greatest ever. The floral parade will eclipse all past efforts. The night electrical show promises to be beautiful and attractive. The Shriner parades will excel, and the whole city will be beautifully decorated in flowers and the official colors of the fiesta. The Times will describe all the events in the most effective and attractive way possible. Many beautiful illustrations of special features will be printed from day to day. Loyal citizens of Southern California can show friends in the East and elsewhere how such things are done in Los Angeles by sending them copies of The Times during fiesta week. The great Fiesta-Shriner Number, to be issued May 11, will be mailed to any address, postage prepaid, for 10c, or the full fiesta week subscription, including this number, for 20c.

Special Low Rates East.

The Washington-Sunset Route has commenced the sale of tickets at reduced rates to Washington, D. C., New York and other eastern points, by way of the Jamestown Exposition at Norfolk, Va. An opportunity to visit Old Mexico at cost of 10c and stop-over at New Orleans available.

You better find out about this, 608 S. Spring street.

THE TIMES will issue on Monday, May 6, an eight-page colored comic section. It will be devoted exclusively to our Shriner friends, gotten up by special artists, and will be exceedingly amusing and interesting. This section will be issued to all regular subscribers, and will be for sale on the street at 5c per copy, or it will be mailed to any address, postage prepaid, for 5c.

"WEARS LIKE IRON."
THE ORIGINAL STAIN AND VARNISH COMBINED

The greatest factor in housekeeping economy.

OAK, MAHOGANY AND NATURAL JAP-A-LAC are three of the colors you can use on a WEATHER-BEATEN DOOR with magical effect. Doors become disreputable looking quicker than anything else about the home. They are constantly exposed to storms and weather changes. Few people know how easy it is to keep their doors spick and span with JAP-A-LAC. A few minutes' time in washing, and two or three coats of JAP-A-LAC, will put your door in as good condition as new—you will forget what the JAP-A-LAC cost when you see the result. Try it on your front door—your paint dealer will tell you how much you need. Sixteen colors—a thousand uses. Rejuvenates everything about the home from cellar to garret.

ALL SIZES FROM 15c to $2.50. For sale by paint, hardware and drug dealers. Ask for card showing beautiful colors, and illustrated booklet describing the many uses.

If your dealer offers you a substitute, say to him: "No, thank you; I want what I asked for. Good bye." Trade with the dealer who gives you what you ask for. That's JAP-A-LAC.

Exposition Week

IN HONOR TO OUR FIESTA VISITORS, AND TO further strengthen the mutual ties which exist between this establishment and the home lovers of Southern California, we have set apart the entire week of

May Sixth to Eleventh
As Special Exposition Week

It will be an open house occasion. We will be here to welcome you, to conduct you through the establishment and show you the many beautiful, exclusive things we have assembled in the way of furniture, carpets, rugs, draperies, wall papers, and all that pertains to home beautifying.

We invite you to come and bring your friends. We think you will find the exhibit one of the chief points of interest about the city.

There will be no suggestion, no thought of asking you to buy.

A special invitation is given the visiting Shriners to attend this exposition, which, we believe, will rank favorably with any such exhibit to be seen in the great metropolitan cities of America.

Money Project Unique in Angel City.

enty-five dollars a week is not a allowance for pin money. Most n in the ordinary walks of life struggle along on that amount if a woman can earn that much le attending to her household du- she is in a fair way to secure not the admiration of her husband, the envy of her circle in society incidentally, the hundred-and-one luxuries that a woman wants in way of wardrobe accessories, oc- nal trips and numerous other ex- s that come outside the regular e of living.

o bright women living in the out- s of the city in the Miramonte ict have solved this problem of ing their own pin money in a ly satisfactory and entirely agree- way. They raise sweet peas for flower market and just now are ing daily to the city 400 bunches he fragrant blossoms. They will nue to do so for weeks to come.

always loved flowers," says Mrs. Stevens, the senior member of firm, "and I enjoy this work—but it as easy as it sounds—of raising peas. It means a whole lot of but it pays and we are so inter- in it that it does not seem gery—even the staking and ditch- and all that. Whenever I feel or out of sorts I go out in my n and talk to my flowers and all roubles vanish like the dew."

three years Mrs. Stevens and her r, Mrs. Amy Elwell, have been ed in the business and they aver- n income of $25 a week each dur- he season of three months when eas are in bloom. Then there is a of several months when they t liberty to enjoy their pin money from July till seed time in Jan- there is little to do. This year planned to have the flowers in bloom in time for the Fiesta trade they have just taken an extra acre field to pick and market, so adds to their labors that they been obliged to put in extra . There is a knack in picking peas. A good picker can cut 100 es in an afternoon. It takes just stems and two pieces of green to ach and they are cut deftly off a sharp knife. "Scissors?" says pert picker. "Too slow, you can s fast again with a knife."

OVERALLS AND BOOTS.

se two energetic women do every f the work themselves, except the g during the rush season, when hire helpers. They plant the peas January and February, timing so that the season of bloom will ue as long as possible, one set g into bloom as another goes to For a few weeks the winter rains the irrigating and after that the ners have to hustle. Clad in over- nd tall rubber boots, two slender s armed with picks and shovels then be seen in the sweet-pea dextrously digging irrigating . No athletic college girl in "gym" suit is more fetching than two pretty matrons in their ranching "togs," with broad sombreros shading their flushed faces. "It beats bag punching all out," they declare.

Mrs. Amy Elwell
Mrs Edith Stevens

Two women who are making plenty of "pin money" out of sweet peas.

In April they begin staking the peas. "This is one of the most important things in the culture of sweet peas," say the fair gardeners, "if you don't stake them well you will have crooked stems and lots of the vines will get smothered down and you will lose thousands of blossoms. Then it saves backaches when picking time comes if the vines are trained evenly and made to grow straight and tall so you can cut the flowers without stooping."

"We get our stakes and brush from the prunings of the orchards near our place," says Mrs. Stevens, "and we cut and sharpen the stakes first and drive them well into the ground along the rows of peas. Then we make a rack by weaving the brush back and forth over the frames."

This week these two men will bring over 2500 bunches of sweet peas to the city florists, and that means 150,000 stems which will bloom in the great floral parade, helping to decorate the streets and floats.

BEGIN BEFORE DAYBREAK.

The picking for each day's market is done the afternoon previous and the bunches are placed in racks so arranged that about an inch of the stem end is in water. They are left thus until 4 o'clock the next morning, when the hustling gardeners are up and doing. They drain the water off so that the brittle stems will wilt a trifle in order that the bunches may be snugly packed for market without danger of breaking the stems. Large baskets that hold a hundred bunches each are so closely packed with the flowers that one could sit on the lid and not injure the blossoms. Promptly at 7 o'clock the baskets are loaded into the market wagon and one or other of the firm drives into town with the load of flowers.

For three months now this will be the regular routine of the harvest and then comes resting time.

"What do we do with our money?" laughed Mrs. Stevens. "Well, I travel somewhere usually after the season is over. Twice I have taken my two children and gone up North to Seattle and in the Yakima Valley to visit my people—there's plenty of ways to use the money."

NATURE OF PNEUMONIA.

When It Gets a Fair Start It Must Run Its Course to a Finish.

Pneumonia usually prevalent at this season, is at present reaping an almost unprecedented death harvest. So commonly are individuals attacked with the malady that the occurrence provokes little more than a sad and passing comment. The disease is supposed to be always associated with cold and inclement weather, and we take its infliction as a matter of course. It is only when it comes home to us that we realize its gravity and the usual result which awaits its invasion. Apparently it must make its dreadful score during our ever-changing winter climate, do what we may in the way of preventing an attack.

In taking chances the more we can learn of the real nature of the disease, its symptoms, tendencies and complications, the better we may realize the importance of such preventive measures as may be within ordinary reach. But, most of all, the proper recognition of the earlier symptoms, giving, as it does, the best hope for treatment, often turns the scale in safe directions. A main difficulty is that no one can tell whether or not a given "cold" will ultimately travel to the deeper parts of the lungs. Thus it happens that no cough, soreness of chest, chilliness or other evidence of even slight catarrhal troubles can be trusted these times. The only hope rests in the fact that it may go no further.

There can hardly be a doubt, however, that the prompt use of proper remedies for the preliminary "cold" may often save the day. The older the person the more careful she should be. But when once the pneumonia gets a fair start it must go to its finish. It is essentially a self-limited disease and must progress through its various stages either to recovery or death.

No matter how much time may be consumed in the preparation for the attack, the real onset of pneumonia is almost always abrupt and sudden, and is ushered in by a long and severe chill, quickly followed by pain in the side, short, painful cough, hurried and difficult breathing, "grunting" expiration. In the meanwhile the smaller air tubes in the deeper portions of the lung are being rapidly clogged by effusions in nature's effort to counteract and eventually throw off the infectious material.—[New York Herald.

An Unstable Foundation.

Rev. J. B. Hammill, the eloquent preacher of the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, was preaching Sunday at Sayville, L. I., from the text "Look well to your foundations." After repeating the text he leaned heavily on the pulpit desk, which gave way and plunged over the altar rail, nearly hitting the laymen in the front seat and scattering the Bible and the preacher's notes among the holders of the pews. The aged preacher barely escaped a tumble over the altar with the heavy desk.

MINES AND MINING.

SEARCHLIGHT PROGRESSING.

RECORD OF MOVEMENTS IN CAMP OVER STATE LINE.

Machinery Installed at Various Properties—Many Contracts and New Work Inaugurated—Stanley Forbes Extension Begins Development—Fortuna Shipping.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SEARCHLIGHT (Nev.) May 3.—At the Searchlight Mining and Milling Company, 400 feet west of the shaft, on the fourth level, a cross-cut run fifteen feet to the north has cut four feet of ore which will average better than $30 to the ton.

The importance of this strike is more appreciated when it is known that the vein cut is the old original one, designated as the Day and Landon. This vein runs almost due east and west, and its discovery led to the location of the property.

While the new discovery reveals a world of new ore still from the lowest level, it is apparent that the two veins are rapidly merging, and as a result an immense body of rich ore is expected to be rapidly developed. The two ores are identical in character.

The whole camp is jubilant over this latest strike, and following so closely after that made by the Duplex, the district has an added excitement, and activity is everywhere apparent.

The big steam hoist recently purchased from the Quartette Mining Company is now in place, and there remains only a few fittings and connections to be made and it will be ready to go into commission. Word has been received that the new Cameron pump, one having a capacity of 200 gallons per minute, and shipped out from New York, was caught in a washout on the Salt Lake Route, hence its late arrival. About 40,000 gallons of water are now being raised, just enough for milling purposes.

The main shaft now measures 340 feet deep, and the lowest workings are at 300 feet, just above water level. The Searchlight is today a great mine, but when sinking has been resumed and several more ledges added, there is no doubt but that its present value will be more than doubled.

At the Annette mine fine-looking ore has just been cut into in drifting on the 220-foot level. It is strongly oxidized, quite soft and closely resembles some of the best ore of this district. It has widened in going a distance of four feet from a feather edge to over two feet. A double shift is working.

MACHINERY INSTALLED.

At the Searchlight Consolidated, three miles to the north, the 25-horse-power Otto hoist is assembled and in place, also the 10-horse-power engine which runs the blower, lathe and other machinery. The complete buildings include the hoist-house, machine and blacksmith shops, storehouse and also the big gallows frames. It makes up one of the best development plants in the camp. The property will receive final inspection on next Sunday, and then J. N. Kennedy, the special installing engineer, will return to Philadelphia.

A. Rousselle of Los Angeles is preparing to finance the Royal group on the western edge of town, incident to the development of its ore bodies, and on the 20th inst. will leave for the East to lay the matter before capitalists in New York and Boston.

To the southwest of this the Boulder people have been doing some of the most extensive work in the district; to the west, a short distance, the Wyoming-Searchlight has opened a large ore body; and the Cyrus Noble and Parallel directly adjoin.

At the Techaticup, Eldorado Canyon, Superintendent Charles Gracey has let a contract for new work on the 250-foot level, below the tunnel. It provides for a cross-cut from the foot-wall side and towards the south for a distance of 100 feet.

The Philadelphia-Searchlight, six miles to the north, in its Black Dog shaft has at least forty feet of ore and just how much more remains to be determined. In sinking, the ledge was encountered at a depth of 296 feet. This has been sunk down through toward the footwall for a distance of forty feet and as yet there is no sign of the wall. Just what values this ore has is not publicly known, but it is reported to cary well in gold, silver and lead.

STANLEY FORBES EXTENSION.

Initial development work on the extension of the famous Stanley Forbes mine was commenced this week. No other announcement of like character could be made that would arouse keener or more general interest among old-timers in this district. The parent property has set a pace for richness and extent of ore body, that, foot by foot, has been hard to match, and it is well known that the trend and character of the surface croppings on the Extension indicates that it possesses the same lead that traverses the length of the main tunnel of the Stanley Forbes.

The location is barely three miles to the east of town on the eastern slope of the range, which is marked in its highest point by Fourth of July Mountain. Directly it occupies a long swelling breast of mountain slope which is remarkably symmetrical in topography. In the far distance is an unobstructed view of an enormous basin of country through which in its middle portion, like a mere ribbon, appears the sinuous course of the Colorado River.

The corporate title of the new concern is the Stanley Forbes Extension Mining Company. The president is Col. M. R. Moyer of Los Angeles; vice-president, Joseph McArthur, also president of the Stanley Forbes; secretary, J. J. Tyndal of Los Angeles, and L. J. Kaiser, director.

At the Santa Barbara, on the flat, the entire bottom of the shaft is in good ore. At this depth, 159 feet, everything horns well. There is likewise an improvement in the appearance and character of the ore and the present showing is declared to be the best in the mine.

FORTUNA SHIPS ORE.

The Fortuna Mining Company of Eldorado Cañon today shipped its first carload of ore to Needles smelter. Superintendent McKnight of the mine will accompany it. This ore, which was only taken out in the regular course of development, and is but an average from the two main shafts, is expected to run from $60 to $75 to the ton in value. It is a beautiful ore, being heavily oxidized and carrying considerable horn silver. It is mainly silver, although there are substantial gold values.

There are 750 tons more of the same sort on the dumps. This does not comprehend the contents of the treasure chamber or other similar lots, which values soar into the picture card class and into the thousands in value.

The shipment is made solely to verify the assay department, and on receipt of the returns the company will forthwith decide on the final details of a reduction plant of its own.

F. W. Willis of Los Angeles, the new superintendent of the Lloyd-Searchlight at Camp Thurman, reports that at a depth of 100 feet a crosscut has exposed six feet of good ore. The values, which on the surface were very free, are, however, turning base. A hoist has been ordered.

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The Shriners will not be the only visitors in town this week, for the mothers are coming, too. On Friday morning delegates to the National Mothers' Congress will arrive in a body. The congress will open that evening at the Ebell Clubhouse, which will be general meeting headquarters, with an informal reception for the officers and delegates from the East. The first session of the congress will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, when Mrs. W. W. Murphy, president of the California Mothers' Congress, will give a welcoming address, and Joseph Scott, president of the Board of Education, and Dr. E. C. Moore, superintendent of schools, will also extend greetings. Mrs. Schoff of Philadelphia, president of the National Mothers' Congress, will respond. Saturday evening Judge Lindsay of Denver and Judge Wilbur of this city will be the speakers, and the topic will be the Juvenile Court. Monday will be given over to a general conference and discussion on child-study circles, mothers' clubs, etc., and on Tuesday afternoon Dr. E. C. Moore and Edgar B. Gordon will be the speakers. Dr. Moore's topic will be "The Child in the Home, the State and the Nation."

One of the speakers during the congress will be Mrs. Theodore W. Birney of Washington, D. C., the prime-mover for, and the first president of, the National Mothers' Congress, which held its first session in Washington ten years ago.

TO GREET THEIR CHIEFS.

W. S. Rosencrans Camp, Sons of Veterans, will hold an open meeting Monday evening at Mammoth Hall, No. 517 South Broadway, for the purpose of informally receiving F. D. Wolfrom, junior vice-commander-in-chief, and Frank W. Leffler, division commander of the camps in California and Oregon. The two officers are making an official tour of inspection. The Ladies' Auxiliary will assist the members of Rosencrans Camp at the reception, which will be open to the public.

Sane Suggestions by Insane.

Dr. Buckley, editor of the Christian Advocate, in the course of his remarks before a conference in New York City last week said that some of his best suggestions for editorials came from persons shut up in asylums as lunatics. The listening brethren were audibly amused, whereupon Dr. Buckley said: "I knew you would laugh, but I want to say that some of the lunatics from whom I have received suggestions are as sane as some of you will ever be." The brethren felt no further inclination to laugh.

TROUT SEASON OPENS POORLY.

Water Too High and Catches Widely Scattered.

Streams Likely to Be Roily for Another Month.

Best Sport Reported Below San Gabriel Canyon.

With streams high everywhere and water so roily in many places that a fish could only recognize the presence of a fat worm by tasting it, the trout season opened rather dismally. Wednesday. Only the most venturesome anglers were afield, and only in exceptional cases did they meet with sufficient sport to earn a mess of rainbows for a morning's breakfast.

Swollen by the melting snows, and already gorged bank-full by last winter's protracted rains, the brooks in most sections were unwadeable, and the water took on a coffee-colored tinge. There was little use of trying the fly in places where no fish could see a fly before its face.

In the San Gabriel proper, from the canyon mouth up, practically no sport has been reported. The best catches have come from the Lower San Gabriel and some of the streams of the Santa Monica Mountains, excluding the Ventura county streams which are likely to draw more local anglers in a month than they have attracted thus far this season. Only two or three parties are known to have gone from this city to the upper Sespes.

Locally the best fishing has been predicted for the month of June, and the present poor quality of the angling is no cause for surprise or disappointment among the fly rodsters. The present scarcity is a fair guaranty of sport later on, as the conditions are, in the main, very favorable to the welfare of the trout, the high water being a surety of good supply all through the warm season and probably some good pools for the fly casters later on in places that ordinarily are shrunk to mud holes by midsummer. There is plenty of feed in the streams, the trout that have been caught showing plenty of fat, and good weight for their length.

The last few seasons have been very beneficial to the fishing, even the poor early sport being a good thing, as it serves to give the fish that much more time to establish themselves undisturbed, and prevents the practice of "[illegible]ring" or fishing before the legal date in a more effective manner than any number of game wardens.

The trout supply is believed to be excellent by those who are in the best possible position to know. The streams are all connecting strongly with the [illegible], and restocking is therefore possible. Trout run up into the headwaters to spawn, some varieties returning to the salt water and others remaining in the mountain streams. So favorable have the conditions been that it seems reasonable to expect that Southern California will yet take rank as a great section for trout fishing. Intelligent propagation is being agitated and the streams probably will be restocked annually by artificial means as a result of it, thus making sport doubly sure.

These favorable prospects are not confined to Los Angeles county, but are common to all the southern counties similarly situated. Ventura and Santa Barbara have some splendid trout streams, and sanguine reports have been received from all. The steelheads are running in the Ventura River, now, it is said, and have been been doing so for a month. Some good sized fish are to be caught there, and farther up other kinds of trout may be had also.

At present there is no great variation in the conditions affecting the Southern California streams, feed being apparently in considerable supply.

SOME GOOD CREELS.

Many of the trout anglers who tried the San Gabriel Cañon found the navigation there perilous. The stream is wide and deep, and the water too cold to make duckings pleasant.

The best sport was found by Guy Hill, Billy Ruess and A. T. Leonard, on the Lower San Gabriel at a place which they refuse to divulge, claiming it would be overrun by fishermen if they told of it. Ruess drove the party out in an automobile and arrived on the ground about four o'clock in the morning, which is believed by the anglers to have been the secret of their success. Ruess caught a baker's dozen of salmon trout, as the variety of fish are commonly known hereabouts, all being of very good size and none less than seven inches in length. Hill accounted for nine, one a seventeen-inch, pound-and-a-half fish. Leonard caught seven.

Ruess, proverbially lucky and always into trouble, had a typical day of it. Three trout nailed his flies at one clip, and the excitement proved too much for the volatile angler. Jumping onto a log which looked equal to the extraordinary demand being made upon it, Ruess essayed to fight his three fish, but the log buckled in the middle, and down to his armpits in the chilly brook plunged Wild William. Holding his gear above his head and playing out his fish in effective if not stylish manner, Ruess waded ashore and saved all three of his prizes. So saith Hill who was an eyewitness.

All of the party used flies with a liberal tipping of angle worm. The Red Ant was the most taking lure of the small assortment the trio had along, and proved a good killer, but the fish would not look at it except when worm-tipped.

Dr. Little and a party of six from Whittier were out on the stream, with fair luck, and a few other anglers were seen. Residents declare the water is higher than they have seen it any May Day for ten years, and the fishermen believe the sport will be a great deal better in another month, as the water will hardly be likely to clear before that time, if as soon.

Fred Hadley and a party of four from Whittier went into the Sespe country, as did Capt. Bradish. The Beal boys are also somewhere in the same locality. Judge Rose, Joe Welch and the other members of the old Pasadena brigade, got in their work with good success considering the conditions.

A majority of the anglers postponed their first trouting expedition until today and in consequence the streams probably will be unfishable from lack of elbow room. One needs only to take a look at the San Gabriel the first Sunday of the season to estimate that trout fishermen must form a large percentage of the population of Los Angeles.

THE EARNINGS OF AUTHORS.

MARK TWAIN AND DEAN HOWELLS HAVE LIFE CONTRACTS.

George Harvey, the Publisher of Harper's, Tells How He Helped Some Noted Authors to Continue to Do Good Literary Work When Times Were Discouraging.

Who is the best paid writer in the United States? George Harvey, publisher of books and editor of magazines, ought to know. The foremost authors of the day are on his pay roll, says James B. Morrow, in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Mark Twain," he instantly replied, when I asked the question. "No other man in the history of letters, either here or in Europe, has ever received 30 cents a word on a contract that is practically unlimited as to time, and absolutely without conditions as to subjects, treatment, or anything else. It is unthinkable that Mark Twain should write a story or article and have it rejected. Even in that inconceivable event, however, he would be paid 30 cents a word just the same. Put into language easily understood, 30 cents a word is equivalent to $360 per column in an average-sized newspaper.

"After he returned from his trip around the world, a journey he undertook when he failed in business as a publisher, Clemens could barely earn $6000 a year. I had a talk with him, which resulted in a contract to pay 30 cents a word for everything he wrote, whether it was printed or thrown away. No author had ever received more than 10 cents a word on a long contract. A. Conan Doyle, the Scotch writer and physician, was paid $1 a word within a year or two for a new series of detective stories, but the engagement was short, and a number of publishers were concerned. Mark Twain earns $50,000 a year. Indeed, I think his income in 1907 will reach $70,000.

EARNS $1000 IN THREE HOURS.

"Until recently he wrote wholly by hand. Quite unexpectedly he found that he could dictate to a secretary. He was as pleased over the discovery as was President Roosevelt when he happened upon Mount Sinai, Moses and the Ten Commandments. Now he lights a cigar after breakfast, sits down in his library and dictates for three hours on his autobiography. When he gets up he has earned $1000. He is a great man, and will live longer than Thackeray, who was verbose, for one thing, and whose vision was confined to a single phase of social development is a single country. Twain is world wide in his breadth of view. A man of critical judgment said, not long since, that he is the first novelist of the age. Whatever his rank may be, I am sure he will remain in our literature when brightest names have lost some of their splendor. He is now free from worry about money, and is at his best."

"Not a great while ago you called William Dean Howells the first man of letters in America. Why did you give him that distinction?"

"Because he is worthy of it. He is not the most popular author in the country, but technically he is the greatest artist. It is difficult to compare authors. Dickens, Scott and Thackeray were illustrious, but you cannot stand them in a row and measure them. Mr. Howells, like Mark Twain, is doing his finest work now, but the very best he is capable of is yet to come. As a craftsman in letters he is first among American writers. He loves to toil with words, and there never was a more painstaking workman. The other day I read the manuscript of a new novel he has written and noted his corrections. I am sure there were less than thirty. When anything leaves Mr. Howells' desk it is perfect in all respects—in art as well as in mechanics."

"Have you a contract with him?"

GAVE HOWELLS A CONTRACT.

"Yes, that is the reason he is surpassing his former brilliant achievements. Several years ago the change of literary and other conditions in this country brought a new school of writers into the foreground, and Mr. Howells was almost driven to pot boiling for a living. He came to my farm in New Jersey one day and we talked the subject over. Then we slept on it. After breakfast next morning I told him I would guarantee him a certain sum of money each year regardless of whether he wrote one line or 1,000,000. Men of genius must not be harassed by money matters. Mr. Howells accepted my proposal, and immediately entered upon the most fruitful period of his literary career.

"Neither Mark Twain nor Mr. Howells is ever told what to write. Either can choose any subject he pleases, write as much or as little as he thinks fit, and there his worry and responsibility ends. Talent ought not to be hobbled with orders and instructions. So it appears that both Howells and Clemens are making more money than ever before and literature is being enriched by their art. Each new book increases the sales of the old ones already on the market, and thus growing royalties give zest to labor."

"Has any author in America become rich by writing?"

"Not rich as money is counted today, but decidedly prosperous when gauged by the earlier standards of wealth in this rapid and prodigal country. I dare say that Winston Churchill made $400,000 on three of his stories. Mrs. Humphry Ward's royalties will range from $50,000 to $100,000 on every novel she writes."

"What kind of writing is most profitable to the author?"

"Fiction, by all odds. You can figure it out for yourself. It is customary to pay an author 20 per cent. of the selling price of his book. An edition of 100,000 copies at $1.50 each, means $30,000 in royalties. Half a million copies, and some stories have sold to that number, would give the author $150,000. However, no single book sells like that nowadays. Six or eight years ago it was different. The public has begun to discriminate, and the popular taste, if I may use the term, is much improved. More and better books are bought than ever before. Nevertheless, not one in five ought to be bought by anybody."

A LINK OF THE PAST.

Portions of the Written Coptic Language Found in Parchments at at Cairo.

While examining some sheets of parchment bought at Cairo for Coptic manuscripts Herr Carl Schmidt made a discovery of much importance to philology and history. The repetition of the word Uru, which, among modern Nubians, means king, convinced the German savant who is an authority on Coptic and the early Christian archeology of Upper Egypt, that the text was Nubian. This language still is spoken, but no longer written. The manuscripts date from the eighth century, A.D., and are translations from Christian works in which frequent references to Saint Paul are made. One manuscript is a collection of extracts from the new testament, and the other is a hymn of the cross. The Greek original of the hymn is not known. When the documents are deciphered philological science will be enriched by the knowledge of the language spoken by the Nubians before the invasion of the Semetic tribes and the mysterious inscriptions on many of the Egyptian monuments may be read.

TO beautify her home is the desire of every housewife. The things that count for most are the draperies:—curtains, couch covers and table covers.

These first meet the eye and give the impression by which the home is judged.

If the curtains, table and couch covers are "Artloom" the closer the inspection and the more critical the judge, the better they appear.

Make it a point to have Artloom Tapestries in your home. The rich designs and variety of patterns make a choice easy, and enable you to carry out any color scheme.

Their artistic beauty and wearing qualities are out of all proportion to their modest prices.

It is to your advantage to look for the Artloom label on all tapestries—it stands for Tapestry Perfection.

When you buy, buy Artloom Tapestries.

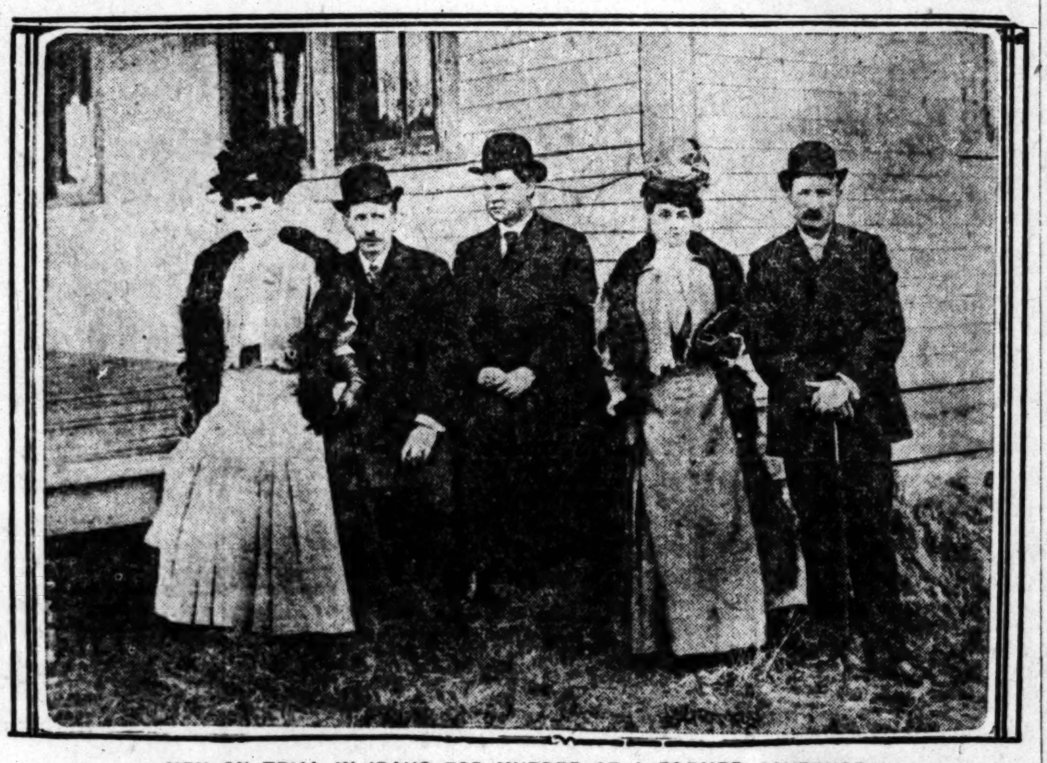
LAW-DEFIERS THROW GAUNTLET IN FAMOUS MOYER-HAYWOOD CASE.

The Trial Coming Off This Week at Boise City and the Events Leading Up to the Steunenberg Murder.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]



MEN ON TRIAL IN IDAHO FOR MURDER OF A FORMER GOVERNOR.

DENVER (Colo.) May 3.—Idaho is to begin a trial that will go a long way toward deciding which of the two is henceforth to be the stronger in the mining States of the West—government or anarchy. That is the date and place set for calling the case against President Charles H. Moyer, Secretary-Treasurer William D. Haywood, and George H. Pettibone, of the Western Federation of Miners, for instigating the murder of former Gov. Frank Steunenberg and hiring Harry Orchard, a member of the federation, to commit the crime.

On the outcome of this trial in a large measure depends the continuance of the Socialistic movement that the mining States of the Rocky Mountain section have been fighting with every resource at their command for the past fourteen years, and which has gone on in spite of the law and armed forces of the States, committing murders, intimidating courts and officers of the mining camps and even defying in no uncertain terms the authority of the United States government.

This defiance has been continued in the face of the efforts of half a dozen States to bring the organization amenable to the laws, in open conflict at times with the State troops, by overriding the laws and influencing by political strength courts to dismiss all charges of every nature brought against members of the organization, be the charges for murder of individuals or groups or the scarcely less common one of ore theft.

Fresh on the heels of a defeat in Colorado that was only accomplished after more than a year of employment of the State troops, ending an armed defiance that culminated in the murder of fourteen miners by one dynamite blast and was ended only when the State troops were employed in wholesale deportation of the federation rioters from the State, the federation, according to the confession of Orchard, turned its attention once more to the State of Idaho, from which it had been driven by Federal troops acting under the direction of President McKinley, and reopened its long standing grudge against that State with the murder of Steunenberg. Steunenberg had been Governor of Idaho at the time the Federal troops debarred all federation men from employment in the State, and did in effect all that Colorado did years after by the force of its national guard.

FOREWARNED.

Steunenberg had long known that he was a marked man on the federation rolls. On the last day of the year 1905, as he was entering the yard of his home in Caldwell, he was blown to pieces by an infernal machine set to be exploded by the opening of his gate. Suspicion at once rested on Harry Orchard, a stranger who had been stopping at a local hotel for some weeks without visible means of support. Orchard was arrested. In his pocket was found a New Year's card he had prepared to mail to Charles H. Moyer, president of the federation at Denver. On the card Orchard had written, "Happy New Year, Moyer." The Steunenberger murder had been accomplished.

James McParland, the Pinkerton detective who gained international repute many years ago through breaking up the Molly Maguire organization in Pennsylvania, was put upon the case by the State of Idaho. The work fell naturally to McParland, for the reason that the federation which was held for the Steunenberg murder had had its inception in the remnant of the Molly Maguire organization which had drifted into the Coeur de'Alene section of Idaho after McParland broke them up in Pennsylvania and sent a score of the leaders to the gallows. McParland visited Orchard in prison, worked upon his sympathies, appealed to his boyish sentiments and got him into a frame of mind in which he expressed himself willing to confess all.

The confession that came startled the peace officers of half a dozen States. It cleared up murder mysteries that had worried the police from Denver to San Francisco for years. Of one after the other Orchard told, how he and associates had been employed to commit one murder after the other out of a combined desire on the part of federation leaders to work vengeance on those who had opposed it or to attract the attention of the Socialists of the world and lead them to contribute money to the propaganda which Moyer and Haywood was conducting against the property owning class of the world. Walter Wellman had months before secured from Haywood a frank confession that his object in creating strikes was to raise a fund of a million dollars. He had already raised at that time half a million from the union sympathizers of Eastern States and his plan was to keep up the agitation until he got the full amount. Orchard's testimony fit well with this statement of Haywood. Orchard told how Haywood would complain that things were getting quiet, that something had to be done; "we must pull off a big one," Haywood would say, and a few days after some millionaire of Denver or some man in political position would be marked for slaughter. Orchard told of having missed in several attempts, of succeeding in others.

WHY MARKED.

It was in line with this idea of keeping the agitation stirred up sifficiently to keep funds coming in from Eastern unions that Steunenberg was marked to be killed. Steunenberg had waged a successful fight against the organization and it was up to it to prove that it could punish those who dared oppose it in the name of the law. Orchard said that he and L. J. Simpkins were sent to Caldwell to do the job; that Simpkins planned it and then got away, leaving Orchard to fall into the law's clutches. Orchard told of many crimes in which he had been the principal, cleared up the details of all the many murders that had been committed in Colorado, at Cripple Creek and Telluride; told of a murder he perpetrated with a bomb in San Francisco, killing an old enemy made in the Wardner fight, a crime that had been explained away by the police as having been an accident due to the explosion of a leaking gaspipe. Orchard had been definitely fixed upon as the man who blew up the Independence depot in Cripple Creek on June 4, 1904, and killed fourteen men, while maiming six others for life. He had been wanted for that crime, but had kept out of reach until his arrest in Idaho. He confessed that he pulled the wire and also cleared up other murders committed during the Cripple Creek strike.

Idaho was determined to punish the men responsible for the murder of Steuneberg. It felt that it was more than an ordinary murder; it was an assault upon the law of the State, upon the right of a State to punish lawbreakers; also it was the reopening of a fight that had cost the State bitterly in the past. In every way the murder called for the assertion of every power the State possessed.

LAWLESSNESS IN IDAHO.

To understand the situation it may be necessary to review the experience Idaho had had with the Western Federation. For years the Coeur d'Alenes had been the scene of lawlessness. The miners held control and dictated terms to mine owners and peace officers pretty much as they would. Six years of bushwacking war centering in Wardner, Idaho, opened on July 3, 1894, with the murder of John Kneebone, shot in broad daylight by forty Federation miners armed with rifles and shotguns. Superintendent Neil, Foremen Crumer, Frank Higgins and Charles West, non-union men, were forced to leave the country under threat of death. Ten days later an attempt was made to dynamite the Bunker Hill power-house; at intervals of years hundreds of men at different times were beaten, marched out of camp at point of guns; on March 10, 1896, a second attempt was made to blow up the Bunker Hill; bushwhacking continued, men were advised by President Boyce of the Federation to form rifle clubs and five days later the Federation took forcible possession of the State armory at Mullen, captured forty-six rifles and 10,000 rounds of ammunition; non-union men working in the mines were constantly being attacked and beaten; on December 27, 1897, F. D. Whitney, non-union foreman of the Helena-Frisco mill, was murdered; April 29, 1899, 1000 Federation men, armed with rifles, took possession of a train and went to Wardner, drove off all non-union workmen, placed 3000 pounds of dynamite under the Bunker Hill-Sullivan mill and completely wrecked the $250,000 plant. They captured non-union men and beat them up; ordered them to run and fired into them as they did so, killing two. The only excuse for it all was the mine refused to employ non-union men who were non-union for the sole reason that they would not join the Federation.

In their papers the federation boasted of this work. There was no attempt to deny having done it—they gloried in it as a triumph for the federation. The Idaho State troops being in the Philippines, Gov. Steunenberg called on the Federal government for troops to protect property. Under that protection the non-union miners and the mine owners strengthened themselves against assault, the federation was stamped out and has never since been permitted to gain a foothold in Idaho. The commander of the Federal troops arrested every federation sympathizer, threw all in a bull-pen, made an investigation of each and issued an order that none should ever again be given employment in the mines of that State.

President McKinley was soundly abused for allowing the troops to be sent; during their occupancy of Wardner, federation miners in Cripple Creek howled down now President Roosevelt when he was attempting to speak in the very hall in Victor, Colo., which was later made the bull-pen for the temporary incarceration of federation rioters, and would not let him make a speech in quiet because President McKinley had dared interfere with the inherent right of the federation to override all law in the destruction of men and property they could not control. They jeered and hooted, and denounced the President of the United States in exactly the same way they later denounced the Governor of Colorado, and for the same reason.

A "DEFI."

Thus it will appear that in the murder of Steunenberg the federation was but again throwing down the gauntlet to Idaho. For it to carry off the murder of the former executive unchallenged was to permit it to again declare itself supreme in the mining camps and reopen its bitter warfare against the independent miners who since the expulsion of the federation from the State by Federal troops had been enjoying years of peace and prosperity on the best of terms with their employers and each other.

Idaho declared that the murder of Steunenberg should be avenged. It was to that end McParland was employed to get at the root of the matter. When the Orchard confession was secured, the next step was to arrest the men Orchard had named as the head of the conspiracy. Moyer, the president; Haywood, the secretary-treasurer, and by many considered the real brains of the organization, and George Pettibone. This last name came as a surprise to those who thought themselves most familiar with federation methods. Pettibone had never been mentioned before. He was ostensibly running a small store in Denver for the sale of household articles to agents. Orchard identified him as a ringleader in all murder plots, the go-between and the one whose interest appeared to be purely love of the work and financial. Requisition papers were issued. An Idaho sheriff came to Denver and made the arrests. The Orchard confession was revealed; the need for secret work to catch the men and get them out of the State was realized, as federation ways are feared by the officers. The fear of a plot to take the men by force, of wrecking the train—all sorts of such opposition were to be considered. It was decided to rush the men to Idaho by special train. Moyer was caught in a sleeping car at the union depot heavily armed; he was preparing to get away, and when arrested attempted to pull guns on the officers. Haywood was arrestd in the company of a woman in a house of ill repute and consented to go without protest; Pettibone was found at his home; the three were put on a special train under requisition granted by the Governor of Colorado, and taken to Idaho to prison.

SAME OLD CRY.

At once the old hackneyed cry that the corporations, mine owners and upholders of the property class had committed some awful crime in taking the arrested men from Colorado. The old cry was lifted for money for the defense of the arrested men. Cash began to flow in by the thousands of dollars. Eastern union men, ignorant of the true character of the accused, Socialists indifferent to the character, but making the arrest a caues for protest, began sending in money for "a defense fund." Eugene Debs raised his voice for a million men to march to Idaho and demand the release of "the innocent friends of labor who were about to be sacrificed to the vengeance of capital."

How many hundreds of thousands of dollars have come in cannot be told. It is said to be between $400,000 and $500,000 at this time and is still being acknowledged in the official organ at the rate of about $2000 a week. With this fund, called by one side the defense and the other the corruption, every effort is being made to prevent the conviction of the prisoners. Clarence Darrow, the Socialist lawyer of Chicago, is one of the attorneys. E. F. Richardson, for years the defendant of the Denver coterie at headquarters, another. Every appeal and stay known to the law has been tried to delay the trial. An appeal was taken to the United States Supreme Court on habeas corpus proceedings, claiming that the men had been illegally arrested and taked from Colorado. The Federal Court held that whatever the justice of the contention, the men were properly under arrest in Idaho and dismissed the complaint. Since then there have been numerous intimations of the illegal use of the enormous fund in creating public opinion in Idaho and making it impossible to secure a conviction. The old inflammatory charges that innocent men are being railroaded to death because they have dared to take the stand of the poor against the rich, has been assiduously injected into the minds of the agricultural community where the trial is to be held and whose people know little about the nature of the Federation and is ripe to believe the old cry. It has been openly charged that agents in Federation employ have been approaching possible jurors and hiring them to work for the release of the men under arrest; every possible way to distribute money and prepare for an acquittal has apparently been employed. The coming trial has found a way into politics and political prejudices are dividing Idaho into parties for and against the accused, even before the day for the trial has come. Also it is charged now that the indictment of Senator Borah, the attorney for the State, has been effected through political debasement of the Grand Jury for no other purpose than to weaken the case of the State.

NO STATE'S FUNDS LIMITED.

The State is limited in the funds available for the prosecution. It is apparently working solely for justice and, contrary to all reports made for a purpose, has not had a dollar of assistance from anybody. The statement is often made by the Federation forces that the mine owners of Colorado are arrayed in the fight; it can be positively stated that not a dollar has been contributed in any way by any citizen of Colorado; Idaho is making the fight alone. Should it be defeated, as there are many chances it may, then Colorado will probably assert its claims on the defendants for a score of murders committed in the State, but until it is proved which is the stronger, justice and the laws of Idaho or the Western Federation of Miners, law or anarchy, the State of Colorado nor the mine owners will do nothing to influence the trial.

All the West will be interested in the outcome. It is generally conceded that the fate of the new mining camps of Nevada, now in a state of siege because of differences between the Federation and the mine owners over the matter of the right to steal the high-grade ores from the mines, will be held in abeyance pending the outcome of the trial at Boise. If Haywood and his associates come off victorious in the hearing, there is no knowing to what extremes they may go. Their victory would make them masters of the Nevada field and call to them the millions of eastern sympathizers as a fund for aggressive action toward the goal to which they are working—the complete confiscation of every mine in the country.

ARIZONA ORES FOR NEEDLES.

SMELTER ONLY ONE HANDLING COPPER AND LEAD.

Humboldt Will Take Only Copper and Mines Within Ten Miles of Its Plant Ship to Southern California—Town on Colorado River Will Be Great Smelting Point.

The Needles smelter is drawing trade from Arizona districts within ten miles of the Humboldt plant of which so much has been told. The cause is that the Needles plant, while comparatively small as yet, is prepared to handle both copper and lead ores. The Humboldt smelter will treat only copper and has no furnace for lead. It has even shipped lead ores from its plants to Needles for treatment. The distance to Needles is about 200 miles.

The old Needles smelter, which the present company bought from a defunct Los Angeles corporation, was only prepared to handle lead. The copper furnace has just been started. As the two kinds of ore are about equally divided there is need for both.

A. Popkees, who is operating the Spar group of ten claims, is in the city endeavoring to effect an arrangement with the Santa Fé for better rates. He is shipping fifteen tons a day from Mayer where he has been at work only six months on a prospect. He is within ten miles of Humboldt but having copper, gold, silver and lead to handle, he can do no business there. At first he shipped to Deming, N. M., paying $6 a ton, but to Needles the rate is only $2, the distance being about one-fourth as great. At present the Santa Fé, however, gives a rate of $1.50 from Mojave, Cal., which is further.

Mr. Popkees has determined to organize a stock company upon his holding and incorporation under Arizona laws has just been effected under the name of the Spar Mining Company, with a capitalization of $1000.

The Poland Tunnel Company, located a few miles from this property, is also shipping to Needles.

The fact is that Needles is the only point where both ores can be handled in a district comprising all Southern California, Southern Nevada and Northern Arizona, hundreds of miles square and abounding in both varieties, besides zinc, for which at present there is no provision. Well-informed mining men freely predict that the town on the Colorado is destined to become within the next two years the leading smelting point of the Southwest. Probably nothing has stimulated development so much as the smelter's reopening under the present management.

RIGBY WORKS CLOSED.

The Rigby reduction works near Mayer are at present shut down. The company recently underwent a change of management, Col. Rigby retiring as president. The plant was built to handle highly silicious ores by a process of volitilization, but does not seem to have yet made a commercial success. It has worked and shut down alternately for some time.

Credit for Liquid Fuel.

The London Times is informed that the steamship Goldmouth, a vessel which burns liquid (petroleum) fuel, recently arrived at Thameshaven after a passage from Galik Pappan, in Borneo, a distance of over 12,000 miles, without a stop. The revolutions averaged 54.3 and the speed throughout the passage averaged over nine knots. This is the third non-stop run made by this vessel while burning liquid fuel, the first being from Singapore to Rotterdam in May-June, 1906, and the second from Singapore to Thameshaven in September-October, 1906. Probably there is no other recorded instance of a single vessel having made three non-stop runs of such duration with liquid fuel.

IN DEFENSE OF RAILWAYS.

Prominent Official Protests Against Outcry.

He Suggests Strict Obedience to Law as Remedy.

Government Control Idea Is Subject of Sarcasm.

Adrian H. Joline has recently been elected chairman and president of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway Company. At the annual meeting of the board of directors of this company, which took place at Parsons, Kan., April 4, 1907, the new railroad president and chairman of the board of directors delivered an address to his fellow-directors. This sets forth the views of the prominent railroad man as to the relations of the railroads to the government and to the public under the laws of the land. A great deal of what Mr. Joline said is impressively wise. Some things which he advanced are justly subject to discussion and controversy.

This address undoubtedly makes out an excellent case for the railroad over which the speaker is called upon to preside. Had he been disposed to do so, he might have gone further and made out, probably, quite as good a case for all the roads in what is known as the Gould system. It is a matter which ought not to be lost sight of, in these days of bitter criticism of railroads and of so much controversy between the roads, the government and the public, that the Gould roads have come in for no share of the condemnation visited upon other roads by the President of the United States or any other person in high authority. They have escaped very generally from public criticism. Complaints are seldom heard from the patrons of these lines at any point in the country. They are conspicuously prominent in this respect just at the present time, when so many grave offenses are charged against other railroad lines and their managers.

The following quotations from the address of Mr. Joline will give a comprehensive view of what he has to say about railroading in general, and his own railroad in particular:

"In spite of our prosperity, we are troubled. I do not mean that we are troubled by the spasms and contortions of the stock market, which that great thinker, Mr. Carnegie, seems to think is the only place which is affected by the prevailing indifference to property rights. There is no stock ticker in the offices of the M., K. and T., and the comments of the Carnegies and the comic papers do not wring our withers. This road is run to serve the public well and thereby to serve its owners well; not to enable some so-called Napoleon of finance to amass a colossal fortune. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway has produced no plutocrats, as far as I know its history. No one connected with it has ever been guilty of enormously increasing the output of stock and bonds in order to lure an innocent public into incautious investment. . . ."

ROAD'S HONESTY SET FORTH.

"I assert that the managers of this road have never done anything to delude anybody or to get anything out of anybody to which they were not fully entitled.

"During the past few weeks a number of our more distinguished railway presidents and high officials have been giving painful public expressions of their views and feelings—most of them of a nature semi-apologetic; craving indulgence; confessing past sins; promising better behavior in future; lementing, in the case of one of them who has or ought to have very full inside information—the alleged sin of over-capitalization. I am not assuming to be as wise as any of them, nor am I vain enough to criticise them. All that I can say is that, having read these statements and interviews, I am satisfied with my own silence.

"I am confident that no one can dispute the correctness of any of these assertions. Credit is the corner-stone and foundation of all business; and when you have the cruel and unthinking hammer of the labor unions striking you on the one side and the reckless and unprincipled hammer of the political demagogue striking you even more mercilessly on the other side—what becomes of your credit? I am not going to waste time in discussing the reasons for the prevailing injustice to railroads. I have my own ideas, but they may not accord with yours. It profits us little to argue academically about causes, when we are face to face with facts and the problem is not what produced them, but how we shall deal with them.

"We hear a great deal about 'coöperating with the government.' I am unable to find in the Constitution or the laws any provisions which affect or regulate coöperation between the government and the private citizens who carry on their business under the laws. The only way to coöperate with a government is to try to obey the law, however silly the law may be; to obey it not only in the letter, but in the spirit, as well as a law can be obeyed when you consider that you are obliged to trust to many thousands of agents of varying and often limited capacity, who have most of the infirmities of man and who are neither angels nor infallible mortals. No doubt under government ownership with politicians in charge of our roads the operation of our lines would be ideal; there would never be any accidents; any man who wanted a car could have it just when and where he wanted it, and keep it as long as he wanted to; every one could have a train start at his favorite time and stop whenever he wanted to get off; every one could have his own particular freight carried to just the place it was intended for and delivered at the moment, without reference to any conditions of weather, track or traffic; and as a result large dividends would be paid to the public out of the public's own pocket. Our experience with the operation of government-conducted enterprises, here and in foreign countries, tells us that it would all be as I have said.

CALLS BRYAN "SUPERFICIAL."

"A few days ago I was much interested in reading a communication to Mr. Whitney of Boston by the most prominent advocate of public ownership of railways before the public, a man who is believed by many sincere and excellent gentlemen to be a great man, and for all I know he may be

SHADOWS FALLING ON A SUNNY LIFE.

BY A. M. ROW.

MR. AND MRS. FRANCIS MURPHY
On the portico of their home in this city.

COMPELLED to cease active work on account of almost total blindness, Francis Murphy, the same happy, care-free, courteous Murphy, who has probably more personal acquaintances than any other man in the world, rests quietly at his beautiful home on Westmoreland Heights, this city.

It is pathetic to think that after preaching the gospel of temperance for thirty-seven years, during which he traveled all over the civilized world, and secured the signatures of perhaps 16,000,000 people to his famous pledge, this remarkable man may be called upon to spend the sundown of his glorious life in darkness.

Reveling midst the beauty and fragrance of roses; basking in the perpetual sunshine of Southern California; tenderly watched over by a loving, tactful, accomplished wife and most charming hostess; surrounded by children and grandchildren, who worship at his shrine; sought and admired by hundreds of lifelong and new-found friends; cheery, gracious, tender; redolent with Irish wit and touching pathos; thus shimmer out, like the last golden rays of an autumn sun, the joy-crowned years of sunny Francis Murphy.

With outstretched hand, smiling face, gracious manner; with brotherly love inconceivable, we see this laurel-crowned victor over self, this conqueror of the affections of men, standing at the threshold of his rose-embowered fortress where every guest is a prince to whom the host and hostess pay homage, with courtly grace bidding you a cordial welcome.

FITTING CLIMAX.

It is a fitting climax to the life work of the most famous temperance advocate in history, the miracle-made orator and prince of peacemakers, that his sun should find its setting amidst such joyous surroundings of peace, quiet and prosperity.

Francis Murphy still bubbles with very joy, notwithstanding he seems doomed by providence to spend his days in total blindness, due to cataract, and his physicians have insisted upon his retirement.

Never was there a better exemplification of his now famous pledge than in the life of its creator. "With malice toward none and charity for all," has led this once simple, uneducated Irish lad to the top of the ladder of fame, and has been the motto that opened to him the hearts and homes of rich and poor alike.

In Los Angeles during these recent years, he has been the recipient of every honor at the hands of her citizens; has been a speaker at almost every public function—military, civic and religious; has preached in the most prominent pulpits by invitation of the pastors, though not an ordained minister, and has been the almost constant guest of honor at the tables of the most exclusive circle, as well as in the homes of the humblest citizens.

Mr. Murphy came to Los Angeles in the spring of 1902, having just returned from a campaign in Australia, and after a series of enthusiastic meetings in this city, he was induced to settle down here in a permanent work, holding a meeting in Blanchard Hall every Sunday night. This was the first time in his career he had undertaken such a thing and he was full of misgivings, but from first to last, the meetings have been phenomenally successful.

The Murphy home is built to catch the sun, and is surrounded with roses, shrubs and beautiful flowers, for Murphy is tenderly fond of the fragrant blossoms. Who has not heard him say:

"I've no hankering for flowers after I'm dead; if you have any bouquets, please throw them at me now. I don't have any use for people who can think of nothing good to say about a fellow when he's living, but as soon as he is dead they come around and look at him, shove out a bunch of posies and say: 'Smell o' these.' "

ORDAINED FOR WAR.

Many times since Murphy has lived in Los Angeles, the Methodist ministers, of which church he is a member, have wanted him to agree to be ordained to the ministry, but he has never consented, believing that he could reach men better in his own unique way.

On the walls of his favorite "den" hang the pictures of his children and grandchildren, and one other—a large portrait of Gov. Daniel H. Hastings, of Pennsylvania, now deceased.

Murphy was very fond of Gov. Hastings, and only the other day told me with much relish and elaboration of Irish humor, how the Governor circumvented the army regulation that requires every chaplain to be an ordained minister of the gospel.

Years before Murphy became a temperance advocate, he had served for three years as a private in the Ninety-second New York Infantry, during the Civil War. He was then a husky Irish lad, nine years an American citizen, but intensely loyal to his adopted country, a characteristic that has marked his utterances on the platform during all his life since then.

When Gov. Hastings called for troops during the Spanish-American War, and the Fifth Regiment was about to go to the front, Murphy was in Pittsburgh. His soldier-blood got heated and he wrote to the Governor offering himself for any service the latter might wish. The answer came a few days later, in the form of a telegram requesting Murphy to meet the Governor at Bedford Springs.

"I was there the next day," said Murphy. "The Governor met me with his carriage and we drove to the hotel, where a lot of people were waiting to see him. He put them all off and finally said to the last fellow: 'I've got important business to attend to with 'Chaplain' Murphy, and I must do that first.'

"Up to this time I hadn't the least idea what he wanted with me, and things seemed to be getting pretty serious. When we got off alone in a room he said to me:

" 'I know every boy in the Fifth, and I want you to go with them as chaplain and look after them.'

"I thought I'd better make a clean breast of it right away, so I told him I was not an ordained minister, and that it would be impossible for me to accept the appointment.

" 'That's all right,' said the Governor; 'I'll ordain you. Come out here under this tree.'

"So we went out under a big chestnut tree, and he says: 'Take off your hat.'

"He laid his hand on my head and said: 'May God bless you and make you a father to every boy in the regiment. Now,' he says, 'you're ordained,' and I accepted his verdict and went with the Fifth."

Murphy was with the regiment during all the months it laid in camp at Chicamaugua, never having been sent to the front, and was mustered out at the close of the war.

With royal grace and beaming face, he wears on his lapel the badge of the Loyal Legion, combined with his own "Murphy Blue."

STICKS TO HIS FRIENDS.

Much has been said and written of Francis Murphy, but the humility, tenderness and patience of this remarkable man is understood by the few. Only those who know him intimately appreciate at its real worth the unwavering warmth of his great heart.

The glamour of popularity that has surrounded him for so many years, making him the close associate of the most eminent men and women in the world, has never won him away from his lowlier friendships.

Only those in the "charmed circle" about him know of his deeper feelings, and only these have known that during all the years he has lived in Los Angeles, he has been practically blind in his right eye and that some time ago it became totally dark, while the other admits but a glimmer of light.

"Get around on this other side, dear, so I can see your face," has been a common remark to his intimates.

Others will recall how they have been seemingly overlooked, though standing close to his right side, and some of them have been perplexed to understand, when he suddenly turned and with his heartiest manner, greeted them and expressed surprise at their presence.

His two daughters, Mrs. Wayland Trask and Mrs. Josephine Holmes, both widows, formerly of New York city, finding that their father had determined to reside permanently in Los Angeles, also removed here and purchased homes near his. They and their children have brought a new ray of sunshine into his life, and have added immensely to the joy of his latest years.

The Old Brick Oven.

In Canada the French settlers still continue to use large brick ovens out of doors such as were built in France 250 years ago. The perfection of the stove and range in the last fifty years has driven many of these ovens out of commission, but many of the habitants think that no good baking can be done in any other oven. Its use is simple. A fire is made in the oven of good hard wood, and when the oven is exceedingly hot the ashes are raked and the large loaves ready to bake are placed on the bottom of the oven without pans. This method of baking makes a very thick croute or crust. As all of the natural elements of the grain are left in the flour, the bread is dark in color.—[The Travel Magazine.

IN THE BIG INDUSTRIES.

Big Texas Sugar Mill.

The Ohio and Texas Sugar Company has been organized, with a capital of $1,500,000 for the purpose of building a big sugar mill at Brownsville, Tex. Construction is to begin soon, and the plant is expected to be ready for operation, with a daily capacity of 1000 tons, by next October. Sugar cane is being successfully grown near Brownsville, and it is reported that 3000 acres will be in cultivation next year.

Cardboard from Grass.

A new industry at Mobile, Ala., is the manufacturing of cardboard from the swamp grass found in quantities near Mobile. The grass is similar to the esparto grass of Africa, large quantities of which are used for paper manufacture in Europe. The plant will be built by a company now being organized, with a capital stock of $100,000. Careful experiments with the swamp grass have been made during the past year.

Power from Bay of Fundy.

An important scheme is on foot to utilize the tide in the Bay of Fundy for power purposes. A company has been formed, and its aim is to harness the Tantramar River at a point near Sackville. It is believed that 75,000 horse power can be developed. Three dams will be needed in generating the power. Each will be concrete, and will be sixty feet high. In length they will be 1000 feet. The power-house will be of the same height as the dams. Its length will be 800 feet and its width forty-two feet. By means of the dams a reservoir and a discharge basin will be formed, the latter having the capacity of the reservoir. Turbines placed in the dam will give the power as the reservoir and basin empty and fill. A continuous flow of water is to be assured by the cutting of the channel in a narrow neck of land between two curves in the river.

THE LAST MAN, OR THE WALKING DELEGATE.

I am the famed New Zealander
Of whom Macaulay wrote,
And I have cruised around the world
In my own private boat
A-visiting of London Bridge
And other things remote.

'Twas after I had finished with
The ruins of St. Paul's
I turned to cross the Atlantic Sea
In spite of waves and squalls,
To study the traces of vanished races
And see Niagara Falls.

This was the land, you understand,
That once was owned in fee
By folks who worked and never shirked
And worshiped Liberty;
A nation that became extinct
In the twentieth century.

From time to time strange rumors came
About their wondrous doom,
Until at last we heard no more;
So I resolved to come
And with my own eyes see the truth
And tell the same at home.

I steered my vessel up the Bay,
Once famous, and still fair;
A prostrate statue barred the way
That erst a torch did bear;
Its torch was in the water and
Its heels were in the air.

I floated slowly up beside
A long-deserted pier,
When at the gangway I descried
A sign, as I drew near,
Upon a signboard, old and dried,
"Boycott! No landing here."

"Boycott!" Methought I knew the word;
It was some sort of pest
That in the past, as I had heard,
Went sweeping through the West
Scaring one-half its victims dead
And starving all the rest.

No matter! Time will disinfect
The most contagious airs;
I put my respirator on
And washed and said my prayers,
And, boldly stepping to the pier,
Went up the rotten stairs.

An empty town, whose dreary wastes
At human grandeur scoff,
But stay! An aged figure hastes
With many a wheezy cough,
Waving its lean and withered arms
And wildly warns me off.

My nerves are strong, yet I confess
It was a grewsome sight,
That visage gaunt, that tattered dress,
That fiercely brandished right
Holding a can of some strange mess
That looked like dynamite.

"Art thou the sad survivor then
Of all the nations fate?
And how didst thou escape it, when
The rest fell desolate?"
"I am," quoth he (and coughed again,)
"The Walking Delegate.

"My duty is to walk about
And see that things stand still;
I snap my fingers—men go out
From road and mine and mill.
At least they did; but now I've none
On whom to work my will.

"Gone are the days when tyrants shrank
And trembled at my talk,
The Boycott took them all away,
And now I sadly stalk
A lonesome Walking Delegate,
With naught to do but walk.

"It was a glorious fight, I ween,
We Knights of Labor won.
We cut the hours of labor down
To eight, six, four, two, none.
Sometimes I wish it had not been Quite so completely done.

"Our last great strike the continent
O'erspread from side to side;
We had to boycott everything
To gain the point denied,
And just as we were going to win
All parties up and died."

"But you survived," I said. "What power
So safely brought you through?
When no one more did anything
What could you find to do?
When all support for others failed,
Pray what supported you?"

Oh! but he grinned a ghastly grin,
"What did I live upon?
Why, I'm a Walking Delegate
And no mere myrmidon
Though all the world besides should stop
My salary goes on."

—[R. W. Raymond, in Engineering and Mining Journal.

She Was a Great Woman.

To invent an apple pie for the sake of cheering the heart or captivating the appetite of man will seem an unworthy accomplishment in the eyes of some who are suspicious for the sake of the sex. Yet it may be reflected that woman herself is not insensible to the attractions of a good apple pie, and it is further to be borne in mind that the invention of the apple pie presupposes in the inventor virtues and talents of the highest order. No mere frivolous feminine or weak-brained woman could have devised the apple pie. She was without question a well-poised, clear-eyed, clear-headed individual, with an intellect for organization and a heart for noble ideas. Nobody but the apotheosis of womanhood could have invented the apple pie.—[New Bedford (Mass.) Standard.

RAILWAYS' DEFENSE.

great, but his utterances appear to me to indicate that his study of this particular subject has been slight and superficial. I mean Mr. Bryan.

"I am obliged to take issue with Mr. Bryan on the proposition that the public has shown no disposition to reduce railroad earnings to a point which would deny a reasonable return. The public, at least so far as it is represented in the Legislatures, has shown exactly that disposition, and as long ago as the Granger agitation it was necessary to invoke the aid of the Supreme Court of the United States in order to check that very disposition. The recent enactment of laws restricting the passenger rate to 2 cents per mile, without regard to any conditions, either as to territory or population, making the same rate for the crowded States of Ohio and Pennsylvania and the sparsely-settled States of the West, testify to this disposition much more strongly than any witness, who, like Mr. Bryan, does not appear to have given the subject any intelligent attention, can testify against it."

At this point Mr. Joline took up the subject of capitalization, overcapitalization and the injustice alleged to be done to the public in making them pay dividends on excessively watered stock. He certainly makes out an excellent case for his own road, showing that the stock of the company amounts to $76,000,000, of which $13,000,000 represent preferred and $63,000,000, common stock. He says:

"In seventeen years of administration since the reorganization we have paid so far just $520,000 in dividends, or 4 per cent. on the preferred stock for one year. The amount of money wrested from the innocent public in order to pay dividends on our common stock may easily be calculated—it is not so much as 1 cent."

ROOSEVELT CRITICISED.

The speaker goes on from here to criticise the President for certain utterances that he has made with regard to the overcapitalization of stock and the extorting of money from the public by foisting this watered paper upon them. Mr. Joline's showing for his own road is applicable only to that particular oad. In his criticism of President Roosevelt he lost sight of the recent deal in Alton stock which was purchased for $20,000,000 and palmed off upon a part of the public at least at $100,000,000. Mr. Joline says: "So what becomes of the clamor about overcapitalization?" It appears that a good deal has come of it in some instances.

The end of this address is in every way to be commended. It outlines the policy to be pursued by Mr. Joline's road under his management. The following will meet with the hearty approval of every reader of reasonable mind:

"It will be the policy of this company, so far as I may have anything to do with it, to resist by all reasonable and legitimate methods the enactment of laws which are unjust and unfair; to bring them, if enacted, before the courts for construction and for determination as to their validity and constitutionality; but to obey them honestly and faithfully, if they are ultimately declared to be valid, even if it leads to insolvency and a receiver. It is useless to resort to petty methods of retaliation; they are only irritating and impotent. We may as well make up our minds that if the people of this country have made up their minds to destroy our property, and the courts have decided that they have the right to do so, we must submit. But I cannot believe that in any country which calls itself free and enlightened, such a thing can ever come to pass.

"FOOLISH OUTCRY" IS ENVY.

"We may safely challenge investigation by any fair tribunal. If any of us has done wrong, let some one point it out, and let those who have the power adjudicate. But I venture to utter what is perhaps a feeble protest against the blind and foolish outcry against all railways. You and I know who are responsible for this socialistic, populistic, anti-property crusade. It is the cry of the envious against the well-to-do—the old story; it is not new to this generation; only it is louder and more bitter than ever before in this country.

"Is there any remedy for all this epidemic of enmity to our railroads? . . . The only remedy which occurs to me is the one which I have already indicated very brifly. Give the public the very best service we can and obey the laws, remembering that railroads are meant to carry freight and passengers and not merely to carry mortgages. It is perhaps unfortunate that we have so large a mortgage indebtedness; but the main bulk of it was inheritance and not a creation of our own; and it is all a just debt which we are bound to pay as it matures, principal and interest. Fortunately for us the Supreme Court of the United States has given us permission to live and neither Legislatures nor Congress can lwfully take from us that right. If we keep to the law, maintaining our own dignity and self-respect, we will outlive this clamor and the day will come when the people will awake to a repentant sense of their own folly."

NEW DESERT VEGETABLES.

Drouth-Resisting Fruits, Grains and Vegetables Found in Mexico.

W. E. Safford, assistant botanist in the bureau of plant industry in the United States Department of Agriculture has arrived in the City of Mexico, after an extended trip throughout Mexico, studying plant life, since last December. The government ordered him to ascertain what plants and plant products might advantageously be transplanted to those sectfons of the United States, which, like Arizona, New Mexico, and Texas, are similar in climate and soil to some sections of Mexico.

At Monterey, Mr. Safford found drouth-resisting fruits and grains which can be transplanted to the arid regions of those States and help materialy to make those sections productive. He also found valuable types of beans and red pepper, which need little moisture to grow luxuriantly.

Near Saltillo he found very fine corn that was grown without irrigation and with very little rain. In the vicinity he noted excellent specimens of apricots, peaches, lettuce, carrots, beats, squashes, pumpkins, and other vegetables produced without irrigation. He considers his discoveries exceedingly valuable and important and says that if these vegetables will grow in Texas with as little annual rainfall as they do in Mexico, that every portion of the Southwest can be turned into a magnificent agricultural section.

Gray Hair on a Six-Year-Old.

To have all his hair turn gray at the early age of six years, with no apparent cause, has been the lot of the young son of John Ertwine of Eleventh street, Bloomsbury, Pa. About a year ago the parents noticed that the boy's hair, which was dark, was beginning to turn gray in several places. At first they pulled out the gray hairs, but these increased so rapidly that at present it would be necessary to keep the boy's head shaved to keep the gray hairs from showing.

GREW MISS CARROLL'S HAIR

AND WE CAN

PROVE IT

Beautiful Hair At Small Cost.

WITHIN the last decade great and rapid strides have been made in Materia Medica. Many diseases that were considered incurable fifteen years ago are now cured in a few days, and in many cases prevented altogether. The scientists of late years have been delving for the cause, the foundation, the reason and the starting point of disease, fully realizing that the actual and true cause must be ascertained before the remedy can be located. Hair troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp, and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, and when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost all of its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural and logical thing to do in either case is, feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is identical with the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp. It feeds and nourishes the hair and does all the work originally carried on by the natural nutrients or life-giving juices generated by the scalp itself. It penetrates the pores of the scalp quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One twenty-five-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself. Now on sale at every drug and toilet store in the land. Three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

UNSOUNDNESS OF MUNICIPAL TRADING EXPOSED.

One of World's Greatest Authorities on Subject States Five Specific Reasons Why Idea Now Keenly Agitated in America Is a Snare and a Delusion.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.] LONDON, April 17.—Lord Avebury, who is better known in the United States as Sir John Lubbock, is generally regarded in England as one of its greatest authorities on everything that pertains to municipal trading. This Extra Green Tag Sale

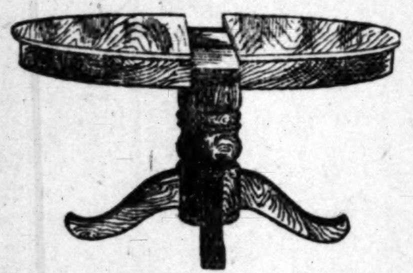
Is a Fiesta of Bargains



$20.00 Dining Table $15.50

It is our regular $20 leader and now it goes at $15.50. We shown the design in the picture above. The wood is solid oak, the finish weathered. The pedestal is non-dividing. Leaves are furnished for 6-foot extension. We have dining tables in this sale from $5.50 up.

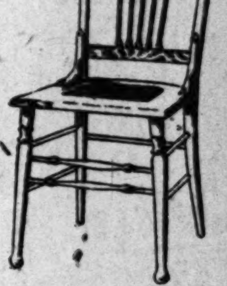
On our 14 big floors we show close to 5,000 samples of furniture, and the very best lines of the country are represented. We have the exclusive handling of practically all the celebrated Grand Rapids makes—that means quality. These Green Tag Sales of ours are almost as much of a feature in Los Angeles as the Fiestas. They are the premier furniture-selling events of the Southwest.

We put our price reductions plainly, honestly, and the people appreciate it.

Don't let the excitement of the week keep you from getting your share of the bargains.

Furniture Prices Reduced from 15 to 50 Per Cent.

$2.00 Dining Chair $1.40



Just as you see it in the picture. The wood is selected oak, the finish is weathered. The seat is cane. It is a great chair at $1.40. This is a sample of the dining chair bargains.

Odd Dining Chairs

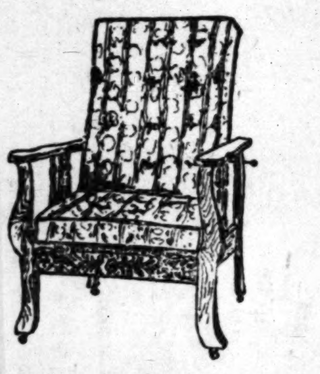
More especially arm chairs are reduced from one-third to one-half to close out. Good selection.

Go-Carts Reduced Just Half

Many go-cart prices are cut in half to close out odd ones and discontinued patterns. The assortment is particularly good in the grades that sell above $10.

All go-carts are reduced—none less than 15 per cent., many as much as 25 per cent. You can certainly get go-cart bargains here.

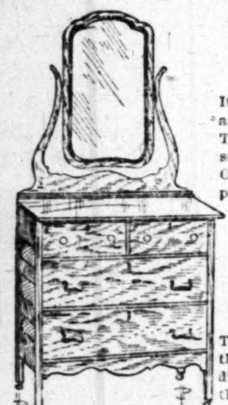
$10.50 Morris Chair $6.75



The frame is solid oak, the finish is golden. This price includes reversible velour cushions and you have your choice of green, brown or fancy figured. The seat in this chair is fitted with a full set of coil springs.

All Mattresses, Springs and Bedding Reduced 15 Per Cent. During this Green Tag Sale

$14.50 Oak Dresser $10.75



It is a solid oak dresser and the finish is golden. The design is just as you see it in the picture. Other stores ask $11 for pine dressers.

Other Dressers

This is a fair sample of the way we are cutting dresser prices during this sale. We have exceptional bargains in every grade.

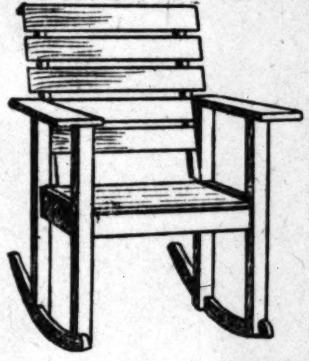
Unusual Savings on Unusual Porch Furniture

You are just beginning to enjoy your porch. Are you well supplied with chairs, rockers and settees? If not, this is your opportunity. Every piece of porch furniture in our stock is reduced. In this small space we give a few hints only, but they show now easy it is to save.

Crex Samples Reduced a Third

Our new stock of "Crex," the great prairie grass furniture, is on the way and we find it necessary to close out the line of samples we now have to make room for the new. Every piece goes at a third reduction. "Crex" is suitable for interior as well as porch use.

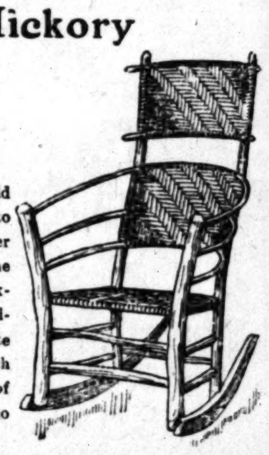
Three-Piece Porch Suite $10.00



It consists of a rocker like the picture, an arm chair and settee to match. The wood is ash, the finish weathered. Just like weathered oak. The three pieces sell regularly for $15.50.

Last week we received a full carload of porch furniture and we put it in the sale at 15 per cent. reduction. You are not asked to make your selection from odds and ends, but a complete line.

$5.50 Old Hickory Rocker $3.65



And this is the real, genuine "Old Hickory"—the kind they try to imitate. We picture the rocker on the right. It is one of the most popular designs. "Old Hickory" easily leads all porch furniture in popularity. Don't hesitate when you can get it at such prices as this. Every piece of "Old Hickory" is reduced, in no case less than 15 per cent.

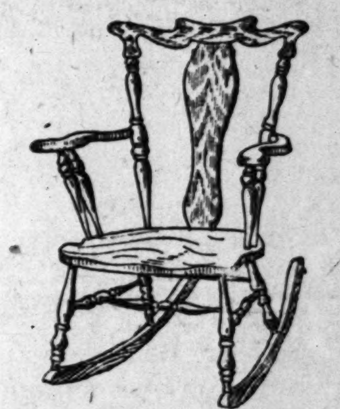
Reed Chairs and Rockers Reduced a Third

We offer our entire line of reed chairs and rockers in the "Old Mission" finish on this basis. We are overstocked in some patterns and some have been discontinued. Many prefer this finish to the natural reed—it is much more serviceable—don't soil so easily. There is a good price range.

Parlor Furniture Greatly Reduced

Customers are invariably amazed at the reductions we are quoting on parlor furniture. It is a well known fact that our stock is superior to any west of Chicago and equal to any in the country. Prices are reduced all the way from 15 to 50 per cent. Designs are authentic in every case.

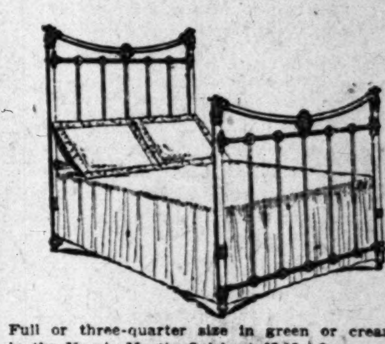
$7.50 Rocker $4.75



Just like the picture above. Quarter sawed oak is used throughout and the finish is golden. We also have it in mahogany finish. This is a sample of the rocker bargains.

All Office Furniture And Filing Devices Reduced 15 Per Cent During this Green Tag Sale

$8.50 Iron Bed $6.35



Full or three-quarter size in green or cream or in the Vernis Martin finish at $7.35. Our word for it—it's the best bed bargain in Los Angeles today. It is one of the celebrated Simmons make. We have scores of other bed snaps.

Specials in the Drapery Department

Silk Plushes

Not cast-off remnants but good serviceable lengths of fine silk plushes. Good color assortment. We have cut the price just in half, so as to make sure that they will go. They were great values at $2.50. The special price is $1.25

Fancy Silks

Florentine and fancy silks, 30 and 32 inches wide, just as good for kimonos and house garments, as for draperies.

75c grade 35c
85c grade 45c

The pattern assortment is extra good.

Astonishing Prices on Drapery Fringes

We have a lot of drapery fringes worth from 15c to $2.50 a yard which we are offering at prices ranging from 1c to 25c a yard. There is a good list of colors to select from. Hurry, for they won't last long.

Sold hundreds of yards last week.

Remnant Sale

Remnants of fancy cretonnes, art tickings and madras in 3 to 6-yard lengths. All grades included.

35c grade for 20c yard.

And so on up to the $1.20 grade for 50c yard.

24-inch sample squares, 25c each.

Shade Sale

They are the premier hand-made oil opaque shades, size 3x7 feet, mounted on Hartshorn rollers.

75c shades for 35c. (Plain colors.)

90c shades for 40c. (Duplex colors.)

REMAKING OF AN IDIOT.

SURGERY ON A TOLEDO BOY IS SAID TO HAVE NO PARALLEL.

Many Other Attempts Have Been Made to Improve Brain Conditions by Surgical Operations—Method of Performing on the Skull Described in Detail.

A surgical operation on Harold Hurley of Toledo, which has changed him from a bad boy into a good boy and altered his mental equipment so radically that he is almost another being, has created unusual interest among the New York surgeons, for the reason that the records of three leading hospitals here do not show a result of similar character, says the New York World. There have been hundreds of excisions of bone from the skull to relieve abnormal pressure upon the brain, and so restore the motor centers to normal activity, but there is no data whatever relating to any after effect in the sensory centers, which control the mental impulses.

The total number of surgical operations performed in Bellevue in 1905 was 3597, of which about 35 per cent. dealt with cranial surgery. There were 1900 operations in Roosevelt, and 1508 in St. Luke's, in which the proportion was about the same, but in no instance was an after result observed similar to that in the Toledo patient.

"An operation of such importance and which would be undertaken only in extreme cases," said a surgeon of large practice, "would not be performed in the patient's home or in a private sanatorium, so it is safe to assume that the records of three hospitals represent all that has been done in this city in the line of cranial surgery. The case in St. Vincent's Hospital, Toledo, is of exceptional interest to criminologists, who may open up a field of greater practical utility than the advocates of death for the incurable and hopelessly insane. The fact that we have had no similar cases in New York does not argue at all against a physical remedy for retarding degeneration of the intellectual powers.

"There is no question but that the removal of a part of the skull, where some interior malformation exists in the inner plate, gives an opportunity for natural brain expansion, and the loss of the protective bony covering is more than compensated for by the restoration to normal activity of the cells, which have been retarded in development.

WHAT AUTHORITIES SAY.

"The most eminent authorities on the condition called microcephaly, and which may be due to an injury to the head, as in the case of the Toledo boy, or in the premature ossification of the sutures of the skull, are Rose and Carless of London. They say that these conditions usually are associated with idiocy in its broadest sense, meaning an arrested or imperfect development in all the degrees, from complete imbecility to the types which have their development in criminal tendencies.

"These surgeons, who have paid particular attention to the surgery of the brain, say that many attempts have been made to overcome this condition by the operation of linear craniectomy, or the taking away of portions of the cranium to permit the expansion of the brain, but in this it is evident that they refer to the unfortunates who are utterly lacking in the perceptive faculties, and incapable of any sensation, save hunger and pain. They do not mean the vicious, because they admit that the operation to transform an imbecile into a reasoning being is rarely successful.

"The description of the cutting away of the skull to give the brain a chance to expand is like that in the Toledo case, so far as the lay account may be depended upon. A broad strip of bone is excised on either side of the median line from back to front. The size of the opening is increased from the front of the head to the back by a circular saw, driven by electricity. The shock to the nervous system would be too great to remove both strips of the skull at the one time, and the operations are performed separately at an interval of five or six weeks.

"The English sugeons say in their text-books that 'temporary improvement has followed in many cases, but the final result has zeen shown to be extremely uncertain, the majority of the final result has been shown to be contraction of the dense cicatrical material which replaces the bone. The proceeding cannot be looked upon as more than a justifiable experiment.'

"The plain inference of this opinion is that the cutting away of such a large part of the bony protection of the grain is a toss-up between life and death. A justifiable experiment means, to speak plainly, an experiment in the interest of science, and not in the interest of the patient. If he or she gets well all right. If death follows, the community has not been robbed, and science has been the gainer.

"The most famous cranial surgeon we have in America today is Dr. W. W. Keen of Philadelphia. He has devoted himself for a quarter of a century to operation on the head for the cure of epilepsy, and has a record of many successes. The epileptic condition may so affect the patient that he does not recognize the difference between right and wrong, or good and evil, as in the case of young Hurley in Toledo. It is impossible ti judge accurately, of course, from first reports, but his affliction, due to an injury, seems like petit mal, or minor epilepsy, and the progress of the case undoubtedly will be watched closely by the surgical practitioners throughout the country."

China's Harmless Rebellions.

A rebellion in China, as a rule, is a comparatively harmless affair. The people inform the Governor that his exactions are in excess of custom and that he must reduce them. If he agrees the matter ends. If not, there is a demonstration and perhaps some shooting, but this is only preliminary to a compromise, for the Peking government never backs up its officials when force has to be resorted to and the people have far too much respect for authority to push any successes to extremes.

Large, level lots, 50x150 feet. Rich Soil, Pure Water, Fine Climate. All lots, including corners, one price—$90 per lot—no more, no less. You know what you have to pay—$90 per lot—no higher. At Redondo over $2,000,000 has already been expended in grand and substantial improvements. The beautiful "Redondo Villa Tract B" is on the Camino Real (King's Highway) boulevard connecting Redondo with Los Angeles. We have just bought this beautiful tract for $151,000, and believing in the principle that it pays to let our customers make a profit, hence we have decided on this grand profit-sharing plan. We will make a profit and all our purchasers are guaranteed a profit of 25 per cent. within one year, as per our written agreement.

MR. H. E. HUNTINGTON IS EXPENDING OVER A MILLION DOLLARS AROUND REDONDO IN SUBSTANTIAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Go down to Redondo and see for yourself. At Jefferson street and Grand avenue see the immense stacks of heavy steel rails for the double-tracking of the present two electric lines of the Los Angeles and Redondo Railway Company. The rails are arriving daily. Dirt is now flying. Better buy now. Then there's the Los Angeles-Pacific Railway Co.'s electric line to Redondo, the broad-ganging of which will soon occur. And in addition to the above three electric lines now running to Redondo is the great Santa Fe steam railroad. With four lines of transportation it would seem as if same would be sufficient, but surveyors are in the field laying out the shortest line of all to connect Los Angeles with its choicest seashore suburb—Redondo. Mr. Huntington is now building at Redondo the largest electric power house on the Pacific Coast, to cost $1,250,000, as fast as men and money can do it. Go down and look at the mammoth cement smokestack.

A suburban electric railroad is now nearing completion at Redondo. The grand three-story business block of Mr. W. M. Garland at Redondo is just finished. Follow successful men like Mr. Huntington and Mr. Garland—they know that Redondo is substantial and a safe place to invest in. Buy anywhere around Redondo and you are sure to make large profits. Three commercial wharves. A safe harbor by twenty years' practical test. Redondo is permanent and has just begun to grow. Then again, referring to successful men, we notice that the following men have bought to the north of Redondo:

Mr. Edwin Chambers, the far-sighted General Freight Agent of the Santa Fe; Mr. George H. Peck, the successful banker of San Pedro; Mr. John J. Byrne, the capable General Passenger Agent of the Santa Fe, and Dan Murphy, the millionaire oil operator of Los Angeles. A word to the wise is sufficient. BUY.

Remember that your purchase is made with the distinct understanding that we will refund all money paid us, with 6 per cent. per annum interest added, if, after visiting the "Redondo Villa Tract B" it is found that we have misrepresented our proposition in the slightest particular.

25 Per Cent. Guaranteed Increase

For $4 down and $4 per month until paid for we will sell you a "Redondo Villa Tract B" lot for $90, subject to the following guarantee from us: If at the expiration of one year from purchase this $90 lot is not worth $112.50—or 25 per cent. increase—based on the price at which our corps of salesmen will then be selling similar lots, we will refund all the money you have paid us, with 6 per cent. interest additional. If you should die at any time before payments have been completed, we will give to your heirs a deed of the lot without further cost. If you should lose employment or be sick you will not forfeit the land, but as each written certificate of sickness or non-employment is received monthly your time for payment will be extended another month.

THE GRAND MILLION DOLLAR HOTEL AND TROPICAL GARDENS AT REDONDO.

Free car tickets to Redondo furnished all interested. Electric cars leave every twenty minutes.

GRANDEST SUCCESS OF THE SEASON—Everybody delighted. The golden spike of the Redondo Villa railroad was driven January 6—the commencement of great transportation facilities for the Redondo Villa Tract. The roadbed has been graded, ties are on the ground, rails will soon be laid.

Title Guaranteed Absolutely Perfect

The 604 acres of the Rancho Sausal Redondo, embraced in the "Redondo Villa Tract B," was purchased by us from George H. Peck, president of the Bank of San Pedro, for $151,000.

It is protected by an Unlimited Certificate of Title and all deeds to purchasers of lots in the "Redondo Villa Tract B" will be Warranty Deeds, which is an assurance that every purchaser in the "Redondo Villa Tract B" will receive an absolutely perfect deed.

Be On Hand Early. Come at Once

This sale of large, level lots, 50x150 feet in size, for only $90, in payments of $4 down, $4 month—no interest, no taxes—is unparalleled.

Remember that the "Redondo Villa Tract B" has the advantage of having no city taxes to pay.

Our Restrictions

No saloons, no shanties, no factories. Purchasers are not compelled to build, but if they do then they must erect attractive looking houses, there being no "dollar limit."

We leave it to each purchaser to build a pretty looking house, which must be neatly painted, as we know that for a moderate sum one can now build a very pretty bungalow. Lumber is cheap at Redondo, as there are three commercial wharves at Redondo, at which lumber schooners are daily discharging their cargoes.

If Russell Sage, the multi-millionaire of New York, told you that you could make a fortune in suburban real estate (especially when it costs you only $4 down and $4 per month) wouldn't you be impressed? Well, listen! That's just what Mr. Sage did say in the New York World of September 28, 1902: "Young man, buy real estate, especially acre property, in the outlying boroughs, and then work hard at your usual vocation. Your real estate purchase will make your old age comfortable."—Russell Sage.

BUY WHERE THE AIR IS THE PURE OZONE FROM OFF THE HEALTH-RESTORING WATERS OF THE PACIFIC.

Buy where the soil is rich and injurious frosts never prevail.

Buy around Redondo, where there are three electric lines and one steam railroad, and there will soon be another electric line.

Buy where the purest of water, from the large water works now on the tract, can be had for only 7½ cents per thousand gallons for irrigation.

Buy where you will make large profits.

Buy at the opening sale, which has been the history, invariably insures a great profit. If you can't be on hand at the office tomorrow morning, then telephone (Main 3379 or Home 5339,) telegraph or write at once, and a beautiful illustrated prospectus map and sample contract will be mailed to you absolutely free.

A CHAT WITH MR. MARSHALL

About the

6% PREFERRED STOCK

Of the

MARSHALL & STEARNS COMPANY

Would not only be a pleasant experience, but a profitable one too. It is so much more satisfactory to talk to a man face to face than through the columns of a newspaper. You get a chance to size him up and form an intelligent opinion of the sincerity and honesty of the individual with whom you are dealing.

Such a Chat Would Run Something Like the Following:

Mr. Investor: Why are you offering for public subscription 10,000 shares of your 6 per cent. Preferred Stock?

Mr. Marshall: For the purpose of erecting our own factory and enlarging our facilities generally.

Mr. Investor: How have you been doing business during the past three years without a factory?

Mr. Marshall: We have had our goods manufactured under contract, we merely doing the assembling in Los Angeles.

Mr. Investor: If you had a factory of your own, what advantage would it be both to the company and to the stockholders?

Mr. Marshall: It would materially reduce the cost of manufacturing, which naturally means increased profits, and at the same time save delay in the shipment of goods. Under the present arrangement, the goods are made East, shipped here, and re-shipped by us in the form of the finished product. Not only does this entail delay, but extra expense too.

Mr. Investor: Has a demand for your goods ALREADY been created?

Mr. Marshall: Assuredly, yes. In fact, the demand is so great that we can't keep pace with it under existing arrangements. At the present time there are over $100,000 of unfilled orders on the books, and during the current year we will do a cash business of MORE THAN A QUARTER OF A MILLION DOLLARS.

Mr. Investor: Who owns the $1,000,000 capital stock for which you are incorporated?

Mr. Marshall: The Marshall & Stearns Company has hitherto been a close corporation with not a share of stock owned except by Mr. Stearns and myself. Even now, we are only offering 10,000 shares of the Preferred Stock, and every dollar received in this way will AT ONCE be used to enlarge our facilities, thus insuring increased profits—which, of course, means increased dividends to stockholders. With each share of Preferred Stock sold, we are giving a share of Common Stock AS A BONUS. This makes the investment doubly good.

Mr. Investor: After the payment of the 6 per cent. dividends on the Preferred and Common Stock, what becomes of additional earnings?

Mr. Marshall: They will be divided equally, share and share alike.

Mr. Investor: I suppose the first dividends to be paid will be on the stock owned by the present management?

Mr. Marshall: On the contrary, not one cent in dividends can be paid to the present owners, whose interest in the company is represented by the Common Stock, until the full dividend of 6 per cent. per annum, payable quarterly, has been paid on the Preferred Stock.

Mr. Investor: What does the future hold for the Marshall & Stearns Company?

Mr. Marshall: There is absolutely no limit to the possible growth of the company, and it will undoubtedly rank with the leading industrial corporations of the United States. We are manufacturing (patented) SANITARY wall beds and other space-saving devices that EVERYBODY wants, and as EVERYBODY sleeps in a bed, the world is our field.

Mr. Investor: As your personal management has been very successful, it occurs to me to ask if you intend to retire from the business? In other words, are you selling out?

Mr. Marshall: By no means. The company is spreading out, NOT selling out. There will be absolutely no change in the present active management, and the same methods that have proven so successful in the past will continue in force to the benefit of purchasers of this small block of 6 per cent. Preferred Stock we are offering.

Mr. Investor: As you have ALREADY created a tremendous and ever-increasing demand for your goods, and are asking me to invest in the business in which YOU have been successful, I am glad of the opportunity to buy some of your 6 per cent. Preferred Stock. I am satisfied that it is the soundest investment on the local market today, both for the man of large and small means.

ROBERT MARION LA FOLLETTE, TRAGEDIAN—HIS EXHAUSTIVE STUDIES OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST DRAMATIST.

By James B. Morrow.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

WAS it wholly a matter of inches? Might he have been Robert Marion LaFollette, tragedian? The tter himself, I thought, was in some story had never been told. "He actor," or "once he thought of stage," is a hackneyed phrase in onsin, and a finality to argument analysis. What more needs to be the man, of course, being in the t of politics. "Will you tell me bout it?" I asked.

ere is no reason why I shouldn't. ator LaFollette comprehends the tics of friendly discourse. There onata of harmony between voice, ge, and face. Against the light e window are two changing and g human busts. One is Andrew on reduced—pompadour hair and torial nose and jaw. Then the wrestler—brow torn with furrows, eyes gleaming from thin, wrinkeld and small features strained with and energy, "I never quit." Unarily cral testimony to a selfded truth.

MADE HIT WITH "IAGO."

re is no reason why I shouldn't. a student at the State University isconsin I wrote an oration, takago, in Shakespeare's "Othello" for bject. I won an interstate oral contest against six other col. There was some enthusiasm at niversity, and 'Iago' was made a pamphlet and offered for sale local book store. John McCulcame to Madison, read Iago, and for me. He praised my study of aracter, and finally said:

should advise you to become an had nature been more kind to stature.'

m 5 feet and 6. McCullough net, and I asked: 'Doesn't talent ?'

e eye of the public must be filled as the head,' he replied.

he towered over me, and he a very large man, either, but est, shoulders, neck, and head magnificent. 'Supose,' he roared, playing Othello and you Iago took you thus and shook you.' felt his iron fingers in the collar coat. 'What,' he said, in his awice, 'would the audience say? hame, for shame," would be heard all parts of the house.'

a few weeks Lawrence Barrett at Madison. He also read my d invited me to call on him. I what McCullough had said: he exclaimed, 'he is a physical Why, Booth isn't much taller ou.'

he choice had been seriously put then," Senator LaFollette went y, "I would have chosen the there would have been a . I have always loved the theater, and my recreation now is to hear one of Shakespeare's plays. Barrett asked me to study 'Hamlet' for a year and then to prepare such an article as I had written on Iago. Later he sent my Iago to Booth, who said my analysis of the character was similar to his own.

WROTE STUDY OF "HAMLET."

"I read 'Hamlet' for a year, but the subject grew to be so large that I wrote Barrett for more time. Occasionally I would see him and we would talk the matter over. So it went. I reading—and there is a whole library on 'Hamlet'—and reflecting, but never writing. Five or six years ago I thought I had become reasonably familiar with my subject and wrote a paper, which I use as a lecture when the committees will let me. Usually, however," and I detected some weariness in his tone, "they want politics and railroad legislation."

"If it is not too personal," I said, "I want to add that you are reported to have accumulated a fortune by lecturing."

"Nothing is too personal. The lid of my whole life is open. I have made some money, but have spent a lot in politics. I own sixty acres of land on Lake Mendota, three miles from Madison. There is a mortgage of $14,500 on the property. I hope to make $25,000 this summer by lecturing, and to pay the debt. Oh, yes, and I owe $4000 for printing. Campaign literature, don't you know. I electioneer with documents; one year I distributed 1,600,000 of them in Wisconsin. Aside from speaking, it is the only effective method of reaching the public. I have the names of 140,000 voters on my mailing list. If Republicans become uncertain on some questions I watch for literature that will do them good. The money I spend in politics is for postage, clerk hire and printing."

"Did you actually take charge of your mother's farm when you were 18 years old?"

"I did. When my father died I was an infant. He left 440 acres of land in Dane county, Wis., and money for a new house; we were then living in a log cabin. He was born in Kentucky, and was of Huguenot blood. Knowing my mother in Southern Indiana, when both were children, he made love to her and was told to wait. All the men in his family were swarthy, and grew huge black beards. He was six feet and a half in height. My mother was Mary Furgeson, Scotch-Irish, stocky and strong, with blonde haid and blue eyes. She was energetic and determined, and never, never turned back.

A PATIENT LOVER.

"My father both waited and went away. He took droves of horses from Kentucky to Wisconsin and bought land. In five or six years my mother married, but her husband was killed at a barn raising. My father proposed to the widow and was accepted. When he died he left three children. Then my mother married an old man, a merchant, so that her children could live in town and go to school. But my stepfather failed in business, and we returned to the country. The farm had now been reduced to 240 acres to pay the board of myself, my brother and sister. I was 14 years old, and became general manager of everything. Tenants had impoverished the land by raising wheat and nothing else, and we could scarcely make a living. However, it was agreed that I should have an education.

"When I was 19 we rented the farm and moved to Madison. The cottage we lived in wasn't even humble, being made of rough boards, the cracks of which were covered with batten. At the end of a year we moved into a larger house and took lodgers. While I was a freshman at the university I ran out of money. A district school five miles away had been closed because the big boys had whipped the teacher. I applied for it. The trustees looked at me and laughed. 'What is your weight?' they asked. 'One hundred and twenty pounds,' I replied, 'and in every ounce there is a ton of fight. If I can't run your school you need not pay me.'

"I rode back and forth on a Morgan mare that had come from Vermont, and carried a rawhide whip. The first day two big fellows started a disturbance. I called them out separately and licked them within an inch of their lives. I laid the iron poker on my desk to further the impression that I meant business. Well, I had a Sunday-school after that. In my sophomore year I bought a half-interest in the University Press, the college publication, and had no more concern about money matters."

"What turned your mind toward public speaking?"

CUT SCHOOL FOR LAWSUITS.

"In the district schools I always took part in the elocutionary performances, traveling the whole region and reciting juvenile pieces. At the university I joined a debating club. Thus I got into local and general debates and finally into the interstate contest to which I have already referred. I can't recollect the time when I didn't speak, if I had the chance, and didn't mean to be a lawyer. When there was a big lawsuit in Madison I cut my recitations and sat in a front seat."

"Did you attend law school?"

"Only during fourteen weeks. I had to get money and, ill-prepared as I was, stood for the bar examination eight months after leaving the university, passed, and was admitted to practice. My successful oration on Iago brought me bills to collect and other small business. So I made a living, such as it was. That very same year I decided to be a candidate for district or prosecuting attorney. I needed the salary of $66 a month. Moreover, I was madly in love and wanted to marry. E. W. Keyes, postmaster at Madison and the Republican boss of the State, said I couldn't have the nomination."

"What happened?"

"I hitched up my old Morgan mare. Say, I bred her daughter and now have two of her granddaughters, and money couldn't buy either of them. She lived until she was twenty-four years old and was always ready for a quick trip or a heavy load. Well, I hitched her to a borrowed buggy with borrowed harness and made a house-to-house canvass. I was nominated and elected. I agreed to run the office without an assistant and kept my word. More men were convicted and sent to the penitentiary than ever before in the same length of time. But I worked so hard that I fainted at my desk. I was reëlected without much effort, my private practice grew, and for the first time in my life I was prosperous."

"How much money did you have when you were married?"

MARRIED ON $800 A YEAR.

"Not much; not any. But I had $800 a year. Little by little I bought a library and furnished my home. We would save and get a table or a chair. And how pleased we were. Go and look at it, you know, a hundred times a day. Stand it in different places and cover it at night when we went to bed. Persons who have not furnished a house in that way, those who have everything given to them, or can buy it in a lump, can't appreciate the full measure of human joy."

"You were nominated for Congress when you were twenty-nine years old, the politicians still being against you. By what methods did you beat them?"

"Again I went from house to house. A college friend, whom I loved, he was afterward my law partner, canvassed the second largest county in the district in the same way. The bosses hooted at me, saying I was an upstart and all that sort of thing. Nevertheless, I was nominated and elected. I began my service in the House of Representatives during December, 1885, and remained six years."

"Did you do any talking?"

"Not at first. When the Mills Tariff Bill was being discussed, John G. Carlisle furiously and ably attacked the protective system. Thomas B. Reed also delivered a set speech, but made no attempt to reply to Carlisle. I went to him and McKinley and told them if Carlisle were not answered I should have some trouble in my district. 'Well, answer him yourself,' McKinley said. His manner irritated me. I got a wagonload of books, locked myself up, and prepared a speech. Reed was Speaker of the next Congress and put me on the Ways and Means Committee. I helped to write the McKinley Bill, and at the following election bit the dust with scores of others. I hadn't money to pay my bills and not even enough for the railway fare of my wife and little daughter to Wisconsin. Accordingly, I went back to Madison alone, took up the practice of law, and soon could square myself with the world and get my family out of Washington."

"Six years later you were an unsuccessful candidate for the nomination for Governor. In the meanwhile what were you doing?"

THREE TIMES CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR.

"Trying lawsuits, and I was successful. I was twice a candidate for Governor before I was nominated. Once my delegates were bought by the bosses. But I kept at work. I made up my mind that the voters ought to choose their candidates for office and not delegate that duty to conventions. Citizens don't vote by proxy on election day. Logically, they should not nominate by proxy. That was the issue I raised. I made speeches whenever I could, and agitated the subject constantly. I added other good things to my platform, including State control of the railroads and just taxation. I never quit. When I believe I am right I go on, no matter what occurs.

"Sorrow comes to all. Shadows fall across every life. I suffer as much as any one can, but at the climax I become hard as iron and my heart turns to stone."

Nothing more was said for a moment. Senator La Follette looked away and tears filled his eyes, trickled down his cheeks, and fell upon the front of his coat. Then he crouched toward me, his lips tense and his eyes only narrow rents in his knotted face.

"Philetus Sawyer, one of our Senators, was a very rich and powerful man. Our State treasurers had loaned public money and pocketed the interest. Sawyer had been on their bonds and was threatened with a suit in the sum of $400,000. The Democrats, you understand, were coming in. Sawyer telegraphed me to meet him in Milwaukee. I saw him and he offered me more money than I had ever dreamed of having. 'That is your retainer,' he said. 'The other half will be paid when your brother-in-law, the circuit judge, decides the case.'

"I went home and told my brother-in-law everything. He publicly announced that he would not sit at the trial of the case, but gave no reason. Newspaper reporters from Chicago and Milwaukee began an investigation. Sawyer said he had talked with me, but that I had said I couldn't act as his attorney because my brother-in-law would hear the case. Thus he left me under some suspicion, and I had to tell the facts.

BECAME CALLOUS TO ABUSE.

"The next day nearly every Republican paper in Wisconsin called me a liar and scoundrel. I went about my business, but that was the tragedy of my life. My health broke. I went West and worked on a farm for a month. Then I returned to my home and redoubled my efforts to purify the politics of Wisconsin. Finally, I was elected Governor. Men must go into the fire to be tempered. I went. It did me good. Abuse no longer hurts me if I feel that I am right."

"What have your tax laws done for Wisconsin?"

"They have entirely relieved the home owner, the little business man, and the farmer of the burden of State government. Property is now assessed at its value in cash, but the tax rate is lower. We had to educate the people, who didn't understand that when valuation goes up the rate necessarily goes down. We have made the railroads pay on a fair basis, and have demanded nothing more."

"You didn't bankrupt them?"

"More mileage was built in 1906 than for twenty years. Furthermore, we regulate the railroads, through a State commission, not only as to rates, which we have reduced on some things—dairy products and grain, for instance, saving the farmers $700,000 a year—but we regulate them as to service. They are compelled to give adequate accommodations, to add more cars to passenger trains, build depots, and so on. And they seem to be satisfied. Two hundred cases were decided against them in 1906, and they appealed but one, and it was unimportant."

"Are the railroads of the country overcapitalized?"

"I am sure of it. The capital of our railroads is $13,000,000,000. Engineers say they can be reproduced for $6,000,000,000. The theory of the present rate law is wrong. The Interstate Commerce Commission ought to know the actual value of the railroads and then follow the Supreme Court, which has decided that they are entitled to earn enough to pay expenses and a fair dividend on investment. The State gives railroads the right to build and acquire property over which to lay their tracks. That being so, the State should protect its citizens against the extortions of its own creatures. I would take a given road, value it, make a very liberal allowance for operating expenses and profits, and fix its rates accordingly. Thus I would go through the country, and the matter would be settled."

"Are you a Socialist?"

"No; I don't even believe the government should own the railroads. There is a better way—the one I have suggested."

"Is the primary law of Wisconson satisfactory?"

"No party, no faction of any party, wants it repealed. All nominations, Republican and Democratic, are now made at the same time by secret ballot. The candidates of each party then come together and write a platform. There can be no dodging after that. When we had conventions candidates often said that platforms were not binding on them. That was notoriously the case with members of the Legislature. Now a candidate for nomination is compelled to go before the people and tell what he stands for personally, and he must embody his views in the platform which follows or meet disaster at the polls."

"You don't eat meat?"

NOT A MEAT EATER.

"Haven't eaten a mouthful for six years, except a little fish now and then, and occasionally the white meat of a fowl. I suffer from uric acid, and red meat aggravates it. Several times I have been seriously ill, and put on a limited diet. I have learned, however, that to limit one's quantity of food is the best treatment of all. I can wear every one out during a political campaign, and not eat very much, either. Last year I talked eight weeks. I began each day early in the morning and made long speeches. Fifteen-minute speeches are nothing. Talked about the rate bill. For breakfast I ate a cereal of some kind and drank a glass of milk. Luncheon and supper were eaten in the automobile and consisted of milk and two pieces of buttered bread, covered with grated cheese. Usually I eat English walnuts as a substitute for meat. In the morning I exercise my arms for ten or twenty minutes. See how hard they are."

The right hand was raised slowly toward the shoulder and the sleeve of the coat bulged out until the seams threatened to burst.

But is he an actor? Wisconsin says no and yes. Is that, after all, the answer?

WEALTH OF THE SOUTH.

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

Not until it is put before us in plain figures do we realize how great is the wealth of the South and how largely that wealth has increased in the past few years. Comparing the South's wealth as it is given in the census of 1900 with what it was at the beginning of 1905 we have the following:

State—	Value of all property, 1905.	Increase in four years.
Texas	$ 2,830,000,000	$ 508,000,000
Kentucky	1,627,000,000	162,000,000
Maryland	1,511,000,000	194,000,000
Virginia	1,257,000,000	185,000,000
Georgia	1,167,000,000	231,000,000
Tennessee	1,104,000,000	148,000,000
District of Columbia	1,040,000,000	112,000,000
Louisiana	1,032,000,000	217,000,000
Alabama	965,000,000	171,000,000
North Carolina	842,000,000	160,000,000
Arkansas	808,000,000	199,000,000
Mississippi	638,000,000	131,000,000
South Carolina	566,000,000	101,000,000
Florida	431,000,000	76,000,000
Totals	$15,782,000,000	$2,595,000,000

The increase of $2,595,000,000 in four years is equal to an average increase of nearly $650,000,000 a year, or over $2,000,000 a day for each of the 300 working days of each year. Getting rich at the rate of more than $2,000,000 each working day is big business.

The wealth referred to chiefly consists of real property and improvements; live stock, farm implements and machinery; manufacturing machinery, tools and implements; gold and silver coin and bullion, railroad and other equipment; street railways, shipping and waterworks.

In the four years the value per acre of land and improvements in the South and the per capita value of the same, have risen as follows:

	Per acre.	Increase.	Per capita.	Increase.
Texas	$ 9.26	$ 1.46	$ 460.90	$ 21.50
Kentucky	32.41	3.46	279.76	9.15
Maryland	142.16	12.18	725.72	29.79
Virginia	26.13	3.10	348.88	28.14
Georgia	14.98	2.14	227.82	20.11
Tennessee	20.90	1.71	262.74	9.23
District of Columbia	21,620.94	2,177.48	2,785.59	106.79
Louisiana	16.64	2.50	329.08	29.38
Alabama	13.61	2.22	225.54	24.66
North Carolina	12.81	1.94	199.37	20.34
Arkansas	11.82	2.67	286.84	52.31
Mississippi	9.42	.81	168.78	4.19
South Carolina	12.86	.75	178.51	.79
Florida	6.36	1.03	277.57	22.39

In the classification of Southern property the leading States are:

State—Classification—	Value.
Texas, real property and improvements	$1,200,000,000
Texas, railroads and equipment	197,000,000
Texas, live stock	248,000,000
Texas, farm implements and machinery	30,000,000
Louisiana, manufacturing, machinery and tools	41,000,000
Texas, gold and silver coin and bullion	54,000,000
Maryland, street railways, shipping, water, etc	49,000,000
Texas, all other property	401,000,000

As Texas leads now in six of the eight chief classifications of Southern property values what may we not expect will be the property showing of the Lone Star State when its imperial area is fairly settled?

Mines and Mining—Past Week's News of the Surrounding Ore Districts

"THE TIMES" AND NEVADA.

Our more or less esteemed contemporaries, the weakly papers published in the Nevada camps, that cringe and crawl at every crack of the union whip, break forth every once in a while in abuse of The Times and charge this paper, in one way or another, with "knocking" Nevada. A lot of silly drivel about boycotting Los Angeles is printed. This may deceive a few fools, but sensible people pay no attention to it. The fact that hundreds of the men who are making Nevada great, despite their handicaps, come every day to Los Angeles—many of them remaining to make their homes and invest their money here—and the trade which our merchants are getting from the State, despite the indifference of some, caused by the rush of prosperity that is absorbing their energies here at home, are proofs enough that Los Angeles is not boycotted.

The Times has none but the kindliest feelings toward Nevada, our nearest neighbor, and desires nothing more than to see the State prosper and become great. That it will sooner or later rid itself, as Colorado did, of the deadly grip of unionism, is morally certain.

A table has been issued showing the movements of Goldfield stocks during the forty days' shut-down, while the I.W.W. and the other unions fought out their differences. It shows that of thirty-six listed securities only three show decline. These are the C.O.D. M. & L., Red King and Frances Mohawk. The average percentage of their decline was 11.97. Two remained practically stationary, not varying over a half or a quarter of 1 per cent., and closing the period at the same figure exactly as when the shut-down began. These were the Nevada Western and the St. Ives Leasing. Thirty-one stocks advanced, their average per cent. being 43.91. The best records were those of the Crackerjack and Red Hills, whose advances were 114.29 and 156.52 per cent., respectively. The figures are based upon the reports of the Goldfield exchange.

Making all allowance for boosting that may have been resorted to, this is a very creditable record. Let it not be construed, however, as any excuse for tolerating present conditions. That Goldfield stocks can do so well, now that the boom and excitement has subsided, under such circumstances, only goes to show what the camp in public opinion should be able to do, once the incubus of labor-union domination and the fear of a recurrence at any moment of the troubles that have handicapped the camp in the past, are removed. Colorado and Idaho survived such troubles, but finally had to put a forcible stop to them. And where are the really great camps today that are prospering permanently under such conditions as we see at Goldfield? Name them, and they are indeed few and far between. They can be counted on the fingers of one hand and several digits will still be left.

If the Nevada papers would devote the energy expended in abuse of The Times to purifying their State, they would be rendering some service to the public.

BULLFROG AND LOS ANGELES.

CLOSER RELATIONS BETWEEN CITY AND GROWING CAMPS.

Rhyolite Board of Trade Stands for Progress, School Bonds, Incorporation and Electric Lights—Since Establishment of Chamber of Mines Intercourse Improves.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

RHYOLITE, May 3.—Some of the progressive moves fathered by the Rhyolite Board of Trade are the bonding of the district for school purposes, the establishment of townsite lines, the levying of a special townsite tax for general purposes and the incorporation of the city.

Lee is a district tributary to Bullfrog which promises to add materially to its prestige. Until recently the Lee district was forced to depend for its water supply upon a wagon haul of 16 miles, the precious fluid being retailed at from $4.00 to $5.50 a barrel. Now water in abundance and of good quality has been developed within three miles of the town of Lee.

Electric lights are one of the latest symptoms of civilization to be seen at Rhyolite. They are provided by the Rhyolite Light, Heat and Power Company, which has just placed its big plant in commission. It is a local corporation backed by home capital.

Influential men of unlimited means are crowding into Bullfrog district daily. Two recent pilgrims were Baron Leo Von Rosenburg of New York and George M. Holbrooke of Boston. They represent American and European millions which will be forthcoming for further development upon their reports to their chiefs. Of nearer-by cities, Los Angeles is in the lead in its display of interest in the greater Bullfrog. Since her organization of a mining stock exchange and a chamber of mines, Los Angeles has developed a penchant for sending representatives to the enlarging field of action. Gilbert S. Wright and Charles G. Andrews, officers of the Wright & Callender Company, have made a thorough inspection of the Bullfrog resources and state that hereafter the relationship between the neighboring towns will be more intimate than ever heretofore.

PROGRESS OF MINES.

Recent doings in some of the Bullfrog mines are here related in brief.

All Baba—Quartz stringers appear on bedrock, which has been reached at 206 feet. Sinking will continue another 200 feet and crosscutting will be inaugurated on the 400 level. A big oil hoist is on the way.

Belle—A contract has been let for a considerably greater depth at the 106-foot shaft.

Columbia—Gratifying headway is being made in the drift from the tunnel which is running to cut the ledge whose surface assays give about $10 per ton. There is also a shaft sinking.

Combination—Development energy is confined to a tunnel which should strike the values at substantial depth. The estate adjoins the Rush on Bonanza Mountain.

Gold Bar Anchor—Top assays vary from $3.00 to $11.00 gold. A crosscut will drive for the ledge from a depth of 100 feet, to be attained by the shaft that is sinking.

Gold Bar Contact—Crosscutting will soon begin on the 100 level.

Gurley—Development has just begun on this estate, which lies immediately north of Rhyolite.

Hinkle—Quartz that averages $15 per ton across a 16-inch streak was encountered at a depth of 55 feet in the shaft.

Los Angeles—A drift that is being driven on the 50-foot level from the Boulder shaft has run into ore that pans heavy in gold.

Lucky Jack—A promising appearing talc ledge is the destination of a crosscut to be projected on the 75-foot level.

Mayflower—One of the most significant discoveries ever made in Bullfrog district was the recent finding of fabulously rich ore at a depth of 300 feet on the Mayflower. One specimen in the possession of the mine's superintendent is probably the richest chunk of ore ever mined in the district, it being about an inch square and so pregnant with the yellow metal that no rock is visible. The entire width of 19 feet of vein matter uncovered on the 300-level averages better than $50 per ton. Four feet of it is good for $100 per ton, and life-size streaks assay from $1000 to $10,000 per ton. The production is being sacked for shipment. What is especially gratifying to the pioneers of the district is the revelation of such values in a section which has heretofore been considered a low-grade milling area.

Missouri—One crew of miners is prospecting on the surface and another is drifting on the 100-foot level. The group will soon be patented.

Montana—Good-looking quartz has ben uncovered in the east cross-cut from the 100-foot station in the Hardscrabble shaft.

Montgomery Shoshone—About forty tons of high-grade ore will continue to be shipped daily until such time as Shoshone's mill is in operation.

Montgomery Shoshone Extension—Rapid headway is being made in the sinking of the double-compartment shaft, which will probably be lowered to a depth equal to the greatest in the district.

North Star—Development goes forward at three points. The main tunnel has penetrated fifty feet of vein matter. The north drift upon No. 2 vein is driving in enhancing values. Connection is being made by an up-raise from the lower tunnel to the upper, and a winze will soon be started for a depth of 300 feet from the lower tunnel.

Nugget—Winze is dropping in a fair grade of ore.

Pedestal—Progress is recorded in the sinking of the main shaft, which goes down alongside a vein that yields promising assays at the grass roots and shows improvement at every point of puncture. The ledge is a big one, and the physical conditions of the property bespeaks for the Pedestal a brilliant career.

Pioneer—The vein is fifty feet wide and shows pannings clean across.

Plutus—Stringers of rich ore appear in the bottom of the 100-foot shaft. A hoist will soon be installed.

Puritan—Development is seeking an extension of the Mayflower ledge.

Red Oak—The cross-cut tunnel has progressed 1300 feet on its 3000-foot journey. At the shaft the old hoist is being replaced by a new one, to be operated by electricity.

Teddy—The main shaft is down about seventy feet. No values of consequence are yet placed or expected.

Venture Nevada—Fine-graded quartz abounding in sulphides appears in the face of the 400-foot tunnel.

Victor—Milling ore is expected in the bottom of the 100-foot shaft, and a fair quality of rock is cut in the south drift from the cross-cut tunnel. The north drift from the same tunnel is driving on $15 ore.

Victor Extension—A new shaft has just started sinking.

West Extension—A full face of high-grade ore is uncovered by the west drift from the main shaft, which has driven 140 feet on the ledge.

MANHATTAN'S DOINGS.

NEW MILL AND BIG MERGER.

GOLDFIELD, May 3.—Within a month the Manhattan Water Power and Milling Company will have in operation a big custom mill which will be able to handle all the ores of the Manhattan district at a saving of ninety per cent. of their values. This company has taken over the mill and water project of the Tonopah Exploration Company and is equipping itself for business on a large scale. Its completion will mean the conversion into bullion of a vast tonnage of exceptionally rich milling stuff which now lies idle on the dumps and in the stope.

One of the important recent occurrences in Manhattan district is a perfection of a great consolidation of proved and prospective bonanzas into the Manhattan Merger Mines Company. These subsidiary companies included in the merger are the Manhattan Union Jack, Manhattan Mizpah, Manhattan National Bank, Hearst-Jaggers, Kawich and Tokop. Officers of the consolidation are George K. Ford, president; A. J. Griffith, vice-president; Joseph A. Watts, secretary, and William H. McCarthy, treasurer. Extensive exploitation of the merger's valuable holdings will be the policy of the future campaign.

WHAT WORK IS DOING.

Something of what is doing at other Manhattan mines may be learned from the following concise report:

Bryefogle—The management is sinking for the extension of the ledge from the Thanksgiving mine, a short distance east.

Broncho—Heavy machinery is on the way from San Francisco to aid in further proof of this bonanza. Broncho adjoins the Mustang and Thanksgiving.

Buffalo Extension—The main shaft is dropping for the water level, where crosscuts will aim for the big body of ore indicated by croppings.

Crater—Work has begun upon a contract for 200 feet of sinking. The ledge as demonstrated to this time is from 80 to 100 feet wide and carries well in gold and copper.

Crescent—A crosscut is driving on the 135-foot level for the purpose of picking up the 4-foot ledge of milling ore.

Crescent-Eureka—A new power hoist is stationed at the collar of the shaft which is recording fair progress in sinking to substantial depth.

Dexter—Three groups of the Dexter claims, the Dexter Extension, the White Caps and Union Extension, are already producers. Development is being carried forward in an energetic manner.

Giant—The management is banking upon the exploitation of large deposits of rich ore by the drift that is driving on the 200-foot level.

Gold Crater—A powerful hoisting plant has been installed to aid in the sinking of the main working shaft to a depth of 300 feet.

Granny—From the 200-foot station, soon to be reached in the main shaft, crosscuts will be sent out to the ledge. On the Granny dump are 40 sacks of average $100 ore.

Hindocraft—Some stringers of rich ore have come into the force of the big working tunnel to which length is adding daily. The mineral is very similar to that which is found in the Otero.

Independent—There is apparent a steady increase in values as greater depth is attained in the main shaft.

King—Fair values permeate the width of the 2-foot vein.

Mammoth—A ledge of sulphide ore, which at this time runs to milling proportions, is the only visible reward for the 700 feet of tunneling accomplished. Indications are fair for the development of shipping deposits.

Manhattan Mining—The big ledge, which is being exploited by the main shaft on the Annie Laurie claim, reveals shipping values below the 200-foot level. It is the object of the management to sink alongside the vein to a depth of at least 500 feet before resorting to a blocking out of the reserves for regular production. In the course of development there has accumulated a considerable tonnage of high-grade dirt, which is sacked for consignment to the smelter and the main Annie Laurie dump contains many a wagon load for delivery at the custom mill soon to be in commission.

Mayflower—Water in the main working shaft has put a stop to present developments. After the arrival of pumping appliances a crew of miners will continue in the exploitation of the big ledge which is an extension from the Annie Laurie claim of the Manhattan Mining Company.

Mustang—Rich sulphide ore has been tapped in the crosscut run from the 256-foot level of the main shaft.

Nevada Southern—Lively quartz appears in the bottom of the 100-foot shaft, to which a depth of another 100 feet will be added.

Otero—A width of 20 feet of milling ore has been proved by development.

Rosario—A shaft is going down for depth upon a vein whose croppings reveal gold in flattering quantities.

Seyler-Humphrey — The company's workings are expected to tap a rich body of high-grade sulphide ore on the water level. Active development is the order on leases No. 7 and 8, and on the lease held by Murphy, Cochrane, Putnam and Gould.

Thanksgiving—The 8-foot ledge continues to yield average values of $300 gold per ton. Picked samples run well into the pictures. Two drifts are running on the pay shoot at the 236-foot level and a crosscut is also running out to the hanging wall.

Thelma—Under the management of the newly organized corporation extensive development attention is being paid the two claims which lie east of the town of Manhattan.

Toiyab—Two shifts are going down toward the 100-foot level upon ore that runs from $20 to $30 per ton.

Tonopah Northern—A new hoist has just been installed at the 100-foot shaft which is burrowing through seven feet of ore pregnant with silver, gold and copper.

Whale—On the St. George claim free gold appears in the crosscut at a depth of 130 feet.

Wolfstone—At a depth of 200 feet the ledge shows a width of 70 feet and runs $12 per ton in gold. Free gold pans from quartz recently discovered at another point.

Wolftone Extension—Activity will soon resume at this domain, which for a short time has been idle.

Zanzibar—The White Cap ledge is the destination of the main tunnel, which with its drifts has already recorded a length of 900 feet.

ARIZONA.

SILVER KING TO THE FORE.

LOS ANGELES CAPITAL JOINS IN REVIVING OLD CAMP.

Northern Yuma County Also Having Life Infused by the Investments of This Financial Center of the Southwest — Bisbee Bartenders Taken Into Strikers' Ranks.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) May 3.—No mine is dearer in the memory of the old Arizonan than the Silver King, is northwestern Pinal county, a property that produced millions in silver that was a delight to the eye in the state in which it came to the surface. But the value came from a chimney that was only 500 feet in depth and exploration of surrounding ground gave little result. Of late years, exploration has developed some stringers of rich silver ore that were overlooked by the earlier miners, but the mine has been allowed to fall into such a condition that it would take an immense sum to clear it up. J. H. McCabe of Los Angeles has just purchased a lease upon the historic mine and is busy refitting ten stamps of the mill, at Pinal, better known as old Picket Post, five miles distant. The mill is to be used, principally, in working the ores of a promising group of claims McCabe and associates have purchased along the top of the great ridge that rises to the northward of Silver King camp.

The Silver King divide bears a "fault" or "contact" not dissimilar to that under which such immense riches have been uncovered at Bisbee. This Pinal county contact can be traced from the Pinto Creek district past Silver King and Superior, over into the Mineral Creek Valley, and every mile of the distance has a mine of promise or of assured value. Few of the mines have been driven down to any considerable depth. Probably the deepest workings are on the Superior, declared one of the phenomenal mines of the Southwest, yet the product still is carbonate and oxydized copper ores, though sulphides assuredly will be found lower down. The Superior is passing through a change of management and of policy. About $600,000 has been spent upon the property and millions of capital is believed behind the enterprise, yet there is delay in the building of the long-projected railroad to Florence and in the construction of a reduction plant. On the dumps are many thousands of tons of carbonate ore that will average better than 15 per cent. and far better returns come from regular shipments made to the Humboldt smelter near Prescott. It costs about $7 a ton to freight ore from Superior, thirty miles, to Florence station, from which point the railroad charges are only $2.50 a ton for a mountain haul of 210 miles.

NORTHERN YUMA COUNTY.

Los Angeles capital is eagerly taking hold of mining opportunities in Northern Yuma county, near the line of the Arizona and California Railroad. George Porter of Los Angeles, president of the Crown Queen Company, in Bill Williams' Fork district, believes that the region is one of the coming great mineral producers of the West. A party of Angeleños, who lately made the run from Los Angeles in automobiles, have organized the South Cholla Development Company, with $75,000 subscribed, to work claims adjoining the Golden Eagle group of the Harqua Hala Company. A three-compartment working shaft is to be sunk, a telephone line built from Salome station, a well sunk at Salome and water piped to the mine.

The tramway from the Golden Eagle shaft to the Harqua Hala mill a mile distant, now is in operation, entirely supplying twenty stamps with ore from the rich strike lately made on the 200-foot level. Some of the ore runs into values of thousands of dollars a ton in gold. A remarkable fact is that the Golden Eagle is being transformed into a copper mine with every foot of added depth. Below the 300-foot level, the main ore body has changed to a copper carbonate, carrying good values in gold as well. Water pumped from the lower levels of the Bonanza mine of the Harqua Hala group precipitates copper, so copper is expected also on that property. This striking of copper with depth is not novel in silver mines in Arizona, notable instances being the Old Dominion at Globe and the Consolidated at Tombstone, but this is believed the first instance where a free gold mine has been changed into a copper mine.

DREDGERS TO WORK.

Over a hundred placer claims have been filed upon in Southern Yavapai county and Northern Maricopa county by J. C. Dobbins, representing the Arizona Consolidated Development Company, which proposes to work at least 2500 acres of ground lying on the headwaters of Castle Creek and along the Agua Fria River. The ground has been sampled and is said to have returned values not below 15 cents a cubic yard and as high as $1.50 at no greater depth than five feet. It is to be worked by means of dredges.

The Humphrey-Arizona Gold Mines Company, a new organization that owns claims eight miles north of Morristown, Maricopa county, has done something almost sensational in the way of incorporation. It has a capitalization of only $125,000 and its managers refuse to sell a share of stock at less than par. The promoters mainly are residents of Des Moines and Council Bluffs, Iowa.

FOUR-FIFTHS ARE GONE.

BISBEE (Ariz.) May 3.—The decline of the miners' strike was well shown at the last meeting of the Union, with only 124 attendants. Most of them were Slavonians. Five recruits were added, two of them being bartenders. Picketing is still kept up, though half-heartedly, the pickets and Federation men being lost in the swarm of well-paid and contented men who swarm in and out of the mines three times a day. Apparently, four-fifths of the strikers have left the camp. In the remaining remnant there is considerable soreness, which is receiving close attention from the police. A number of miners and others have been arrested for carrying pistols, and each man arrested has been heavily fined.

Despite the plain failure of the attempt to unionize the camp, the federation still hangs on its futile determination. The strike committee has just issued a bulletin, which reads:

"Workingmen: Stay away from Bisbee, Ariz. The members of the Western Federation of Miners in that place are on strike against the mining companies, for the abolition of the blacklisting system and the discrimination against union men. Pay no attention to subsidized press reports or to agents of the companies. The mines of Bisbee are unfair and no man fair to organized labor will work in them until the companies accede to our demands." This is interesting information, in view of the fact that 2000 men stayed at work, while only 1100 walked out, most of the strikers leaving the camp at once. It is believed that only 200 now remain. Even the agitators are departing.

There have been accusations that the strike was gotten up primarily for the purpose of depressing the prices of the Bonanza Circle stocks. The stocks have fallen in the market, but the management of almost every producing property has made as good a production average for the past two months as ever had been made before. The Copper Queen smelter at Douglas turned out about 9,500,000 pounds of copper, with nine furnaces hot and a tenth under construction. The company is to close down the old Czar shaft, the oldest of the present workings, for repairs such as have been made on the lower-lying shafts, particularly the Spray and Holbrook.

The Shattuck and Arizona Company will commence at once on the erection of its smelter at Douglas, on grounr adoining that of the Copper Queen works. The plant will have two furnaces, with daily capacity for 800 tons of ore. The company now is shipping 225 tons a day to the Copper Queen, with results of about 1,000,000 pounds of copper a month. The new works will add 250 men to the number now employed at Douglas.

A magnificent body of copper ore, averaging 11 per cent., was struck this week on the Denn, on the main drift, on the 1100-foot level.

A great machine shop is to be built for the Bonanza Circle mines on ground near the Junction shaft.

The Junction has resumed shipments of ore to Douglas and all the smaller companies which were affected by the strike have resumed operations with full crews.

UNIONISM AT GLOBE.

GLOBE (Ariz.) May 3.—It is believed that Globe has passed Bisbee in the number of men employed in the mines, at least 4000 miners being now at work in this district. About 2800 are employed by the Old Dominion-Phelps-Dodge interest alone. There are scores of independent companies operating properties around Globe and there are hundreds of prospects, as well, in which are hundreds of operatives, in addition. Though the camp is generally rated as one that is hidebound in its unionism, there has been little or no trouble in a labor way for years. According to the labor leaders, there is not a complaint that can be made concerning treatment, wages or hours. On May Day there was a general cessation of work in the mines. There was a parade of 500 men, practically all of them foreigners, no flags whatever being carried. The orators of the day were Socialists, but their speeches were comparatively mild, mainly directed against the Copper Queen of Bisbee, controlled by the same directing spirits as the Old Dominion.

No. 3 sulphide vein on the Old Dominion has been struck on the thirteenth level, assaying, for the first ten feet of the crosscut, an average of 5 per cent. copper. This is gratifying to the management, for the vein on the level above was practically barren of metal. It is renewed confirmation of the demonstrated fact that the Old Dominion ores are growing richer and the ore bodies larger as depth is attained in the sulphides. The smelter is working little beside Old Dominion ores, a surplus of custom ores purchased being shipped to Douglas.

John Pascoe and Robert Henry of Globe are making good placer claims only three miles distant from Globe, by means of water brought in a flume from Pinal Creek. Though the ground washed is rich, there is much trouble through the fact that the riffles soon fill up with a heavy iron sand.

At the depth of 130 feet, on the San Juan mine, north of Safford, Graham county, has been found a body of glance copper ore that will average about 10 per cent., for a width of fifteen feet. The operating company has a concentrator that is working up fifty tons a day of the ore and the management is confident that the showing warrants construction of a smelter.

THE DISTRICT OF BULLFROG.

FUTURE OF NEVADA'S CAMPS WELL ASSURED.

Harriman, Clark, Schwab and Other Men of Wealth Show Their Faith by Investment—"Knockers" Cannot Kill It—Something of the Various Mines That Produce Its Wealth.

BY DR. R. O. HALL.

Why Bullfrog? In August 1904 "Shorty" Harris and Ed. Cross discovered the, so to speak, "Amphibious" gold-bearing district. The camp had no name, but owing to the peculiar rock (of turquoise color) resembling bullfrog colors and spots, "Black Bill," one of the Nevada poets, asked of a companion, "What is this rock anyhow?" "Search me," was the reply, "but it looks like a bullfrog." Hence the name.

The rock, Rhyolite, is responsible for the town of that name. Some true rhyolite occurs in the district, notably so at the "Denver Bullfrog" mine.

Beatty derived its cognomen from "Old Man Beatty," a veteran of the locality.

The Lee mining district is situated on the eastern slope of the Funeral Range, twenty-three miles southeast of Rhyolite. The California - Nevada boundary line intersects the district, the northern part being in Nevada and the southern in California.

Forty-one years ago "Old Man" Finlay made the first discovery of gold-bearing ore in the Lee section.

Finlay was on friendly terms with Breyfogle, whose name and famous "Lost Mine" is a by-word in all Nevada mining camps.

In March 1904, just before the rush to the Bullfrog district, Finlay and Dick Lee went back to the original discovery and located some of the most promising claims in Nevada. Finlay and the Lee brothers, after whom the district was named, continued prospecting and in November 1904 located the State Line and Hayseed with values in gold of over $340 per ton ore. The Burro Group is one more of their locations discovered in March, 1905.

The Echo District (so named for the reason that the natural tone of the human voice can be heard at a distance of over a quarter of a mile in one of the adjoining cañons) joins the Lee district on the south and extends to the Death Valley slope of the Funeral Range and is now the scene of great mining activity.

Many of the boys employed on the Inyo mine prefer to take capital stock in the mine for their services rather than gold coin of the realm.

The Honeysuckle mine has a lead of ore nearly three feet wide running high in gold. The ore is hematite (massive and granular iron peroxide)—when the boys leave the shaft they resemble in color full-blooded Indians in "war paint" all over and from head to foot.

SMALL OIL PROSPECTS.

Will petroleum be discovered near Beatty? The indications are not encouraging; the district is too much faulted and "burnt up." At Indian Springs the formation is favorable for oil, but it will require over 2500 feet depth and even then the drill will probably strike a "duster."

In addition to the mining territory of which we write, what shall we say of Seven Troughs, Oak Springs, Ely, and south and southeast of Ely, northwest of Osceola, west of the S. P.L.A. & S.L. Railroad from Milford, Utah, and north and south of the Southern Pacific Railroad? All that can be stated is that the sections indicated prove Nevada and Utah to be the peers of any mining sections of our United States.

TURQUOISE MINES SOLD.

Mr. Grider and associates of Los Angeles recently sold their turquoise mines, carrying gold, silver, lead and copper, to Prof. McCaw and associates of New York, consisting of five claims and situated 40 miles northwest of Amargosa, near Oak Springs. The consideration stated is $40,000.

The mines of the Bullfrog district are many, and are mostly in a stage of development. Indications so far show that large bodies of low-grade ore are everywhere in the district and by free milling and cyanide processes will yield good pay to their owners, and for many, many years "dividends" will come regularly to the fortunate holders of legitimate stock.

Would it be possible to conceive such a fact that this district will not be a success? To those who think so, and there are some "knockers," let them ask themselves the question, "Would such world-renowned capitalists as Harriman, the Clarks, Schwab, and other magnates be investing there if the district were not already a proven one?

At Las Vegas one can now be shifted from the magnificent roadbed of the Salt Lake Railroad to the "just as good" Las Vegas and Tonopah Railway. The train on the L. V. & T is made up of freight, express, day coach, chair car, standard Pullman and "smoker." Harvey-like meals are served at Indian Springs and for "six-bits" only.

IN THE EARTH.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY.

To Correspondents:

This department is not conducted for pay. Its object is to convey reliable information of interest and value to the public and it is not for the private benefit of any miner, collector, speculator or prospector. Correspondents are particularly cautioned to take careful note of the statements and injunctions contained in the paragraphs below:

(1.) Specimens must be small and bear a tag giving name and address of sender, and the general—not exact—locality from whence the specimen was taken, also the name of it as nearly as the sender knows. Send, also, with the specimen, a clearly written letter briefly describing the find and what the finder wishes done with it. The letter must be properly dated and plainly signed.

(2.) No attention will be paid to anonymous letters or to letters signed merely with initials.

(3.) No examination of samples or specimens will be made in cases where The Times may decide that the specimen and inquiry are not of public interest. This office does not undertake to perform the work of an assay office.

(4.) Inquiries relative to matters of purely personal interest will not be answered.

(5.) When no response to an inquiry made or specimens sent appears in these columns, the inquirer will understand that his inquiry does not come within the purview of this department.

(6.) It is impossible to return specimens, as they must necessarily be destroyed or impaired in the process of analysis.

Address invariably, The Times.

Zeolitic Ore.

ROSAMOND (Kern county) April 23, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I send you through the mail a sample of ore; please tell me what it is.

The ore will melt at a red heat; run it up to white heat and it volatilizes.

Let me know through your valuable paper. Respectfully your patron,

C. W. H.

ANSWER: The term zeolite is applied to a class of ores "because of their general character of intermescing when heated;" and having also a tendency to form a jelly with acids.

Your sample is not true zeolite. Natrolite, a double silicate of sodium and aluminum, is a zeolite.

The specimen carries some little sodium and aluminum, with sulphides, and, while of interest, the values, if any, must be obtainel from the concentrated iron sulphides mixed therewith.

Fuller's Earth.

LOS ANGELES, April 22, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I hand you herewith a sample of clay material of which I have found a very large deposit in Southern California.

I would be glad if you would advise me in your "In the Earth" what the substance is.

I have been advised that it is a material from which antiphlogistine is made.

It is amusing to watch its action when dropped into a glass of water.

Yours truly,

J. H. McK.

ANSWER: The specimen is massive. Green-brown in color. It is soft (yielding to the nail,) opaque, and possesses a greasy feel. Adheres but little to the tongue. It is translucent under water and falls into a powder without forming a paste. Its sp. gr. is 2.3. The sample is Fuller's Earth.

Samples of Interest.

MANVEL, April 22, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you kindly examine the specimens I send you today and publish the answer in your "In the Earth" department?

I have an idea that some of them carry vanadium. Yours truly,

DR. W. J. M.

ANSWER: A quantitative test on the samples was not performed. You are advised as follows: (1) This specimen shows dendritic forms of manganese (forest rock;) it should be concentrated and analyzed. (2) Probably is a low grade phosphate of uranium. (3) Is more decomposed than (1) but of like constituents. (4) Low grade manganese dioxide. (5) Plumbago and not molydenite.

A Bunch.

SILVER MOUNTAIN MINING DISTRICT, April 19, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I send you today by mail nine samples of ore or minerals. Please classify them in The Times. No. 4 is thought to be phonolite quartz. No. 6 Scheelite.

Of the others I have no opinion to venture.

All come from near Oro Grande.

Respectfully,

E. M. D.

ANSWER: As a rule, correspondents should send but one sample at a time. You are to be congratulated, however, for the very neat manner in which you wrapped and numbered them. Being the holder of a public office of benefit to the mining interests, your entire bunch will now be replied to.

(1) Is siliceous talcose schist. (2) Impure pipe-clay. (3) Ilmenite. (4) No phonolite; the sample is a limonitic quartzite. (5) Actinolite. (6) Is not scheelite, but is a feldspathic, low grade albite. (7) Iron-stained quartzose. (8) Low per cent. zeolite. (9) A cement base.

Feldspar and Iron.

KINGMAN (Ariz.) April 18, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Mineralogically, what rock is represented by sample? From near this section. Yours truly,

J. T. D.

Metalliferous Questions.

YUMA (Ariz.) April 23, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Quite a diversity of opinion exists regarding samples.

No. 1 when taken from shaft is spongy and tough; it hardens when brought to the surface; it lies between a quartz ledge and a rotten granite; it seems to be impregnated with sulphurets. Is it a part of ledge? Will it probably become pay ore below water level? Is it indicative of copper? There is from one to three feet of it. What is this Arizona "stuff?"

Is sample number 2 copper-bearing ore? Yours truly,

H. M. M.

ANSWER: The "stuff" consists of gneiss (soft or rotten granite of miners;) combined with limonitic (yellow iron oxide) quartzite. The quartzite is probably the ledge. It does not indicate "copper." We cannot hazard an opinion "below water level."

Sample number 2 is a "stringer." Copper values doubtful. Pan for gold and concentrates then show results to a reliable assayer.

Hematite.

SILVER LAKE, April 21, 1907.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I send you by accompanying mail a sample of mineral found near this place.

I would be pleased to have you inform me, through the columns of The Times, what it is.

It occurs in a vein of about twelve inches width and looks like graphite or antimony. Yours respectfully,

J. A. T.

ANSWER: If this ore were scattered broadcast over the surface, it would, in appearance, form a "silver lake."

It is a most beautiful sample of "micaceous iron"—a variety of hematite.

It stains the fingers, somewhat in the manner of graphite, molybdenite, stibnite (antimony sulphide,) or manganese dioxide, but, the stain is easily washed away, which is not the case with the minerals named.

I would be pleased to have you inform me, through the columns of The Times, what it is.

It occurs in a vein of about twelve inches width and looks like graphite or antimony. Yours respectfully,

J. A. T.

ANSWER: If this ore were scattered broadcast over the surface, it would, in appearance, form a "silver lake."

It is a most beautiful sample of "micaceous iron"—a variety of hematite.

It stains the fingers, somewhat in the manner of graphite, molybdenite, stibnite (antimony sulphide,) or manganese dioxide, but, the stain is easily washed away, which is not the case with the minerals named.

WORKERS' PAGE—Strawberry Biology Wonders; Legislation and Unionism.

Blossoms of Small Fruits.

SOME OF THE WISE PROVISIONS OF NATURE FOR THE PROPAGATION OF FRUIT.

A COMPANY of visitors straggled somewhat reluctantly, in resopnse to my invitation, toward the lower end of the garden. It was an opportune time for an impromptu lesson in nature study. The visitors were soon busy exploring under the strawberry leaves in search of fruit—a berry was selected as the subject of study, writes Edward F. Bigelow in Suburban Life for May.

It was explained that the pulpy portion of the strawberry is not really a fruit, nor even a berry, but is a cluster of dry seeds slightly embedded in a mass of pulp. The little seeds are the true fruit. It is surprising that the pulp enlarges, that it does not remain small and dry, as in the hepatica or buttercup. In some wise provision of nature, the pollen not only directly gives life to each seed on which it falls, but also stimulates the surrounding portion of the receptacle (originally small and hard) to grow into the full, juicy and luscious form. If only one of the seeds is fertilized and the surrounding portion equally stimulated, then the result is a regular "berry."

We all know that a pear or an apple tree, about equally in bloom on every branch, does not always result in a corresponding uniformity of fruiting. Not all the blossoms "set," as the farmer would say. Such an apple tree is but an enlarged illustration of the unevenly fruited achenes or seeds of an irregular strawberry.

The same thing occurs in the fertilization of corn. When the pollination is equal to all the kernels, the result is a handsome, symmetrical ear for the larger and best pile at husking time. The small, irregular ears, the husker throws into a separate pile. These, and also the irregular, malformed strawberries, or other imperfect-fruiting growth, the farmer refers to as "nubbins."

It is quite easy to produce an artificial "nubbin" strawberry. Jack Frost quite frequently performs such experiments. All that is necessary is to injure or remove some of the "styles," so that the pollen does not act on certain portions. Every one who has picked blackberries late in the autumn is familiar with the "freaks" and monstrosities produced by the frost's interference with regular pollination.

While this was under consideration, the visitors had been making further discoveries, not alone in strawberry biology. Close attention had been paid to, and tasty assimilation had been made of many forms, regular and irregular. Fine distinctions were not always made. The only test evidently essential was, "Is it ripe?"

These examinations brought forth the incidental discovery that the very young and the very old flowers of the strawberry hung downward near the ground. Only those open in best condition stood upright— wise provision of nature. She presents to the insects most conspicuously the flowers that need the carrying of pollen, and she does not want the other flowers to interfere by getting in the way.

President Roosevelt's attention should be called to the astonishing fact that the strawberries, perhaps more than any other plant, and probably more in the United States than elsewhere, are separating their sexes, and are tending toward race suicide, the President's particular bugaboo. Normally every wild strawberry flower is "perfect," as the botanist expresses it; that is, it has both sexes. The pistils are the little achenes or seeds in the center, and the stamens (males) are on the row of short-stalked filaments surrounding. High cultivation separates the two flowers so that some flowers are "perfect" and some "imperfect"—that is, with either stamens or pistils, not with both.

Darwin noticed this tendency in the cultivated strawberry, and also claimed that it "seems to be much more strongly marked in the United States than in Europe; and this appears to be the result of the direct action of climate on the reproductive organs."

This same tendency is found among the blackberries. It is also of interest to note that here the pulp grows around the fertilized seed. The blackberry and the raspberry are really little stone fruits. The mythical man who referred to green corn as "peas on a stick" would consistently call blackberries and raspberries "peaches on blocks." The blooms of the blackberry are really roses, and not the least beautiful of the rose family. And the strawberry, apple, plum and cherry, all are members of the rose family.

Flowers really are advertising signs. They attract us by their beauty of for mand color and by their subtle odors. We think that they were made for our delectation, but we are wrong. They were designed by all-wise nature for a strictly utilitarian purpose. The real design of the wonderful coloring and the exquisite odors is to attract the bees and other insects, which carry the pollen from one flower to another and so perpetuate the species.

The grape is an example of a flower that has its "signboard" inconspicuous, but makes up by extra perfume. Virginia creeper, English ivy and mignonette also are good examples of flowers that have their sweetness intensified to compensate for lack of eye-attraction. The stamens apparently are not protected from dew or rain, as in many flowers that close up, but close examination shows that the grape is not without protection. The anthers close.

Prof. W. J. V. Osterhout says: "In many plants (especially among pears, plums and grapes) pollen from the same flower or even from another individual of the same species is without effect; pollen from another variety must be employed in order to set the fruit. This is usually accomplished by planting a few trees of the proper variety in the orchard, so that the bees may carry the pollen. This condition is known as self-sterility, and is frequently brought about by hybridization or even by cultivation. Climate may also assist in bringing it about; some varieties which are self-sterile in the North are not so in the South.

The calyx of the grape blossoms is merely a rim at the base. The corolla is balloon-shaped before it opens, covering the entire flower. It opens at the bottom, spreading at the top, an astonishing arrangement. The umbrella-shaped carolla is shed early, leaving the stamens erect; just as if one were to tear off the covering of an umbrella and leave the ribs. This is the "shedding of the caps" spoken of by the grape growers. The tendrils and leaf clusters are modified leaves. Every leaf is opposite either a tendril or a flower cluster. The fertile flowers are in compact panicle. The sterile ones are looser.

The gooseberry is a true berry, as are also the grape, currant, tomato and orange. The calyx is often colored, and persists above the fruit. The petals are fine, and are small and scale-like on the throat of the calyx. The currant is botanically the same as the gooseberry.

The cherry is included with the rose family by Gray, but given the distinction of separate (plum family), though closely related family, by Britton and Brown. The clusters of flowers are known as umbels.

LADDER OF SUCCESS.

Men Who Become Rich Overcome Situations and Work Hard Themselves.

It was Marshall O. Roberts who, according to Spare Moments, originated the idea of giving his store an air of prosperity by filling his counters with the appearance of goods, when he could not afford the actual stock.

In 1835 young Roberts had managed to scrape together a few hundred dollars, the result of many years' close saving, though he was only 21 at the time. He had decided to try his hand at the hardware and shipping supply business.

The first thing was to find a suitable building in a suitable location. But the two requirements could not be found together, so he was finally compelled to take a large building, in which his small stock of goods seemed completely lost.

After arranging his shelves in every possible way to make them appear to good advantage, he gave up in disgust.

"They look like so many samples," he complained and, it is said, immediately went out and ordered a load of bricks sent to the store.

These he took one by one and neatly wrapped, tying a sample of a nail or a screw or a rivet to the end that would be visible. The bricks were about the size of many of his boxes, and when the shelves were filled with them his store appeared to be exceedingly well stocked. Naturally customers were drawn to the firm that kept the largest stock.

LELAND STANFORD'S BEGINNING.

According to the same authority, Leland Stanford's first earnings were the result of digging horse radish, washing it and carrying it to the nearest town. He received, as his share of the enterprise, 25 cents. He was then 6 years old. In his eighth year he worked hard gathering chestnuts which he sold for $25.

During successive years he toiled on the farm in the summer and attended school in the winter, all the time dreaming of a college education and later of becoming a lawyer. When he was 18 there was no money in sight for the carrying out of his cherished plans and the outlook, to say the least, was not encouraging. Consequently he hailed with delight his father's offer to allow him the profits from clearing a tract of woodland recently purchased. He was to have all he could make selling cordwood.

He went at it with zest, hiring other wood choppers to help him, and before a year of the hardest kind of toil had ended he had chopped and shipped more than two thousand cords of wood and had in the bank $2600. He did not lose sight of his purpose, but used the money to finish his common-school education and then at a law school.

TIFFANY'S BUSINESS SENSE.

When Charles Tiffany, on $1000 capital borrowed from his father, established a store dealing in ornaments and fine work in gold and silver, right on the heels of the great panic of 1837, he showed an understanding of human nature that indicated an original mind as well as an independent one. His success was almost instantaneous. He appealed to a side of human desire that had been ignored, and the response was heavy and continuous.

His use of the first great Atlantic cable illustrates his shrewd business sense. Hardly had the attempt to lay the cable proved a failure before he bought all the unused wire, had it cut up into different shapes and sizes, attractively mounted and offered for sale as souvenirs. They sold like hot cakes and netted him a handsome sum.

Labor's Open Shop.

CANADA PROHIBITS STRIKES UNTIL AFTER INVESTIGATION BY A COMMISSION.

[Chicago Chronicle:] The Chronicle has said repeatedly that the public has a paramount interest in strikes by the employés of public service corporations which supply commodities or services of public necessity or convenience.

It has repeatedly said that the cutting off of necessary supplies, or even supplies ministering to the public convenience, in order to bring employers to terms or incidently in bringing them to terms was simply intolerable and that the public would be justified in protecting itself against privation and distress.

It has maintained that individual rights could not be maintained or asserted by bodies of men collectively in such wise as to attack the rights of whole communities and inflict injury upon them; that the demands of labor must be pressed in some other way so that the activities of communities will not be arrested and the people will not be subjected to great injury.

It is interesting to know that the Dominion of Canada not only shares these views but has acted upon them in a manner which proves that the statesmen of Canada are not afraid to do what is required by the interests of the great masses of the people undeterred by menaces, open or implied, of the organized few.

In 1900 the Canadian Parliament passed a voluntary conciliation act which proved useful in settling many serious disputes between employés and employed.

In 1903 it went much further in recognition of the doctrine of public rights above stated. It passed an act providing for compulsory investigation of labor disputes threatening interruption of the railroad service, on the theory that such service is quasi public in a preëminent degree insomuch that its interruption necessarily and vitally affects the interests of communities or all the people according as it is local or general.

Now Parliament has gone a long way further. It has passed an act "to aid in the prevention and settlement of strikes and lockouts in coal mines and on public service utilities." As the title shows, the act is general in its character, applying not only to strikes and lockouts in coal mines and on railroads but on all public utilities.

It prohibits under penalty any such strike or lockout until a board of conciliation and investigation has inquired into the causes of the dispute. Upon application of either party to the dispute, the Minister of Labor is required to appoint such a board.

The board is to consist of three members, one to represent each of the disputants and the third to be chosen by these two. In case the parties fail to nominate members, the Minister is to choose them. The board so constituted has power to compel the attendance of witnesses, require the production of books and papers and personally examine premises. The duty of the board is to effect a settlement, if possible. It is to make such recommendations as will, in its opinion, result in an equitable adjustment.

Here its active duty ends. Its recommendations are not binding upon the parties. As a result of the inquiry the facts will be known to all and public opinion is expected to do the rest.

Employers and employés are required to give at least thirty days' notice of any intended change affecting wages or hours. During this period and pending the investigation, the relation between the parties to the dispute is to remain unchanged. For causing lockouts or strikes contrary to the provisions of the act, employers are to be fined from $100 to $1000, and employés $10 to $50 for each day of the illegal lockout or strike, as the case may be.

It will be seen that the law comes short of expressly asserting the right of the government to protect the rights and interests of the public by adjudication in case either party refuses to accept the recommendations of the board and a suspension of service results.

But it will also be seen that the compulsory provisions of the law by clear implication declare that this right exists and is merely held in abeyance and will be called into exercise by further legislation, if necessary.

Canada is in advance of us in this matter, and we may as well inform ourselves as to what she has done and make ready to do the same with such modifications as our different political system requires.

An Archistic Community.

Four or five years ago one Dingwell was expelled from the Carmen's Union in San Francisco on the charge of "conspiracy to disrupt the union," and applied to the Superior Court for an order for reinstatement. After hearing the case, Judge Hebbard gave the desired order, and the Supreme Court has affirmed its validity. The union refuses to reinstate, and when Dingwell's counsel applied to Judge Hebbard to cite the union for contempt the citation was refused for the obvious reason that there was no way of determining which members of the union were guilty of the contempt and that it was physically impossible to jail the whole twelve or fifteen hundred of them, which, incidentally, the public would be very sorry to have him do if he could. The street-car strikes which the men get up of their own accord are quite as much as we are welling to endure.

The question might arise why a judge should make an order which he himself declares to be non-enforceable. That, however, we need no discuss. There is a far graver aspect to the matter. As a general rule it is doubtless not best for the courts to interfere in any way with the management of voluntary associations, yet when membership involves property rights they apparently must interfere, and there are many records of restoration by the courts of members expelled from stock or produce exchanges in which membership is essential to the prosecution of one's business, and has, therefore, a property value. The courts do not say that members of such bodies may not be expelled for violation of their rules, but do say that expelled members have the right to appeal to the courts for a judicial determination of the sufficiency of the evidence to justify expulsion. And, as stated, the courts have sometimes ordered the reinstatement of the member, just as Judge Hebbard ordered the reinstatement of Dingwell. But now comes the contrast. In no instance has a stock exchange failed to promptly obey the order of the court, while a union in San Francisco openly defies the order.

We do not know how it is in the Carmen's Union, but it is notorious that there are some unions in San Francisco in which membership is essential to the prosecution of one's trade. Expulsion from such a union may absolutely debar one from earning a living, and reduce the expelled member and his family to poverty. It would seem that membership in such a union, bought and paid for by initiation fee and dues, involved a property right as much as membership in a stock exchange, and if it does convey such a right it is as much a matter for the cognizance of a court as any other property right. And, in fact, by his original decision Judge Hebbard so held, and the Supreme Court sustained him. And yet the union defies the courts and the very judge whose order is defied says that there is no remedy. The union, by its action, held that there was evidence that some union law had been broken for which the penalty was expulsion. Judge Hebbard, on review of the case, held precisely the contrary. Which was right we do not pretend to say. What we do say is that a community in which any individual may be deprived of his means of support without due process of law, and without effective legal remedy, comes very near being an anarchistic community.—[San Francisco Chronicle.

Won't Raise Wages.

The stevedoring firms and steamship companies of Seattle have decided to refuse absolutely to pay the new wage scale issued recently by the local Riggers' and Longshoremen's Union.

Every employer of longshoremen present at a meeting at the rooms of the Citizens' Alliance in the Lumber Exchange building was very positive in his views of the matter, all saying that the scale was exorbitant.

The longshoremen are as insistent that the new wages be paid as the employers are that they shall not be paid. If the matter cannot be settled amicably, the shipping men of the city expect that a strike will be inaugurated May 15, when the scale goes into effect.

It will be known, however, some time before May 15 whether the union will reduce their scale or not. If not it will be necessary to send to surrounding towns for men who do not belong to the union. If a strike does take place it will mean a long, bitter struggle for the longshoremen.—[Seattle Times.

Eliminate All Disturbers.

The packing-houses of St. Joseph, Mo., recently became aware of the fact that an attempt was being made to reorganize the local union of meat cutters and butcher workmen, and have found it convenient to separate from their pay checks every man in their employ who attended the meeting. This has had a disheartening effect on all the members who were persuaded to attend. The general managers have decided that matters are in as good shape as they could possibly desire, and if the national officers of the unions assume an aggressive position they will be met with flat refusals for the first demands, and that there will be no recognition of the officers, even as individuals, if it should lead to a submission of proposals for the unionizing of the plants. It has been the policy of the general managers of the packing-houses to eliminate any person who might become a possible disturber, whether a member of a union or not.

The packers during the past week have assumed an aggressive attitude towards the members of the Steamfitters' Union, the only organization that has been permitted to hold meetings, elect officers and get into anything like perfect condition without warning from their employers. The first indication of a movement for the dissolution of this union among the packing-house employés was when the working number of one of the most enthusiastic members was turned down when he called at the office to assume his duties for the day. No explanation was vouchsafed for the action of his employers, but it was at once understood that those of the union who permitted their names to be used for the purpose of increasing membership in this or that labor organization was apt to be marked for discharge.

Hours of Labor.

The March bulletin of the Bureau of Labor contains a decision of the Supreme Court of Wyoming regarding the length of a day's work. The Legislature of the State has enacted a law providing that "Eight hours shall constitute a day's work for all miners and laborers" in coal mines, and under this statute suit was brought against one Al Thompson, a miner, for having violated the law. He demurred to the charge and the case being carried to the Supreme Court the demurrer was sustained. The decision of the court is that a "day" in a contract shall be construed to mean eight hours and entitle a man working that number of hours to a day's pay, but it is not intended by the law that a man shall be punished for voluntarily performing more than eight hours' work in a calendar day.

The situation is that it is not a violation of the law for a workman to work more hours if he desires, and it is not illegal for an employer to employ men an extra number of hours so long as it is not compulsory on the part of the employer.

MAKING ONESELF.

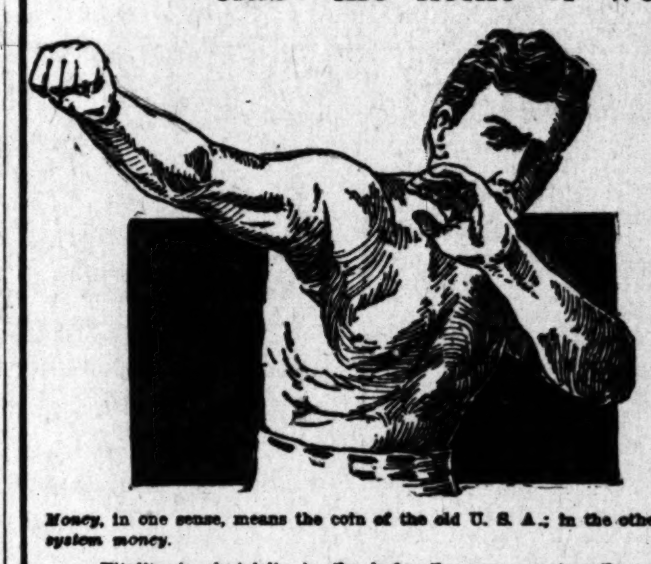
Instance Where the Employment of Spare Time Changed a Man's Life Work.

I started out for myself at the age of 17. At that time my ambition was to be a lawyer, but working ten hours a day at well-digging left me little time for study. Of course, I had my evenings, but my work was so hard that I generally felt like going to bed soon after supper. Retiring so early, I found that I generally awoke between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning with my body rested and my mind clear and in good working order, and so I got to studying mornings instead of evenings. While working ten hours a day in wells, I in this way read through Blackstone, Kent and a dozen or more leading law works, and though I did not become a practicing lawyer, the knowledge of law gained in the early hours of my youth has saved me many a dollar in the business affairs of later years, and, having formed a habit of thus utilizing the early morning hours, I have ever since kept it up. I was always very fond of reading, and since the days of my teens have been an amateur author. After I ceased the study of law I began a systematic course of reading of books procured at a public library, and even in my busiest days as a contractor kept myself thoroughly up-to-date on all happenings in the world at large, and found time to read considerable of the best and latest fiction contained in the leading books and magazines, as well. Gradually I became more discriminating in my choice of fiction, and gave less time to the reading of it and began to spend more time trying to write something myself. At the age of 30 I produced my first novel of any length. At the time, I was employed every hour of the daytime, except Sundays, and nearly every word of the 50,000 words that my first production contained was written between the hours of 2 and 6 a.m. When it was finished, I tied each chapter up separately with bright blue ribbon and sent it to a leading publisher without any letter of advice or return postage, and, for a wonder, got it back, and have it yet, for that matter, and I frequently think back to those days with a smile half of merriment, half of self-pity. I was so desperately in earnest and so awfully green. Slowly, oh, so slowly it seems now, I learned the first requisites of the art of an author. Mind you, I had started out without even a common school education, and during all this time had "toiled upward through the night" without a teacher or adviser. But my reward came at last, and one day, when I opened a letter, a small check, instead of a rejection slip, dropped out. Strong man that I was, I had to wink fast to keep back the tears the next few moments, as like a panorama the main incidents of my long struggle upward passed before me. It had been a long fight and a hard one, but my checks today amount to quite a neat little sum each month. But when I mention some books I have read, or some subject that I intend to write upon to my friends and they half enviously wish that they had been able to find time to read and write as much as I have, I can hardly restrain a smile, for few of them have been as busily employed through the daylight hours of their lives as I have. It was in my early morning hours that I got ahead of them.—[W. D. B., in Spare Moments.

Varying Value of Wood.

From the standpoint of industrial utility, says Prof. Duncan, in Harper's Magazine, the subject of cellulose can only be characterized as stupendous. Take a pine tree, for insance. Standing, it is worth $10 a ton; cut and stripped, it is worth $15; boiled into pulp it is worth $40; bleached, it is worth $55; turned into viscose and spun into silk it is worth $5500.

I'm So Nervous!
The same old story. Every day you meet another of your friends joining the big American weakness club—the home of weak nerves.
No Nerves==
No Strength
No Strength==
No Hope
No Hope==
No Money
No Money==
No Good



Money, in one sense, means the coin of the old U. S. A.; in the other it means strenuous nerve force, which is system money.

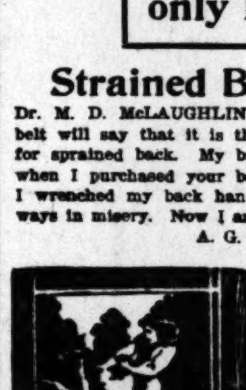
Vitality is electricity in the body—the nerve centers the power houses. They supply the energy and juice to every nerve in the body to make it healthy, and you have vitality. Lose this and you soon get out of the limelight and join the weak—the dead ones.

We want to make you a man with nerve—not merely a bluff, but a warm blooded, physically sound man. We have the cure and know that our method will succeed in nearly every case. Your experience in your walk of life is telling you that there is nothing real for a cure but Electricity. This natural element gives nerve life, nerve strength and nerve force to the starved and excitable nerves in your system. You get more Sleep, then you wake up brighter; you can think and act quicker; you feel like working and when your day's work is over you have a good deal of strength left.

Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt has cured and is curing thousands. It only helps nature—that's all.

Strained Back Cured
DR. M. D. McLAUGHLIN CO.—In regard to your belt will say that it is the best thing I ever tried for sprained back. My back is entirely cured and when I purchased your belt I could scarcely walk. I wrenched my back handling lumber and was always in misery. Now I am as well as I ever was.
A. G. Washurn, Fredelba, Cal.

Stomach Trouble and Weakness Cured
DR. McLAUGHLIN CO.—I wish to state that I found your Belt to be all that you claimed for it and more too. I am completely cured of all my ailments. I was suffering the tortures of the damned with indigestion when I got your Belt and thought I would die any minute. I then weighed 165 lbs. and now I weigh 190.
Jas. W. Smith, Tombstone, A. T.



"The book that showed others will show you."

Nothing succeeds like success. You can always hear the cry of the man who wins, and that is why they are all boosting Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt, for they know what it did for them and they want others to get in the crowd. Everybody is crying for Electricity. We have the best, easiest and cheapest way of giving it to you.

We have a very plainly written book that will give many pointers to men and women suffering from any weakness or aches and pains, that make you feel that you are about all in; and, before you put it off, just put your name on this coupon and send it to us and we will send it sealed, in a plain envelope. CALL IF YOU CAN DO SO and you can any time from 9 to 8 every day and from 10 to 1 on Sundays.

SPECIAL NOTICES—

FREE LECTURE TO MEN ONLY
at 215½ W. Fourth st., by DOCTOR WILLIAM WINDSOR of Boston, Monday night, May 7, "Mistakes of Married Men." This lecture is a discussion of the science of Eugenics and shows why so many marriages are unhappy and why children are born with crippled bodies and defective brains.

This lecture will be followed with delineations of character and a special class on "Mistakes Corrected."

DOCTOR WINDSOR'S CLASS IN VITOSOPHY completed the first course last Friday night, passing the following resolution, signed by nearly one hundred enthusiastic students:

"Resolved, that we, the undersigned students of the class in Vitosophy of Los Angeles, do hereby signify that we have received very valuable and satisfactory instruction in the science of Vitosophy from Doctor William Windsor, president of the Boston College of Vitosophy, and he has GIVEN US INFINITELY MORE THAN HE ADVERTISED TO DO."

DOCTOR WINDSOR WILL FORM A NEW CLASS IN VITOSOPHY next week. Nearly all the present class will take a review course and will bring in new students. IT WILL BE THE LARGEST AND MOST ENTHUSIASTIC CLASS EVER CONDUCTED IN LOS ANGELES on any subject. Join immediately and you can have the benefit of the "Question Sessions" of the present class. The instruction given to this class will include a NEW SYSTEM OF CHARACTER STUDY, enabling you to tell the strong and weak points of any person at a glance.

A NEW SYSTEM OF DIET AND HEALTH CULTURE enabling you to remove any disease that is not caused by deformity or accident.

A complete cure for catarrh, consumption, asthma, indigestion, constipation, fevers, insanity and paralysis. The cure of the POVERTY DISEASE and instruction in the development of FINANCIAL PROSPERITY and SOCIAL SUCCESS. Six lessons in all. Tuition, $10. Write or call for circulars and full explanation.

REMEMBER! This instruction has been tested by nearly one hundred highly intelligent persons and they are insisting on its repetition and they are bringing in their friends. They have at last found the REAL THING and are rejoicing in it.

CONSULT DOCTOR WILLIAM WINDSOR, the world's most eminent phrenologist, and obtain a complete DELINEATION OF YOUR CHARACTER, showing your talents and how to make the most of them, your faults and how to correct them. Your best business vocation and how to preserve and improve health. Your adaptation in matrimony and business partnership and how to accumulate a fortune and prolong and enjoy life.

CONSULTATION AND DELINEATIONS OF CHARACTER daily at offices, 215½ W. Fourth st.

Special—Dr. Windsor will assist Dr. Howard Carlton Tripp at his lecture at Naturopathic Hall, 337½ S. Hill st., this afternoon at 3 o'clock, and will delineate character. 5

115½—S. BROADWAY—115½.
BETWEEN FIRST AND SECOND STS.

DON'T FORGET THE NAME AND NUMBER.

THE MANY FAVORABLE COMMENTS AND THE COURTESIES EXTENDED TREVELYAN BY THE LEADING NEWSPAPERS OF LOS ANGELES, PLACE HIM IN A CLASS DISTINCTLY BY HIMSELF. BETTER CONSULT NO CLAIRVOYANT AT ALL THAN ONE WHO IS INCOMPETENT TO HELP YOU. FALSE PROPHETS DO MORE HARM THAN GOOD, FOR THEY LEAVE YOU IN A WORSE CONDITION THAN BEFORE CONSULTING THEM. THE NAME TREVELYAN IS A DOUBLE GUARANTEE FOR ABILITY, HONESTY AND GENTILITY AND INTELLIGENCE. HE OCCUPIES A POSITION ALL HIS OWN IN HIS PROFESSION—A POSITION NO OTHERS CAN PRESUME TO FILL.

$1—CONSULTATION FEE—$1.

NOT THE CHEAPEST—BUT THE BEST.

TREVELYAN SPEAKS 7 DIFFERENT LANGUAGES. ALL NATIONALITIES MAY CONSULT HIM.

WITHOUT ANY PREVIOUS KNOWLEDGE AND HAVING NO NATURAL MEANS OF KNOWING WHO YOU ARE, WHENCE OR FOR WHAT YOU CAME, HE TELLS YOUR NAME AND OCCUPATION. HE TELLS YOU NAMES OF FRIENDS AND ENEMIES—WHO IS TRUE AND WHO IS FALSE.

TELLS WHOM AND WHEN YOU WILL MARRY, GIVING NAMES, DATES, FACTS AND LOCATION, TAKING NO FEE IN ADVANCE, ACCEPTING NONE UNLESS SATISFACTION IS GIVEN.

NO NEED TO TELL HIM.
THERE IS NO NEED TO TELL TREVELYAN YOUR STORY. THERE WILL BE NO "QUIZZING" OR ASKING OF QUESTIONS BY THE LIFE READER. HIS TALENTS ENABLE HIM TO INSTINCTIVELY KNOW YOUR WANTS AND TROUBLES, WITHOUT ANY ATTEMPT AT MYSTIFICATION, BUT WITH UNERRING SIGHT INTO THE INNER NATURE OF THINGS. HE REVEALS THAT WHICH YOU MOST WISH TO KNOW. HIS ADVICE AND HELP ON ALL MATTERS, BUSINESS, LAWSUITS, MARRIAGE, HEALTH, IS INVALUABLE. IT IS EXACT AND CORRECT—NOT GUESSWORK. HE GIVES NAMES, DATES, FACTS AND FIGURES AND SHOWS CLEARLY AND DISTINCTLY THE ROAD TO SUCCESS IN BUSINESS AS WELL AS IN DOMESTIC AND FAMILY AFFAIRS.

BUSINESS MATTERS
of every description can be advised upon by Trevelyan and perfect satisfaction will be guaranteed. Financial problems are solved, investments advised and assistance of the most practical kind is rendered.

FAMILY MATTERS
may be taken to Trevelyan in the confidence of successful solution in almost any case. Perfect discretion may be relied upon. Let Trevelyan assist you in your family difficulties. He has made thousands happy.

LEARN TO WIN SUCCESS.
Success is yours if you woo rightly. No circumstance can keep you down if you understand the power of your inner forces. Learn how to control these forces, and win success. See Trevelyan about it. He can help you.

HE NEVER FAILS

To cause speedy and happy marriage with the one of your choice, reunites the separated, locates absent friends or buried treasures, ores, minerals, etc., gives you luck to win your biggest wish—and it takes him but a short time. In fact, he guarantees all he claims.

A SECRET YOU SHOULD KNOW.

The Power of Control—How to be master and ruler of your own Home and Affairs—Is your husband, wife or sweetheart indifferent to you? Are you occupying the position in life you are ably qualified for? Do you wish to possess the Key to the vaults of Love, Friendship, Success and Fame? Know the Secret of Control—the power to inspire trust and confidence and win success in business, social or financial life. "Arise! Throw off thy Shackles." Exchange sorrow for joy—Darkness for Light. "Be Master of your own Destiny."

accepts no fee in advance. He guarantees full and complete satisfaction to all callers. Unless you receive more genuine benefit than you have ever received before, your reading is free—will not cost you a penny.

The Trevelyan parlors are so arranged that you will not meet anybody.

Office hours 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., daily and Sundays.

MME.
LE PIERRO

The scientific palmist and life reader; born with a double veil. Consider the future. Don't live from day to day, but consult MME. LE PIERRO, who is located at 413 W. Seventh street. She tells the past, present, and future. At a glance this great life reader can see all without asking a question. She tells you to the point everything about the things you are anxious to know, what to do and what to expect if you wish happiness in your home. If you wish to locate lost or stolen articles; if you wish to find buried treasure; if you wish to be reunited in love or to your family, Mme. Le Pierro may be safely consulted. She tells you whether or not you will be successful in business, mining, or speculation, and if the one you love is true or false.

There is a secret in your life which you should know. She can and will do all she advertises, and guarantees absolute satisfaction.

KNOW THY FUTURE
BY CONSULTING THE WORLD'S GREATEST CLAIRVOYANT, PALMIST AND SPIRIT MEDIUM.

PROF.
MILBURN

PERMANENTLY LOCATED IN HIS OWN HOME, 659 S. HILL ST., 659, CORNER OF SEVENTH ST.

Forty years a practicing psychic, known from ocean to ocean as the marvel of two hemispheres, press and public recognize Prof. Milburn as the foremost and most able clairvoyant and spirit medium now before the public. Where others fail he succeeds with ease and he positively will NOT accept fee for his readings unless you are perfectly satisfied and receive the information you desire. Marvelous demonstrations of second sight, that must be seen to be believed, so be sure and consult him at once. Elevate thyself! Know thy future. Positively no equal on earth in his profession. By his wonderful powers he will tell your full name, tells what you called for, tells what you want to know. If not correct, free. So positive am I of my power to tell the past, present and future that I will make NO CHARGE, NO CHARGE, NO CHARGE, unless you obtain the information you desire and find me superior to all clairvoyants, palmists and mediums in this city.

SPECIAL OFFER FOR ONE WEEK ONLY.

Realizing there are many skeptical people in Los Angeles, and that this city has been overrun with pretenders, etc., and that many of its best citizens would be only too anxious to visit a TRUE clairvoyant medium were they assured of satisfaction, therefore Prof. Milburn will (to convince the public of Los Angeles of his superiority over all clairvoyants) give his full readings to all, for seven days only, at

50C

WHEN CONSULTING A CLAIRVOYANT ALWAYS CONSULT THE BEST. AS A TEST IN THE READING HE WILL TELL YOUR NAME, AGE, OCCUPATION, WHOM AND WHEN YOU WILL MARRY.

ASSISTANCE FOR TROUBLED OR UNFORTUNATE—If you are in trouble of any kind, discontented, unhappy, or not satisfied in life, or have domestic, love or business troubles, you will be told how to overcome all trouble. WHEN OTHERS FAIL HE SUCCEEDS WITH EASE.

HE GIVES ADVICE ON BUSINESS, speculation, investments, insurance, changes, travels, health, sickness, love, divorce, marriage, lawsuits, separations, wills, deeds, mortgages, patents, claims, collections, mining, etc. He will tell you what trade, speculation, or profession you are adapted for.

LAWSUITS, WILLS, DIVORCES—He can render you assistance and give you advice in a way that will bring success in business transactions, property speculation, investments, mining, etc.

LOVE, COURTSHIP, MARRIAGE—Gives truthful revelations of all love affairs, troubles, marriages, restores lost affections, reunites the separated, settles lovers' quarrels, etc.

Tells how to WIN the man or woman you love, and how to make your husband or wife be true to you, and how to overcome all your enemies.

PERSONAL—

MRS. MASSON

the noted palmist of London, England, may be consulted at 232 S. SPRING ST. (Suite 17.)
by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READING FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

Mrs. Masson's knowledge of palmistry is founded upon SCIENTIFIC PRINCIPLES aided by years of EARNEST STUDY and patient PERSONAL INVESTIGATION. Her statements do not consist of vague generalities, which tell you nothing, but are EXACT, PRACTICAL and TO THE POINT; give PAST as well as FUTURE events, and cannot fail to be of benefit to you. They will assist you in the struggle for recognition by teaching you your possibilities and limitations; save you years of fruitless struggles in the wrong vocation by pointing out the line of work you are best fitted for, and lead you to wealth through information as to investments and enterprises, quite unobtainable through other sources.

CHANGES OF BUSINESS, LOSSES AND GAINS, LAWSUITS, DEATHS, MARRIAGES, SEPARATIONS, and, in fact, all that life holds for you, is plainly written in your hand, it is simply a question of correct interpretation.

(As Mrs. Masson's methods of hand-reading do not require the names of her patrons to be disclosed, they may rest assured of their identity being unknown, and that their confidence will be maintained inviolate.)

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.
(Daily and evenings; Sundays 9 to 3.)

A WORD TO YOU.

THE CALIFORNIA AGENCIES COMPANY,
206 Severance Building.
(Corner Sixth and Main sts.)

We have at our office a working model of an invention called the Lovett Magnetic Separator for separating the magnetic iron [illegible] found in the black sand of the Pacific Slope; a machine which promises to revolutionize the iron industry of the United States, as well as gold mining and commercial values generally in California.

The Lovett patents are owned by the Black Sand Gold Recovery Co. of which this company is the local representative.

We invite you to call at the office and investigate this machine and the proposition we have to present. If you cannot call, write for full particulars to

THE CALIFORNIA AGENCIES COMPANY,
206 Severance Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

FOR SALE—

HERE'S A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

One of the nicest, safest, cleanest, most substantial and most profitable business enterprises to be found.

Will invoice about $35,000, and is doing about $7000 a month with a margin of profit sufficient to satisfy any reasonable business man. An increase is among its easiest possibilities.

Unfortunately, we are not permitted to state openly what this business is, we only wish we could do so, as it admittedly stands among the most popular as well as most profitable industries in the local field.

We CAN say, however, that there is no line of business constituting a more important factor in the realm of local institutions; none more essential to the progress of the industrial world.

I. M. HOLLINGSWORTH & CO., 306 Fay BLDG.

EVERYBODY IS TALKING MINING NOW. It is the business; if you have a little money to invest I want to submit to you a plan (not a stock proposition) whereby you can become a mining man in a legitimate proposition; the proposition permits of your having a say in the affairs of the concern, and helping to direct them. Very little money required and you are assured of success. It is the opportunity for the man of small means; in fact, it is the only opportunity. For particulars address EE, box 73, [illegible]

BE A PROMOTER. I HAVE ONE OF THE best mining propositions offered today in the West, upon terms and arrangements whereby if you are a hustler or can associate two or three hustlers with you, you can promote a company that will be profitable to all concerned; the property will stand the closest investigation, and will pay from the start. the terms are such that the mine will readily pay for itself, not a great deal of capital is required; it is not the best thing on earth, but it is a good thing; if interested, will be pleased to submit you particulars. EE, box [illegible]

WE HAVE AN ESPECIALLY ATTRACTIVE proposition to submit to some wideawake business man who has $5000 to invest; we are an incorporated company, manufacturing mechanical goods, and are unable with our present capacity to supply the demand of even the local trade; the field is unlimited; this is strictly a ground floor proposition, your money secured; will give the right man the position of general manager; we court the fullest investigation. Address Y, box 158, TIMES OFFICE.

MANUFACTURING BUSINESS; AN INTEREST for sale (ground floor) in an incorporated local company, manufacturing mechanical goods, for $5000; present capacity of plant unable to supply the demand; we want a man capable of taking position of general manager; his money will be amply secured; our references any mercantile agency in the city and leading banks. Address Y, box 157, TIMES OFFICE.

FOR SALE—ONE OF THE BEST PAYING bakeries in the city; this place has been run by the present owner for the last five years, and has never been offered for sale before. We have investigated this and have secured sole agency. Will clear $2500 per year; good lease; all store trade and cash. Price $3000, or invoice; will sell on easy terms or take clear property in exchange; reason for selling owner is now independent and is tired of working. See HOLLISTER & WEAVER, 902 S. Broadway.

For our full list come to the Southwest Miner's Stock Exchange, or send for the Southwest Mining News free to our customers.

The public are stampeded like a lot of cattle and are throwing over their stocks and have fallen into the trap set for them. Three great combinations of capital with millions at their command are bearing the market to take in the best properties in Goldfield. When they are absorbed, then the public will have to buy the same stocks they are now throwing away at inflated prices. Edward MacDermott's advice is to hold what you have and buy on every decline. The market must react and as the decline in sharp, the raise will be sharp. Of course, such fine properties as Little Florence Leasing Co., Mohawk Florence Leasing, Frances Mohawk Leasing, and in fact, all the fine leasing companies have held their own and even advanced on a falling market. So my advice is to buy them. Some fine buys which I recommend is Goldfield Vaneda at 50c; it adjoins the Little Florence, practically the same management. Mohawk Herald Leasing is rapidly being sold at 1½c per share. Buy it before this block is all done. Also small amount of Mohawk Daisy Leasing left at 30c. Rich Gulch Wonder is one of the best Wonder properties at 25c.

TO LARGE AND SMALL INVESTORS.

We wish to call your attention to the Aztec group of mines, located in the La Luz mining district, Mexico.

We have 154 acres, titles clear, large veins, from 2 feet to 30 feet in width. $12,000 worth of development work already done, working at the present time 20 men, snowing across the different veins on which we are working assays from $4.43 to $246.73, in gold and silver.

We have our own money in this proposition, but do not ask you to invest yours only after making a thorough investigation; if our properties are not as good or better then than what we represent them, we will pay all cost of the investigation, even to a trip to Mexico and return.

At the present time we are offering for sale 30,000 shares of treasury stock at the low price of 10 cents per share cash or installments. This money to be used for development work and machinery only.

This is our first offering, and it may be our last at this price, so we would advise that you investigate. Full information, engineers' reports, and maps, on request. Write or call

STOCKS AND BONDS—
And Mortgages.

OF COURSE, YOU DO NOT BELIEVE IT.
OF COURSE, IT IS IMPOSSIBLE.

You are bound to say so until you investigate it, and after you investigate it you will be provoked to think that others cannot see it, just as we are now provoked to think YOU cannot see it as WE see it.

JUST INVESTIGATE.

You have turned down a score of fortunes because you would not investigate. Because you would not THINK. Do not let prejudice stand in the way THIS time. This is as truly a great opportunity as any in the past you can point to, as rare chances passed by.

Read what we say about Ozark, and then DON'T let it go at that. If you can spare $25 or $2500; if you are rich or poor,—in any event investigate the Ozark proposition, do it thoroughly, convince yourself, then follow your judgment.

The Ozark Mining & Milling Co., capital 1,500,000 shares, par value, $1 each, fully paid and non-assessable. The company owns two great developed mines, the Ozark group, and the Wild Rose Group, in the Pierce City district, Idaho. The company is controlled and the mines are operated by experienced and trained mining men—engineers, assayers and metallurgists, men who have much invested in the mines, men who know what they are doing. The small investor could not hope for a better management.

The Ozark Mine is developed by over 3000 feet of work. More than 26,000 tons of ore averaging better than $17.50 per ton in value, now blocked out, and on the dump available for milling. Enough ore to run a 10-stamp mill for nearly 2 years, ore worth $450,000. This amount in development on one claim of one vein and to a depth of 100 feet only. The Ozark Group holds five and one-half claims, with three parallel ledges. How much ore in the five claims on three veins to say 1000 feet in depth. The ore is wider and richer with depth. The one group is worth twice the capitalization of the company.

The Wild Rose Group has upwards of $300,000 worth of ore available for milling. The ledge has an average width of 33 feet between solid granite walls. The development is for a distance of 250 feet along the vein and to a depth of 100 feet only. A low cross-cut tunnel will be run to cut the vein at 500 feet depth, that tunnel will place in sight 250,000 tons of ore, figuring for only 250 feet along the vein. The Wild Rose Group contains six claims, three parallel ledges the entire length of claims. Wild Rose can supply ore for a 100-stamp mill. It is worth millions.

We are selling stock to install a mill on Wild Rose, 10 stamps. Additional equipment can be installed out of profits. Dividends will begin to pile up when the mill starts. We expct it to start in six months at latest. The first year's run will make a profit for you more than equal to your investment now. When the mill is installed about 800,000 shares will be issued,—only 800,000 shares,—a treasury reserve of 700,000 shares remaining.

The first block was offered at 25c, the majority of that block is sold. The balance will be sold at 25c; the next block at 30c; the next block at 35c. It pays to be conservative, but it does not pay to be skeptical. How can you ever make a good investment if you do not investigate, reason it out, and then act on your judgment. A good mine is a royal paymaster, the Ozark properties are proven mines. It is as safe as anything can be safe. Come to our office, let us go over the maps with you, and explain it. If you do not like it we will not bother you, we will not even ask you to invest. We want you to have the opportunity to investigate, then if your cool judgment says invest do it; otherwise not.

One good investment is worth a lifetime of labor; Ozark is more than good. It is safe, it is quick, and it is a veritable mint. Cut out this ad. and come to the office. In ten years' active mining experience, we consider Ozark the greatest opportunity ever offered the people.

COEUR D'ALENE MINING & DEVELOPMENT CO.

A. J. RICHARDSON.

We handle all Coeur d'Alene stocks. It is not necessary to go into details regarding the various stocks of this district. If you are already interested or wish to become interested, we are in a position to give you any information which you might desire and will be pleased to have you call upon us.

The Whipple Mountain Gold and Copper Company, which property is located in San Bernardino county, Cal., has let a contract for a 100-foot double compartment shaft on its property and work is now being pushed with all possible effort.

The first allotment of 50,000 shares of treasury stock has been subscribed for at 15c per share, and the next block of stock, if any more is offered for sale, will be 25c per share.

This past week we have had fifty pounds of the crude ore reduced to copper bar and from this amount received a copper brick weighing over ten pounds. This is sufficient proof to any one that the Whipple Mountain Gold and Copper Company has certainly a wonderful property, with an unusual surface showing. Another great copper district is being opened up in the Whipple Mountains, and mining men who have visited the district pronounce the showing far superior to a number of the better-known localities.

Snowstorm Extension, the adjoining property, to the famous Snowstorm of the Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, has completed the second contract of 200 feet and the tunnel is now in 400 feet. A letter from the secretary states another contract of 100 feet has been let. The rock is very hard and the general characteristics are the same as the original Snowstorm. A short time ago the secretary had a talk with Manager Wilbur Creenough of the Snowstorm Company, and was assured that developments in that property proved an ore body in the Extension. We expect to find this ore body in the next 50 feet, in which event the stock will certainly reach par. All those who were fortunate enough to buy Snowstorm Extension at 15 and 25 cents will in the near future have the opportunity to congratulate themselves, as did the lucky purchasers of Snowstorm.

Great activity is looked for, and, in fact, has already commenced for this season, in the Coeur d'Alene stocks.

FOR SALE—
A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY. The Arizona Chief Gold Mines Co. owns nineteen rich gold claims in the Arizona gold belt, nearly half million dollars' worth of ore opened up and money in bank to build a sixty-ton plant. We are now buying machinery for this purpose. Plant will be in operation in August, and dividends may be expected in September. We have just purchased 4 additional high-grade claims on which we want to install a hoist, so as to develop this property and double our plant. For this purpose we offer a small amount of stock at 50 cents a share. No stock has been sold heretofore, the directors having put in all the money needed for development and mill. This is an unusual opportunity to get in on a proposition without risk, in which great profits are assured at an early day. Call at office, 622 I. W. HELLMAN BLDG., and get full particulars. 7

DO YOU SPEAK SPANISH?
You may have picked up a smattering of it, "enough to get along," but is that enough? Are you satisfied with your knowledge of the language? Spanish talking people often ask why Americans speak poorer Spanish than any other foreigners. Is it not worth while as a matter of pride and a matter of business to perfect your knowledge? It is easily done, come to the Los Angeles Spanish-American Club room, Wednesdays and Saturdays from 7 to 9 p.m., if you are a beginner, or Tuesdays and Fridays, at the same time if you already have considerable knowledge of the language, but need to brush up on your verbs. I will deliver two free lectures showing how Spanish may be learned quickly without the tedium of grammar study or the waste of time in making translations. My method does away with useless and expensive books. I literally talk the language into the understanding of my pupils, without the use of English. Come to my free lectures and see how interesting it is to learn by the natural method. PROF. RICARDO URIBE, [illegible] S. Hill st.

THE TOWN OF STERLING HAS BEEN PLATTED AND LAID OFF INTO LARGE LOTS AND STAKED SHOWING CORNERS. BEAUTIFUL SPRINGS OF CLEAR WATER HAVE BEEN LOCATED ON THE SIDE OF STERLING MOUNTAIN FROM WHENCE THE TOWN TAKES ITS NAME AND THE WATER IS PIPED THROUGH THE STREETS AND IS BEING FREELY USED FOR DOMESTIC PURPOSES. THE RUSH FOR LOTS IS NOW ON AND THOSE WHO BUY EARLY GET THE CHOICE LOCATIONS. ALREADY A GENERAL DEALER IN MINING AND FOOD SUPPLIES IS ON THE GROUND; ALSO ANOTHER WITH RESTAURANT AND LODGING-HOUSE AND OTHERS REPRESENTING ALL BRANCHES OF BUSINESS PREPARING TO TAKE CARE OF ALL WHO COME UNTIL THEY CAN GET LOCATED. IT IS WELL TO EXAMINE THE PLAT AND BUY YOUR LOTS BEFORE GOING, WHICH YOU CAN DO AT 4[illegible] SOUTH HILL STREET, LOS ANGELES; ALSO SEE SAMPLES OF THE ORE AND GET PARTICULARS, RAILROAD RATES, ETC. THERE HAS BEEN NO MINE DISCOVERED IN NEVADA SHOWING RICHER ORES THAN THE STERLING. IT IS A WELL-KNOWN FACT THAT ALL WHO BOUGHT LOTS EARLY IN GOLDFIELD, RHYOLITE, BEATTY, ETC. MADE BIG MONEY, MANY GETTING RICH IN ONE YEAR, WHERE THE SHOWING WAS NOT AS GOOD AS STERLING REPRESENTS TODAY. READ WHAT THE DESERET NEWS HAS TO SAY OF THIS LOCATION; ALSO THE SALT LAKE TRIBUNE AND THE DENVER DAILY MINING RECORD. A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY—THE ARIZONA Chief Gold Mines Co. owns nineteen rich gold claims in the Arizona gold belt, nearly half million dollars' worth of ore opened up and money in bank to build a sixty-ton plant. We are now buying machinery for this purpose. Plant will be in operation in August, and dividends may be expected in September. We have just purchased 4 additional high-grade claims on which we want to install a hoist, so as to develop this property and double our plant. For this purpose we offer a small amount of stock at 50 cents a share. No stock has been sold heretofore, the directors having put in all the money needed for development and mill. This is an unusual opportunity to get in on a proposition without risk, in which great profits are assured at an early day. Call at office, 4[illegible] I. W. HELLMAN BLDG., and get full particulars.

INCORPORATIONS—
We incorporate mining and industrial companies under any State or Territory desired. Our charges reasonable. We can also assist you in submitting your proposition to a large list of investors.

BE A PROMOTER. I HAVE ONE OF THE best mining propositions offered today in the West, upon terms and management whereby if you are a hustler, or can associate two or three hustlers with you, you can promote a company that will be profitable to all concerned. The property will stand the closest investigation and will pay from the start. The terms are such that the mine will really pay for itself. Not a great deal of capital is required. It is not the best thing on earth, but it is a good thing. If interested, will be pleased to submit you particulars. Address E E, box 72, TIMES OFFICE.

EVERYBODY IS TALKING MINING NOW; It is the business. If you have a little money to invest, I want to submit you a plan (not a stock proposition,) whereby you can become a mining man in a legitimate proposition. The proposition permits of your having a say in the affairs of the concern and helping to direct them. Very little money required and you are assured of success. It is the opportunity for the man of small means; in fact, it is the only opportunity. For particulars address E E, box 71, TIMES OFFICE.

MINING—

I WANT YOU TO READ THIS. I AM NO broker, promoter or wild catter; am an old prospector and miner, have had 35 years experience and should know my business. I have a group of fine claims on the Salt Lake road, they carry gold, silver and lead; 6 of them contiguous. I have mill run by Selby Co. of San Francisco running $[illegible] per ton; the poorest assay runs over $[illegible] per ton after the best has been picked out. Have several assays from local assayers. My ore contains so much flux the smelters will treat it for nothing and pay a premium besides. I can prove all I say, with my reports, my ore, my assays, my mill runs. This property needs no machinery; it is all light work and can be mined and laid down at smelter for $7 a ton, leaving an immense profit. Now I want a good man to come in with us, one who has had experience in mining or some one with good business ability; will let such a man in on the ground floor. Would not take any one in but am short of ready money to start in shipping with. Address Z, box 1[illegible], TIMES OFFICE.

FOR SALE—
PRICE $[illegible]—GOOD TERMS—A NO. 1 COPPER PROPOSITION, SURROUNDED BY SHIPPING MINES; GOOD BIG VEINS OF HIGH GRADE ORE.

DISBANDING THE UNION ARMY.

A Great, Stirring and True Account of Thrilling May Events of a Generation Gone.

BY IDA M. TARBELL.

TWO weeks after Lee surrendered his force at Appomattox, April 9, 1865, Joe Johnston surrendered to Sherman. On May 4 Dick Taylor surrendered to Gen. Canby in Alabama, and on May 26 the forces west of the Mississippi commanded by Kirby Smith were surrendered to the Federal authorities, Smith fleeing to Mexico. In six weeks all the organized forces of the Confederacy had laid down their arms, and the great majority of the men had given their parole not to take them up against the United States until properly exchanged. The army of a million volunteers had finished its work.

Almost the first thought of the Federal War Department, when the news of Lee's surrender reached it, had been, "Now we can disband the armies"—a thought followed immediately by the question, "How can it be done?" The question was one to tax the foresight, the experience, the energy of even Secretary Stanton, great as was his skill in handling bodies of men. An element complicated the problem which does not appear on its face. If each body of soldiers in the field had been from one part of the North—that is, if Sherman's army had been made up of New Englanders; Thomas's of New Yorkers, etc., the difficulty of disbanding would have been less; but the armies were not made up in that methodical way. Sherman's army in April, 1865, was formed of six army corps, besides cavalry. In the Fifteenth and Seventeenth Corps, eight States were represented; in the Tenth Corps, nine States; in the Twentieth, ten; in the Fourteenth and Twenty-third, eleven. In the entire army, seventeen. In all the armies there was the same wide State representation. The War Department thus had to break up each army, select from it the men from Maine, from Ohio, from Illinois, and arrange that each of these fragments be sent on its way.

It was obliged, too, to do more than get the troops home. On their way North it must hold them long enough to secure the army history of each man, and it proposed to do this in such a way that he would have no legitimate reason for complaint. Moreover, it proposed that when at last it did set him down at his own door it should be with money in his pocket and good-will toward the government in his heart.

It was a bewildering problem, but Mr. Stanton attacked it with his usual volcanic energy. Summoning Gen. Thomas M. Vincent, the Assistant Adjutant-General, who had in charge the organization of the volunteer forces, he asked him for a plan to suit the case. A few days later Gen. Vincent presented a method he believed feasible.

As soon as the scheme had been approved, the first of a long series of orders reducing the army was issued. In response to these orders the bulldog grip which the Union forces had so long had on the South now loosened. The men released by each successive decree began at once to move out from the points in the east or west where they were stationed to the rendezvous selected for them; men from the armies of Meade and Sherman to Washington; from that of Thomas, to Nashville or Louisville; from that of Canby, to New Orleans, Vicksburg or Mobile. All over the vast area a movement northward toward the rendezvous was immediately perceptible.

The suddenness with which the soldiers were faced about, before the fact that the war was over was clearly in their heads, and marched for home with as much dispatch as if they were going into battle, produced at first throughout the armies a feeling of bewilderment. The army disbanded! What did it mean? Why, nothing less than that they were out of work—their occupation gone! Soldiering had become their business. What were they going to do? Work on the farm had gone on in their absence. Their benches had been filled. Others were teaching their schools. And then there was a large element who had no homes to go to; to whom a return North meant nothing but wandering until fortune offered something.

But it was not only the sense of being thrown adrift which affected the soldiers when the order for disbandment was first received. Four years of fighting, of defeat and victory, had hardened them into warriors, and they loved their trade. They might grumble at times, but the passion for danger and adventure had its hold upon them, and no man who has once learned to love war steps back to a civilian's life with a whole heart. Great numbers of them had gone into the army boys and had been made men by danger and suffering. Here they had for the first time faced big things—for the first time felt great emotions. They clung, as all men do, to that which has awakened their natures. It was not strange, then, that they at first should have felt something like regret.

But this wave of regret was everywhere brief. As soon as the men's faces were set for the North there was a blaze of joyous emotion. They were going home. Under the influence of this new phase of feeling, the armies marched to their rendezvous in incredibly short periods. Thus, Sherman's army made the march of 156 miles from Raleigh to Richmond in five and one-half days. "It seems as if the men cannot go fast enough," was the general comment.

Considering the exuberance of the feeling, the marches were orderly. Rigid orders had been given the men concerning pillaging. Hitherto they had confiscated as a right of war, but the war was over now, and no soldier hereafter had a right to a chicken or a loaf of bread for which he did not pay. This restriction came particularly hard on those troops who had been "living off the country." It was, perhaps, requiring too much of human nature to expect they should not now and then break ranks and have a riot of chicken stealing and house breaking. Their punishment, if caught, was always severe and humiliating. They were labeled "pillagers," and tied to a fence by which the whole army marched, jeering and deriding. Happily there were but rare outbreaks of this kind, and none of them very grave. The occasional disorders were more than compensated for by the real sympathy the men showed for the poverty and suffering they found all along their march. They constantly met half-starved, half-clad Confederate soldiers, painfully making their way to their homes—sometimes alone, often in groups of two or three. Not infrequently they found a worn-out man dying by the roadside. With these men the Federal troops fraternized in the most kindly way, sharing their rations with them, bespeaking horses for them from the quartermaster, often taking their addresses, and promising them help when they returned North.

The first large bodies of troops to reach a rendezvous were Meade's and Sherman's armies, both of which, by May 20, were encamped along the Potomac, opposite Washington, most of them within sight of the dome of the Capitol. In all the two armies numbered 200,000 men, brought from the field since the surrender of Lee.

The second step in the disbandment was the preparation of muster-out and pay rolls. Just what this entailed only those who have examined the rolls can realize. On them every man's army history had to be registered; his rank and age, when and where and by whom he was enrolled, when and where and by whom mustered in, when last paid and to what time, how far he had traveled, what subsistence and forage he had furnished, what equipment and clothing he had received, his absences, special duties, promotions, wounds, illnesses—an array of figures, dates and facts upon whose accuracy all the future relations of that man with the War Department must be regulated. The mere printing of the blanks of these rolls and of the discharge papers for the men was keeping the government printing presses busy night and day, while filling them meant work for hundreds of officers and clerks. Everything was ready for this work when Sherman and Meade reached their rendezvous, and headquarters were at once established and the rolls started.

The men were kept in order by regular drilling and by many reviews. The greatest of these was a grand review ordered by Mr. Stanton while Sherman's and Meade's armies were waiting around Washington. The Secretary of War wished the President, the Cabinet, Congress, the country, to see what an army meant, and ordered that Meade's army, on May 23, and Sherman's on the 24th, pass in review before the members of the administration. The pageant was by far the noblest this land has ever seen. It was not the glitter of the thousands of bayonets and sabers and polished brass cannon which made it so, not the hundreds of battle flags and banners in line, nor the splendid gathering of generals who had distinguished themselves in the war—Meade, Sherman, Custer, Crooks, Hartranft, Miles, Howard, Logan, Blair, Buell; it was the men in ranks, who, for six hours on one day, seven on the other, passed sixty abreast in "cadence step" through the wide Washington avenues. The great throng which had gathered in Washington to witness the review sat as if spellbound, watching, hour after hour, these great blue masses, passing as steadily and rhythmically as an ocean tide. Now and then men turned wondering, dazed eyes to each other and asked: "Where did they all come from? Have we sent so many men to the front? Is it true that this is but one-fifth of the army?" With this surprise at the numbers came a deeper surprise—that an army looked like this. For four years they had been seeing soldiers daily—buoyant lads marching with shining eyes to the front, or crippled men crawling home to die—but soldiers like these they did not know. These men were bronzed and stern and indifferent. The spectators felt almost a terror in watching the ranks, so irresistible seemed their power, so mighty their will. This, then, was what Lincoln meant when he talked to them of "veterans." This was the kind of men war made of their bright-faced boys.

In the interval after the order for disbandment came, and while the troops were marching to their rendezvous, transportation by river and rail had been preparing to take the men to their State camps. All the steamers, cars, engines of the North were at the service of the government for this task. Indeed, from now on the transportation service of the North existed first for the soldier. Everything was ready then, when, on May 29, the first body of Sherman's and Meade's soldiers was marched to the station at Washington to lead in the northward flow of the armies. So perfect were the plans, so complete the preparation, that in the next forty days the one little railway which then led from Washington to the Relay House, a junction north of the city, carried away 233,200 men, 12,838 horses, and 4,300,850 pounds of baggage.

As soon as the soldiers were north of the Potomac and Ohio they began to rejoice over the change from the want and desolation of the South to the order, thrift, and plenty of the North. They hung from the car windows and crowded the decks of the boats, admiring and exulting. The farmers were at work in the fields, gardens were green, apple trees in blossom. The ways of doing things, the style of house and barn, the white meeting-house, the country school—all the familiar things they had grown up with—were before them. It was God's country," they said, and they would never leave it again. At every station they swarmed forth to shake hands with the crowds, which seemed all the summer and fall to be always on hand to cheer them, to offer them hot coffee or cool drinks, to fill their pockets with fruit and cakes. When, as sometimes happened at stations, there were delays, they fell to playing ball, chuck-a-luck, or leap frog, with the abandon of boys.

It was intended that each company, in reaching its State, be sent immediately to the camp where it had been mustered in, if possible. Several camps existed in each State. Thus those in New York State were Poughkeepsie, Newburg, Albany, Plattsburg, Ogdensburg, Sackett's Harbor, Auburn, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Elmira, Binghamton and Norwich. It was here in these encampments that many of the most touching reunions after the war took place. Each returning company found, already in camp, companies from the same district, which had been doing service in fields far distant from its own. Men from Sherman's army here found comrades who had been serving with Thomas, with Canby, with Meade. For months, perhaps years, the men had known nothing of each other. They had enlisted together—one was sent East, another West; scores of their fellows had been killed, they knew. "Is Bill still alive?" the man asked himself, sometimes at night, when alone on picket he thought of home. The silence was ominous. Probably Bill was dead. And now here, the first man to greet him as he entered was his boyhood friend. It was these reunions, with the exchange of experiences, the stories of battle, and the endless discussions of the merits of their favorite generals—of Grant, Sherman, "Old Pap Thomas," or "Little Phil"—that made the few last days of army life and discipline, here at the very threshold of their homes, tolerable to the men. They could not, and probably would not, have endured it long. Nor were they obliged to. Ahead of them in camp were the officers with their discharge papers and their pay, and as rapidly as it could be done each man was dismissed.

It was characteristic of the foresight with which the entire business of disbandment was managed that it was arranged that the soldiers should not be paid until they were within the restraining and protecting influence of their own homes. The soldiers, their pay in their pockets, would certainly have deserted in shoals in the delays at rendezvous and camps, and most of them would have been easy prey for the crowds of sharpers which gathered at every point, hoping that pay-day would put the men in their power. This disorganization was prevented by making pay-day the last day in the process of disbandment. The matter was the more important because the sum to be distributed was so large. The Army of the Potomac had not been paid since December 31, 1864, Sherman's and Thomas's armies not since August, 1864. There were bounties coming to many men and officers. The aggregate amount of money paid out to 800,000 men discharged by November 15 was about $270,000,000.

Thus it was that though a man reached his State camp penniless, he found himself free a few days later with a comfortable sum in his pocket. The first use he made of his money in most cases was to buy the arms he had carried through his service. These arms belonged to the government, and were to be deposited in the State arsenals unless bought by the men. Many preferred to do this, and so, with knapsack on his back, musket in hand, the soldier presented himself at last at his own home door.

It was on May 29, as has been stated, that the first soldiers left their rendezvous. By August 7 Gen. Vincent was able to report 640,806 volunteers mustered out; by September 14, 741,107; by November 15, 800,963; by February 15, 1866, 952,452.

In nine months practically the whole force of volunteers had been returned to their homes. The disbandment had been accomplished so easily, so quickly, that the country had hardly realized what was going on. Gen. Grant did not say too much when, in October, he wrote Mr. Stanton that 800,000 men had passed from the army to civil life so quietly that it was scarcely known "save by the welcome to their homes received by them."

And yet this feat, which at the time passed unheeded, was the greatest feat in handling men which this or any government has ever performed. Its success was due primarily to the fact that the administration, instead of organizing a new bureau for the work and filling it with inexperienced men, used the trained men it had on hand in the department, which had been mustering men into the army; secondly, to the fact that the reversing of the great engines of the mustering-in bureau took place at once, and from the beginning to the end of disbandment the great Napoleonic war rule—time is everything—was vigorously enforced.

What followed was even more wonderful.

The soldier was at home, and now, according to all prophets, the country must see trouble. As soon as the order to disband the volunteers had gone forth, the North had begun to ask itself what they were going to do with the million men about to inundate them. Those of the country who took forethought, who knew the history of peoples, who had studied the phenomena of population, looked with foreboding on the coming deluge. They recalled that after the Napoleonic wars France was alive with beggars and cripples, that the end of the Thirty Years' War filled Germany with marauding bands of musketeers, that the close of the Italian wars made Italy unsafe for travel. The newspapers began to warn and advise. Police departments increased their force. The Governors of many States asked the War Department for troops to keep the disbanded soldiers in order. Yet, by November, 800,000 men had been disbanded, and nothing had happened. The men seemed to disappear. What had become of them?

As a matter of fact, the men had gone to work. The soldier of 1865 did not ask to be coddled. He was a manly, matter-of-fact individual, who, having done his best at fighting, and having enjoyed it for the most part, came home, the job done, with one idea in his mind—to get another. He had not begun to estimate how much the country owed him; he had no stomach for sentiment, and he wanted work. He took off his blue coat, hung up his knapsack and musket, and went out to "hunt a job."

In his dignified task he had the country with him. From the time that the order for disbandment was made public, the North had been discussing its own duty to the returned soldiers. Gradually the people had made up their minds to certain things; the soldier must never be allowed to become a pauper. If disabled, he must have a pension. If he could work, he must do so, and work must be provided for him, in preference to other men. This was to be the country's reward to him—to see that he got work, steady work, and at once. To the carrying out of these principles it gave its whole mind. The disabled were already in the care of the Pension Office, the roll in the summer of 1865 being about 86,000, 34,000 of whom were soldiers. The appropriation for these 86,000 pensions amounted to over $8,000,000, and the Tribune, in commenting on the figures, estimated that when all the pensions arising from the war should have been paid, the amount would be about $13,000,000 annually.

Great numbers of men found awaiting them places which had been kept open. Sir Samuel Peto, an Englishman, records that soon after the close of the war he was in Chicago, and there visiting a printing establishment. The proprietor pointed out forty-seven compositors who had been soldiers. "This man was a major," he told Sir Samuel. "The next to him a captain, the third a lieutenant, another a sergeant. . . . They were only too happy to return to situations which I had given them an understanding, when they left me, that I would retain open for them."

Officers in particular were in great demand as business partners and as promoters of new enterprises, their names being considered equal to a good lump of capital. "One of our military leaders," said a New York paper, in the fall of 1865, "is now in charge of a machine for a patent pumping; another is building a railway through the oil country; one of the first soldiers of the Army of the Potomac is in the pistol business; another keeps a retail grocery store, while one of Sherman's most trusted lieutenants is a claim agent. One major-general prints a weekly paper in Baltimore. These starred and battered gentlemen go down from the command of colonels to become agents and partners and dealers, perhaps with the orderly who stood before their tents, or the private who held their stirrups."

Manliness, vigor, foresight, efficiency explain the success of the gigantic undertaking, but behind these great qualities—their motive power—was the hallowing flood of solemn and tender emotions which swept over the country at the sight of the returning soldiers. Men remembered them as they had gone forth—gay, fresh and youthful. They saw them now stern, bronzed, mature. Every one of these returning men recalled, too, others that had gone out with him, but would never return—recalled terrible days after great battles, defeats, slaughter, long waiting for victory. With the bitter memories came the deep thankfulness that now finally it was all over. There would be no more battles, no more prisons, no more lists of dead and wounded. The war was over; the cause won. There was too great and too reverent thanksgiving in the North in 1865 for men to neglect the interests of the boys in blue.

DON'T WASTE YOUR MOMENTS.

IT IS AS BAD TO SQUANDER TIME AS TO SQUANDER MONEY.

The Men Who Have Won Success Are the Ones Who Were Ahead of Time Rather Than Behind—Know Nothing About Keeping Regular Hours.

People save money. Some save millions, some thousands, some hundreds, and some quarters and dimes. The penny itself is not disdained, and the metal savings bank comes into play for those who cannot hold money unless some one else holds the key, says a writer in the New York Commercial.

But time, who thinks of saving it? Where is the metal bank to hold the hours, the minutes? It is a momentous question, the question of how we spend the quarter of the hour. This use or disuse of the half hour, the quarter hour, or the five minutes means either success or failure.

There is a firm in Chicago today that is staving ahead simply by its use of time. The firm is a small one, a bindery, but new machinery constantly is added and new men as the increase of business requires. The firm consists of four brothers, and they do their own soliciting, make their own estimates on work, and are their own advertising agents. These men work from 12 to 14 hours a day every day, and on holidays spend half the day at the office, says M. M. Atwater. Time to them is money.

The office man who voluntarily gets to his office a quarter of an hour earlier and stays a quarter of an hour later, to keep up his work when it thickens, is the man who wins. 'Twas the Duke of Wellington who said that he owed all he had achieved to his being ready a quarter of an hour before it seemed necessary, and that this was a lesson learned in boyhood.

Many a man out of work has found out to his sorrow that in applying for a desirable position early Monday morning another more fortunate has secured the job by beating him perhaps only by the margin of a minute.

The train waits for no man. Time passes on. Fortunes are won and men's names are written in marble while the dreamer has let Time, like water, pass through Life's sieve and leave nothing behind.

Social matters eat up one man's time, pleasure another's, mere business and misapplied energy another's, and so on, until not even a crumb is left. The man who wins cannot thrive in an artificial atmosphere. He must say "No!" most vigorously when assailed on all sides to assume social obligations he can't stand, and to go the pace incompatible with the line of life he has laid out for himself.

The time of any man or woman who has at heart a life work is too valuable to be frittered away in going the round of petty social functions. Many a brilliant man has swamped his future in the quicksand of petty pleasure and dissipation and gone down to be heard of no more.

The doctor who wins is the man who has time to study, time to keep abreast of the times, time for original research, as well as time in which to cure his patients. One doctor translated Lucretius while going his daily rounds among his patients.

Take the most prominent clergymen of any city. They are engaged in the most useful works. They give their time up to worthy causes, but they do not fritter it away. Cotton Mather shows what a strenuous clergyman in the days of simple living could do. He wrote and published fourteen books in one year. This by saving every moment. It was a crime not to be diligent in those days.

Geniuses never keep the eight hour day rule. They are not unionists. Sir William Herschel spent fourteen hours a day with pupils, and yet found time to master Italian, Latin, mathematics, optics, and astronomy. Sir Thomas More arose at 4 o'clock and abridged his meals to get more time. Even disease failed to conquer Walter Scott. He refused to give up to pain and spasms time that he wanted for "Ivanhoe" and "The Bride of Lammermoor." When the pain was too severe for desk work he dictated to an amanuensis. There lives not a man who has not time to do all there is for him to do. "Lack of time" and "hard luck" are the whines of the man who is an idler and who has not the push and vim to open fortune's door.

Elihu Burritt, the blacksmith, mastered twenty-two dialects, and eighteen languages, and did not plead lack of time or advantages.

George Stevenson, while a brakeman, took time to learn every detail of the engine. And at night he worked over and over in his mind the mechanical problems that perplexed him, and often spent more time in bed thinking than sleeping. Thus do great men attain their heights.

"Believe me, when I tell you that thrift of time will repay you in after life with a usury of profit beyond your most sanguine dreams and that the waste of it will make you dwindle, alike in intellectual and in moral stature, beyond your darkest reckonings."

WONDERFUL STRIDES MADE IN THE PROGRESS OF EXPERT EVIDENCE IN THE COURTS.

By John Elfreth Watkins.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

WHEN we want justice nowadays—and when we have the money to spend for it—we send around for the scientist as well as for the lawyer. In the drama of our criminal courts the savant plays a much heavier role today than he assumed yesterday. His rapid progress toward the center of the stage is resulting from the amazing discoveries which men of his cloth have been making in only the past few years.

In the still hunt for the lie—black or white—that quasi-judicial functionary, the attorney for the State, depends more and more each year upon men of science. Of all professional callings, that of the expert witness demands the best coördination between brain and tongue, the richest intellectual resource, and the most acute memory for details.

NEW METHOD OF DETECTING.

In the matter of detecting handwriting there are some newly discovered methods which would seem to reduce the chances of successful forgery to the minimum limit. Probably the most notable of these is the "tremogram" method, lately devised by Dr. Persifor Frazer, the distinguished chemist, geologist and handwriting expert of Philadelphia. He has magnified to 120 times their diameters the pen strokes occurring in the handwriting of many persons. The minute portion of a straight line in a selected letter appears, when so magnified, about two inches wide and very like a column of black smoke rising from a chimney, the margins of the outline being full of irregularities, curved and jagged.

After careful study he has discovered that there are, in the general number, arrangement and position of these irregularities peculiarities which remain comparatively constant in the writings of the same person, even with different pens, ink and paper, and under different mental and physical conditions. These peculiarities result from the characteristic motions of the individual when using a pen.

"The similarity in the magnified pen strokes of a writer is like that of the fractured edges of two specimens of the same mineral or rock," said Dr. Frazer. He discovers that these irregularities usually preponderate on the same side of pen strokes from the same hand. Where the majority appear upon the right-hand margins of the magnified lines the pressure has been heaviest upon the right nib of the pen, and vice versa.

SHOW NERVOUS TEMPERAMENT.

Even in the zigzag characters of a drunken writer these tell-tale characteristics do not suffer any increase in number or size. Such great magnification as to 120 diameters also shows alternate widenings and narrowings in hand-drawn ink lines. Marks by the same individual show that the average distances between the successive thickest and thinnest portions remain about the same. These latter irregularities are due to recurrences of pressure of the pen, and Dr. Frazer thinks it probable that in persons of well-balanced nervous organization they occur farther apart than in persons not so well balanced nervously.

Photographs of lines thus magnified 120 diameters and over are made with the photomicrograph apparatus, which is a combination of the camera and telescope. Such photographs Dr. Frazer has termed "tremograms," and he permits me to reproduce several of them with this article. You will note that the tremogram of the line drawn with a ruling machine lacks the larger irregularities and the rhythmic widenings and narrowings characteristic of that from the hand-drawn ink line. Before the Franklin Institute a few weeks ago Dr. Frazer made an interesting comparison of tremograms from forgeries of the same name by three different persons with tremograms of the natural writing of each of the forgers. There were forty-eight forged signatures represented, and Dr. Frazer readily traced them to their sources, showing that one of the three men executed sixteen, another twenty and the other twelve. Dr. Frazer says that the scientific study of handwriting belongs to the science of experimental psychology, pure and simple, as is acknowledged by some of the world's greatest anthropologists—such as Binet of France.

ANALYZES INK ON PAPER.

Chemical analyses of ink figure much in court, and frequently determine the fate of those concerned in the suit. In one noted case, for example, there was in dispute a document alleged to have been written at a certain date. The expert for the opposite side analyzed the ink, found it to be aniline, and since the alleged date of the document was before the discovery of aniline dyes, he thus won the suit for his attorneys. Ink analysis throws light also upon the question whether suspected manuscripts have been altered, for inks differ vastly in composition. Hitherto it has been necessary to mutilate manuscripts in order that samples of the ink might be obtained for the chemist. But Dr. Frazer lately invented a "colorimeter," which analyzes the ink upon the paper. The light reflected from a delicate ink line is passed through colored prisms. For this invention the city of Philadelphia recently awarded him the Scott medal and premium.

FINDING SEX AND AGE

Bones constitute a grimmer class of exhibits figuring frequently in criminal cases. A skeleton, or often a detached portion, found amid suspicious surroundings, often lays the foundation for a great murder case. One of the first tests undertaken by the medico-legal expert is to determine the sex of the remains. If the entire skeleton is intact this in an easy matter. But suppose the body has been burned or disjointed and that only small fragments of bone remain. Here, for example, is a jaw bone—the only fragment intact. How can one determine the sex of a mere jaw bone? In a laboratory the other day I saw an ingenious device invented for this very purpose. It consists of a small wooden platform against which the bottom of the jaw bone is rested, and hinged to which there is a board that may be raised until it coincides with the angle formed by the near outline of the bone. The angle is read upon the arc of a circular scale. Since in female skulls this angle is greater than in males, the circular scales determines the sex of the original owner of the jaw. The expert also has all sorts of calipers, scales and rules, besides a tape measure to be applied for the measurement of bones. If only the pelvis remain, its sex may be readily determined by its dimensions, for the male pelvis is deeper and narrower than the female and proportions are known. Other bones similarly give up the secrets in the expert's laboratory. How old was the victim is the next question. Every few years Father Time leaves some mark or other upon our bones. When we are 6 years old he seals together the bones in the hind part of the skull and they become one plate. At 10 the cartilage in the prominence forming the back of the elbow commences to turn to bone, while at 16 bony points commence to form in the heads of the ribs. Between 25 and 30 the vertebrae turn to bone, and so on, step by step, through the entire seven ages of man new milestones appear.

Our expert has now determined that the victim was a woman between 25 and 30, let us say. But how tall was she? The only large bone which he finds intact is probably a femur or thigh bone. He places this in his "osteometric board," a scale which measures it exactly. He knows the proportion of the thigh bone to the total length of the average female skeleton, works out a simple sum in multiplication, adds the percentage allowed for stature in life and finally determines from these few bones that the victim, besides being a woman between 25 and 30, was 5 feet 4 inches tall.

DETECTING BLOOD STAINS.

In murder trials blood figures more frequently than either bones or handwriting. All dark spots upon a suspect's clothes are carefully examined. If the clothes are dark they are taken into a dark room and examined preferably by candle light, which shows dull red stains readily overlooked in daylight. Another test is to throw upon the spots reflected light, in which blood stains will appear glassy. But a human life probably hangs upon the test, and greater care must be exercised. A bit of the stained cloth is cut out and is soaked in distilled water. A beam of light is passed through the glass tube containing the solution, and then through a prism which gives a spectrum such as that obtained from ink by the handwriting expert. This spectrum of blood also contains its characteristic black bands, and thus the test yields evidence that the spots are caused by some creature's life fluid. Chemical tests, too technical for description here, are also made, and the miscroscope detects blood beyond question if its corpuscles are visible.

The expert has found blood, but what kind of blood? The accused, finding science pointing at him its accusing finger, admits that it is blood, but denies that it is human blood. He killed a hen for Sunday's dinner, and thus acquired the spots. The expert dissolves another blood spot with a chemical, places the red fluid under his miscroscope and highly magnifies the corpuscles. If they are oval he knows that they are from an egg-laying animal, and things commence to look brighter for the suspect. But if the expert finds the corpuscles round he knows that they are from one of the milk-giving species, whether human or not he cannot say as yet. But suppose the victim had said that the blood spots were from a dog, cat, pig, horse or cow, all of which, like man, are mammals, with round blood corpuscles. Until very recently the blood expert had no means of disproving such a claim. There was but one mammal—the camel—whose blood corpuscles could be distinguished from those of man and other mammals. But recently several European scientists discovered a method of distinguishing human blood from that of other mammals. Our expert now applies this test.

HUMAN OR ANIMAL BLOOD.

The accused claims that the spots upon his clothing are from his dog, which has been bitten. The expert dissolves one of the spots. He then purchases a rabbit and injects into its veins some human blood painlessly taken from the arm of a man with a hypodermic syringe. The injection is repeated several times at intervals of a few days. The rabbit is then bled, and the blood obtained from it is allowed to clot. About the hard red color is found a light liquid—the "serum" of the blood. Some of this is added to the solution obtained by dissolving the blood spot from the suspect's clothes. If the blood in the solution is human the "serum" from the "humanized" rabbit will, when added, produce an immediate cloudiness, and within about a half hour flakes will have commenced to form. The rabbit having been injected with human blood, no other blood in the solution—except that of certain monkeys, and that only feebly—would produce this cloudiness and flaking. So, if the solution remains clear, the test says that the suspect is innocent. If it clouds and flakes it says that his clothes contained damning evidence of the shedding of human blood.

DETERMINING RACE FROM BLOOD

The prisoner is a negro and the victim a white man. The former claims that the stains upon his clothing are from his own blood. But has our expert a test sufficiently delicate to distinguish the blood of the white man from that of the negro? Indications are that he has, or at least soon will have. Dr. J. W. Mallet, professor of chemistry, University of Virginia, has been making preliminary experiments with this test, in which he has used a chicken instead of a rabbit. He has injected the chicken with blood taken from several negroes, and with the serum obtained after bleeding the chicken he has tested solutions of blood from negroes and white men, treated side by side and exactly alike. In both cases there was a clouding and flaking, but also "a clearly perceptible difference." They were distinctly more marked in amount in the negro blood solution, where they appeared also more promptly than in the diluted blood from the white man.

FACT AND COMMENT.

THE report of the Superintendent of Buildings for the month of April, which appears in this department today, will be reassuring to those who give the subject more than casual glance. The number of permits issued for the month just closed is 709 and a little short of $1,500,000 in cost. These figures compare with 839 permits issued and $2,002,751 cost attached to them in 1906. To get our exact bearings on this subject it will be necessary to take a broad view.

—o—

The Broader View.

The reader who will go on with his study and compare the record for April, 1907, with that of April, 1905, instead of for 1906, he will find that the month just closed was very prosperous. If he will still pursue his investigation and include in the study a period of five years, he will find that April, 1907, was above normal conditions. Now normal conditions in Los Angeles for a period of five years mean the highest average building record perhaps ever known in any city in any country at any time. If this view of it is a correct one, and most of those who pay attention to real estate matters in detail will not dispute that it is, only the month of April shows gratifying activity, satisfactory to all.

What the Record Means.

The number of permits issued was 709. Taking those structures which are meant for homes for the people, we have at least 500 buildings to house the increasing population within the limits of Los Angeles city. These run all the way from a cottage of four or five rooms, meant for a family of from two to three or four persons, to apartment houses of twenty separate apartments or even more, each apartment meant to house from two to four or five persons. In the case of flat buildings, with from two to four or six flats, those that are situated near the business center of the city usually house an unusually large number of people. Many of these flats are rented by a woman who sublets the rooms. In this way a flat of from five to seven rooms will easily house from five to a dozen persons. The new structures for which permits were taken during the month of April last intended for homes for the inhabitants, or at least for lodgings, would only shelter not less than 2000 persons. The city has been growing during the last twelve or fifteen months at a rather more rapid pace than this.

—o—

Spoiled by Prosperity.

The fact is, the growth of the city during the last five years has been so great that it is difficult to stay so. The year 1906 was marked by such phenomenally rapid growth that our prosperity has spoiled us. When we compare April of this year with the same month last year, we are comparing it with the second month of greatest activity in the whole history of the city, even including last year, when the growth was so unexpectedly large. The pace we kept up every month during the year 1906 we could scarcely expect to maintain permanently. If we did, one could scarcely get his bearings while the city jumped 100,000 inhabitants each year, until in a very few years it would number a million souls. It is utterly unreasonable to expect any such growth as that of the last year to be maintained permanently or even for a few years. The wonder was that the growth should have kept that pace, even for a single year.

Ups and Downs Must Come.

This growth of the city is not driven by the steam in a tubular boiler of [illegible] horse-power, the speed of the machinery operated and controlled by a patent governor. It is not reasonable to expect that the constant growth of the city will be just at the same rate month by month and year by year. There are influences at work which sometimes are more potent, sometimes less so, and therefore we must expect to meet with slow months, as well as those that are going at an exceedingly high pace. Four months of the current year have passed. They show a record in building somewhat less than four months of the preceding year. But while the pace has not been so high, no reasonable person not spoiled by great prosperity, will say that the pace has been, or is slow. April just past is about normal for the current year. If the four months have seen residence structures of one kind or another erected, which amount to a total of nearly 3000, surely that is making provision for a quite satisfactory growth of city population. If the average is only 500 housings a month for increase in inhabitants, and each housing furnishes a roof for four persons, at the rate of 2000 a month, we are providing for an increased city growth of 24,000 a year.

—o—

The Growths Outside.

Another matter important to keep in mind is that the growth outside of the city is considerably more rapid at the present time than formerly, probably faster than last year, taking the whole area of Southern California into the account. Every large city and important town in all the counties south of Tehachapi, with scarcely an exception, reports unusual building activity. The same conditions are prevailing in the country. A great many new settlers coming in are not of the wage-earning class, but are people of considerable means who are seeking to make homes for themselves in outside cities and in the country. The purchase of country property is very considerable.

—o—

The Real Estate Market.

There is very little change in the situation in real estate from that prevailing a week ago and for several weeks past. The influences are about the same. The demand for real estate is a healthful and legitimate one. The number of deeds going on record averages from twenty-five to fifty less than at the great height of the speculative era in real estate a year to two years ago. There are more instruments going on record conveying title to outside property in proportion to the total number than formerly. The searchers of records all report a full tide of business in their line. Many weeks the volume of business with the searchers is larger than formerly. The reason of this is that a great many buyers who made contracts to take property any time during the last three years are making their final payments or paying up sufficient of the total amount to take in the one case a deed outright or in the other case a deed with an accompanying mortgage securing the payment of the sum still due. This is decidedly a healthy condition in the market. It is a great deal better than if investment was running wild in lots for speculative purposes. The larger number of our people there are who own this property, particularly the larger number of cases in which the property is all paid for, the more solid the situation will become.

The City Boundaries.

Another point necessary to keep in mind is that in one way there are no boundaries to the city of Los Angeles. If we had an impassable barrier built around the city, even in its present extent, and all those whose business or occupation lies in the city were obliged to live here, the demand for city property would be vastly more active than it is. But the numerous inter-urban railroad lines which connect with this city have practically extended the city boundaries to the sea, all the way from Santa Monica Cañon to Newport and back in the country in a circle that would touch Santa Ana and Covina to the south and east. When we think about the growth of Los Angeles it is necessary to take in Hollywood on one hand and the great San Gabriel Valley to points even beyond the river, on the other. This outside country is all becoming every day a greater and greater competitor with Los Angeles for favor in the eyes of new settlers. The length of time spent in coming from many of these outside points to business in the city is so little longer than for those who live at points within the city that it has ceased to count. The inter-urban cars make much faster time than those operated inside of the city. The facilities for making life easy outside are scarcely inferior to those inside. Electricity is found everywhere for lighting the houses. In a great many of them gas plants have been installed. The streets are in many instances better than inside of the city. The influence most powerful in drawing several classes of people outside, which is the strongest, is the fact that for as little money an acre of ground can be had outside as a lot costs inside. Now the person of moderate means who has a little spare time can make an acre of ground go a long way toward supporting a family. A flock of chickens on one of these acre lots is a decidedly valuable asset.

—o—

The Completed View.

We have now briefly taken a survey of the conditions generally governing the building activity and the activity in real estate operations. When we survey the whole field, it becomes apparent that we have really unusually brisk times in and about the city of Los Angeles. It is not less important to the business interests of the city to have these outside points filled up with people than if they were all crowded within the boundaries of the city. They nearly all do business in the city, anyhow.

—o—

The Year in Prospect.

At the rate of building going on here now the annual record when completed will show 8400 new structures built in the twelve months at a cost of about $18,000,000. That is surely an active state of business in building up a modern city. There will be a great addition to this in home building in the territory around the city.

PROPERTY RECENTLY PURCHASED RESOLD AT PROFIT.

Eighty-seven Thousand Dollars Is Price for Forty-Foot Frontage—A Rise of Five Thousand Within Sixty Days—Last Sig Transaction Recalled.

An advance of $135 a front foot was recorded this week when the property located at Nos. 516, 516½ and 518 West Seventh street, on the south side of the thoroughfare, between Olive street and Grand avenue, was sold for the reported consideration of $87,000. The property consists of a lot 40x111 feet. There is a one-story, class C., brick store building at present on the property, with a small cottage in the rear. Isaacs Brothers, who have been heavy West Seventh street operators for some time past, are named as the purchasers. L. Breedlove is the grantor. The sale was made by R. A. Rowan & Company.

The property was purchased less than sixty days ago by Mr. Breedlove from the Consolidated Realty Company for $82,000, he having turned $5000 on the transaction. At the time he purchased the property it was valued at $2050 a front foot. The last sale places the valuation $2185 a front foot, showing an increase of $135 a foot within two months, or a rise of $2.25 a day.

The last large transaction to be reported in the immediate vicinity was that by which the Los Angeles Athletic Club acquired ownership of the northeast corner of Olive and Seventh streets for the reported consideration of $450,000. This property has a frontage of 155 feet on West Seventh street and extends back a distance of 147.75 feet on Olive street, and is improved with a three-story hotel building. This will be demolished about October to make way for a magnificent half-a-million dollar clubhouse, which the management predicts will be second to none in the United States. At the above valuation the rate for this property for the Seventh street frontage was $2903.25. The recent sale is considered as an index of West Seventh street values east of Figueroa street. All three deals were engineered by R. A. Rowan & Company.

PURCHASE ON KOHLER STREET.

Frank N. Greeley of Berkeley, Cal., has purchased through the agency of Will C. Prather & Co., two lots at Nos. 758-768 Kohler street, improved with a five-room and six-room cottage, lot 50x102, just south of Seventh street, from P. A. Cannell, price said to be about $7500.

GREAT SUMS IN NEW BUILDINGS.

ALL STRUCTURES IN BUSINESS SECTION NOT COUNTED.

Nearly Twenty Millions Being Expended in All Classes of Structures for Growing Business Center—Several Pictures of the New Ones in Today's Issue.

With ten millions of new structures of the class A kind in process of erection no doubt can be left in the minds of any as to the continued growth and prosperity of this, our City of the Angels. When this enormous amount of building of the best construction is taken into consideration, and the fact that there are numerous jobs under way, which would come under the class B and class C classification, which were not taken into consideration in last Sunday's article upon the development of the business center with new structures, the magnitude of the building operations in the immediate business center may be imagined. All told, there are probably more than fifteen millions of dollars in new structures, more likely eighteen or twenty millions, which are being erected within the territory bounded by Central avenue on the east, Ninth street on the south, Figueroa street on the west and Aliso street on the north.

Today the corner-stones of two great buildings, the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. buildings, one on Hill street between Second and Third and the former on Hope, between Seventh and Eighth streets, the total cost of which will more than pass the half million dollar mark.

Another group of new structures now in the course of erection, one at Temple and Spring street, one on Broadway between Fourth and Fifth streets, and one on Eighth street, just west of Hill street; the three totalling fully half a million dollars, appears on this page.

PLAN HUGE CHICKEN FARM.

Pacific Poultry Company to Keep Twenty-five Thousand Laying Hens at Work.

One of the newest manufactories to be planned for Southern California is an egg factory, operated on an enormous scale. The machinery to be used will be 25,000 laying hens, and the product will consist of fine fresh hen fruit. The matter is being planned by the Pacific Poultry Company. The plant may be located near San Diego, that county offering more inducements for such an enterprise than closer to the city. The company has incorporated for $500,000 capitalization, for the purpose of raising poultry in large quantities. A. L. Smith, manager of the company, explained the project. "We are badly in need of such an enterprise as this, for thousands of dollars' worth of poultry and eggs are shipped to Los Angeles annually from eastern points to supply the demand. We are eating cold-storage poultry, and eggs which are kept in storage for months, when we should be able to get them not more than a day or two old; then they are fresh and wholesome. The company is now looking up a location and intends to commence operations in side of ninety days. They will occupy a section of land, and plan to raise all their own grain and operate all their own commission houses; they will keep 25,000 laying hens, and will raise thousands of broilers, roasting chickens, turkeys and ducks. Their plant will be one of the largest in the world and will be one of the sights of Southern California. People who have never visited any of our large eastern poultry farms hardly realize what an enormous business poultry raising really is. There is approximately $500,000,000 worth of poultry raised in the United States annually. The company will use the free-range colony-house system for their laying hens, which is car-proven quite satisfactory and which has proven quite satisfactory with other large poultry plants. Fruit trees will be planted quite extensively in these ranges. It has been proven that droppings from the fowls produce a much larger yield of fruit. The company intends to put $100,000 in their plant. All their buildings will be erected substantially. No money will be expended on fancy buildings, as we are going into the business for the dollars and cents, and not to make a show of fancy buildings. The plant will have a setting capacity of over 20,000 eggs at one time, and the plan is to have chickens hatching every day in the year. White Leghorn hens will be used exclusively for the production of eggs.

"Arthur L. Smith, the president and general manager of the company, will conduct the poultry farm personally. Combining the American hen with American poultryman's brains and wit practically assures a success.

"No better conditions are found anywhere for the raising of poultry than we have in Southern California," continued Mr. Smith, "with its even temperature and mild winters. Our land of sunshine and flowers offers many desirable opportunities for the poultryman not found elsewhere."

HANLEY BUYS ON EAST FIRST.

Thirty Thousand Dollars, Price Paid for Thirty-two-Foot Frontage on Street.

A. J. Koll has sold the property located on East First street just west of Central avenue, on the south side of the thoroughfare, lot 32x219 feet, to James Hanley, for the reported consideration of $30,000. The deal was made through the agencies of W. B. Merwin & Co. and Fred L. Besselman, who represented the grantor.

The property is the farthest-west lot on East First street to be on a Southern Pacific spur track, which makes the property of considerable value. There are no improvements on the property at present. At the above reported consideration, of $30,000, the price per front foot figures at the rate of $937.

FRONTAGE ON SANTA FE AVENUE

Henry Kreim Buys in Industrial Section—More Than Five Hundred Feet Secured.

The Eureka Realty Company reports the sale of a large block of property located on the west side of Santa Fé avenue, between Fifth and Sixth streets, having a frontage of 547 feet, improved with a two-story brick laundry building, a two-story frame store building, thirteen cottages. Henry Kreim is reported to have been the purchaser, the grantor's name being withheld. The reported consideration is $75,000, but part of this is said to have been in the nature of an exchange in business property in an Eastern city, the balance being in cash.

BUILDING FOR HILL STREET?

Plans are said to be in the hands of the architects, for several large buildings which may be begun during the ensuing summer. Improvements of considerable magnitude are being proposed for the immediate business section of Los Angeles, but all are being kept in the dark for the present. Yesterday rumors were heard that a new ten-story store and office building was being planned for a corner on Hill street, which would cost in the neighborhood of $250,000 or $300,000. Nothing of a definite character could be ascertained, but it seems reasonably sure that the project will be pushed to completion.

BUYS IN ST. ANDREW'S PLACE.

Mrs. Jefferson Chandler has purchased of Vira R. Tousley a modern fourteen-room home at No. 1844 St. Andrews Place, on a lot 74x178 feet, highly improved. Mrs. Chandler and family have been spending the winter in Los Angeles, and have become so attached to the city they will make it their home. The reported consideration is $16,000. Althouse Bros. were the agents.

LOCATION—
This large, nine-room residence is located on exclusive Manhattan Place, one of the most aristocratic thoroughfares in the city. Lighting fixtures throughout equal to those found in $20,000 and $30,000 houses; bevel and art glass artistically combined. Floors throughout, including closets, are of double quarter-sawed white oak, highly polished; handsome oak and art glass entrance; fine cement drive.

DEN—
The cosy, attractive den contains leather-paneled walls, with imported silk—above; mahogany woodwork and old gold brick mantel with mirror.

LIVING-ROOM—
An old gold mantel extending to ceiling, with numerous shelves and recesses, is a feature of this room; walls paneled in leather; ceiling heavily beamed; both living-room and hall in antique oak finish.

DINING-ROOM—
Walls paneled with leather to plate rail—genuine imported tapestries, artistically figured, extend from plate rail to ceiling; woodwork of mahogany. An artistic built-in buffet, with doors of bevel plate and hard metal; four mirrors, glass knobs, and large opalescent glass in rear, adds comfort and elegance to this room.

KITCHEN—
There is a large buffet kitchen, thoroughly equipped with shelves, drawers and bins.

BEDROOMS—
Five large sleeping-rooms second floor, daintily finished in ivory, contain large clothes closets and specially built-in cedar wardrobe with hat boxes, drawers and plenty of space for wearing apparel. ON WEST 28TH ST.

The 6 large rooms are so arranged that one may have three fine large bedrooms, or use the front one for a cosy library. Large living-room with colonial fireplace and mantel; large paneled dining-room; paneled library; beam ceilings; many casement windows; oak floors in three rooms and hall; seats, bookcases, handsome buffet, etc.; large closets; white enamel and Flemish oak finish; laundry tubs. This is one of the most attractive houses we ever saw, in splendid location, and has beautiful improved lot. Price $4300.

ON WEST 22ND ST.

A charming 1½-story bungalow of 7 rooms, with long living-room, paneled dining-room, beamed ceilings, seats, bookcases, handsome buffet, etc.; right down to date; oak floors, Flemish oak and white enamel finish; four fine bedrooms, one 13 by about 30 ft.; it's a beautiful home, in fine location, and very cheap at $5250.

ON THE WESTERN HEIGHTS.

Here is a remarkable property on Arlington Heights. An east-front home of 7 big rooms; lot 50x140, on exclusively residence street; one of the finest localities on all the higher ground. The home has large living-room, fine paneled dining-room, hardwood floors, all the built-in appointments, complete; 4 sleeping-rooms, all large, etc., etc. You can make $1000 by buying this property and holding for a year. It's an ideal home. Very cheap at $5350.

TEN-ROOM RESIDENCE.

This fine property is located on an 80-foot street close to Adams st.; a corner lot, very nicely improved, with drive, flowers, shrubbery and auto barn. The house is a handsome building, with veranda finished in pressed brick. There are 5 living-rooms below stairs, all good size, finished in Flemish oak, with oak floors, and all the later ideas in built-in appointments. Above stairs are 5 fine sleeping chambers, all with rock maple floors and large closets. Separate rear stairs, floored attic, large summer balcony, basement and furnace. A complete home for only $9000.

ON ARAPAHOE ST.

Rarely will you find such a home, so complete, so staunchly built and so beautifully improved, offered for sale. The location is Arapahoe st., at the highest point, and the lot has 67½ feet of frontage, terraced, with retaining wall, cement drive to rear, well kept lawn, shrubbery, walks and many rare flowers. There is barn for horses and automobiles, and small plant house. The dwelling has reception room, music room, living-room, dining-room, glass-inclosed sun parlor, 12x14 ft. in size, and all domestic appointments complete. Above stairs are 4 fine sleeping-rooms, a very large and complete bath, big closets, attic, a small front balcony, and a very large summer balcony on the south, roofed and inclosed with balustrade, so that it needs only glass windows to make of it a complete conservatory, or billiard-room. Below stairs the finish is very handsome, all the rooms spacious, the floors oak, with borders inlaid, and all built-in appointments, lighting fixtures, etc.; beautifully planned. The price is only $9000.

LOCATION.

These three superb homes have just been completed, and are located on 50x160-foot lots, near both car lines; splendid improvements, consisting of shrubbery, shade and fruit trees are being placed. Situated at No. 1160 and 1104 Fremont ave. and 1109 Windsor Place, amid high-class surroundings.

DENS.

The walls are paneled 2½ feet high with best quality leather; rich tapestry paper above; open fireplaces with old gold brick mantels; built-in writing desks; beautiful mahogany woodwork.

LIVING-ROOMS.

The living-rooms are large and contain beamed ceilings, open fireplaces, with large stone mantels and walls paneled in Spanish leather. Lighting fixtures throughout houses of quaint and splendid designs.

DINING-ROOMS.

Striking feature of these rooms is the artistic built-in buffets, which contain 11 mirrors, a number of art-glass doors and large opalescent glass in rear. Walls are paneled five feet high—above this is leather tapestry; ceilings are beamed.

SECOND FLOORS.

The large, airy bedrooms are daintily finished in ivory, and contain built-in drawers and plenty of commodious closets. The bathrooms are equipped with best plumbing and elegant fixtures.

KITCHENS.

Houses are piped throughout for furnace heat, fine furnaces, lavatory downstairs, cement basements, etc. Kitchens are neatly finished in white enamel and have built-in shelves, drawers, sinks, and pot and pan closets; two modernly improved pass pantries. Large front porches, 16x30 feet, with columns seven feet high, extend across entire front of each house.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

For a few days we offer these superb homes at the low prices of $6500, $7750 and $8750. We have never before been able to offer such modern, artistic, well-located homes at such nominal figures. Ask any Pasadena or South Pasadena agent, or consult us early Monday morning. A thorough investigation will prove to you the merit of our claims.

FOR SALE—WOULD YOU LIKE A LITTLE bungalow in the mountains within easy access of the city? Then you ought to investigate "Bungalow-Land," the only property of its kind on the market.

"Bungalow-Land" is in Laurel Canyon near Hollywood. Electric cars run to the mouth of the canyon every ten minutes. The bungalow sites comprise the very heart of the canyon, facing the mountain road, but separated from it by a typical mountain brook, and are surrounded by high hills covered with vines, ferns and wildflowers, dotted with trees and brush, presenting a particularly picturesque view. On the lots are sycamore, and oak trees. You are as completely isolated from the city and its environments as though you were hundreds of miles away, yet only a forty minute ride on the electric line brings you from the mouth of the canyon to the city's center.

Tennis courts, recreation grounds, a garage and stables are to be built for the accommodation of buyers. A bungalow inn will provide meals for those who wish. A model community is to be centered here, and restrictions will protect each buyer.

We have a very attractive booklet which we will be glad to send or give you upon request.

Remember, there are many thousand seaside lots, there are only a few bungalow sites in "Bungalow-Land." It would seem that there are a great many people who prefer the mountains to the seashore. Are you one of them? If so, come in and talk it over.

CHAS. S. MANN, 325 West 4th st. A stage is running today from the electric cars to "Bungalow-Land." Take Hollywood cars to Laurel Canyon. 5

CHOICE LOTS FOR FINE HOMES.

Southwest corner Figueroa and 41st street, 67½x150. Figueroa is 100 feet wide, a through street and strictly for residence. With the proposed improvements in that favored location, this is one of the prettiest building sites in the southwest.

We would also call attention to corner on Ellendale Place. This is a 120-foot street, and one of the most select residence streets in Los Angeles. We have two corners at a special low price for a short time only.

Two 70-foot lots on Wilshire boulevard, near Jasmine. These two lots are the most sightly ones on the boulevard and will be sold at a price below that asked for similar lots in this location.

FOR SALE—
City Lots and Lands.

FOR SALE—HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO spend your Saturdays and Sundays and a month or so each year in your own little bungalow in the mountains? "Bungalow-Land" is intended for those who appreciate that sort of thing, and is the only property of its kind on the market.

"Bungalow-Land" is in Laurel Canyon, near Hollywood. Electric cars run to the mouth of the canyon every ten minutes. The bungalow sites comprise the very heart of the canyon, facing the mountain road, but separated from it by a typical mountain brook. You are surrounded by high hills, covered with vines, ferns and wild flowers, dotted with trees and brush, presenting a particularly picturesque view. On the lots are sycamore, laurel and oak trees. You are completely removed from the city and its environments as though you were hundreds of miles away, yet a forty minutes' ride on the electric car line brings you from the mouth of the canyon to the city's center.

Tennis courts, recreation grounds, a garage and stables are to be built for the accommodation of buyers. A Bungalow Inn will provide meals for those who wish. A model community is to be centered here, and restrictions will protect each buyer.

We have a very attractive booklet, which we will be glad to send or give you upon request.

Remember, there are many thousand seaside lots; there are only a few bungalow sites in "Bungalow-Land." It would seem that there are a great many people who prefer the mountains to the sea shore. Are you one of them? If so, come in and talk it over.
CHAS. S. MANN, 225 W. Fourth st.
A stage line is running today from the electric cars to "Bungalow-Land." Take Hollywood cars to Laurel Canyon. 5

Business Property.

FOR SALE—
LOS ANGELES will continue onward to the million mark.

In ten years
the present entire city population will be duplicated in the territory west of Main
North of Pico.

The best of the city will be included within the territory mentioned, with Westlake Park the "storm-center."

Property will now improve at an interest rate double present ground values.

Seventh Street and 100-ft. Wilshire Blvd. will be the "premier"
cross-town thoroughfare and will be unequaled by any other equal length street in "Greater Los Angeles."

Things are doing westward.

Would you buy for income?
Would you buy for improvement?
Would you buy for speculation?

Come talk it over with me.

Some splendid corners for business or apartments.

The latter built on a corner will be the highest grade income property in the city.

C. P. DEYOE. 311 LAUGHLIN BLDG. 5

FOR SALE—
PRICE $65,000.
CASH REQUIRED ONLY $16,970.
BALANCE AT 6 PER CENT.

Such terms are exceptional, and especially so on business property.

We can prove that a good building will return a handsome revenue. The nominal improvements now covering the ground rent for $120 per month.

100x120 FEET.

Between 5th and 6th sts., 3 blocks from the Huntington Bldg., and 5 blocks from the Arcade Depot, on San Pedro st., where that great thoroughfare is splendidly paved and about 90 feet wide.

San Pedro street is just beginning to attract the attention of conservative investors. Buy before the street is opened up to Aliso st. and widened north of 5th. The matter is now in the hands of the appraisers.

W. 10TH ST.

27½ ACRES, CLOSE IN.
27½ ACRES, CLOSE IN.

This property, consisting of 27½ acres, is located at the junction of the new Covina line and the new Dolgeville line, Ramona Park, the 120-acre townsite we are improving, immediately adjoins. The mountains and valley present a superb view—large knoll, splendidly adapted for hotel or residence site. The San Gabriel Valley is conceded by every one to be the cream of Southern California property. The time has come for vast improvements and big jumps in value. NOW is the time to divide this site into acre, ½ acre, or town lots. For a short time, we are in a position to deliver this property to you for only $1000 an acre. When the cars begin running, which will be very soon, this tract will bring $1500 an acre. An opportunity to make money—that the shrewd man should not neglect. Let us show you the property tomorrow. Lots of profit here, for the investor.

CLARK COLONY

It is in Monterey county on the Coast line of railroad, half way between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Best climate in the State for asthmatics and throat troubles.

Located at the foot of beautiful Santa Lucia coast range. Rich sediment soil, irrigated by a big mountain river of purest water which is owned by the land.

Populated by 100 families from Southern California under the auspices of the HOME EXTENSION
ASSOCIATION.

Has a good town with stores, postoffice and bank, town hall, etc.

Best alfalfa in the State. Cheapest irrigation water and the "only" place to think of planting pears or winter apples.

Famous for potatoes, onions and other vegetables. On these lands in this climate you can plant, with success, up to and including month of August.

Great things now in evidence in this famous valley. Let us tell you about them.

Prices on a few tracts only $60 to $75 per acre, including water.

Go up with our excursion party Tuesday afternoon at 3:55 p.m., round trip only $15.

Look at all the $100 to $300 land that is offered you and Clark Colony will surpass it.

HERBERT BURDETT, Secretary.

FOR SALE—DO YOU OCCASIONALLY TIRE of the city, its noise and dirt and restlessness and wish you were in the quiet restful surroundings of the mountains, in a little mountain home of your own? If you do, "Bungalow-Land" was intended for you, and is the only property of its kind on the market.
"Bungalow-Land" is in Laurel Canyon, near Hollywood; electric cars run to the mouth of the canyon every ten minutes. The bungalow sites comprise the very heart of the canyon, facing the mountain road, but separated from it by a typical mountain brook; you are surrounded by high hills, covered with vines, ferns and wild flowers, dotted with trees and brush, presenting a particularly picturesque view. On the lots are sycamore, laurel and oak trees; you are completely removed from the city and its environments as though you were hundreds of miles away, yet only a forty-minute ride on the electric car line brings you from the mouth of the canyon to the city's center.
Tennis courts, recreation grounds, a garage and stables are to be built for the accommodation of buyers; a Bungalow Inn will provide meals for those who wish; a model community is to be centered here and restrictions will protect each buyer.
We have a very attractive booklet which we will be glad to send or give you upon request.
Remember, there are many thousands seaside lots; there are only a few bungalow sites in "Bungalow-Land." It would seem that there are a great many people who prefer the mountains to the seashore; are you one of them? If so, come in and talk it over.
CHAS. S. MANN, 325 W. Fourth st.
A stage line is running today from the electric cars to "Bungalow-Land." Take Hollywood cars to Laurel Canyon. 5

FOR SALE—
I HAVE A FEW SINGLE ACRES TO SELL AT $900 EACH ON TERMS EASIER THAN RENT IN THE BEST PART OF THE SOUTHWEST.
Several recent buyers have expressed surprise that such large and handsome plats could be had for such a little price and on such very easy terms. These are full acres; have graded streets, and water piped direct in heavy steel mains. They have the Gardena line car service enabling those working in the city to reach home in better time than many sections of the city proper. The terms are so easy, the advantages so many, and the future profits so large and certain, that no man can afford to pay rent. Free tickets and free maps when you call.

FOR SALE—
ALHAMBRA.
WELCOME, SHRINERS, TO ALHAMBRA. VISIT THIS GLORIOUS OASIS.
If you are a home builder, we have some lots located close in to the car line, on completed improved streets, with a magnificent view of the Southern California five ranges of mountains, together with the hills and the San Gabriel Valley, at prices from $450 and if you build at once you can get a discount on that. This is the choicest subdivision and the opportunity will only be given to the first few buyers.
THINK OF IT. $450 FOR CHOICE LOTS WITH ALL STREET IMPROVEMENTS.
At prices from $500 to $750, we have choice lots near car line, in nice residence location, set to full bearing orange trees, which will prove very attractive purchases.
Do you want to purchase a home on payment ment like rent? If so, we have some new modern bungalows, entirely up to date, at $2250 to $2500, which we can sell you on a payment down, and the balance on easy monthly payments. These are very attractive and will interest you.
ALHAMBRA ACRES.
The beautiful palm drive through this orange grove section is worth a trip to see. This is going to be one of the finest tracts in the county, and it is strictly first-class in quality; highly improved and the lots are none of them less than one-half acres. Right in the city, and with all of its improvements.
Come out this week and let us give you a pleasant surprise by showing you that the advantages of Alahmbra are very much greater than we have said.

HOLLYWOOD.

FOR SALE—
TEN ACRES IN HOLLYWOOD.
Only two blocks from Franklin and Gower, and 5 minutes' walk to Prospect ave. cars, good 7-room house, barn, fine navel orange orchard bearing; large number of apricot, plum, prune, fig, loquat, olive, lemon and grapefruit trees; also grapes all bearing; fine well, gas engine and pump, or Hollywood city water can be put in; many decorative trees, palms, rubber, almond, umbrella, bamboo, banana, eucalyptus, etc. This is close in to center of town, and is the most sightly location in Hollywood, being on the first eminence of the hills with a view of the valley, ocean and city of Los Angeles unsurpassed; is sheltered from the cold winds in winter, and gets the sea breeze in summer, it adjoins and overlooks the site chosen by artist De Longpre for his new home, and will make a wealthy man's home place unequaled around Los Angeles.
For a hotel or sanitarium the site could not be improved on and there is 10 years' growth of foliage, flowers, and fruit already there for embellishment.
Is easy of access, yet an elevation of 550 feet above the sea, and health is in every breath drawn on it. A better investment could not be found than to hold or subdivide this location, and it is offered for $22,000, $10,000 cash or will take good Los Angeles or ranch property at cash value, and the balance 2½ years, 6 per cent.

FOR SALE—
Beach Property.

FOR SALE—PERHAPS YOU HAVE TIRED of your seaside cottage and would like to have a pretty little bungalow in the mountains. Then investigate "Bungalow-Land," the only property of its kind on the market. "Bungalow-Land" is in Laurel Canyon, near Hollywood. Electric cars run to the mouth of the canyon every ten minutes. The bungalow sites comprise the very heart of the canyon, facing the mountain road, but separated from it by a typical mountain brook. You are surrounded by high hills covered with vines, ferns and wild flowers, dotted with trees and brush, presenting a particularly picturesque view. On the lots are sycamore, laurel and oak trees. You are completely removed from the city and its environments as though you were hundreds of miles away, yet only a forty minutes' ride on the electric car line brings you from the mouth of the canyon to the city's center.

Tennis courts, recreation grounds, a garage and stables are to be built for the accommodation of buyers. A Bungalow Inn will provide meals for those who wish. A model community is to be centered here, and restrictions will protect each buyer.

We have a very attractive booklet, which we will be glad to send or give you upon request.

Remember, there are many thousand seaside lots; there are only a few bungalow sites in "Bungalow-Land." It would seem that there are a great many people who prefer the mountains to the sea shore. Are you one of them? If so, come in and talk it over.

CHAS. S. MANN, 325 W. Fourth st.

A stage line is running today from the electric car to "Bungalow-Land." Take Hollywood cars to Laurel Canyon. 5

201. Here is one of the finest English walnut groves in California at a bargain; 25 acres in bearing walnut trees 8 and 12 years old, and part of these are budded; orchard is in and always has been in the very best condition; 1 acre in alfalfa, 4 acres in spuds with a good crop; plenty of water with some to sell from plant on the property; a fine home of 8 rooms, large barn and other outbuildings; horses, cow, chickens, wagons, buggy, surrey, and a full set of tools, etc., go with the place. It is located just outside the city limits of Anaheim, being less than a mile to the center of the town. Everything is number one, and the place is free from all incumbrances. Price $25,000. Want well-located income Los Angeles property. This place is worth $28,000, or $30,000, on a cash basis—just think of it. Would suggest that you act at once.

1771. Four pieces of business property in Kansas City, Mo. These properties are all well-located; rent well, and are paying a good income. The value of the four is $88,000. Incumbrance $17,000. Want good citrus ranch with good buildings for equity.

1325. Two new cottages of 5 and 3 rooms on two acres of ground in Kootenai county, Idaho. This place is an ideal summer home, close to Pend O'Reille, one of the most beautiful lakes in the United States, having the most beautiful scenery, fishing and hunting that can be found anywhere. The cottages are new and modern and clear. Cash valuation $6000. Want house in Los Angeles or might consider vacant lots in southwest.

1300. 25 acres in the suburbs of a town in Jennings county, Ind.; improved with a good home, large barn, chicken-houses, and other outbuildings; cash price $3500. Want Southern California. Might assume, but not very much.

911. Five acres in oranges, 15 years old; two miles from Oroville. The property is clear, in good shape, and is one of the biggest bargains we have on our files. Price $2500. Want Los Angeles or might consider a farm in Missouri.

632. 10 acres, 1½ miles from Rialto; five acres in lemons 14 years old; five acres in Valencia buds two years old; ten shares water stock; place has brought in a good income, and is listed at a sale price bargain. Price $7500. Clear; would consider a good alfalfa ranch, improved, well located and submitted on a cash valuation.

631. 10 acres 1½ mile from Rialto, 2-3 in lemons five years old, 1-3 in 15-year-old lemon trees budded one year to Marsh seedless grape fruit; 10 shares of water stock. Good cement flumes; income $2000 a year. Selling price $90,-000; mortgage $2000. Want Los Angeles residence close in and in a good location.

629. 160-acre farm near Centerville, Missouri; good house, barn, smokehouse and other outbuildings; family fruit orchard. Price $2400; clear; want good property in or near Los Angeles of about same value.

620. 40 acres in alfalfa, two miles from Highlands; two good wells equipped with pumping plants; place is all fenced; good residence of eight rooms with hot and cold water, baths, etc.; large barn, hog houses, chicken corrals and other outbuildings; selling price $16,000; property is clear; will consider good property in Los Angeles up to $12,000, balance cash or back on place; 23 acres of this place is in potatoes, which will bring a good income by June 15. The balance is in grain or alfalfa.

616. 640 acres of good average desert land at Blythe Station, on the Salt Lake Railroad, in San Bernardino county. Price $4000; mortgage $640; also 160 acres of good fruit or potato land 4½ miles from Pala, and 40 miles from San Diego, in San Diego county; and good house. Land is all practically level to gently rolling. Price $2500; mortgage $5000; want Los Angeles cottage or vacant lots for equity.

612. 164 acres nine miles from Colton, in Riverside Co. This is very good grain, fruit or eucalyptus land; has a spring with about ¾ of an inch of flowing water now, and more could be developed if needed. Price $2000, clear; want Los Angeles or good beach lands.

611. 4½ acres in Colton; planted to lemons, 17 years old, and cheap water; income $825 a year. Cash selling price, $3300, clear. Want Los Angeles property; prefers W. Washington street. This property is ready for subdivision now, and could be sold off in town lots for at least $300 apiece.

610. 15 acres in lemons and oranges, 2½ miles from Lakeside, San Diego Co. Trees are in fine condition, and just about coming into full bearing; would consider Los Angeles income or a cash valuation for the value of this property, which is $7000, and clear.

609. 10 acres in oranges and walnuts near Santa Ana. Place is improved with a good 4-room house, large barn, fruit house, tank house, tank, gasoline engine, etc. Cash price $8000, clear. Want small ranch suitable for poultry, in the suburbs of southwest Los Angeles or Pasadena.

608. Two acres with a fine 10-room modern home in the city of Redlands; good barn; the two acres are planted to navel oranges 10 and 18 years old. Three shares of water stock go with the place, giving it good, cheap water; price $8500, clear. Would consider $4000 or $5000 in good modern home in southwest Los Angeles; mortgage back for balance.

FOR EXCHANGE—
I need $800 and will sacrifice my property: 1 7-room house, and 1 4-room house; both new and modern; bath, toilet, etc.; large lots, worth $4500; my price $3800; I will take vacant property up to $1500. Address X, box 41, TIMES OFFICE. 7

FOR EXCHANGE—
Some properties that will stand investigation. 3 nice new bungalows, well located, in a good residence section, in beautiful Highland Park, valued at $8000, and paying 12 per cent. interest on that valuation; owner wants a nice little ranch, with good soil and water, not too far from Los Angeles; where is yours?

—ALSO—

Offer you a fine new 12-room modern house in this same vicinity, with polished oak floors and beam ceilings, on a large corner lot; a fine home, worth $7500 cash, and the owner would exchange for a well-located house of equal or less value in Boyle Heights; here is your golden opportunity.

—ALSO—

Have several dandy cottages and bungalows to trade for vacant lots. Call and learn more about them.

—ALSO—

Have a dandy 40-acre ranch, adjoining the Santa Ana electric; alfalfa and dairy; 42 good cows now on the place; milk check averages about $200 per month; good 9-room house, large barns, good pumping plant; lots of water; fine loam soil; it's a money-maker; price for stock and all, $15,000; owner wants rental property; what have you? How would you like a fine fruit and stock ranch up along the coast? Have one up there of 126 acres, 20 acres in bearing apple trees and 20 acres more in grapes, berries and other fruits. This ranch is a money-maker, good buildings, plenty of water and close to town; owner wants some good walnut land in this vicinity; his ranch is worth $12,000; he might take a good grain ranch near here. I have another dandy little stock ranch up north, here in Los Angeles Co., and only a few miles from a nice little railroad town; there is 240 acres in it and plenty of outside range for several hundred head of cattle; have an abundance of living water on the place, small house, corrals and other improvements, and 40 head of good grade cattle, part of these good cows; also over 250 stands of bees, with honey house, extractor and other necessary equipments; this being a very fine bee country; everything goes in for only $8000; owner would consider any good property in this vicinity; city or country; what have you? I have hundreds of other exchanges of all kinds and sizes all over. Come in and get acquainted any way, I may have just what you want.

THE OIL INDUSTRY.

ASSOCIATED IN NEW FIELD.

Recruit to Drill Ten Miles from Santa Barbara.

Combine's Eight-inch Line Is Nearly Completed.

Largest Tankage on Coast Planned at Divide.

The Recruit Oil Company (Associated) has entered a new district and will begin rigging tomorrow (Monday) at La Patera, about ten miles west of Santa Barbara. The company has its material on the ground and is prepared to go 4000 feet to thoroughly test the indications lying near the coast at this point, which has not been explored. A strike here will greatly extend the oil belt of Santa Barbara county, by opening an entirely new field.

The Associated's thirty-mile eight-inch line from Gaviota to Divide station near Orcutt, is nearing completion, despite delays that arose over rights-of-way some little time ago, and it is now expected that oil will be running to the sea within another week. The company is erecting tankage at Divide station that will require six acres and is said that it will be the largest storage of any individual company in the coast fields, according to reports from Santa Barbara.

There is everything to show that it is the intention of the Associated to do business on a big scale. It needs oil for present and future demands and with rising prices in every field it will have to pay a good stiff figure. Fifty cents is the rate at which the last contracts with the Standard were made, while the Union paid 40 only a short time before. So far as known here the Associated has as yet made no contracts, except those which it took over from the Pacific Oil & Transportation Company, which are much too small to call for such large pipeage and tankage.

Under the new contract with the Espee the Associated will very probably before long be confronted with the alternative of supplying the railroad with oil from the coast fields or drawing heavily upon Kern River storage, and the latter will not last long. If it be true, however, that the price under the contract is 50 cents at the wells, the combine is likely to have difficulty in getting a supply at a profit in Santa Maria unless it develops its own wells. Of course using oil from this field for commercial contracts of the future will relase that much other oil for the railroad.

That the contract has been consummated, The Times is able to affirm, though General Manager Porter, when in the city last, declined to talk, saying that he could give nothing until later on. The price is in the neighborhood of 50 cents, perhaps a little less, according to the best posted [illegible].

at Newport Beach.

The Fairview Oil Company was organized yesterday to drill on the Col[illegible] Young tract near Newport [illegible]. The incorporation will be under Arizona laws with $500,000 capitalization and shares of $1 par value. The following are the temporary directors: W. F. Ford, C. S. Young, W. [illegible] Collins, A. M. Rockwell and F. B. [illegible].

The land is at Harper station, south[illegible] of the Newport Bay Company's well. The contract for the drilling calls for having the machinery within [illegible] days and the work started within twenty days.

It has not been determined as yet whether any stock will be offered the public or whether it will be financed entirely by a few persons of means. The Bruntons and their associates are preparing to organize and incorporate next week when they will start drilling as soon as possible.

Allen Craig, the well known operator in the city field, visited Newport a few days since with a party of Los Angeles oil men and it is understood that it is his intention to join in organizing another company to drill here. Mr. Craig was out of the city yesterday and the report could be neither affirmed or contradicted.

One advantage of this field, as shown by the experience of the Newport Bay Company in its first well, is that it is almost entirely free from water trouble.

Wilmington Company.

The Wilmington Oil Company completed formal organization yesterday, everything being exactly as outlined in The Times some three weeks ago. The capitalization is $750,000 and the officers are: J. M. Brunton, president; [illegible] J. Robinson, secretary; W. S. Carey, treasurer; J. P. Brunton, general manager.

The rig for drilling on the A. J. Large ranch near Wilmington arrived yesterday. Work will be started with [illegible]-inch casing.

Good showing of oil is reported to have been encountered in the Bixby well which is being drilled not far from this.

Personals, Odds and Ends.

L. C. Blakeslee, well known to oil men all over the State, has resigned his place with the R. H. Herron Company to accept employment with the Western Engine Company. Mr. Blakeslee has been connected with oil for a number of years, first in a newspaper capacity in this city and then in the supply line.

William Hardee, president of the National Supply Company, who has been in the city for over a week, has gone to Orcutt with C. B. Barnes, Pacific Coast manager of the company, for an inspection of the field and conditions at Santa Maria.

McKITTRICK LEASE.

ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS GIVEN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BAKERSFIELD, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A lease of eighty acres of promising McKittrick lands was filed with the County Recorder today, from the Belmont Oil Company to [illegible] K. Lee of McKittrick, who will commence drilling at once. The property leased is the north half of the northwest quarter of section 11, 30, 21. Lee agrees to give one-eighth of the gross proceeds of sales during ten years, while he obtains an option for ten years more, and the right to buy the land at any time at the rate of [illegible] per acre.

One string of tools will start within [illegible] days and be kept at work as long as the price of oil is above 25 cents. If the price goes to 50 cents Lee agrees to put two strings at work, while no drilling will be done should the price fall below 25 cents. Wells on [illegible] property have produced good oil but no developing work has been [illegible] these sections as yet.

The First Allotment of Southern Telephone Electric Company Stock Almost Entirely Sold

YOU CAN BUY STOCK NOW----FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY----AT $25 PER SHARE

This Is What the Southern Telephone Electric Co. Is.

Is a corporation duly organized and incorporated under the laws of the Territory of Arizona. The capital stock is ten million dollars ($10,000,000), divided into one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of a par value of one hundred dollars ($100) per share. The stock is fully paid and forever non-assessable. There is no preferred stock and no bonded indebtedness. Each and every share of stock is on an equal basis. The organization or charter member price of this stock has been placed at $25 per share. Every share of stock issued at the present time has been paid for in full at that price. Not one single share of promotion stock has been issued. The officers and directors of this corporation have paid the same price, $25 per share, for their own stock that they offer it to their friends and acquaintances.

The purpose for which this company was organized, to acquire, develop and carry on a system of independent or home telephone plants, both local and long distance, in one of the richest telephone fields in the United States, will be dwelt upon at length hereafter.

The territory, or field, which has been selected by this board of directors is one of the richest in the United States, and at present almost overlooked, except by the interests controlled by the Bell Telephone.

The charter of the Southern Telephone-Electric Company is broad, permitting the company to carry on the business of constructing and operating telephone plants, long distance lines and equipment, electric power and lighting plants, and any and all business pertaining to the acquiring, operation or development of the telephone and electric lines. The charter permits this company to act as a holding company. In other words, grants the corporation all privileges of holding the stock of other corporations—in fact, to carry on all of the business at present contemplated. It covers all exigencies which can possibly be foreseen, facilitating the future development of the independent telephone business in the State of Texas.

The affairs of the corporation will be under the management of the following Board of Directors:

E. L. Swaine, General Manager of the Home Telephone and Telegraph Company of Los Angeles, Cal.

R. J. McHugh, Chief Installer and Pacific Coast Sales Manager of the Kellogg Switch Board and Supply Company.

N. F. Wilson, San Francisco, Cal.

Ernest A. Olds, Superintendent of Construction of the Home Telephone and Telegraph Company of Los Angeles, Cal.

H. L. Edwards, Superintendent of the Contracting Department of the Home Telephone and Telegraph Company.

F. J. Norris, Cashier of the Occidental Trust and Savings Bank of Los Angeles, Cal., and formerly auditor of the Home Telephone and Telegraph Company.

J. N. O. Rech, Attorney, Los Angeles, Cal.

Edgar A. Sharp, Attorney, Los Angeles, Cal.

The officers of the company are:

E. L. Swaine, President; N. F. Wilson, 1st Vice President; H. L. Edwards, 2d Vice President; E. A. Olds, 3d Vice President; J. N. O. Rech, Secretary; F. J. Norris, Treasurer; R. J. McHugh, Chief Engineer.

The men who will have charge of the field work and operation of the affairs of the Southern Telephone-Electric Company are all practical, successful telephone men of unquestioned integrity and special ability in their particular branch of technical effort.

The chief engineer for this company, Mr. R. J. McHugh, has been associated with the Kellogg Switch Board and Supply Company for a number of years. During that period he has installed some of the largest telephone exchanges in the United States, notably those of Baltimore, Cleveland and St. Louis.

The Home Telephone Company of Los Angeles, which has been one of the most prosperous and successful telephone corporations of the United States, has had as its General Manager Mr. E. L. Swaine. The administrative affairs of the corporation will be under his management, ably assisted by Mr. H. L. Edwards. Mr. Edwards has also been connected with the Home Telephone Company of Los Angeles for a number of years and has won an enviable reputation for himself by carrying out a successful campaign for the securing of contracts in Los Angeles in the face of a tremendous opposition on the part of the Sunset Telephone Company.

Mr. Ernest A. Olds resigns as Superintendent of the contracting department of the Home Telephone Company to devote his entire time to the Southern Telephone-Electric Company. Mr. Olds is the man who set the first pole for the Empire Construction Company in Los Angeles, since which time he has been continuously employed as Superintendent of Construction of the Home Telephone and Telegraph Company and the Home Telephone Company of Los Angeles. In addition to these duties Mr. Olds has acted as consulting engineer in the construction of numerous small suburban telephone plants constructed by independent corporations.

Mr. F. J. Norris, formerly auditor of the Home Telephone Company of Los Angeles, and at present cashier of the Occidental Trust and Savings Bank, will act in the capacity of Treasurer of the Southern Telephone-Electric Company, thus assuring a careful and economical management of the financial end of this enterprise.

Further information as to the standing of the men behind this proposition seems unnecessary, as their long continuous record of success and their practical experience in their chosen work are sufficient evidence of their ability to carry out the plans and assure success of the Southern Telephone-Electric Company. Remember, also, that these gentlemen have sold and are selling their interests in other telephone corporations and placing their available funds in the stock of the Southern Telephone-Electric Company at the same price and on the same basis as the stock is offered to you.

What Is Actually Being Accomplished

The Southern Telephone-Electric Company was organized principally to conduct a telephone business in one of the richest sections of the United States, viz.: the State of Texas; constructing and operating both long distance and local telephone systems. The Southern Telephone-Electric Company is not only a telephone company itself, but also a telephone construction company. It will work along lines somewhat similar to those employed by the Empire Construction Company of the Pacific Coast, thus assuring large and continuous profits for its stockholders.

Mr. E. L. Swaine, President, in speaking of the plans of operation, states as follows: "The company now owns the Fort Worth Long Distance Telephone Company, and will soon acquire extensions for the construction and operation of local exchanges in a number of towns in the State of Texas.

"The company will hold control of the long distance lines, which will enable us to protect the business of the local exchanges, besides bringing a good revenue.

"When a local plant has been constructed and in operation a company will be formed among the business men of the community. They will subscribe for the stock, as it will pay a good interest on the investment, and they will be the owners of the property in their own town.

"The Southern Telephone-Electric Company will receive for such plants from the new local companies part cash and part bonds, based on the earning power of the companies, which cash and bonds will give a very good profit on the work of construction and place us in a position to turn over the funds again in another locality.

"The profits in the telephone business have proved very satisfactory, paying good percentages on bonds and stocks, besides enabling the companies to lay aside a fair surplus. This refers to the operating companies, from which class we expect to secure a portion of our earnings, the greater part to come from the profits on construction. It is the intention to set aside for sale only sufficient stock to provide capital to carry on the work in hand, which will enable us to pay very satisfactory dividends on the outstanding stock.

"Our representative now in Texas writes of the great possibilities there, and we are looking forward to remarkable success."

SOUTHWESTERN SECURITIES CO.,
406-7 I. W. Hellman Building.
Los Angeles, California.

Answering yours of the 25th, which is just received.

Our Fort Worth property consists of the long distance lines from Fort Worth to Weatherford, and from Fort Worth to Waxahatchie, comprising two telephone circuits for the entire distance of seventy-four miles.

We have arranged for options on the long distance lines from Waxahatchie to Corsicana, and from Waxahatchie to Hillsboro. Also franchises at McKinney and Granbury.

We are also negotiating with other long distance interests for consolidation.

I am pleased to state that I will take an active interest in the management of our new company on May 1st. Yours truly,

(Signed) E. L. SWAINE.

GREAT PROFITS IN THE TELEPHONE BUSINESS

Ohio a Good Example of Independent Telephone Success.

It would be too great a task to attempt the tabulation of the financial statements of all the independent telephone companies in any one State, although such a compilation would be of great value. By selecting at random a number of companies in a State investors will be enabled to strike a reliable average as to the earning powers of independent securities.

When considering such figures the student of finance must not lose sight of the fact that however gratifying the present showing may be, the future promises still better things, because the telephone business is hardly half developed.

Take, for instance, the growth of the independent movement in Ohio. On March 30, 1905, the State contained 196,937 independent telephones, with 668 exchanges, 1452 toll stations and 17,029 stockholders. On October 1, 1906, there were 270,720 independent telephones, with 835 exchanges, 1663 toll stations and 24,650 stockholders. At the present time Ohio supports approximately 300,000 independent telephones, owned by over 25,000 stockholders. On October 30, 1906, the Bell company had 141,111 telephones in service in the State, with 275 exchanges and 839 toll stations.

It is needless to enter into a dissertation as to the why and wherefore of the Independent progress in the State of Ohio or elsewhere, because all who have taken an interest in the development of the industry know that it is founded upon the imperishable desire of the people to manage their own affairs.

Twenty-five thousand individual stockholders in one State. Surely that is an invincible army, strong enough financially and morally to carry any conflict to a successful conclusion. Moreover, fully three-fourths of these stockholders are personally interested in the well-being of the exchanges in which they hold stock, thereby protecting not only their own capital but also that of outside investors.

Figures, however, speak louder than words, and the table of dividends and interest paid by Ohio companies during the year 1906, herewith, proves conclusively that independent telephone properties are managed judiciously and economically while, at the same time, giving satisfactory service to their patrons.

In addition to the dividends and interest paid by the companies, included in the table, most of them added large sums to their surplus account and made provisions for taking care of depreciation and the installation of new equipment. Several of the companies, besides paying handsome dividends, put aside ten per cent. of their gross earnings for the latter purpose.

It is unnecessary to analyze the reports from the various companies. They are so plain that they can be understood by any person of ordinary intelligence. In the table some of the larger companies have been omitted, because their growth can be illustrated better by comparative statement, showing earnings and expenses for the years 1906 and 1905, as follows:

UNITED STATES TELEPHONE COMPANY.

	1906.	1905.
Total Revenue	$553,941.64	$484,934.38
Commissions of other companies	151,889.52	136,217.78
Gross revenue	$402,052.12	$348,716.60
Expenses and taxes	174,597.48	183,986.04
Net earnings	$227,454.64	$164,730.56
Revenue from investments in other companies	18,101.67
Total net earnings	$245,556.31	$164,730.56
Interest on bonds	107,800.00	103,198.33
Surplus	$137,756.31	$ 61,532.23
Dividends	80,881.50	19,515.00
Net surplus	$ 56,874.81	$ 42,017.23

CUYAHOGA TELEPHONE COMPANY.

	1906.	1905.
Total revenue	$737,192.23	$588,404.67
Less commission and reserve	21,765.29	20,295.82
Gross revenue	$715,426.94	$568,108.85
Expenses and taxes	385,041.29	330,314.11
Net earnings	$330,385.65	$207,794.74
Interest on bonds	135,000.00	124,464.43
Surplus	$195,385.65	$ 83,330.31
Dividends	111,103.50	51,398.40
Net surplus	$ 84,282.15	$ 31,931.91

The above statements show the normal earning capacity of the companies at the present time, but this is bound to advance with the development of the systems.

STARK COUNTY TELEPHONE COMPANY.

	1906.	1905.
Gross earnings	$ 98,008.68	$ 81,842.20
Expenses and taxes	50,501.57	45,247.48
Net earnings	$ 47,597.11	$ 36,594.72
Interest on bonds	15,500.00	15,500.00
Surplus	$ 32,097.11	$ 21,094.72
Dividends	6,200.00	—
Net surplus	$ 25,897.11	$ 21,094.72

Scores of similar instances could be given and what we want to impress most emphatically is that the men who manage the affairs of the Southern Telephone Electric Company are the same people who have made the Home Telephone Company in Los Angeles a far greater financial success than any other independent telephone company in any city in the United States.

The Profit and Investment in This Enterprise Offered to Large and Small Investors Alike

Do you realize that every time you pick up the telephone you ask for Long Distance and get your party in the adjacent town, that thousands of other people are doing the same thing at the same time?

Do you realize that the cost to you, while slight, nets a tremendous profit to the telephone company holding a long distance franchise?

Do you realize that the chief expense has already been incurred when you do this telephoning by the installation of this and other long distance lines?

Do you realize that the maintenance to carry on this long distance business is very slight compared with the tremendous profits? This is why, perhaps, you have never seen a long distance or local telephone stock offered to the general public.

It has never been offered before in just this matter for the reason that it is usually gobbled up by capitalists who are assured and know that every dollar they invest in telephone stocks is the best kind of security they can get hold of.

It is tangible. They can borrow more money more readily on it, and make greater net returns.

Now, it is coincident that we are able to have such stock to offer you. Coincident because the people that make up this company, and whose stock we are now offering, are people who have had years and years of experience with other big telephone companies, thus gaining the knowledge that enables them to successfully carry on this enterprise.

They have seen where others have spent their money at a profit; they are now able to overcome any obstacles in the way of a successful venture. There is no element of risk involved anywhere along the line.

Now, not having all the capital at hand themselves, they are offering you a block of stock at a price to enable everyone to reap a great benefit in stock value increase as well as in dividends.

Honestly, can you look over the directorate of this company; can you read over the prospectus and not be influenced by its plausibility?

Remember this is, perhaps, your last chance at this stock at this price.

Thousands of dollars have been subscribed; work is being pushed rapidly, and there is no reason in the world why this will not terminate in one of the greatest telephone successes of the country.

The management of this company will be in the hands of practical, experienced telephone men—men who have accomplished more in the city of Los Angeles for the Home Telphone Company in three years than has ever been accomplished in any other city in the United States in the same length of time, having increased the number of telephones operated by the Home Telephon Company by twnty-three thousand in that time.

The field of operation, namely the cotton and cattle belt of Texas, offers greater inducements for an independent telephone company than any other part of the United States, not only from the fact of its immense territory (the State of Texas being larger than Oregon, Washington and California combined), but also from the fact that there are practically no telephone lines in this territory, excepting the Bell or Trust Company, and a very few local exchanges; and also from the fact that the Southern Telephone-Electric Company is assured of the hearty co-operation of the leading citizens of this territory.

It is absolutely impossible for the President, Directors, or, in fact, any stockholder, to receive a divident on the stock they hold without every stockholder in the company receiving the same profit on the stock held by them, as every share of stock has exactly the same interest-earning capacity and the same voting power, from the fact that there is no preferred stock, nor are there any bonds, there being only the one class of security, viz: common stock, which we are selling at a very low price on a small monthly payment, as well as for cash, thus putting this valuable investment within the reach of the small invester, as well as the capitalist, the par value of each share being One Hundred Dollars ($100.00) and absolutely non-assessable.

INSTALLMENT PAYMENTS ON STOCK CAN BE MADE AS FOLLOWS

We are offering the full paid, non-assessable $100 par value stock of the SOUTHERN TELEPHONE-ELECTRIC COMPANY on the following easy terms:

$25 buys 1 Share, par value $100, pay down $5 and $2.50 a month for 8 months.

$75 buys 3 Shares, par value $300, pay down $15 and $7.50 a month for 8 months.

$125 buys 5 Shares, par value $500, pay down $25 and $12.50 a month for 8 months.

$250 buys 10 Shares, par value $1000, pay down $50 and $25 a month for 8 months.

$625 buys 25 Shares, par value $2500, pay down $125 and $62.50 a month for 8 months.

$1250 buys 50 Shares, par value $5000, pay down $250 and $125 a month for 8 months.

You can contract for any number of shares, paying for them in the same proportion. You can pay more down and more per month if you desire, or you can pay in the entire balance due at any time, or pay entire amount in cash and take advantage of a 2 per cent. discount, when a certificate will be issued. Make all remittances payable to the Southwestern Securities Company.

Come to our office, if you can, and we will explain to you all the details. If you cannot come, fill in the coupon below and mail to us, with remittance in registered letter, or by postal or express money order for the number of shares you wish. Office open Monday and Saturday evenings until 9 o'clock.

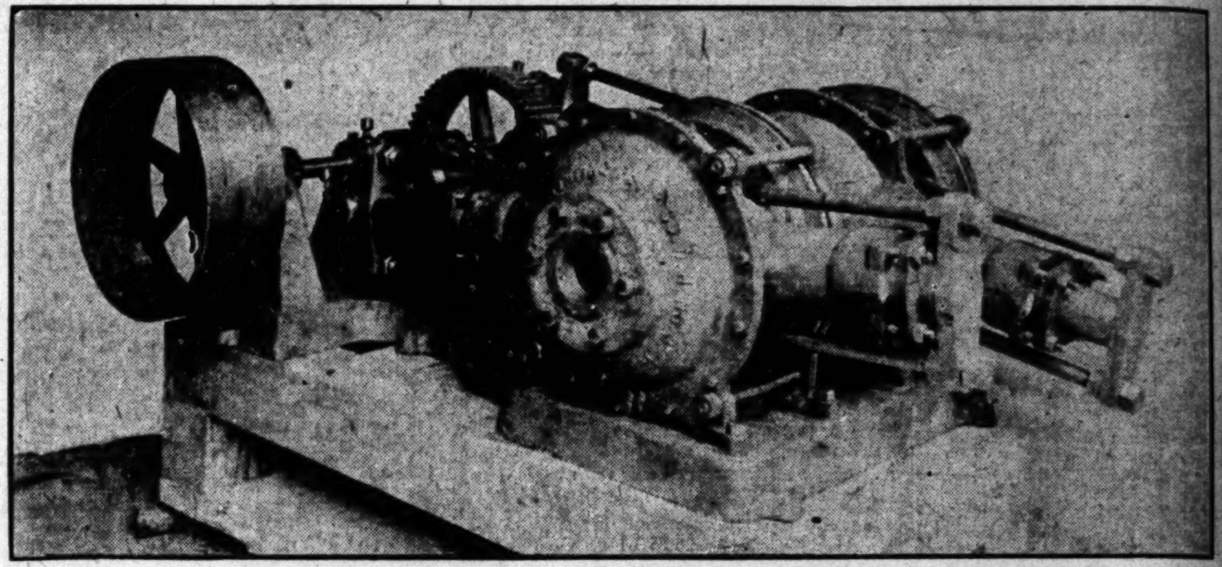
Buy Ross Oscillating Pump Stock Now at $5.00 Per Share
The Best Investment Upon the Pacific Coast
Its Commercial Value Now is $25 Per Share
It Will Sell for That Price Before 1908

The first Ross Oscillating Valveless Plunger Duplex Pump, built in Los Angeles, is now completed, and may be seen in operation, handling eleven gravity oil, in the Panorama Ring, 320 South Main, and will convince all those who see it, of its wonderful value. Free tickets for admittance to this exhibition may be secured at our offices.

The day of speculation is past, as to the merits of the Ross Oscillating Pump. Many have purchased stock because they have had confidence in the Ross Oscillating Pump Company, and the ability of its officers to accomplish what they had set out to do. We are now prepared to demonstrate to the investigator, beyond question, the absolute mechanical success of the Ross Oscillating Pump. It is now being put to the hardest test that can possibly be required of a pump. Do not allow this opportunity to pass. Invest in stock now at $5.00 a share. It is actually worth $25.00, and will be taken from the market in a very few days.

Don't fail to see the Mechanical Wonder of the twentieth century, the Ross Oscillating Valveless Plunger Pump pumping eleven gravity oil in the "Made in Southern California" Exposition, 320 So. Main St. Get free admission tickets at our office.



WE ARE PREPARED TO ANSWER THE ONLY QUESTION THAT HAS EVER BEEN RAISED, "IS THE ROSS PAMP A SUCCESS?" COME AND SEE FOR YOURSELF. IT IS SO SIMPLE THAT YOU DO NOT NEED THE JUDGMENT OF AN EXPERT; YOU CAN SATISFY YOURSELF.

What Establishes the Value of Our Stock?

We could now sell the patent right for the United States for ten million dollars. The different foreign countries should bring us not less than ten million dollars. The manufacture and sale of the Ross Oscillating Pump in the United States alone should bring us not less than two million, five hundred thousand dollars per annum net. We expect to close the sale of the patent right to Canada for five hundred thousand dollars within the very near future. Two of our large pumps will be shipped to Canada within the next thirty days. Our first fire engine will be turned out immediately. Our company and its stockholders could make a handsome fortune by selling the patent right, but a much greater profit can be made by following our present lines of operation and manufacturing this pump for the market.

Why Is the Pump Valuable?

It must be admitted to be the simplest pump in construction. It can be built for 25 per cent. less than the average pump, at a net profit of 100 per cent. Its efficiency is the highest, by actual mechanical demonstration. It can perform the work which no other pump has ever done, and is operated with less than one-half the power. Excelling in all these vital points, with a universal demand without a question assures the company enormous dividends. And remember, our income will be immediate, from the east and from the west, as factories will be installed in three other points in the east.

ONLY A LIMITED AMOUNT OF THIS STOCK WILL BE SOLD AT $5.00 A SHARE. IT WILL BE TAKEN FROM THE MARKET BEFORE JUNE 1.

DO NOT ALLOW THIS EXTRAORDINARY OPPORTUNITY TO PASS BY. INVEST YOUR MONEY WHERE IT WILL BE MULTIPLIED BY FIVE BEFORE 1908.

MAKE YOUR RESERVATION NOW. TOMORROW MAY BE TOO LATE.

STANDARD OIL AS A "WRECKER."

CHICAGO TRUST COMPANY SUES IN CIRCUIT COURT.

Alleges That Officers and Directors of the Corn Products Company Juggled Stock With View to Depreciation, and Consequent Loss to Complaint—Receiver Asked.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That the Corn Products Company, an $80,000,000 corporation, was wrecked by the Standard Oil "people," led by E. T. Bedford, is alleged in a bill filed in the Circuit Court today by the Chicago Real Estate Loan and Trust Company, against the Corn Products Company.

The complaining company asks that the corporation be reorganized under direction of the court, and that a receiver be appointed to operate its plants in Illinois.

Prior to January 1, 1906, it is charged, C. H. Matthiessen, Norman B. Ream, William W. Heaton, Joy Morton, J. B. Greenhut, C. L. Glass, E. A. Matthiessen, W. J. Calhoun, W. T. Gorman, T. B. Waggoner, H. C. Herget, T. P. Kingsford, and F. C. Sherwood, as officers and directors of a majority of the stock of the Corn Products Company, combined and confederated with the Standard Oil people, who were officers and directors of the New York Glucose Company to cheat and defraud and deprive the complaining company of its stock.

It is alleged that the officers and directors discouraged the stockholders of the Corn Products Company by concealing its business and making such reports as would induce them to sell out or transfer their stock.

"From the beginning," it is alleged in the bill "the company has been subject to attacks of the Standard Oil Co., which has sought to control it. One mode of attack was the construction of a factory for the New York Glucose Company, by Bedford and his associates. This method failed and Bedford and his associates sought to buy up the stock of the Corn Products Company by depreciating the stock value and by sales of large quantities of stock on the different exchanges, in this way lowering the price in immense amounts and buying it in again."

FOR A JUNE BRIDE.

Heartsparty in Honor of Miss Nona M. Bell, Whose Engagement Is Announced Today.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bell of No. 1201 South Bonnie Brae street today announce the engagement of their daughter, Nona May, to John J. Cassidy of this city. The wedding is to take place early in June.

Mrs. August Rothe of No. 1036 South Burlington avenue entertained on Friday afternoon in honor of her sister, the bride-elect. The hostess was assisted in receiving by her mother, Mrs. Bell, and her sisters, Katherine, Nona and Maude Bell. The home was beautifully decorated with hearts and flowers, the color scheme being red and green.

Prizes were awarded to the Misses Frances Molony, Hermaline Marmont and Louise Ganahl. At the conclusion of the game, dainty refreshments were served by Reynolds.

Besides those already mentioned, the guests included Mmes. E. R. Wolcott, J. G. Donovan, John Luckenbach, S. M. Slocum, M. J. McGarry, A. J. Stiles, William P. O'Meara, E. E. Rothe, R. L. Bell, Jr., D. F. McGarry, Frank Miller, and the Misses O'Mera of Salt Lake City, Delia Fahey, Nell and Frances Barrere, M. Currier, Nettie and Florence Ganahl, Mary McGarry, Margaret Molony, Lizzie Klinkhammer, Katherine Small and Therese Durnerin.

MOTORMAN THREATENED.

Attempts to Drive Car Through Ranks of Visiting Shriners, Recklessly Endangering Lives.

As one of the Shrine Temples arrived last night and was escorted from the depot to its hotel, car No. 221 of the San Pedro street division endeavored to pass through the ranks at Fifth and Main streets. That several of the Shriners were not knocked down and crushed beneath the car was no fault of the motorman, who recklessly turned on the current.

Pandemonium reigned for a minute. Indignant men thronged around the car and threatened to mob the motorman, who appeared to be in a very ugly mood. Finally the crowd forced him to back the car, and the procession passed on without further interruption. The motorman had no excuse to offer for his conduct.

CHANGES IN DIOCESE.

Bishop Conaty Announces Appointments to Various Churches and Successor to Late Padre Ubach.

Considerable interest has been manifested in Catholic circles as to who would be selected by Bishop Conaty to fill the position of pastor to the Church of St. Joseph at San Diego, made vacant by the recent death of the venerable Padre Ubach.

Bishop Conaty yesterday made his announcement of various changes in the diocese of Monterey and Los Angeles, and the first of these is the appointment of Rev. Bernard Smyth of Hollister as rector of the San Diego church.

For the past eighteen years Father Smyth has served as rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart, Hollister. At one time he served as an assistant priest at the Church of Our Lady of Angeles in this city, and in 1887 he took charge of the old Mission San Gabriel, while the venerable Padre Bott revisited his native land, Spain.

Father Smyth has held the responsible position as one of the councillors of the diocese. He uses the Spanish as well as the English and also is familiar with the Portuguese language. His wide experience will be of especial service to him in the San Diego parish, where men from all nations find their way into port and seek the services of the church.

SUFFRAGE RECEPTION.

A reception will be tendered the new officers of the Los Angeles City Suffrage League at the Woman's clubhouse at 2:30 on Monday afternoon. Miss Fannie Wills is chairman of the Reception Committee, and Mrs. Lulu P. Little, president of the county league, and Madame Severance, have been invited to assist the officers in receiving. The new officers are: President, Mrs. J. D. Ruddy; vice-president, Mrs. Julia Phelps; secretary, Mrs. L. A. Robinson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. E. Farrish; treasurer, Mrs. C. A. Moody.

HAWAIIAN SERENADE.

The Hawaiian Double Quartette, that came over on the Ohio some weeks ago and is now singing in the Venice Ship Hotel, came up to the city to join in the greeting to the Honolulu Shriners last night, and after accompanying their countrymen to their hotel, complimented The Times by singing a number of selections in the business office.

POOR FRUIT CUTS ORANGE FIGURES.

LOS ANGELES, May 4.—All varieties of oranges are lower than at this time last week. This is particularly true of all the auctions outside of New York City, where prices have held up very well. This reduction in values is no doubt caused mainly by the excess of decayed fruit arriving and the reports of heavy shipments from California during the past two weeks. Dealers are not disposed to stock up under such conditions and are only supplying immediate wants. Shipments during the past seven days have amounted to over 1200 cars of oranges, and though the markets can handle this amount of fruit, buyers are disposed to hold back.

The great difference shown in prices between different brands is really the difference between sound and decayed fruit. Oranges must be above suspicion to attract the best trade and to receive competing bids. Fruit that is soft and showing signs of rot is only taken by the cheaper trade, handcart men and street peddlers, who aim to dispose of it at once, for they know that two or three days would melt it down so that it would be worthless. Fruit that has been iced and that is not perfectly sound, rapidly goes to the bad when removed from the car. This is the reason why different cars, perhaps from the same orchard, show such a great range of prices.

The f. o. b. demand for oranges is rather slow and the situation is decidedly weaker. Fancy orchard run navels from Redlands and Riverside can be bought for $2.10 to $2.25 spot cash, with regular discounts on excess of over 20 per cent., 126s and an additional 10 per cent. on larger sizes. Seedlings and sweets seem to be holding their own better than navels and Riverside seedlings cost from $2.15 to $2.35 f. o. b. Extra choice sweets from Orange county are selling at $2.25 spot cash. Extra choice St. Michaels are offered at $2.35 spot cash and fancy orchard run at $2.50.

The lemon situation is stronger than ever and the demand is very active. It would seem as though all of the lemons now being offered could hardly be going into consumption and it must be that speculators are buying for the future. They are taking considerable chance when the present high price of lemons is considered.

California lemons are still very scarce and prices vary greatly, ranging from $3.25 to $3.50 for extra choice, and from $3.75 to $4.25 for fancy orchard run, with the well known brands from the best districts running as high as $4.25 to $4.50 f. o. b. for fancy grades.

RAILROADS ARE PLANTING EUCALYPTUS, WHY?

Necessity Drives Them for The First Time to Step Out of Ordinary Railroad Business and Grow Something.

The reason for railroads taking this extraordinary step is that the people are neglecting their opportunities in supplying the insistant demand for railroad ties and timber. The well nigh cyclonic denuding of the forests has gone to the point where the wise, far seeing railroad financiers have become alarmed and in turning about for some relief have found that California alone can furnish the relief required.

Eucalyptus trees will grow into ties, fence posts, bridge timbers, telegraph poles and lumber in five or six years. They have found that an acre of Eucalyptus will produce in these few years values in these products equal to $2000 to $3000 per acre, every 5 to 7 years and will grow again from the same stumps repeatedly without any outlay for cultivation or irrigation. The waste material will pay you for fuel alone, an amount equal to the first cost of the land, and the leaves and twigs are worth $2.00 a ton on the ground at cutting time and yield 30 to 40 tons to the acre, and the leaves alone will pay 6 per cent. on the investment of $200 per acre.

What is good enough for these railroads to do is certainly safe as investment for all.

We found that we could plant and care for a grove (two years) and sell it to the public at a small profit for $200 per acre and secured a fine 200 acre tract and planted it to Eucalyptus trees and have sold two-thirds of it in 5-acre tracts and upward to investors who were long headed enough to grasp its advantages.

We sell on easy terms, one-third cash, balance on or before one, two or three years at 6 per cent. interest. A five-acre tract is better protection to your family than a $10,000 life insurance policy and costs about one-fifth as much and is a perpetual stable source of income.

The land is only 35 minutes from the city. We will show you the planted land at our expense. No man with an income of $75.00 per month can afford to be without this "anchor to windward" for the future.

Save a little money now and put it into a growing grove of trees that will grow as your children grow, that will educate them, start them in life, and after doing all this will take care of your old age in comfort and independence. Five acres means a certain barring of the door from the wolf. Ten acres means comfort. Fifteen acres means comfort and a chance to help others. Twenty acres means ease. Forty acres means luxury. Call and see us and investigate facts and figures.

The Secret of Suit Selling Cutting Out Profits

My entire new summer stock, from my new tailor, is on display. The best I ever saw for the price. My $10 Suits equal anything in town for $12.50 and $15; and at $15 I am selling a better suit than you can buy elsewhere for $20.

I can do this because I am under contract to handle the entire output of this tailor. I can buy them for less than usual prices because the maker has no selling expense—no heavy salaries or expenses for traveling salesmen, no middleman's profits to add—he ships the suits direct to me as soon as they are ready.

That's Why I Can Sell for Less

I made this contract with this tailor because he turns out just about as fine suits as you can find anywhere, when it comes to style and workmanship, he is a top-notcher—and the fabrics and trimmings are selected by me—I know just what goes into every suit—and I know they are much better in every detail than the regular factory-made suit, which are offered to you at about $5.00 more than I am asking for this carefully made line.

SUMMER SUITS HAND TAILORED $10

Herington's $10 suits are certainly adding scores of friends to my big list. The growing demand shows that they are "making good." When I tell you that they are equal to any $12.50 or $15.00 suit in this town, I stand ready to prove it by comparison—style, fit, material, tailoring and wear. I make it a point to see that every detail is right before they are offered to my customers—if they are not, back they go to the tailor shop.

NOBBY SUITS SUMMER LEADERS $15

This is the usual $20 suit—and good value at that. The $5.00 per suit saved to you represents the middleman's profits and the selling expense, which you don't have to pay at my store. These are the snappiest styles of the season—they reflect brain work, expert tailoring, and quality in every inch. No limit to your choice of fabrics, shades, or designs.

BIG DEAL AT SANTA MONICA.

Dickenson & Dezendorf have sold for the Alta Santa Monica Realty Company a lot on the front portion of the Palisades at Santa Monica, immediately adjoining that recently purchased by Mr. Blicke. The lot is 100x225 feet in size, and was bought for the reported consideration of $10,000, Emma Markham being named as the purchaser. Mrs. Markham is said to be planning the erection of a magnificent residence, to cost about $1[illegible].

IN SUBURBAN TOWNS.

Considerable Activity in Ranch Property Among Outlying Burgs—Outlook Good for Summer.

J. W. Keiser, a local merchant, has sold his home place with a fine eleven-acre orange grove, near Lordsburg, to S. J. Wing of Ohio; stated consideration, $12,000 cash; the deal being consummated by the A. J. Williams Realty Company. Mr. Wing buys for a home, and Mr. Keiser will devote his entire attention to his business.

C. F. Frase has sold his La Verne ranch to Hervey Williams, recently from Colorado, stated consideration $7000. This property consists of seven acres in young orange trees, the balance unimproved. The deal was consummated by the Short Bros. Realty Company. Mr. Frase and his family will move to the "Silvia" ranch at North Pomona.

T. B. Fredendall of Pomona has sold his thirteen-acre orange grove in La Verne to I. M. Glover of Los Angeles; consideration, $15,600 cash. Mr. Glover will erect a handsome residence on the place and make his home here.

Mrs. S. Snyder has sold her ten-acre tract, two miles south of Glendora, set solid to Washington navel and Valencia oranges, to Mr. Buller of Covina, for a home; consideration stated, $11,000. The Glendora Real Estate Exchange negotiated the sale.

George Gritmann has sold, through Weaver & Miller, his five-acre berry and orange orchard, within a mile of Glendora, improved with a modern seven-room house, close in, to J. S. Hughes of Montana for a home; consideration given, $4000.

John Miller has sold his fine fifteen-acre orange grove on Mountain avenue, north of San Bernardino avenue, Pomona, to Allen & Anderson, the consideration being $15,000, Mr. Miller reserving the crop. This is a good income-bearing navel grove. The deal was made through the J. A. Fitch agency.

Oscar C. Dundas has sold his fourteen-acre stock and grain ranch on Phillips boulevard, near Pomona, through Ira L. Niebel, to a Los Angeles purchaser, the reported consideration being $5000.

ROADWAY UP MT. WASHINGTON.

Hundred and Thirty-five Thousand Expended on Fine Auto Drive to Heights.

Much work has been completed in putting in order the land known as Mt. Washington, located on the heights of land northeast of the city.

About $135,000 has been expended in making a roadway, which, as it is now, cannot be surpassed for picturesqueness by many engineering works in Southern California. The road begins at the foot of what formerly was known as Avenue 41, but has been changed to Mt. Washington Drive, by a petition to the Council, and winds about the steeply sloping sides of the foothills and cañons, the entire section being cut up into many picturesque nooks and corners by that master of landscape gardeners, Dame Nature, herself. The road is an ideal drive for a short automobile trip, the entire way being oil tamped roadway on a 4 or 5 per cent. grade, great cuts having been made to reduce the climb, one piece of grading alone requiring the removal of 20,000 cubic yards of rock and earth. The entire work required the movement of 500,000 cubic yards of material. The work is not yet completed, several great cuts being in process of construction at the present time. Surveys have been made for a car line, which will connect with the Garvanza line of the Los Angeles Railway, and will reach the farthest portion of the property. The land company estimates that the cost of building the car line, a distance of probably three miles, will reach above $75,000. This work will be begun at once, according to statements made by Robert Marsh, and the line probably will be in operation within seven months.

Water has been secured on the property in sufficient quantities to settle the question of supply. This will be elevated to the highest point on the property, being stored in a 400,000-gallon reservoir, which has been constructed. This reservoir has been completed with the exception of cementing.

NEW IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.

The completion of a new corporation, known as the King Land and Improvement Company, was made on April 20, incorporated under the laws of the State of California for $100,000 capital stock, of which 85 per cent. has been subscribed.

This company was incorporated for the purpose of buying 260 acres of land on the Los Angeles and Redondo Railroad, for subdivision purposes, and have already started the laying out of their tract in quarter-acre lots, which will be improved by water, gas, cement curbing and sidewalks, and artistic shade trees.

The officers of the company are: W. J. King, president; Dr. George W. Burleigh, vice-president; Charles Kern, secretary; Louis Luckel, treasurer.

The property will be handled by the Los Angeles Company, of which Mr. King is president and general manager.

BEAUTIFUL SOUTH PASADENA HOME.

R. D. LIST OWNS IDEAL PLACE NEAR OSTRICH FARM.

Two and a Half Acres in Roses, Palms, Pines and Live Oaks—Cool, Shady Glen in Rear a Feature—A Show Place of the Southland, Near Los Angeles.

Among all the beautiful homes of Southern California it is hard to find one which will surpass that of R. D. List in South Pasadena, near the Cawston Ostrich farm. Located on a slightly elevated heighth of land, with a protecting hill to one side, this home is a beautiful creation of man's handiwork and nature's craft. The dwelling is a two-story affair, of a pleasing style of architecture, finished in a well-selected color, and stands in about the center of two and one-half acres of land, which is a mass of greenery and blossoms.

Mr. List is a great lover of California's beautiful blooms, and has almost every known variety of rose, climbing plant, and native tree on the place. There are also numerous exotics, brought from various climes, which are growing luxuriantly. Several illustrations of the house and grounds appear on this page, and give a faint idea of the beauty of the surroundings.

One of the prides of Mr. List's heart is a Cherokee rose hedge, 500 feet in length, which a blaze of white blossoms for several months in the spring. The rose garden, to the east of the house, is a marvel. About the tennis court, in the rear of the dwelling, there are numerous climbing roses, and other plants, which keep the place in a blaze of bloom almost the year round.

The feature of the place is the glen in the rear. This occupies fully half an acre, and is a natural retreat, decorated mainly by Dame Nature's prodigal hand, with great live oaks, creeping woodbine, and graceful ferns.

ACTIVITY IN THE SOUTHWEST.

George P. Taylor has purchased of Mrs. N. J. Smith the property at No. 2293 West Twenty-second street, lot 50x150 feet to an alley, and improved with a two-story, seven-room dwelling, for the reported consideration of $6500. The sale was made through the agency of George J. Cote. The same agent also reports the sale of the property at No. 1828 Arlington avenue, lot 50x171 feet, improved with a two-story, nine-room residence, to T. Shields Collins of Globe, Ariz., a wealthy mining man, who has selected Los Angeles as a home. Otto Hezencamp has sold to L. C. Crossman, through the same agency, a lot on the west side of Hope street, 150 feet north of Second street, lot 50x180 feet in size, for the reported consideration of $5500. The new owner proposes to improve the property with high-class apartments. The same agent also reports the sale of fourteen lots in Harry Jackins' Arlington Height Tract No. 2, fronting on Crenshaw Boulevard, between Washington and Sixteenth streets, for a total consideration aggregating $14,000.

AMONG BUILDERS AND ARCHITECTS.

GREAT TOTAL OF BUILDING REPORT FOR APRIL.

Nearly Million and Half in New Structures Last Month—A Few Comparisons Showing Slight Loss. Classified Report—Architects Predict Busy Summer—Other Details.

No doubt the continued growth and prosperity of the city of Los Angeles can be left in the minds of any after a careful study of the report of the department of buildings for the month of April, just ended. With a total of $1,451,652, divided among 709 building permits, all arguments to the contrary are refuted beyond a doubt.

There has been a certain slackening in building activity, it is true, but that fact is no more evident in this particular city, than in the entire stretch of the Eastern States. Everywhere in the United States building activity has fallen off to a certain extent, after the hustling year of 1906, a year which has never been equalled in the past and may never be in the future. It was a year of unparalleled activity in all lines of endeavor, and it is but natural that a lull should come as the pace was much too fast to be maintained. Here in Los Angeles, the building activity was far above the wildest hopes of the most sanguine of the city's inhabitants. Last April the building activity reached the enormous total of $2,002,351, that great valuation being divided among 838 permits to build. Compared with April, 1907, the difference reaches in permits the number of 127, and in valuation, of 550,699, which, stated in percentages, shows a loss in valuation of 27.4 per cent., and in the number of permits issued of 15.19 per cent. April last year, was the third largest month of the year, being surpassed only by March, with 927 permits and a valuation of $2,165,307, and June, which outstripped March with a valuation of $2,371,620, among permits numbering 766. With the exception of July and August, 1906, April, 1907, reached above all other last year records. When compared with April, 1905, also a very large month, only surpassed by March of the same year, in fact the largest record reached during 1905, the figures show falling off of only 13.89 per cent., the figures for that month being $1,685,983, with permits to the number of 806.

The classified report of the building operations for April, this year, follows:

	No. permits.	Valuation
Class A, reinforced concrete	2	$500,000
Class C	16	117,988
Class D, 1 story	287	316,028
Class D, 1½ story	35	74,285
Class D, 2 stories	51	248,854
Class D, 2½ stories	1	10,000

BIG PASADENA SALE.

Corner on Colorado and Marengo Avenues in Crown City Brings Seventy-five Thousand.

Ernest H. Lockwood has sold for Thum Brothers the southwest corner of Colorado street and Marengo avenue to J. B. Coulston. The consideration is given as $75,000. This is one of the most important real estate deals that has been put through in some time in the Crown City. The site is one of the most valuable business locations in the city, and will be occupied by the Crown City Bank as soon as the building can be suitably remodeled.

PART OF WARNER'S RANCH SOLD.

H. E. Huntington Said to Have Secured Large Holdings Near San Diego.

A deed filed last week shows the transfer of 32,354 acres in Warner's ranch, sixty miles east of San Diego, by J. Downey Harvey of San Francisco and others to Harry Greenowalt for $10 an acre, or a total of $323,540. Fifty-five thousand dollars is the amount of the first payment, the balance running for ten years. It is reported here that Greenowalt acted as an agent of H. E. Huntington in the transaction.

TWO LARGE BEACH DEALS.

Hundred Sixty Acres of Land Near Hermosa Sold to Local Syndicate.

Dr. W. H. Jeffers conveys to the Los Angeles Securities Company the Carnation Heights subdivision for the reported consideration of $27,000. This is a tract of ocean view land comprising eighty acres, lying immediately back of Hermosa and Manhattan beaches. The sale was made through Orrin Rice.

Dr. Q. J. Rowley conveys to the same company eighty acres just north of Hermosa Beach for $19,500. These properties will be placed on the market, along with the other large holdings of the Los Angeles Securities Company at Hermosa and Redondo.

E. Avery McCarthy, of the McCarthy Company, has just returned from a three months' trip to Japan, by way of Honolulu, and in looking over the realty situation in Los Angeles, says he is very much pleased with the outlook and prospect. In his travels everybody was more or less interested in Los Angeles and in California, and had many questions to ask, and many through passengers from the Orient to New York and Europe were making it a point to take the southern route that they might stop over in Los Angeles. In part, Mr. McCarthy said to a reporter of The Times:

"One has only to be away from Los Angeles a few short months to appreciate, upon returning, the enormous growth. Buildings that seem scarcely to have had the foundations commenced three months ago are piling up into the air and nearly finished, and some actually finished at the present time.

"Los Angeles and the Pacific Coast is enjoying, and will continue to enjoy a large part of the interest of thinking people all over the country, and the coming year should be a record-breaker for new people of both the tourist class and the class who come to look and remain to stay."

ACTIVITY AT EAGLE ROCK.

Eagle Rock is taking another step forward in the boulevarding of Central avenue from Artesian Heights to Hill avenue, according to reports received from Edwards & Winters, the agents. Many fine streets are now under construction in the valley, and are said to be attracting much attention. Edwards & Winters Co. report many sales in Eagle Rock, both for investment and improvement. Among them are the following: To W. E. Werden, two lots in Las Flores, being 120x175 feet on Acacia street; consideration $1800, bought for improvement. To Mark R. Jacobs, the southwest corner of Rowland and Hill avenues, 63x113 feet; price $1200. To M. S. Leonard, the southwest corner of Central and Hill avenues, 67x140 feet; price $1250. To C. R. Taylor, two lots in the Central tract, 120x117 feet; consideration $1800. To Clara S. Ellis, the northwest corner of Townsend avenue and Stanley street, 50x125 feet; $900. To M. R. Jacobs, a lot, 138x135 feet; price $1000. To C. J. Hughes, a lot on Virginia avenue, 50x125 feet; consideration $600. To Dora B. Ramsdell, a lot in Kenilworth Tract, 50x165 feet; price $750. To Virginia Yates, one lot in Kenilworth Tract, 50x165 feet; price $750.

BUYS LA VERNE RANCH.

J. B. Treadendall has sold to I. N. Glover the property known as the old C. P. Chin Place, located at about the center of the fertile La Verne District, for the reported consideration of $16,000. The property consists of a thirteen and one-half-acre grove of fifteen-year-old Washington Navels improved with a substantial five-room dwelling, all the necessary buildings, etc. The sale was made by the W. T. Michael & Son Real Estate Company. The same agency also reports that they have recently completed sales of La Verne and San Dimas ranches and orange groves totalling fully $450,000.

CITY'S INDUSTRIA SECTION GRO

ENOMOUS AREA NOW UT BY MANUFACTORIES.

Section, Bounded by River, T San Pedro and Aliso Streets, of Industrial Es Amazing Growth and Co Activity Apparent.

It has oft been the cry of the ity howler that Los Angeles was absolutely without resources in the ture of a manufacturing and center, and that should our valued and much vaunted travel cease to flow toward the of the Angels, this would be without a soul. Those persons take a ride through the manu ing and industrial section of Los geles to be convinced of the ful amount of manufacturing carried on here, for both local eign trade.

Roughly speaking, the industri tion comprises that era of the bounded by the river on the Twelfth street on the south, avenue, or perhaps San Pedro on the west, and Aliso street north. This is by no means a boundary line, as many import dustries are located far from particular zone, but the majo businesses of a manufacturing are located within the territory nated.

From the mouths of almost able smokestacks the black the cheap oil fuel, one of the of the local manufacturer, forth, while dozens of cough engines lend their sharp accents roar of the whirling wheels, various factories. Here is a there a saw mill. A rock crus a lime grinder stand side by little way apart stands a great ing-house, one of the largest, conducted, on the Pacific Coast.

Great lumber yards and plan lay to the south, car shops hundreds of mechanics are west, strings of freight cars are loaded, or unloaded, on the tracks, while electric freight switch into sidings with loads of terial.

In the course of a half-hour tablishments where organs, tile, brick, tinware, soap, of all descriptions, from farm ments of high-grade mining appl were made. Three great meat plants, which can compare in the United States, were seen. al oil refineries and a stove tury also were noticed. Fruit and packing fruits, were in the while sash and door, and build terial establishments, crowded other for breathing room.

Everything was running full bespeaking well the solid basis prosperity and continued growth this work is not alone being for Los Angeles. Shipments are made to all parts of the the newly opened mineral fields vada, Arizona, California and demanding an almost unlimi ply of building and mining

The total valuation of our manufacturers and native ma ucts is hard to estimate, but be placed conservatively twenty million dollars an

FROM IBSEN TO COMEDY.

Alla Nazimova stepped aside the intellectual gloom of Ibsen last night at the Bijou in York to appear in the most ten- humorous and graciously bril- comedy of the modern school in perhaps in any country, and she off with high honor. Roberto 's "Infidele" has been acted in leading countries of the conti- and Mme. Nazimova herself, it is has played the part of Nina, the in Russian. That it has waited to be done in English is one many wonders and disgraces stage. It deals, it is true, with eternal marital triangle; but ex- the title, which is deliciously there is no trace of infidelity The English title "Comtesse was in fact the falsest fea- last night's performance. First that this wife is natively and true; and, though nor- of masculine attention, is all coquettish in any real the word. She has made it with her husband that there no jealousy on either side. each other, they are to grant liberty unchallenged. At evidence of suspicion, she she is free to give his cause. The crisis comes with of the action. Gino, the is jealous of Silvio. Silvio, baffled by Nina's essential loyalty, which he finds always confronting him beneath her exterior light-hearted liberty challenges her to make a test of her resistance by coming to his bachelor rooms. Piqued by her husband's jealousy, she agrees to the duel of gallantry. The second act finds her in Silvio's quarters. His serene expectation meets a very comical check in her calm and matter-of-fact self-assurance. "Tempt me," she says, and there is no temptation. Then her husband is announced. Silvio attempts to play the part of Scarpia to her Tosca. He makes it a condition of her escape through a secret passage that she pay the toll of a kiss. With true womanly indignation, she refuses, and has her husband admitted. A duel is imminent, but her skill and good sense prevail. She goes back to her husband's house and lives with him a life of outward convention, though in secret estranged from him. The last of the three short acts shows the triumph of truth and good sense, and the rout of the pretending lover. As sound in its central idea as it is original the play is constructed and written with the utmost delicacy of wit and fineness of feeling. Every mood of Nina's character, every phase of the development, is traced with consummate clarity in strokes as delicate and as fresh as the petals of a rose. And the humor is as broad as it is fine.

The Drama---Players, Playhouses, Gossip of the Stage.

TOPICS OF THE STAGE.

History has been made in local theatrical circles this week. That autocrat of the wings, the stagehand, has been overthrown.

The conqueror is Papinta.

Usually, actor-people are very polite to the stagehand. They have to be. The scene-mechanic always holds something or other that means success or a swift finish. Very dreadful things have often happened to high-minded actresses who have been indiscreetly naughty to the poor inartistic fellow in overalls. A spotlight mysteriously extinguished; a curtain in the wrong place; a noise in a scene of "emotional quiet"—these are only a few of the laughable, but perfectly accidental, occurrences that might happen to anybody.

However, Papinta banishes every one of them, and so solves the difficulty. There is no single helper left to wreak vengeance for his kind. Papinta carries her own crew.

When the clock approaches the fateful hour in the vaudeville bill, the big iron doors of the stage are closed, and all the local Orpheum folks migrate with alacrity. Paulsen, the stage manager, alone remains. Any act that would drive Paulsen away wouldn't be admitted. He has been the productive genius of Los Angeles vaudeville too long to be barred by any spectacular person—or by any one else, for that matter.

The secret of it is that Papinta is afraid of spies. She is as terrified at a curious pair of eyes as is a Russian official at the sight of an unkempt, whiskered man carrying a mysterious package. Her effects are her own, and the possible copying of them is the bugbear of her life.

Her contract, formidably sealed and signed by the heads of the circuit, imperatively orders every individual off the stage while her act is going on. Sometimes ignoramuses are admitted by Papinta herself. If an applicant looks perfectly incompetent to understand anything, he has a possible chance—provided his basic reason is good enough—to watch her act on the real side of the footlights.

She began all this here in Los Angeles, years ago. She is a Los Angeles woman, and when off the stage she lives on a big, rambling farm in the middle part of this State.

Her very first dances were worked out on the stage of the old Orpheum on Main street, now returned in melodrama to its original name, the Grand Opera House.

Her husband, who has since died, worked for months in the patient creation of her original specialty. This has made her rich and famous, and all her dances, no matter what their variations, have been modeled upon it.

Her volcano dance is probably the most brilliant creation in spectacular dancing. Veritable billows of fire seem to rise from the chameleon-like crater set in the vivid trap, while Papinta, lithe and muscular, writhes under her hundred-yard draperies like a tortured feminine salamander. Her French mirrors, reflecting in a score of diversions the dancer's startling poses, set the stage fairly in a blaze of frightening flame.

Yet four arc lamps, a variety of colored slides and a quartette of prosaic electricians create all this kaleidoscopic riot, this veritable conglomeration on an electric palette.

Like many another work of art, it's not in the materials; it's in the way they're used—and in the temperamental genius and physical strength of Papinta.

Away up on each side of the stage is a single spotlight. The majority of the color effects come up from below.

"Nice weather today, barring a little fog," nonchalantly says one of these human Vulcans to another, as he slides in a crimson shade and starts the gorgeous chaos before a thousand pairs of eyes.

"Yep, fine!" answers his comrade, pouring a great glow of lava-light to the very proscenium. "Ever been over to Catalíny? That's a fine place. Them glass-bottom boats give you an exhibit that's the greatest ever."

"Well, maybe it is"—Papinta falls into the very vortex of a mad panic in gold and violet—"but these daily 'mats' get a fellow out o' bed before he's up. Some day I—— Holy smoke! It's twenty-three for that screw now, sure; this is the third time in three days that I've cut myself on it."

And Papinta, meanwhile, says she's thinking most of a herd of spotted cattle of her own raising, that placidly await her coming on her ranch. There's only another two weeks or so of palpitating dances and fiery impersonation. After 'Frisco she's through for the summer, and then to the farmhouse and the dairy.

Papinta (This is true!) can make fine butter and is a champion cook. She is a successful chicken raiser, and knows when to plant early potatoes and green onions. She had an ardent debate the other day with a man who offered her a splendid new variety of white beets. She says that from long experience she prefers red ones, as far as the growing is concerned.

That and another slap on the wrist for people who think that Papinta, clear down to her very soul, is merely an emotional interrogation point!

And it's the farm for all summer. Papinta vows not to feel a pavement, hear a trolley car or see a theatrical poster from June to September.

But then——

"I'm going to Germany," says the brilliant little dancer. I've traveled all over the United States several times, and I've also appeared in London, meeting there with a great deal of success.

"I've been waiting several years for my opening on the continent. I waited until they should hear me, and ask me. I didn't want to go to them, unknown and unheralded. I want to make a conquest there—just as I have done in my own country.

"But don't forget—it's always back to California for me when the work is done. I may work the world around, but there's only one place to live to rest, to enjoy life. That is here."

PAPINTA,
whose life-terror is the copying of her act by some other professional. By a stipulation in her contract, iron doors bar out all stage hands save her own, while her dance is on.

CUSTODIAN OF THE "MOON"
THE REGULAR "STUGES" ARE NOT ALLOWED ON THE STAGE DURING THE ACT...!

THE LOCAL WEEK.

Walker Whiteside, a young actor who has played for a number of years in the East and South, will make his first stellar appearance in the West here, tomorrow night, at the Mason Operahouse. His play is a new one, called "The Magic Melody."

His coming is notable for the number of Los Angeles favorites he will bring with him in his company. His leading woman is May Buckley, very well known to hundreds of local theater patrons. Howard Gould, a sterling actor, not long ago leading man of the Burbank Company, is also in the cast. Leslie Kenyon, first brought here by Richard Mansfield, and appearing at the Mason just a few months ago in the support of William H. Crane, is also in the company.

In "The Magic Melody" Mr. Whitesides appears as a young German violinist. The play has been well spoken of by many critics along Mr. Whitesides's route to Southern California.

"Before and After," a new farce by Leo Dietrichstein, who wrote "Are You a Mason?" will be the Fiesta week offering of the Belasco Company. If one may credit the New York reviewers who saw its first performance, just three weeks ago at the New York Astor Theater, the piece is a joyous affair. It will serve Wednesday and Thursday nights as the entertainment offering before the Imperial Conclave of the Shrine.

Lewis Stone will have the principal man's part, and Lillian Albertson will head the feminine contingent.

Following "Before and After," the Belasco Company will revive "A Royal Family."

The big revival of "Robin Hood," by the new "Californians" Company, at the Auditorium, will continue for another week.

As might have been expected, Miss Blanche Hall's personal hit in "When Knighthood Was In Flower" has made a second week of this play at the Burbank imperative

The four Harveys—two men and two women—form a quartette of slack-wire performers who are declared unusually clever. They head the Orpheum programme for the coming week.

Bessie Wyn, a noted stage beauty, who made her bow to popularity with the original cast of "Babes in Toyland," has some new songs and a variety of handsome costumes. Harry Linton and Anita Lawrence will offer a comedy entitled "An Auto Elopement"—allegedly humorous. The Rialto comedy four will present a musical act staccatoed with jokes.

The holdovers are Papinta, Louise Agoust, Cartmell and Harris, and Morrow and Schellberg.

Kentucky furnishes the scene for this week's play at the Grand Operahouse. It is by Hal Reid, and is entitled "A Great Temptation." The action of the play takes place on the decks of a Mississippi steamboat, in the camp of the charcoal burners, and in one of the famous caves of the blue grass State. The principals include a "gentleman gambler," a pretty Southern girl, her father—an old man broken by the war and financial losses—and the steamboat captain, a villain of the Simon Legree type.

Dramagraphs.

Massenet's "Thais" has recently been produced in Rome by Amadeo Battistini, who gave it last year in St. Petersburg with Lina Cavalieri. Carmen Melis sang the title role.

Autograph letters from Charles Reade and Ristori, a bracelet worn by Laura Keene, rings that once belonged to Charlotte Cushman and Adelaide Neilson, and Sir Henry Irving's watch are among the articles to be sold at the Actors' Fair in New York next month.

Wilson Barrett's memory is to be perpetuated by a stained-glass window in a church near Glasgow, Scotland, which is to bear the last words from his play, "The Sign of the Cross," "Oh, come to the light beyond."

Camille Chevillard has resigned his position as conductor of the Lamoureux Orchestra in Paris. It is hinted that he entertains hope of a call from the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Robert Edeson will close his third season in "Strongheart" the latter part of this month, preparatory to his London appearance in the De Mille play, which event is to be accomplished at the Aldwych Theater in May.

Smetana's "Die Verkaufte Braut," which has not yet been heard in America, has just been sung with great success in Brussels at the Théatre de la Monnaie. It is called "La Fiancée Vendue" in French.

Abbé Gross, one of the monks of St. Bernard, has recently written both the words and music to an opera called "Le Bon Vieux Valais," which depicts the life and customs of the dwellers in the canton of Valais.

Fay Templeton has announced that she will retire from the stage at the close of her present season. She would have retired at the time of her marriage last summer had it not been that her contract with Klaw & Erlanger had another year to run.

It has been decided that the title of the new play by Charles Klein, which Charles Dillingham is to produce, will be "The Stepchild." Among the players already engaged are Chrystal Herne, John Finley, Grace Filkins and William Sampson.

Langdon Mitchell, the author of "The New York Idea," is at work on a new play which will be produced by Harrison Grey Fiske next season. In addition, Mr. Mitchell is under agreement to complete a serious play for Mrs. Fiske, which will be brought out by her a year from next autumn.

Kohl & Castle have offered William Gillette $3000 a week for a season of thirty weeks commencing next fall, and it is said he is seriously considering the proposition. Mr. Gillette broke into vaudeville during the last winter in "The Red Owl," a one-act play produced by him at the Majestic Theater. From Chicago the play was taken on the road and has met with success.

Down at Ronkonkoma, R. I., Maude Adams, the actress, maintains a small farm. If it were not for the fact that she is "the best piece of theatrical property in the world," she would devote her entire time to the life of a farmer. What time she can spare from acting, she spends on the farm and makes a business of selling pigs and poultry. She loves privacy, and the many St. Bernards she has on her place are kept as much to ward off camera fiends as for pets.

Among the novelties and revivals promised for the coming Covent Garden season are Mascagni's "Iris," Catalani's "Loreley," Giordano's "Andrea Chenier" and "Fedora," Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" and Verdi's "Otello." Nicolai's "Die Lustigen Weiber von Windsor" and Humperdinck's "Hansel und Gretel" are also on the list. The season will open with two "Ring" cycles, to be given under Bayreuth conditions (dinner after the first act,) and with Hans Richter as conductor.

"Noah's Ark," a musical extravaganza, of which both book and music are the work of Claire Kummer, composer of "Dearie," is scheduled for production this month. Harry Bulger will play the leading comedy role and Sallie Fisher will be the prima donna. Others in the cast will be Hattie Arnold, Maida Snyder, William Murphy and Edwin Lawrence.

Negotiations are in progress between the Kohl-Castle circuit and Jefferson de Angelis for the early appearance of that comic-opera star at the Majestic and other theaters of this company. Mr. De Angelis has just closed his season at New Orleans, where he finished playing "The Girl and the Governor," a composition that has not scored a marked success.

"The Great Question" is the title finally decided upon for Virginia Harned's American production of the Parisian play "Anna Karenini," based upon the Tolstoi novel. This change in name has been made to protect the copyright, as the piece is expected to duplicate its French success in this country. Miss Harned made her first metropolitan appearance in the play at the Majestic Theater, Boston, last Monday night.

"The Great Conspiracy," in which John Hare has met with approval in London, is an adaptation by Madeline Lucette Ryley from Pierre Berton's "La Belle Marseilles," in which Virginia Harned failed in America last season. Hare plays the part of Napoleon and Irene Van Brugh, who is still remembered here because of her brilliant performance of Sophie Fullgarney in "The Gay Lord Quex," is once again his leading woman.

John Cort has secured the American rights to "The Stronger Sex," a new play by John Valentine, now being given at the Apollo Theater, London. The production will be made early next fall and it is not unlikely that Maude Fealy will be the star, although her success in "The Illusions of Beatrice" has been such this season that she may continue in it for another year, in which event Mr. Cort will engage another actress to interpret the leading role in the new play.

As an illustration of the thoroughness with which Arthur Wing Pinero works out the technique of his plays, Cairns James tells that during a final rehearsal in a London theater one of the actors complained that he could not get round the stage in the time allowed him. "O, yes, you can," said Mr. Pinero; "try again." The actor tried again and failed. "Then," said Mr. Pinero, "your scenery must be out of place." The manager protested it was not, but the dramatist produced a foot rule and found it was.

The announcement is made by the Shuberts that Ermete Novelli, the Italian actor, who closed his American season at the Lyric Theater, New York, a week ago, will return to this country next November and remain for a period of fifteen weeks. His tour will extend from New York to New Orleans, thence to the City of Mexico and the South American cities. Four weeks will be spent in New York, and the remainder of the time will be devoted to Boston, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis. During his late engagement in Gotham, which was twice extended because of his success, Novelli appeared in seventeen plays out of the 107 which are said to be in his repertory. While his conception of certain Shakespearean characters was questioned, his marvelous versatility was warmly commended, and his engagement next season will be of more than passing interest.

Richard Strauss's "Salome," which fell under the ban of the directors of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company, and which was withdrawn after Mr. Conreid had given a single performance of the opera at the Metropolitan a few weeks ago, is to be given in New York next season, but not in the Metropolitan. Mr. Conried is negotiating with Klaw & Erlanger for the presentation of the opera for at least ten performances in one of their theaters. The New Amsterdam and the Broadway both are being considered, but it is more likely the latter will be selected. It has been decided by Mr. Conried to modify the scene which proved objectionable to the directors of the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate Company, so that the head of John the Baptist will not be on view, save for a few seconds, when it is lifted out of the pit. Miss Olive Fremstad will again sing the title role, which she created in America. Mr. Conried has contended ever since the opera was stopped that with the proper modifications it could and should be produced in New York, and it has been positively settled that this will be done soon after the opening of next season.

BLANCHE AUBERT,
as Maid Marian, in the Auditorium's "Robin Hood." Miss Aubert has been one of the most pronounced beauty-successes of the present season.

The Musical World.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

Not since the notorious affair of the elopement of the Princess Chimay with the gypsy Rigi, writes the European correspondent of The Times, has Austrian society enjoyed such a choice morsel of gossip as in the latest romantic marriage of the young and beautiful Hungarian Countess Vilma Festetics, with the gypsy violinist, Rudi Nyari. Few families are better known among the Viennose aristocracy than the Festetics, and one of the members, Count Tassilo Festetics, is an intimate friend of King Edward. Countess Vilma's escapade recalls, too, the sensational stories which were in circulation in court circles many years ago, over the friendship between her mother, a famous beauty of the time, and the late Crown Prince Rudolph.

Countess Vilma, the gypsy's bride, is just 24, very pretty and very fascinating, too. Her father, Count Paul Festetics, lives in Budapest. He belongs to a very ancient and noble Hungarian family, but has little means himself. He has been separated from the Countess's mother for several years.

After spending most of her girlhood in the convent school of the Sacred Heart in Vienna, Countess Vilma went to Munich to complete her education, and it was in Munich, but, of course, later on, that the present romance began. The Countess became engaged to a distinguished Hungarian aristocrat and officer in the royal bodyguard, Count Sigmund Spretti. He had accompanied her on a visit to Munich, and while there took her one evening to a café chantant, where the music was furnished by a band of genuine Hungarian gypsies. It was an unfortunate evening for the Count, as his betrothed seems to have fallen violently in love at first sight with the leader of this band, Rudi Nyari, a young and very handsome gypsy, with prepossessing manners, which, combined with his good looks, had already captivated many of Munich's fair daughters. The Countess went to the concerts again and again, until she found a means of communicating with Rudi. Two rich young American girls often went with her, and they, too, fell in love with the gypsy conductor. Quarrels ensued between the three young women, and the Countess found another companion in a Russian Baroness to accompany her to the concerts. Her acquaintance with Rudi rapidly developed into warm affection, and when the orchestra returned to their home at Oedenburg, the Countess followed her lover. Oedenburg was once a very ancient Roman station, but today it is a dull Hungarian town. Upon arriving there the Countess took up her residence with Rudi's mother.

Meanwhile, Count Spretti had indignantly broken off his engagement, and the Festetics family were placed in full possession of the story. They, too, were furiously angry. Both father and mother, the latter having, also, heard of her daughter's mad infatuation, remonstrated, but in vain. Count Paul went much further, and threatened to immure his daughter in a convent until she came to her senses. But the lady proved willful, and obstinate, and opposition, as usual in such cases, only increased her determination to wed her gypsy lover. The Festetics people, at their wits' end, resorted to attempts at bribing the gypsy to relinquish his lady, offering him sums varying from four to five thousand dollars. At this game the young Countess proved more than a match for them, for she retorted by settling the greater part of her fortune, consisting of a magnificent mansion in Budapest, worth something like $60,000, on her lover, at the same time hastening the preparations for the wedding ceremony. And married they were on the 18th of March, before a Hungarian notary in Oedenburg. There they are living in a humble home, while Rudi is completing his plans for an extended tour abroad of his orchestra, which will take in the principal towns of the United States. The tour opens in Budapest next month.

People who have met Rudi say that although he may be only a gypsy violinist, he is a remarkably intelligent and even cultured man of extremely agreeable manners, and they are not so greatly surprised at the infatuation of the well-born Countess. He is the same age as his wife, of medium height, and very slender figure. His father and brother are both members of his orchestra. Rudi conducts and plays the violin at the same time. He is said to be an unusually talented player, especially of that peculiarly wild and even harsh Hungarian music.

Countess Vilma's mother was a Fraulein von Friebeis, and one of the most strikingly handsome women in the Austrian capital twenty-five years ago. Her name was constantly linked with that of the Crown Prince Rudolph, and so persistent and circumstantial were the stories told about the couple that the court finally took official cognizance of the affair, and the lady's name was erased from the list of the "hoffahige," that is, persons eligible to attend court functions. Her first husband was a stock broker and then she married Count Paul Festetics, but the union was not a particularly happy one. One of the last public appearances of the ill-fated Crown Prince was only four days before his death, when he was walking along the Ringstrasse, leading the tiny daughter of his old friend, who is now the gyspy countess.

Another romance in the Festetics family is connected with King Edward's friend, Count Tassilo Festetics, who is married to Lady Mary Douglas Hamilton, whose first husband was the Prince of Monaco. The latter obtained a decree from the Pope declaring the union null and void, and then dissolved the marriage by an ordinance of his own promulgation. Lady Mary, who was first married at 19, is said to be a very attractive and charming woman.

Musical News.

Mr. Sessions's final concert for the present season will be given at Christ Church on the evening of May 15. Four soloists will assist him. They are Bessie Bartlett, reader; Natorp Blumenfeld, violinist; Frederick Gunster, tenor, and Frank Colby, organist.

Miss Mollie Byerly Wilson, who has been the contralto of Immanuel Presbyterian Church for three years, has just left for a term of study in Germany. Miss Wilson is accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Alletta E. Wilson, and after visiting friends in the East they will sail for Berlin in August.

Mr. Behymer is preparing to leave for the East next month. He expects to spend some time in New York, contracting celebrated artists for his concert courses next year.

Lillian A. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Smith, returned to Los Angeles the past week after an absence of five years in Berlin, where she studied piano under the direction of the famous Leschetitzky.

By a new contract made with the Long Beach Bath-house Company, all of Vessella's afternoon concerts this summer, including even those of Sunday, will be given on the sands. Evening concerts, as before, will take place in the municipal auditorium.

Moore's band will give a programme of excellent music at Eastlake this afternoon, including a selection from Boito's "Mefistofele," the "Jubel" overture, Metra's "Valse Espagnole," and a brand-new topical number by Bellsted, entitled "The Los Angeles Pilgrimage."

Herbert's Grand Opera.

Victor Herbert, composer, conductor and 'cellist, who of late years has devoted his creative faculty principally to light opera, has signed a contract with Oscar Hammerstein to write a grand opera for production at the Manhattan Operahouse next season. It will be staged with elaborate effect and sung by leading members of Mr. Hammerstein's company. It is possible, moreover, that Mr. Herbert will personally conduct it.

In regard to this announcement Mr. Hammerstein made the following statement last week:

"I have always wished it to be understood that in founding this operahouse I had other aims than merely financial profits. I stated this on the occasion of my first night. And I adhere to it still. Fundamentally, my aims have been artistic, and will continue so.

"Now that my operahouse is launched and standing fair and square upon its own legs, I have determined to go a step or two forward. I have retained the rights already to produce 'novelties,' but I wanted to go further than that. I desire to tread the virgin fields of grand opera, and to discover something that is more novel than a novelty. I want to be an operatic Columbus.

"It is easy enough to pick up an opera that has been a success in Milan, has been indorsed by London, and is more or less certain to succeed. But it is not as easy to voyage the lyric seas on journeys of discovery.

"Well, the virgin field of grand opera to me seemed to be the United States of America. Englishmen such as Goring Thomas, Isidore de Lara-Cohen, Frederick Cowen and Sir Alexander MacKenzie have written operas, and those operas have been produced with every circumstance of advantage at Covent Garden. But no impresario ever thought of giving any altruistic encouragement to the American operatic composer. So I determined that I would.

"Certainly our American operatic composers never would set the operatic world on fire unless they first caught hold of a torch or were provided with a match. The Manhattan Operahouse is the torch and I have offered its resources to Victor Herbert, whose eminence as a composer and whose representativeness of America no one can deny.

"Mr. Herbert has listened to my proposal and I have signed a contract with him. He will compose. I will produce.

"The only difficulty in the way was the libretto. Mr. Herbert has often said he would have written a grand opera if only he could have got the libretto. The way to get a libretto is to ask for it and to pay for it.

"So I offer $1000 to the man, preferably an American, who will provide a suitable libretto for Victor Herbert. The chance is open to every one—to the whole American world universal."

Mr. Hammerstein wishes the libretto to be dramatic with tense action, easy for the audience to comprehend, and cites as a model that of Bizet's "Carmen." He will employ a professional reader to handle the librettos submitted to him.

He attended a performance of Belasco's "The Rose of the Rancho" a few evenings ago, having in mind that work as a possible plot for a grand opera, but would not say afterward what conclusion he had arrived at in regard to it. "The Girl of the Golden West" has also been suggested in case Puccini does not decide to use it.

When Mr. Herbert was interviewed in reference to his plans for the opera, he said:

"I should like to have an American subject and a background of American romance, though, contrary to what many suppose, the terms of Mr. Hammerstein's generous offer for the best libretto do not expressly stipulate an American subject. The preference is mentioned, but the hard and fast condition is not made.

"If the subject chosen be an American one, it is not absolutely necessary that the dramatis personae be either Indians or Puritans. Indians are not a suitable subject for an opera. The state of the Indians is pathetic, it is true, but in an opera they would not exactly strike the audience seriously.

"Suppose an Indian tenor taking a high C and then trilling on a D in order to touch the emotions of a sopranofied prima donna squaw! The taste and sense balk at such things. Real Puritans, too, are not the most promising material for lyric romance.

"I should like my opera to be such a genuine and such a successful work that it would go over all the world as the output of American brain and the inspiration of American surroundings.

"But an American atmosphere is not attained by pepper casting the score with themes from patriotic songs. I do repudiate absolutely the idea that an infusion of popular or folk songs reproduces the spiritual and intellectual or romantic atmosphere of the country to which those folk songs belong.

"The libretto which will satisfy me most is one in which there will be plenty of contrast, of diversified action, of strong character differentiation."—[Musical America.

James McCrea, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has planned a tramping trip through England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales that, he believes, will completely restore his failing health. The Mecca.

Southern California is destined to be the Mecca of American landscape painters. So, at any rate, we have been informed more than once. Certainly, the interest we are showing in all art matters would indicate that we have some cause for hope. An increasing number of painters are making yearly pilgrimages in our direction, many of whom remain to worship for many months. Our exhibitions of pictures are frequent and numerous, and all of them well attended. We have five in Los Angeles this week. What other city of its size can make as good a showing?

We have other reasons for being of good cheer. Many artists of note come here and remain permanently. Among these may be numbered William Wendt, the strongest painter Chicago has produced for years. One of our own home artists, recently returned from the Windy City, declares that we could today get up a stronger and better exhibition of pictures by local men than Chicago. She enumerated the best workers of Chicago—all of whom I happen to know—and I was compelled to agree with her. Another Los Angeles artist, who has sketched in many parts of our country, says that he always comes back to Southern California with a greater love for it. Its variety of color and contour is almost boundless. Other sections of America seem tame and colorless in comparison.

Yet, for all these signs of hope, Los Angeles will never become the art center we fondly dream of, until Angeleños begin to put their hands into their pockets and pay the workmen something for their hire. Painters, even the most idealistic ones, can't live on air alone. It is all very well to behold and admire these charming canvases, but those of us who have money must prepare to buy some of them, too. We need a few "art patrons" in our city—not the "collectors" who buy weird canvases, signed by European names, but men of means who are patriotic, and wise enough to know that American art is the art for Americans, and that a good picture is good even if it isn't signed at all. Until such public-spirited men arise among us, we may prate of Mecca till we are black in the face, and fine artists may come and go, yet for all that our "art center" will remain a beautiful mirage.

"Patron" is not a particularly pretty word, but it stands for a desirable thing, all the same. Los Angeles needs art patrons—art lovers, if you will—devoted lovers who are willing to spend money on the objects of their affection.

Picturesque scenery, unaided, never yet produced a great school of painters. Switzerland is undoubtedly as picturesque as California. Yet what is the rank of the Swiss in the world of artists? They have produced, as Whistler contemptuously remarked, nothing but the cuckoo clock.

Mrs. Ferguson's Pictures.

Lillian Prest Ferguson of Hollywood has been showing thirty pictures, oils and pastels, at the Merrick Reynolds gallery this week. The exhibition closes tomorrow afternoon.

Mrs. Ferguson's good qualities as a painter are as conspicuously evident as her bad ones, and both appear in almost every canvas, side by side, with a most refreshing frankness. The bad ones are there simply because she has not yet learned to draw. She paints figures, and as every figure must of necessity be well constructed and in good proportion, she fails in getting the effect she is after.

Mrs. Ferguson does not claim to be a professional painter, yet for all that I cannot help but think that she could gain, with a little effort, the full equipment of one. She has much feeling for color, she sees sympathetically and artistically, her rendition of light is surprisingly clever. She is an artist by instinct and predilection—but she is not a painter by training. If she could see her way clear toward getting this needed training in drawing, she would, I feel convinced, do very good work.

Even as it is, her work is of great interest. She attempts tremendously difficult things, figures posed against the light, and obtains, somehow, results that are startlingly contradictory—bad things that are yet artistic. These defects and good qualities are very evident in "Sunshine and Shadow," two figures before a window, and "Waiting," a woman in white who is also before a window. The windows, through which we catch glimpses of outdoor gardens, are charmingly done; they give an effect of real light, without being in any way forced or theatrical. Would that the figures were as real. Yet even these have good qualities, not dependent on drawing, for Mrs. Ferguson paints the textures of still life very well.

Her "Portrait of a Boy" and "Nun" are without doubt the most successful, as both show very little of the figure. The "Nun" has genuine feeling and good color, and the "Portrait of a Boy," it seems to me, is handled with more sureness of touch than anything else in the gallery, and with a truer appreciation of the planes of the head. Its color, too, is good, though perhaps a trifle hot in places.

Mrs. Ferguson ought to do more landscapes. Her charming pastel, "Sunset" and her oil called "Autumn," both show that she has much feeling for them. She could flood her outdoor scenes with the light she loves and knows how to paint.

Pictures by Mr. Judson.

William Lees Judson, who is an indefatigable worker, somehow finds the time, even in the midst of his many duties as dean of the College of Fine Arts, to paint numerous pictures, landscapes and figures in oils and water colors. He is now working over thirty new ones in the college exhibition rooms.

Their motifs are chosen from many sources, inland and along shore, from the north and the south, as well as the desert. The Arizona desert, indeed, is one of Mr. Judson's favorite sketching grounds, and he goes there for a long and happy sojourn at least once a year, and sometimes twice.

Among the interesting things he has now to show from those sun-smitten places are "Cloud Shadows on the Desert," "A Sea of Sand," "Over the Divide," and "The Colorado Desert."

Mr. Judson, like most of our California landscape painters, has also been to Laguna, bringing with him "Evening at Laguna," "Cliff at Laguna," and an iridescent sea with rocks in the foreground on which four nude female figures are disporting themselves; this is called "Sea Nymphs," and sparkles like an opal.

Other pictures to claim our attention are "The Drowsy Hum of Summer Noon," "A Song of Summer," "A Chinaman's Ranch House," "The Grand Cañon," and "Cascades of the Nesqually."

This exhibition of thirty-three pictures, as well as fifty-five others from Mr. Judson's brush, will remain open to the public every day in the week for some months.

By J. Bond Francisco.

J. Bond Francisco, who has not been heard from for a year, has at last broken silence with an exhibition of twenty-eight canvases at the Blanchard gallery, and he is showing some pictures that are by all odds among the very best things he has ever done. His large picture, "Morning, Grand Cañon," painted at Grand View, Arizona, is of course the most important, and it is in some respects also his best. Mr. Francisco has caught the overpowering grandeur of the scene and has transferred it to canvas with fine effect.

He has a few other Grand Cañon pictures to show, bits of riotous color every one of them. Yet to me the most appealing and most pleasing of all the pictures in the present exhibition are the afternoon effects which he has caught so well, turning dull pigment into tender, lingering sunlight. His forest interiors, too, are often very pleasing.

This exhibition, which I hope to speak of again in next week's Art and Artists, will remain open to the public till the eighteenth of this month.

ART NOTES.

The most notable exhibition of the week is that of the two Wachtels, which opened this morning at 10 o'clock, and which will continue every day for two weeks from 10 till 5. Forty pictures are being shown, twenty oils and twenty water colors, each artist having the same quota of pictures to his credit. The water colors, among the most remarkable ever painted anywhere in this difficult medium, are by Mrs. Wachtel. The oils, vigorous, splendid landscapes, are from the magical brush of Elmer Wachtel.

An interesting coming exhibition is the one that Clinton Conner promises us, and which will open at his Griffin-avenue studio a week from tomorrow. Mr. Conner is known to all art lovers as a conscientious, painstaking student of Southern California landscape. He knows his subject like a book, and every page he opens for our inspection is delightful in its truth and sincerity. He has gained much in strength and insight during the past year. His exhibition will be an important one that no one should miss, even if the gallery seems a trifle out of the way. The Griffin-avenue cars will bring you almost to the door, No. 232 South Griffin.

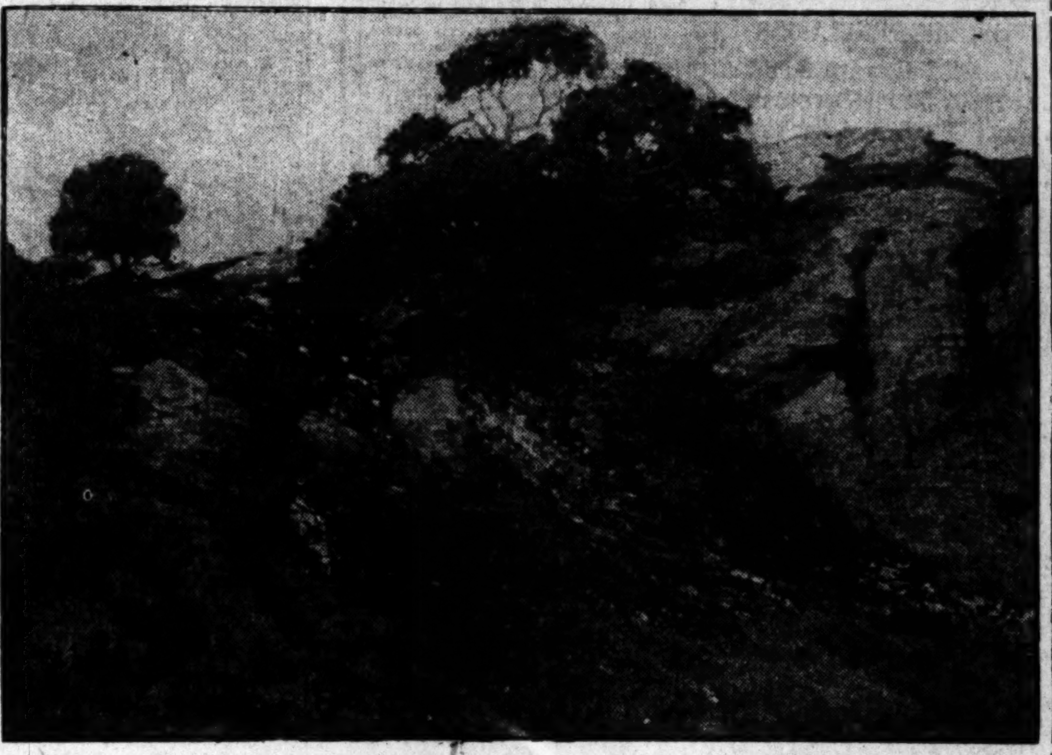
Alexander Stirling Calder, the sculptor, has removed his studio from Pasadena to No. 625 South Figueroa street, Los Angeles. He has been doing some interesting portraits in the round and in relief of late. His wife, Nannette Calder, who is a painter of fine power, is now working on a full length portrait of young Jerome Eddy. Mrs. Calder, who paints genre delightfully, may give us an exhibition in a few months.

Hanson Puthuff has returned from a month of sketching at Laguna Cañon, bringing with him a dozen strong and interesting sketches, as well as three rattlesnake skins that are scarcely less interesting. Nona White, the art critic, is now the proud possessor of the handsomest of these skins, which boasts of thirteen rattles. William Wendt and Gardner Symons came with Mr. Puthuff from Laguna, but both have already returned. Mr. Symons has a home and a studio at Laguna Beach.

An unusually interesting meeting of the Palette Club was held on the evening of last Monday, when a reception was tendered to Clinton Bulmer, who comes from New York, and who took up his studies as instructor at the School of Art and Design on the first of May.

Arts and Crafts held a special meeting last Wednesday evening, William T. Aoki, a Japanese artist, being the guest of the occasion. There were music, art discussions, and a general good time.

Hobart Bosworth, whose Arizona pictures were so favorably received last year, will show twenty or thirty new ones at the Steckel gallery on May 13. The exhibition will remain open for two weeks.



LIVE OAKS IN LAGUNA CANYON, BY HANSON PUTHUFF.

This is one of the dozen pictures that Hanson Puthuff, the rising young artist, brought with him from his recent sketching trip at Laguna Canyon. It is an excellent composition, full of glowing color, and is one of the best things Mr. Puthuff has yet done.

The Paint Language.

The young Apache squaw had a half hour to spare before her fire dance on the elevated stage.

"Write an article," she said, "about the paint language—the significance of the various designs that an Indian paints on his face."

Laughing, she leaned against the gold wheel of a chariot, and, very picturesque in her red gown on the sun-drenched grass, with the great white tent for a background, she on in musical gutterals:

"When an Indian paints his in scarlet lines, and daubs a square on his forehead, the knows he is in love.

"When he covers his face with zag black lines upon an ochre is his purpose to—ah—I'm ashamed to say it—to get skated as he possibly can.

"When red circles are on each bone, and a rectangle of blue is forehead, the young brave is steal a pale face horse.

"When he paints white rings his eyes, he is running for office a candidate for medicine man or cillor, and the white rings signify he ought to be elected because the wisdom of the owl."

—o—

Honor Mr. Lott.

Friday evening the Gamut Club was the scene of a reception tendered by the Treble Clef Club to their director, William H. Lott, who left yesterday for a sojourn in Europe. The reception followed a concert. The auditorium was decorated in pleasing fashion with roses, ferns and carnations. Palms and ferns formed an attractive background for the handsome gowns of the receiving women, who stood before the fireplace in the reception room.

Mr. Lott has made a forceful director, and brought the club to a high standard of musical perfection, and it was with regret that the members consented to let him go, even for a short time.

Assisting the president, Mrs. Fred Hooker Jones, in receiving, were Mmes. G. Alexander Bobrick, William John Scholl, W. G. Eisenmayer, Mary J. Schallert, Volney Beardsley, Charles C. Travers, Martha Hunter, Hennion Robinson Judicella, Delaney, Edwin H. Cooper and Miss Gertrude Dixon.

—o—

—o—

Miss Stevens Is a Bride.

Standing beneath a canopy of smilax studded with pink and white roses, with a background of ferns and orange blossoms, Miss Dora M. Stevens and Ernest F. Glidden plighted their troth on Monday at noon. The ceremony took place at the home of the mother of the bride, Mrs. I. N. Stevens, No. 644 Alvarado street, in the presence of a few intimate friends, Rev. N. L. Reynolds, a long-time friend of the family of the bride, officiating. The bride was gowned in filmy white wearing orange blossoms in her hair and carrying a bouquet of white carnations. The groom is a graduate of the High School, and both have many friends. The couple will reside at No. 644 South Alvarado street.

—o—

Mrs. Jess's Party.

Mrs. Stoddard Jess of Harvard Boulevard, who formerly lived at Hotel Fremont, entertained for the ladies of that hotel with a Fiesta luncheon on Friday afternoon, and was assisted by her daughter, Mrs. George Jess. The table was rife with Fiesta deckings, in red, yellow and green, and place cards bore dainty sketches of Fiesta scenes. Gay flowers and shaded lights completed the charming effect.

—o—

Miss Bulkley Engaged.

To many friends an interesting piece of news is that of the engagement of pretty Miss Ruth Bulkley of Redondo to Lee Garnsey of that place. Both young people are favorites in society of the beach town and also of this place, and Miss Bulkley is an unusually bright and attractive girl, besides being endowed with more than the usual amount of beauty. She is a

New Styled Wash Suitings

Here are some brand new wash fabrics that you'll take a pride in having made up, and wearing. Neat, genteel styles, without being conspicuous. Light enough for warm days and heavy enough for cool evening wear. And they are, in fact, tub goods—guaranteed to WASH.

Mercerized Batiste 30c yd.

A highly mercerized, lustrous material for summer gowns in plain colors; fifty shades ranging from the most delicate pinks and blues to the dark rich browns, greens and reds; also black creams and white. 30c a yard.

Novelty Soiesette 25c yd.

This is shown in plain colored fancy weaves, little checks and plaids, and stripes an inch apart with mercerized dots between. All the fashion-favored shadings from the darkest to the lightest, black and white. 25c a yard.

Fancy Cream Dress Woolens

The nattiest, nobbiest suitings of the year are in cream grounds with black stripes and hair lines. We will show some entirely new effects tomorrow. Strictly all wool, of course. 44 to 46 inches wide. $1 and $1.25 a yard.

Plaid Silks For Shirt Waist Suits

Extraordinary values will be offered the coming week in silk plaids for waists, jumper suits and shirt waist frocks. Every fashionable color combination, every size plaid and check. Among the lot a line of good taffeta plaids worth $1.25 at 95c yard.

blonde with pretty coloring and merry blue eyes. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bulkley, who have lived in Redondo for a number of years and whose home is one of the handsome ones on the bluff.

Mr. Garnsey has lived in Los Angeles nearly all his life, and is a son of L. T. Garnsey, president of the Los Angeles and Redondo Railway. No date has as yet been set for the wedding.

—o—

Miss Bryant Improved.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver C. Bryant of Magnolia avenue will be glad to hear that their young daughter, Miss Helen Bryant, who for so many months has been seriously ill, is convalescing slowly. For a number of weeks Miss Bryant's life was despaired of, but she is now out of danger.

—o—

Play Bridge.

Mrs. Jack Foster of No. 813 West Twenty-eighth street entertained informally on Tuesday afternoon, having as guest a few friends, who were invited in to play bridge whist. Refreshments were served.

—o—

Mrs. Churchill's Luncheon.

Mrs E.K. Cooper

Murillo Studio
Mrs Volney Beardsley

Miss Gertrude Dickson.

Four charming women who assisted at a large reception given by the Treble Clef Club on Friday evening.

Mrs. O. H. Churchill of South Figueroa street entertained with a luncheon yesterday afternoon at the Ebell Clubhouse, having plates laid for a hundred guests. After luncheon the guests played five hundred. The tables were beautifully decorated in pink and white, roses and sweet peas resting in the centers in great baskets tied with tulle. On the large tables a floral arrangement of pink sweet peas and roses was graceful. Asparague ferns and roses and other flowers decorated the rooms, and place and tally cards were ornamented with the hostess's monogram in gold.

Those who assisted the hostess in receiving and entertaining were Mmes. Stephen C. Hubbell, W. D. Woolwine, E. P. Clark, William Caswell, Hans Jevne, J. Ross Clark, George D. Rowan, E. H. Moore, Charles W. Hinchcliffe, S. S. Salisbury, and Misses Fanny Rowan, Flossie Rowan, Katherine Clark, Juana Creighton and Marian and Gertrude Churchill. A number of other women assisted the hostess in presiding at the different tables.

Mrs. Churchill entertained with a luncheon at Hotel Hollywood on Thursday afternoon, having as guests about twenty of her women friends. The table was handsomely decorated with roses and ferns.

—o—

Dominant Club Tea.

The members of the Dominant Club and their friends enjoyed a tea yesterday afternoon at the home of Miss Eva Frances Pike, No. 2289 West Sixteenth street. The home was decked with bright blossoms and ferns and an enjoyable musical programme was rendered. Mrs. C. G. Stivers and Miss Estelle Heartt were hostesses for the afternoon. Miss Elizabeth Jordan, Mme. Von Grofe Monasco and Mrs. Maria Thresher Webb gave an andante and scherzo from Godard, and Miss Blanche Ruby sang an aria and a group of songs in her delightful manner.

—o—

A Beauteous Affair.

One of the loveliest affairs of the week was the luncheon which Misses Fanny Rowan and Edith Maurice gave in compliment to Miss Helen Newlin, who expects to leave soon for Europe, and also for Miss Jessie Reynolds, who is leaving soon for the East. The affair was given at the home of Miss Rowan at No. 1153 West Twenty-seventh street, and the guests to the number of twenty were seated about a large round table, which glowed with beautiful flowers and ferns. On a great mirror in the center rested a miniature ship of white sweet peas and maidenhair ferns, and crystal candelabra with green shades were pretty accessories, while places were marked with cards bearing dainty hand-painted sketches of miniature trains and ships.

—o—

Ruddys to Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Ruddy of No. 2711 Wilshire boulevard will leave Tuesday for a long European journey. They will sail May 16 from New York on the Carpathia of the Cunard line, and will be met in Rome by friends, who will travel with them through various interesting parts of Europe, and will return to Los Angeles some time in October.

—o—

Miss Judd's Party.

Miss Florence Judd of No. 1437 South Bonnie Brae street was hostess on Friday afternoon at a five hundred party, given in compliment to Mrs. Frederick Ruggles and Miss Emma Barton of Redlands, who are her house guests for a few weeks.

The home was attractively decorated with fresh flowers and ferns, and in the living-room yellow daisies and mustard were used with graceful effect, and the music-room was decorated with pink roses and honeysuckle, which harmonized charmingly with the cool, green walls. In the Dutch dining-room red roses and scarlet geraniums were arranged with graceful effect. Over the plate rails the roses were banked, while in the window shelves the geraniums and their crisp, green leaves were effective.

The hostess was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Don A. Judd, and by Mrs. Hugh Harrison.

Those who received invitations to the affair were Mmes. Frank Gillelen, Arthur Godin, Frank Garrett, Joseph Miller, Willis E. Hutchason, John Cornwell, I. W. Shirley, Grace Sanborn, Frank Henderson, Bradshaw Arthur, Eugene Miller, Harry Moore, George McDonald, Ross Boyd, Weston Clark, Carl Burnell, and Misses Marie Gavagan, Hazel Patterson, Mae Prentiss, Lucy and Mary Clark, Hazel French, Eula Smith, Lily Olshausen, Lillian McLaughlin, Ethel Shrader, Amy Burkhalter, Ruby Kimble, Belle Whittaker, Kathenine Thompson, Grace Dale, Grace Ramsey, Annie Crowe, Alice Cherry, Ethel Leavelle, Herietta Peet Arnold, Ethel Shrader, Daisy Dake and Mary Baker. The prizes included a beautiful painting of an Indian head by the hostess, a fancy bag of lavender and white silk, and as draw prize an organdie rose pillow adorned with a shadow picture.

—o—

Mrs. Jones's Party.

In honor of Mrs. Goldsmith and her house guest, Miss Wood, Mrs. Hugh Leachman Jones of Westmoreland Place entertained on Thursday afternoon with a whist party.

The home was decorated with baskets filled with marguerites and roses and tied with fluffy tulle bows. Scores were marked on hand-painted Cupids, and the prizes, handsome bon-bon spoons, fell to Mrs. Ryan, Miss Dent, Mrs. Nicholls and Miss Margaret Smith. Guests for the afternoon were Mmes. M. E. Johnson, R. C. McCormick, Samuel Staats Shepherd, Franklin Nichols, Ethel M. Bennett, William R. Ramsey, George Steckel, Albert C. Jones, and Misses Chapman, Dent, Margaret Smith, Marian Glenn and others.

—o—

Brilliant Affair.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kellogg of No. 1411 Bond street entertained on Thursday evening with a brilliant reception in compliment to their son and his bride, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg of Sioux City, Iowa, who are here on their honeymoon. The bride, who is a charmingly pretty girl, wore blue satin and lace, and Mrs. Kellogg, Sr., was in lavender silk and lace.

Music was rendered through the evening, and the home was decorated with a profusion of sweet blossoms. In the reception hall yellow mustard and yellow daisies with greenery combined in an artistic effect. The living-room contained great baskets of American Beauties, and palms formed a cool background for the handsome flowers. Pink and green was the color scheme in the dining-room. A canopy of smilax was overhead, and festooned about the room were garlands caught with pink geraniums, while pink roses and maidenhair ferns graced the table. About two hundred guests responded to invitations.

Sunset Chapter Party.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bridges of No. 917 Fedora street entertained on Tuesday evening, having as guests the members of Sunset Chapter, O.E.S. The home was decorated with Maman Cochet roses and California poppies. Whist was played, and the first prize was won by Mrs. Farrell, a beautiful fan; the second, a fancy basket, went to Miss St. George, and Mr. Chase won a book of San Francisco views. Mrs. Beckett gave a reading, and Mrs. Bishop and Miss Farrell played a piano duet, while Miss Leona Patten was heard in a solo, and later refreshments were served.

—o—

Miss Herndon Leaves.

Miss Pearl M. Herndon, the talented young Hollywood reader, will leave tomorrow evening with her mother, Mrs. W. F. Herndon, and brother, E. B. Herndon, Jr., for a tour of the East. Miss Herndon is going on a concert tour, and will give recitals in a number of Eastern cities. They will spend a week in Chicago, and intend to come home by way of the Grand Canyon.

Before she left, Miss Herndon gave a charming programme before the Soldiers' Home one evening, being assisted in her sketches by her brother, E. B. Herndon, Jr., and also by Mr. and Mrs. Roland Paul, and Dr. John Loretz were on the programme.

—o—

Mrs. Lang's Musicale.

The handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Lang at No. 1825 Oxford street was the scene of a musicale on Friday evening, given in compliment to C. Lang, who is about to depart for Maine. The house was decorated in lilies, roses, pepper boughs and potted plants.

A programme of interesting music was given, which included a piano and violin number by Miss Fay Penlington and Clifford Chaplin and cornet duets by Miss Harding and Mrs. Lang. An orchestra of six pieces discoursed music through the evening, and dancing was enjoyed, after which a collation was served.

Among those who enjoyed the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Norsted and the Misses Norsted of Pasadena; Mrs. Gysler and the Misses Gysler, Mr. Saich, Mr. Alexander, Mr. Chaplin, Mr. and Mrs. Duman, Mrs. Floyd, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott and Miss Elliott, Miss Harding, Miss Meeks, Miss E. Seisovitch, Miss V. Penlington, Mr. Siffer, Mr. Curan, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner, Mrs. Day, Miss Day and Mr. Day; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cummings, Mr. Lang, Miss Cummings, Miss Lang, Mr. and Mrs. McBee, and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lang.

—o—

Miss Leech's Recital.

Miss Venetia Leech entertained her friends on Friday evening at Santa Ana with a recital and musicale. Besides Miss Leech, those who took part in the excellent programme were Misses Florence Brace, Nettie Toffe, Fannie Smart, Ciessefska, Freeman and Hall.

Miss Leech is a talented and charming young woman, and studied for six years in Germany, taking a diploma from the Conservatory of Music, in Leipsic. She is an artist and a valuable acquisition to musical circles of this city.

—o—

Engagement Announced.

Miss Ethel Hogan and her brother, C. L. Hogan, of No. 1073 West Thirty-sixth street, entertained Thursday evening, in honor of Hazel M. Bunker and Gordon Davidson, whose wedding will occur June 13. The affair was given to announce formally this engagement, which was done in a novel manner. The place souvenirs bore on the outside the likenesses of the young couple, and on the inside was printed the names of the wedding party, who are: Charles Parsons, best man; Karl Elliott, Warren Bovard and Paul Bunker, ushers; Ethel J. Hogan, maid of honor; Helen Munsey, Minnie Gaston and Genevieve Buchanan, bridesmaids. Miss Bunker is a U.S.C. student, whose home is at Compton, and the young ladies are all members of the Entre Nous sorority.

—o—

Miss Wiebers's May Party.

Miss Hortense Weibers entertained a company of girl friends with a May party last week, at her home, No. 2101 Bonsallo avenue. Games were played and refreshments served and the home was hung with dainty May baskets. Guests were Misses Alice Bartlett, Helen Logan, Elma Mulligan, Margaret West, Elizabeth Pearne, Margaret Preston, Mabel Cramer, Katherine Kuhen, Gladys Baker, Marjory Fisher, Elise Hughes, Hazel Schutte, Mildred Scharrer, Annie Row, Beatrice Finlayson, Margaret Leonard, Elizabeth Rust and Marie Lockwood.

—o—

For Miss Koebig.

Mrs. A. H. Koebig of No. 2118 Hobart boulevard, was hostess on Wednesday at a reception given in compliment to her husband's sister, Miss Elise Koebig, of Strassburg, Germany, who is visiting here. The home was beautifully decorated in fresh flowers and ferns. In the hall and den, mustard and greenery and great bows of misty golden tulle were charming in effect. In the drawing-room American Beauty roses were arranged gracefully in May baskets. The dining-room was in green and white. On the table was a huge basket of marguerites and sweet peas tied with airy knots of tulle, and the same blossoms were used in profusion about the room. Assisting the hostess in receiving and entertaining were: Mmes. George B. Rowell, August Marquise, Frank Rule, Frank McDonald, Frank Hudson, Guy Hizeley, Albert Russell, Bogart, Frank Edwards, Wallace Diss, Lyman Stookey, and at the punch bowl were Misses Gladys Felt and Amy Leonardt.

—o—

Mrs. Horton's Fete.

The fact that one of the show places of Los Angeles has been selected by Mrs. Rufus L. Horton to give the fete, which she is planning for June 1, will make it doubly attractive.

The funds derived from this brilliant benefit are all to go toward the help of the S.P.C.A. cause, and the dumb animals will profit richly by society's generous impulse.

The place is the site of the Friday Morning Club grounds at Hoover and Adams street. It was a lofty impulse that prompted Mrs. Horton to rent these grounds, and give her time, energy and influence to making this fete the grand affair it promises, to in turn give the money earned by this labor of love to the S.P.C.A. A host of society women are assisting and preparing many effective and interesting booths to attract money to the coffers.

"Mother Goose" is to be there with all her well-known characters, such as Jack and Jill, Mary, Mary Quite Contrary, and Little Jack Horner, and the children doubtless will be more than pleased. Then the orchestra, which is composed of such notables as G. Allen Hancock, Hancock Banning and Frank Rule, will be another drawing card.

MRS. J. W. LANG, who was hostess at a delightful musicale.

Prof. Carr and his trained dogs have donated their services, and will stroll through the grounds performing. A "Teddy Bear" drill and sunbonnet drill by small tots under the direction of a graduate of the Emerson School of Oratory is another feature.

Women who are acting as patronesses include: Mmes. Jaro von Schmidt, Le Moyne Wills, De Barth Shorb, Hancock Banning, John H. Norton, Wesley Clark, Granville MacGowan, Ezra Stimson, Richard Lacey, J. D. Hooker, Walter Lindley, Hans Jevne, Enoch Knight, Eleanor Brown, John Haynes, Scott Helm, Mary Briggs, Horace V. Wing, R. H. Howell and Misses Fanny Wills and Ryan.

Chairmen of the different booths include: Mrs. Horace V. Wing, ice cream booth; Mrs. Mary Briggs and Miss Bryan, fancy work; Mrs. R. H. Howell, children's booth; Mrs. Richard Lacy, candy booth; Mrs. Sheldon Borden, flower booth; Mrs. Lynn Helm, coffee booth; Mrs. Van Dyke, tea booth; Mrs. Morris Albee, pop-corn booth; Mrs. Maurice Hellman, doll booth; Mrs. Francis Holmes, lemonade booth; Mrs. Jack McGarry, magic tree of the enchanted forest; Mrs. W. W. D. Turner, wonder goose; Mrs. Pioche Robinson, wheel of fortune; Mrs. Telfair Creighton, Mrs. Jarley's wax works; Mrs. Mary J. Schallert, gypsy booth; Mrs. Berthold Baruch, fish pond; assistants, Mrs. Harry Lamb, Mrs. Albert Prenzlauer, Mrs. M. A. Newmark, Mrs. Herman Baruch, Mrs. Ludwig Schiff and Misses Florence Laub, Florence Newmark, Edna Newmark, Rosalie Seligman and Elsie Baruch; Mrs. A. S. Robbins, Spanish booth; Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, grab bag; Mrs. Mathew Robinson, vaudeville; Mrs. W. D. Babcock, decorating; Mrs. W. J. Variel, membership; Mrs. Sheldon Borden, music; Mrs. L. E. Geis, soliciting committee; Mrs. William J. Scholl, press; Mrs. Frank Rule and Mrs. J. Bond Francisco, postal; Mrs. W. W. Phelps' and Miss Fletcher, "Mother Goose."

The Entertainment Committee is made up of the following women: Mmes. J. T. Fitzgerald, J. Bond Francisco, J. W. A. Off and Roth Hamilton.

—o—

Daffodil Club.

Mrs. Will A. Witzel entertained the Daffodil Whist Club at luncheon on Tuesday in her new bungalow on Carmona street. Covers were laid for sixteen. The dining-room was artistically decorated in feathery ferns and white blossoms. The afternoon was spent in whist. The place and score cards were dainty water colors, the work of the hostess. Prizes were won by Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Williams. The ladies present were: Mrs. George Walker, Mrs. James A. Watt, Mrs. W. A. Gamo, Mrs. Charles Winter, Mrs. Claude Williams, Mrs. A. B. Coonley, Mrs. E. H. Eskew, Mrs. Charles Harrod, Mrs. R. Edgar Ellithorp, Mrs. Charles E. Morris, Mrs. F. L. Goldsborough, Mrs. Charles S. Hunt, Mrs. E. S. Raymond, Mrs. McMichel, Mrs. Charles Herberger. The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Winter at Hotel Argyle, May 14.

Miss Goetsch Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Goetsch announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elsinore Claire, to George L. Machris of this city. Both are popular in society, and their engagement will come as a pleasant surprise to their many friends. The wedding will take place in May.

—o—

Sample Undermuslins

Third to Half Under Regular

Sample lines from the two makers whose products we have sold for years back—not trash made up for "Sale" purposes.
Being samples it naturally follows that they are the most perfect specimens of their respective kinds.
And because of having served their purpose as samples the maker was willing to accept practically half what their duplicates brought, if we would take the entire collection.
We took all, and it makes a broader assortment than any store in America could afford to carry in regular stock.
Not a garment in the entire collection that isn't marked at least a third under its true value, and many of them are to be sold at exactly half.

$1.00 gowns at 65c
$1.50 gowns at 90c
$2.00 gowns at $1.10
$5.00 gowns at $3.00
$8.00 gowns at $5.00

Table Linens Third or More Under Value

The higher prices quoted below represent the retail values prior to the recent advance of 15 per cent. to 25 per cent. These savings are made possible by our good luck in securing, many months ago, several big lots at prices away under market quotations then in force.

2x2½-yard pattern table cloths of fine Irish linen, in several pretty patterns, at $2.25; were $3.
$1.25 grade of Irish damask, 72 inches wide, at a dollar.
25-inch dinner napkins of high-grade Irish linen, in dot, shamrock and many pretty floral patterns, $5 a dozen—a dollar under the old rate.
18-inch twill linen crash for dish or roller towels—12½c quality—10c a yard.
8-inch hemstitched damask doylies with drawn work centers at 10c—half value.
18x36-inch hemmed linen huck towels cut from 20c to 15c each. (Under Annex Skylight.)

$1.25 to $1.75 Gloves at $1

Price-cuts of this magnitude at the beginning of the season cannot fail to bring the desired stock adjustment in one day.
16-button silk gloves in black and colors—the grades regularly sold at $1.50 and $1.75—buyable tomorrow at $1.
16-button suede lisle gloves in black, white and the oftenest-wanted shades—regularly $1.25 and $1.50—one dollar.
3-clasp silk gloves in black, white and all colors—the grade sold everywhere at $1.25—our price, one dollar.
No telephone or mail orders. None sent C. O. D. or on approval.

Women's fine gauze cotton stockings of the 35c grade on sale tomorrow at 25c
Boot effects in lace lisle stockings—grays, white, black tan—and tans are to be had in very, very few stores now—three pairs for a dollar although they are splendid 50c values.
Women's stockings of pure bright thread silk, linen sole, dollar fifty; regularly $2.

Decisive Savings on Domestic Rugs

Even if the mills were not stiffening prices we'd have no hopes of being able to duplicate these values:
27x54-inch Body Brussels Rugs; allover designs in soft, rich colorings—specially priced at $2.00.
27x54-inch Wilton Rugs of the best grade—medallion and allover designs in rich dark colorings—$2.50 each; value $4.00.
East Indian Porch Rugs—made of cocoa fiber, in fast colors—extensively used for porches, hallways, beach and mountain houses—size 4x7 ft. for $5; 6x9 ft. $7.50; 9x12 ft. $12.50.
Hartford, Royal and Bigelow Wilton Rugs in Oriental and allover designs—size 8¼x10½ ft. for $25; same grades sell all over the United States for $37.50.
Limited number of patterns in 9x12 Rugs of the same kind at $27.50 instead of $40.
9x12 Bigelow Wilton Rugs—many new medallion and Oriental designs in soft, rich colorings—$35. Their duplicates are sold nearly everywhere at $42.50.
Same kind in the next smaller size, 8¼x10½ ft., at $32.50; elsewhere $37.50.
9x12 ft. Wiltons, woven in one piece; the high art goods sold all over the United States at $55 to $60—here at $47.50.
9x12 ft. Art Nouveau Wool Rugs in medallion and allover designs—particularly desirable for bedrooms and dining rooms—cut from $18.50 to $15. (Third Floor.)

MEMBERS of the Cole family to the number of sixty-five, celebrated the eighty-fourth birthday anniversary of George Washington Cole, the head of the family, last Tuesday. For twenty-five years this family has been well known in this section, the Cole ranch, of more than 300 acres, having been occupied by some member of the family, for the past quarter century. Sunday's celebration took the form of a picnic at Turnbull Cañon. The grandfather, the guest of honor, is in many ways a remarkable man, and his long life has had many exciting chapters, included in which were years of fighting under Zachary Taylor, border-fighting during the '40s, and several exciting campaigns against the Comanche Indians. Eight children and their families united in Sunday's celebration.

ELIPH' HEWLITT ON NORTH POLE.

Flood of Light from Jarby's Encyclopedia—Petticoat Government Rebuked.

BY ELLIS PARKER BUTLER.

Author of "Pigs Is Pigs."

IT WAS after supper, and the little book agent with the sandy gray side whiskers walked up to the house and rang the bell. He had hesitated a moment, for he was not quite sure which of the two houses the boy had pointed out as the minister's house, but when the door opened and he asked if Mr. Smith was in, he was told he was and was shown into the parlor. He removed the oilcloth wrapper from his sample copy of Jarby's Encyclopedia of Knowledge and Compendium of Literature, Science and Art, and opened the book at page 768—Texts, Biblical—The Art of Pulpit Eloquence—Hints for Sermons, etc., and when Mr. Smith entered the room he began his talk at once.

"Mr. Smith," said Eliph' Hewlitt, "I have here a book that cannot fail to interest a man occupying your position. I have sold it to ministers of the Gospel from Maine to Mexico. No minister can afford to be without it. Here on page 768 we have Texts, Biblical—Hints for Sermons"——

"Well, I guess you got into the wrong house," said the man. "I guess you was lookin' for the other Smith; for the minister. I ain't no use for hints for sermons in my line of business. I'm Smith the iceman."

Eliph' Hewlitt coughed softly behind his hand, and turned the page of his sample quickly.

"Certainly," said Eliph' Hewlitt. "Just as I was saying, Mr. Smith, this marvellous book contains between its two covers information for minister or iceman, without regard to which he is. One and all find aid and pleasure in its pages. For each there is something especially adapted. Now here on page 265 we have the map of the polar regions surrounding the Pole, the land of eternal ice, showing the furthest north reached up to date by man, woman or child, with a red cross wherever a man froze to death and blue dots wherever one got frost bit. Here you see the glaciers, solid rivers of ice off which the icebergs crack, like leaves falling from the trees, each iceberg big enough to supp' a town of the size of this with ice for ten to twenty years."

Mr. Smith, the iceman, leaned over and looked at the map closely, and then smiled.

"Polar regions, hey?" he said. "I reckon all the book is just as accurate as this here map is, ain't it?"

"Just as accurate," said Eliph' Hewlitt, promptly. "No pains has been spared to get it accurate. In all points it is just as accurate as that map is."

"Well," said Mr. Smith, "I don't want it. It may do for some, but I couldn't never have no faith in it. I couldn't sell ice in this town with scales that took ten pounds one way or the other for granted, and I couldn't use no book that guessed at things the way that map does. Now, there you have got the North Pole marked on the map; ain't that so? That round black spot is it, ain't it?"

"Yes," said Eliph' Hewlitt; "it appears to be."

He removed his spectacles and wiped them and put them on again and looked at the round black spot critically.

"Yes," said Mr. Smith scornfully, "there it is, and way down here, half an inch south of it, is the farthest north anybody has gone. There ain't nobody been within half an inch of that pole, nor ever see it, nor ever touched it, and yet there it is marked down on this map! That shows how accurate this book is. Nobody knows where that North Pole is or how it may have shifted around and yet you fellers go and mark it on the map, just to make the map look complete. If I was getting up a map like this I would wait until somebody found out where the North Pole was, or whether there was one at all, before I marked it on the map. I don't say I am stuck on the North Pole myself or care where it is, but if I buy a book I want to have faith in the book, and not buy one where things is jabbed into it regardless, just so you can say it has got everything in the world in it. That North Pole gives the whole thing away. If you hadn't called my attention to that I might have bought the book, but I won't never buy a book with a map that shows where the North Pole is when nobody knows for sure. It's too suspicious."

Eliph' Hewlitt took the book in his hand and held it close to his eyes. He walked to the lamp and looked at it still more closely. Then he took out his pocket knife and gently scratched the black dot from the face of the map.

"I was surprised, Mr. Smith," he said, "pained and surprised when you spoke as you did. For one minute my faith in this book wavered, but I said to myself, 'No! Jarby & Goss, of New York, publishers of this admirable work, would not put in a pole where none had been discovered. They aim,' I said, 'to keep this book up to the very latest moment, adding new matter at enormous expense from week to week, but it is not like them to stick in a North Pole before it is discovered. If they have done it my conscience will not allow me to sell this book any longer. I will give up my life work. But, no! They would not tamper with the North Pole.' So I looked closer. I took it to the light. My heart began to beat again. I was not mistaken in Jarby & Goss. It was not a North Pole. It was a fly speck."

"Then it ain't got no North Pole marked on it at all, now," said Mr. Smith.

"Absolutely none!" agreed Eliph' Hewlitt. "We send out this book without any North Pole marked on it, and any time the North Pole is discovered the purchaser of this volume can mark it in where it ought to be."

"Well, if it ain't got no North Pole marked on it I don't know as I want a copy," said Mr. Smith. "A map of them polar regions that don't show no North Pole can't be much account as a work of reference. It ain't what I would call a complete work of reference. S'pose I should want to go to the North Pole, and I should take down this here book and go to look up where the North Pole was, and there wasn't no North Pole in it, what good would this book do me? S'pose I should want to branch out in the ice business and go and stake out a claim for ice around the North Pole—"

The portieres at the door leading into the dining-room were pushed open and a stout woman, with a rosy face, stood between them.

"William Smith!" she exclaimed, angrily. "I won't have it! I won't have you goin' off to the North Pole, and leavin' me and all these poor children here to look after your business. I won't have it, and you needn't talk about goin', for you can't go. And don't you set there and let that man talk you into it, either. If he wants to go and get froze, let him, but remember, you've got me and the children, and that all the ice business you need you've got right here at home."

"Now, Sally," said Mr. Smith, meekly, "I didn't say I was going. I just said, what if I wanted to go. I was just thinking of you and the children all the time and looking ahead to see that you would always be properly provided for. I'm an ice man, and the ice business is my business, and the way the winters are getting warmer every year there is no telling where I'll have to go to get ice some of these days. And if I've got to go to the North Pole to get it, I don't want to take no chances of getting lost and never seeing you and the children again. If—and I say if, Sally—if I go hunting for the North Pole I want to know where it is before I start. I don't aim to go this year, but I don't want to go thousands of miles looking for a North Pole and not find it when I get to it."

Foolishness!" exclaimed Mrs. Smith, shortly. "You don't want to go to the North Pole, William Smith, and anybody that does is foolish. What all these Pearys and Nansens and the rest look to find when they get there is more than I can make out. I call it a waste of money."

"Sally," said the ice man, with the tone of a man who is in all things woman's superior, "all the matter with you is you don't understand what you are talking about. A man like Mr. Peary don't waste time looking for a North Pole unless there is some sense in it. No man with good sense is going to go up there into them polar regions just for a pleasure trip. It ain't attractive enough in climate. If he wanted to he could stay right at home and get chilblains and have his ears froze, and starve, and not have the expense of a polar voyage. If a man wants to eat candles for a regular diet he don't have to travel to do it. Them men that go hunting the North Pole have reasons, and you needn't try to tell me they hain't. I guess I'm a good American, and I can reason things out as well as any other American, and it stands to reason that them men wouldn't be so crazy to get a look at the North Pole if there wasn't money in it."

"Fiddlesticks!" said Mrs. Smith scornfully, "I wouldn't give 5 cents for all the north poles in the world."

"If you was running a museum you would," said Mr. Smith. "There ain't but one North Pole in the world, just one, and when you've got that one you have got all that's to be got. Didn't old Job Holcomb get $40 for his two-headed chicken? And goodness knows how many two-headed chickens there is hatched every year. But there ain't but one North Pole. I bet a museum would give $10,000 to have the only North Pole. I'd pay 10 cents myself to go and see it. And that ain't all. I guess government maybe offers a prize to the man that finds it first."

"I should hope the government ain't so foolish," said Mrs. Smith.

"There you go," said the amiable iceman, "talking before you think. Of course government offers a prize. Ain't men going out to find the North Pole every year, some in boats and some in balloons and some in automobiles and every which way, and getting lost and frozen to death and starved to death? And as long as the North Pole ain't found and brung back here people will keep on going for it and getting frozen and starved to death. And when government sees all them good citizens going off to die that way it makes government sick, and it knows the only way to stop it is to hurry up and git the pole discovered and have it over and done with. So it offers a prize to get it discovered. It does it to save life. I would do it myself if I was government. If I knew what the prize was I might give up the ice business and go after that pole myself."

"Well, you wouldn't do nothing of the kind," said Mrs. Smith, flatly.

"Yes I would, too," said the iceman. "Once in awhile I can have my own way, I guess, without you saying whether I can or not. I guess I can be my own boss once in awhile, Mrs. Smith. I won't be run over by no woman all the time. And since you aim to be so set about it I don't know but what I'll go and have a look for that pole. And I won't care whether you come along or not. I guess there ain't no better training for Ar'tic exploring than being in the ice business is. I'm going to look the thing up, anyhow."

He set his mouth firmly and turned to Eliph' Hewlitt.

"This book that you say has everything in the world in it, does it give much about Ar'tic exploring?" he asked. "Could a man get all the pointers he would need from this book?"

"What's that?" said Mrs. Smith, quickly. "Is this man a book agent? Do you mean to tell me, William Smith, that you have been wasting time here with a book agent? North Pole! Go to your old North Pole if you want to, but one thing I will tell you, and that is that you won't buy no more books off of book agents. You ain't hardly got them you bought last paid for, and we don't need no more books. You can just pack up that book and go, Mister Bookagent, and not waste no more of your time. William Smith ain't going to buy no books!"

Eliph' Hewlitt coughed gently behind his hand.

"Perhaps," he said to Mr. Smith, "you had better let your wife rule you in this. Although the price of this work, which contains, among ten thousand and one other things, a full account of all the Arctic explorations from the earliest times to the present day, is but $5 a volume, $1 down and $1 a month until paid, you may wish to pass it by. If the lady does not wish you to buy the book I will not urge you. She says, I believe, that you are not going to buy any more books. Her word," and he paused a moment, "is law."

"William," said Mrs. Smith, "don't you buy that book."

"I think perhaps you had better not," said Eliph' Hewlitt. He said it softly and warningly. "Poor man!" his tone implied "you do not dare to buy it," and the ice man took the words as they were meant. He laid a dollar bill in the little book agent's hand and looked at Mrs. Smith defiantly.

"I don't think I'll do anything about that North Pole business this summer," he said to Eliph' Hewlitt, "because I'll be pretty busy with my ice business, but I'd like to read up on it, and maybe I'll start next winter. I don't know as I will, and I don't know as I won't. It depends on how some people act in the meantime."

Mrs. Smith turned on her heel and left the room abruptly, and the ice man winked at the book agent. He leaned forward and sheltered his words with his hand, and smiled as he shook his head.

"I ain't really going," he whispered.

"I THINK PERHAPS YOU HAD BETTER NOT"- SAID ELIPH HEWLITT

WOMEN AS INVENTORS.

ENTERED THE RANKS NEARLY A CENTURY AGO.

Mary Kies Granted a Patent in 1809 for System of Weaving—Numerous Other Instances of Women's Inventive Ability on the Records of the Patent Office.

The United States Patent Office is not a repository for masculine ideas alone, says the New York Sun. The doors of that institution were scarcely hung on their hinges when the government swung them wide to the first woman inventor who applied for admission. They have been open ever since.

According to the records, that go back to 1790, Mary Kies, who obtained a patent in 1809 for "straw weaving in silk or thread," was the Eve of American women inventors, says the American Inventor. Miss Kies is followed by twenty-one women whose local habitations, like hers, do not appear on the official list, and though the majority of the patents granted them are "gleaned from the nursery and kitchen," there are others of wider range. One, for instance, is for "extracting fur from skins of animals and making it into yarn." Another is for "straw cutting and fodder," while Elizabeth Oram comes to the front with a "globe for the teaching of geography."

Florida claims the first woman inventor whose address is given. Her name was Adelena S. Goodman, and she obtained a patent for broom brushes in 1849.

Almira M. Cole of Windham, Me., was our first woman inventor to forge beyond the confines of domesticity into the fields of men. Nearly half a century ago she embodied one of her clever ideas into glass and wood and got a patent for "mounting fluid lenses."

In a vast room where the Patent Office has stored its old models there are two cases that represent the work of woman inventors. The interest value of this exhibit depends altogether upon whether you look at it as genius or junk. One of the first exhibits to catch the eye, because it is one of the largest and most conspicuously placed, is a brass cylinder that looks to the uninitiated like an andiron with a fuzzy head. The attached card tells you that it is a submarine telescope which Sarah P. Mather of Brooklyn, N. Y., patented in 1845.

Mrs. Jane Montgomery of New York gives another glimpse of green billows, but her invention is labelled "War Vessels; Parts Applying to Structures of Defense," and if it wasn't for the visitor's ability to see things not on the programme, her model would be merely a combination of brass and wood that suggests a typewriter lacking the keys.

Mary Ann Frost of Ohio has two models to her credit. One is a brown wooden something that looks like a cribbage board. It is nothing so frivolous, however, for the perforated top comes off and exposes its hidden merits as a "corpse cooler." There is no mistaking the second exhibit. The beholder is so shudderingly sure of its being a coffin that he fairly see a funeral procession and hears mourners weeping at a grave.

Anna French's invention is likewise gloomy, for under a glass seated frame is a clump of faded flowers in silk and chenile labelled "floral ornaments for tombstones." Other melancholy ladies contributed similar flowers for mortuary purposes, and another card tagged to a forlorn cluster makes it known that they were intended either for the parlor or the tomb.

Mary E. Beasley of Philadelphia brings the visitor back to the bounding main with a "life raft," for which she was granted a patent in 1880. The wooden bottom is enclosed with wire netting and is provided with a pair of lashed oars.

Jane P. Clement has an improvement in "hen's nests," and near this laudable device sprawls a dried chicken foot, shackled with a wire yoke and labelled "anti-scratch." No name is attached to this model, but the accommodating person in charge will tell you that once on a time an inventive housewife wanted to raise flowers and poultry in the same garden at the same time and that the anti-scratcher was the result. Whether the scheme worked is not included in the story.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN.

The Oldest School Teacher.

Miss Nancy Frey of Sigourney, Iowa, 71 years of age, holds the unique position of being the oldest school teacher in that State. She has just opened her eightieth term of school. Miss Frey is an exceedingly young looking and well preserved woman. Her mental faculties are keen and well balanced.

A Vigorous Sheriff.

New England's only woman Sheriff, Mrs. Jennie H. Kimball, of Nashua, N. H., has just put a stop to the numerous cocking mains and dog fights which for years have been held just outside the city limits. Until she took a hand no one thought it possible that the matches could be stopped.

Mrs. Kimball organized a raid, and backed by a big special detail of bluecoats loaned to her, she arrested the leader of the gang while the officers corraled the rest, taking the whole big crowd to Nashua in waiting wagons.

Word has been passed to the sports that this is to be a fight to the finish, and that they might just as well quit now.

A Royal Sculptress.

King Edward's sister Louise, the Duchess of Argyll, lately permitted her photograph to be taken. That is something rare, for two reasons. In the first place, pomp and parade and homage are distasteful to her, and, in the second place, she travels a great deal incognito as the Countess of Cowal (using one of her husband's minor titles) and does not wish to be recognized by strangers. Had she been born in a private station she would have achieved distinction in both literature and art. Glasgow University conferred on her the degree of LL.D. One editor frequently accepted articles from her before her identity was revealed and Princess Louise declares that one of the proudest moments of her life was when she received a check for literary work made out to "Myra Fontenoy," the name she had assumed. As for her art work, she was a pupil of the late Sir Edgar Boehm and she has long had a studio in Kensington palace.

Among her principal works are a sitting figure of Queen Victoria, another statue of her late majesty for Manchester cathedral and the striking memorial to the colonial heroes in St. Paul's cathedral as well as various pictures and designs for chimney pieces and candlesticks.

A California Artist.

In the realm of sculpture a clever piece of work is being completed, or rather, recompleted, by Bertha M. Boye of San Francisco. It is a bronze drinking fountain, five and a half feet high on the pedestal. This was ordered of Miss Boye over a year ago by H. P. Baldwin of the Alexander Baldwin firm of Hawaii, to be placed on the two main cross streets of Puneene, Island of Maui. Mr. Baldwin wished it as a memorial of his little grandson, and Miss Boye has designed the figure of a child holding a cup.

The original order was ready for delivery at the time of the disaster, but was ruined in the Hopkins Institute, where it has been on exhibit.

The design and execution of this fountain are extremely graceful, the child's contour showing good expression. Miss Boye has a studio at No. 1673 Hayes street, containing many evidences of her handiwork accomplished since the fire, all former efforts having been lost in the first studio at Kearney and Clay streets, the early center of a small artist colony.—[San Francisco Chronicle.

Don't Like the Japanese.

A New York woman who went to Japan recently for a short visit, but decided to stay there a year, writes to a friend in this city: "It was all a mistake. When I was induced to prolong my visit and try housekeeping the glamor of novelty was still all about me, and the things I had read before I came away were still in my mind. I have kept house two months, and I have had enough. A cold-water flat in the Harlem district a long way from the car lines, with an impertinent janitor and neighbors who play the piano all night, or have bridge parties on Sundays, would be heaven in comparison with my 'lovely' house. The stories about the efficient servants for little or no pay are fables. Like everything that costs nothing, they are worth nothing, and our old Fanny did more real work than the four lazy, treacherous things I have now. Living is as high as it is in New York, and, on the whole, Japan is only nice for those who like it, and how an American woman can be of that class I can't understand. Put the kettle on, get ready to make some apple pies, hang the old flag out of the sitting-rom window, for I'm coming home."—[New York Tribune.

THE BOXERS AND AVENGERS HAVE TRANSFORMED CHINA

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS.

PEKING (China.)—Neither missions nor politics in China is comprehensible until the Boxer outbreak is understood. All roads of investigation lead back to 1900. That was the most eventful year in China's hoary history. Already its vast economic and political significance looms so large that the massacre of more than two hundred missionaries is coming to be regarded as a mere phase of a great epoch.

The Boxer troubles were the birth-throes of a new China. In those terrible days the nation, all unwittingly, broke forever with her self-satisfied, self-secluded past. And the punishment meted out to her, including all the horrible and shameful excesses of the foreign troops, and everything else that was comprehended within that unprecedented orgy of lust, loot and lawlessness, has put the fear of civilization into the hearts of the Chinese. Whatever reaction may come—and I write in the midst of one—the nation will never again array itself blindly against the world. Furthermore, 1900 convinced China that Christianity is here to stay; the sword, the fire and the stake of torture cannot extirpate it.

Since 1900 each year in China's history has accomplished more progress than formerly was achieved in centuries. Undoubtedly this country has made greater strides in the past six years than in the preceding two millenniums. The change has been so swift, so startling, so kaleidoscopic, that the world outside cannot comprehend it. Missionaries who come back after a year's furlough have to pinch themselves to make sure that they are awake.

YUAN SHIH KAI,

China's greatest man, but now out of favor and power.

CHINA'S GREATEST MAN.

This province of Chili, which includes Peking and Tien-Tsin, affords the most extraordinary evidences of transformation. Its viceroy is Yuan Shih Kai, China's greatest man, although at the moment overthrown by the Manchu reactionaries who now dominate Peking. It was Yuan Shih Kai who created and controlled the modern army of 70,000 men, which is one of the assets of new China. It was Yuan Shih Kai who made over into a modern city a large part of old native Tien-Tsin. It was Yuan Shih Kai who established there and at Peking a police system and a fire department, and instituted regulations which have diminished to an enormous extent the filthiness of the streets. It was Yuan Shih Kai who made the narrow, rough and tortuous alleys which throughout centuries have passed for highways give way to wide, smooth, straight, modern thoroughfares. It was Yuan Shih Kai who fostered a system of modern education, of all branches, and who opened public reading rooms and lecture halls, thus instilling the leaven of modern progress into the minds of all young China.

Today Yuan Shih Kai's sun is under a cloud. He has been shorn of the command of the army, of all his numerous posts except his viceroyalty, and of what is all important in Chinese politics, his enormous revenues. The Manchu reactionaries who compose the palace clique are on top; but no one expects them to attempt the mad follies of seven years ago. Halted as a reformer by these, Yuan Shih Kai is also hated by the extreme wing of reformers themselves, whom he betrayed in 1900, thus making possible the "coup d'etat" whereby the Empress siezed the reins of power from the feeble hands of the Emperor. There is said to be a blood feud between the Emperor and his most powerful subject, and all sorts of conjectures are made as to what will happen when the Empress dies.

But the reform spirit grows daily. The revolutionary society is increasingly formidable. Nobody here would be surprised at a national political conflagration and revolution which would be as different from the present sporadic outbreaks as a war is from a skirmish. But, at the same time, nobody expects China to go back to the old days. From what I could glean of the opinions of Sir Robert Hart and the oldest diplomats, merchants and missionaries, a general massacre of foreigners is not an impossibility; but it will not be by government connivance as before. And whatever comes, China is inevitably destined to become one of the nations controlled by the western ideals of civilization.

MARTYRS HAVE NOT MADE CONVERTS.

This much of the political consequences of the Boxer outbreak it has been necessary to write in order to make plain the religious [illegible] with which this article is [illegible] concerned. On every hand [illegible] heard in America that the "[illegible] the martyrs" had again proved [illegible] "the seed of the church." It is a [illegible] prise to find to what a slight [illegible] this is true. Undoubtedly [illegible] nary progress has been made in [illegible] sion work since 1900, for reasons [illegible] will be later explained; but for [illegible] results of the faithful testimony of [illegible] many who heroically sealed their [illegible] alty with their lives I have looked [illegible] vain. I have talked with the [illegible] aries in Peking, Paoting-fu, [illegible] Chow and other scenes of the [illegible] massacres. They sadly admit [illegible] cannot trace any conversi[illegible] shining heroism of the [illegible] women, native converts and [illegible] who laid down their lives [illegible] pel.

Instead, there are villages [illegible] the Christians were murdered [illegible] into which the missionaries [illegible] unable to penetrate. The people [illegible] that Christianity has caused [illegible] enough suffering; they want [illegible] to do with it. In numerous [illegible] ties where mission work was [illegible] ed before the massacres, there [illegible] mission work now, although the [illegible] sionary force had been [illegible] Similarly, for years after the [illegible] it was found that inquirers [illegible] "the Jesus way" who had been [illegible] through the street chapels, [illegible] work and otherwise, were forcibly [illegible] vented by their families and [illegible] from having anything to do [illegible] church. All this is contrary [illegible] expectation and preconception [illegible] Christendom; but the truth is [illegible] sacred than theory.

WHEREIN THE BOXERS [illegible]

Certain manifest results [illegible] Boxer days are apparent. As [illegible] stated, that uprising, which [illegible] marily directed against Christ[illegible] secondarily against all foreign[illegible] a futile attempt to stamp out the [illegible] ern religion. China now knows [illegible] Christianity is here to stay, a [illegible] be permanently reckoned with. [illegible] is an immeasurable gain for [illegible]

The massacres challenged [illegible] dom. They called forth a vigor[illegible] assertion of the ages-old [illegible] faith and expectation of ultimate [illegible] quest. As one of the finest [illegible] Boxer martyrs, Horace Tracy [illegible] of Poating-fu, sent as his [illegible] word to his little son the message [illegible] he should one day come out to [illegible] to take his father's place, [illegible] churches generally answered [illegible] defiance by increasing their [illegible] forces, and taking up the work [illegible] new skill and resolution.

By the wiping out of missions [illegible] in North China, all the tactical [illegible] takes of missions were obliterated [illegible] missionaries were enabled to [illegible] an entirely new plan of [illegible] With the wisdom of experience [illegible] most strategical places alone [illegible] occupied. A readjustment of [illegible] and methods followed, which has [illegible] fruit in a markedly increased [illegible]

TRAGIC MEMORIES.

One cannot talk for fifteen [illegible] with anybody in China upon a [illegible] ary topic without being brought [illegible] to face with 1900. A [illegible] name is mentioned: "You [illegible] lost all his children in the Boxer [illegible] bles," remarks your companion [illegible] pick up a photograph from your [illegible] mantelpiece, and are informed [illegible] entire family was wiped out [illegible] grandparents to little children [illegible] massacre." Something is said [illegible] the capability of a native [illegible] whom you have met. "It was [illegible] ther, you know, who stood [illegible] by Dr. Taylor and was [illegible] him, although he might have [illegible] This man himself was [illegible] siege at Tien-tsin."

"Are you not glad to have had [illegible] experience?" you enthusiastically [illegible] quire of missionaries who had [illegible] a brilliant part in the siege at [illegible] "No, I am not," decidedly [illegible] young mother; "when a woman [illegible] had to consider, directly and [illegible] while a mob of Chinese [illegible] torture and murder her and [illegible] howling for blood only a few [illegible] whether or not she is willing [illegible] her own children's lives, to save [illegible] from the unspeakable vengeance [illegible] Boxers, she has undergone an [illegible] ence which she would willingly [illegible] foregone." It is said that [illegible] still dying, both among the [illegible] and the foreigners, from the [illegible] the Boxer troubles.

MRS. W. A. THOMPSON entertained the Thursday Afternoon Club with an all-day session at her home on Central avenue. The programme was recognized as for "King's Daughter" day, and in deference to the same a number of the members of the King's Daughter band were present. The guests of honor were Mrs. H. N. Jarvis of Los Angeles and former president of the local organization of King's Daughters, and Mrs. J. R. Turnbull, matron of the Day Nursery in Los Angeles. These ladies contributed to the programme with talks on the object and aim of the Day Nursery. Miss Anna Augspurger gave several piano solos, Miss Maud Moore sang, Mrs. John Hobbs and Miss Stephenson sang a duet, Miss Adaline Thompson rendered instrumental music

The condition of Miss Emma Hagerty, house guest of Mrs. David Imler at Palm Villa, has so much improved since her removal to the home of Mrs. Imler that her hostess tendered her a small dinner party, Thursday evening. The table decorations consisted of a large bowl of fragrant red roses. The red rose has cheered Miss Hagerty during her long illness. Covers were laid for twelve. Guests from Los Angeles included Miss Mollie Shannon, Miss Cecil Hagerty, Miss Anna Augspurger and I. H. McCaughern.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Episcopal Church was entertained by Mrs. John Pittenger, Tuesday afternoon. Miss Flora Chandler, Mmes. Alfred Randolph, C. R. Carmack, Marvin Connelly and C. C. Cole comprise a committee to arrange for a New England dinner to be served in the near future.

Dr. A. B. Baird of Chehalis, Wash., who has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Imler, returned home Wednesday.

MRS. A. C. CAMERON gave a large tea Wednesday afternoon between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock, in compliment to Mrs. Charles Burton Saunders, who recently returned from an extended eastern and northern trip. The house was superbly decorated and a collation was served. Those assisting were: Mrs. A. G. Hubbard, Mrs. E. S. Graham, Mrs. Donald C. Scott of Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. Harman R. Scott, Mrs. J. W. England, Mrs. John W. Davis, Mrs. E. A. MacDonald, Mrs. Halsey, W. Allen, Misses Caldwell, Hornley, Burrell, Lyon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Macartney entertained a score of young people Wednesday evening in honor of the eighteenth birthday of their daughter, Miss Rebecca Macartney. Games and refreshments made the evening hours pass quickly and pleasantly.

Miss Lloyd, one of the teachers of the Franklin School, was given a May-day surprise Wednesday by her pupils. The affair was in the nature of a flower shower and refreshments of ice cream and cake.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tuttle were given a merry surprise Tuesday evening at their home, near LaQuinta. Games were played, after which the guests served refreshments which they had brought with them.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Knapp was on Tuesday evening the scene of a merry party, given for Miss Cora Williams and Carl McIntosh, a prospective bride and groom. Miss Williams was showered with a number of pretty pieces of china. The latter part of the evening was spent in playing cards, the prizes being won by Miss Williams and J. H. Stevenson.

The Century Club held its last regular meeting for the season Tuesday evening at the contemporary clubhouse. The evening was spent in card playing and dancing, as usual. The club is planning to hold a series of outing dances at Harlem Springs later in the season.

The members of the senior class of the High School who were included in the recent presentation of "The Rivals," enjoyed a dance at Hinkley Hall, the home of Cline Hinkley, who took the part of "Bob Acres." There were about thirty young people in the party.

The pupils of the third grade of the Lugania School, of which Miss Pentland is teacher, enjoyed a picnic in the school grounds Saturday. Games, contests, and a luncheon were features of the day.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Simonds entertained with a cotillion Friday evening in compliment to their son and daughter. The affair was held in the contemporary clubhouse, which had been beautifully decorated. Miss Kramer of Riverside led the cotillion, which was characterized by many novel flures and unique favors.

Our Kid Fitting, P. N. and W. B. Corsets
Have become so well known that there remains little to say of them. The wearers of them have not been backward in voicing their approval of the corsets or of the superior ability of our corsetiere. She has made a long, careful study of the corset needs of all figures. Her choice of the most appropriate model to combine style and comfort with the individuality of the wearer is the outcome of wide experience. Good points of the figure are emphasized, while the bad ones are improved or eliminated under her direction.
Excellent New Kid Fitting Models
Just received handsome brocade corsets in pink, blue and white, medium high bust, very long below waist line at back with double boning over hips to prevent breaking. Best hose supporters. A splendid corset for the fully developed figure. Sizes 20 to 28, per pair $3.50
Also medium low bust and medium hip for short figures. Sizes 18 to 25. The pair $2.50
Other styles in low bust, short hip models, made of silk, finished figured batiste in white and colors. The daintiest possible corsets for the petite figure. Per pair $2.50
Brassieres 50c and $1.00
The brassiere or bust reducing corset cover is acknowledged to be the most satisfactory and clever dress accessory of recent invention. It produces the pleasing curves demanded by present fashion, being boned to support the bust and produce comfort for the wearer. These excellent garments moderately priced at 50c--$1

"CALL OF THE WILD" HEARD.

Washington Society Seeking the Countryside.

President and Family Enjoy Canters in Suburbs.

Gen. Wilson to Marry Widow of Rear-Admiral.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, April 30.—With the official excursion to the Jamestown show, a thing of memory, and the last visiting Daughter of the American Revolution safely off for other climes, society has settled once more to the enjoyment of a season which more than any other, may be classed as informal. To be sure, there is renewed social activity at the White House, and there are a few diplomats, who, like the Minister from Sweden, are yet to be given the glad hand of official welcome, but the "Call of the Wild" is very persistent when, after a long, dreary winter, the street vistas begin to look like avenues between banks of soft green haze, masses of shrubbery, golden and white, bloom in parks brilliant also with beds of tulips, pansies, jonquils and hyacinths, and birds of all sorts twitter among the branches of trees not yet too leafy to conceal their handsome plumage.

During April we shivered or were mildly comfortable, in turn. But better things are promised for May and al fresco entertainments will be conspicuously on the tapis for the next few weeks. Those owning country homes near the city are established therein to remain until the late summer, when they are scheduled for a trip to New England, and apparently every hostess expects to keep open house. For the less fortunate there are the Chevy Chase and country clubs where one's friends are always glad to meet for an informal luncheon or dinner, with golf or bridge as an aftermath. Paper hunts for the younger set, with tea at either clubhouse as a finish, are another innovation much enjoyed by those fond of the open.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt are keen lovers of horseback riding and rarely miss their daily canter on the surrounding suburban roads. Sometimes they are accompanied by Miss Ethel and the boys, and always by two orderlies from Fort Myer, as well as by a mounted policeman. The members of the escort frankly declare it to be their most difficult duty to keep up with the Roosevelt entourage. Perhaps there are politicians who would agree with them.

Though oft on pleasure bent, the society folk of Washington have a frugal mind where their pet charity is concerned, and realize that if the good work done by them during the winter is to be maintained through the summer, financial preparation therefore must be made before they leave the capital for an indefinite sojourn at seashore or mountain resort. "In unity there is strength," so think the women interested in a score of the most prominent enterprises for sweet charity. Therefore they have combined to give on May 10 and 11, a lawn fete at "Friendship," the country home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. McLean, to which the President's daughter fled from public gaze the day she became a Longworth. The plan is for all who join in the preparation to share in the gate receipts, and besides, each charity organization represented, is to have an attraction of its own and all the proceeds therefrom.

A Japanese wedding and tea have been planned by the Playground Committee, "The Street of Paris," for the Working Boys' Home, will rival "The Pike" of last year's fete. A Chinese laundry with "real" Chinamen in the foreground, for the Bell Home, and "The County Fair," for George Washington University Hospital, are features already announced and for which preparatory meetings are held with wonderful regularity, considering the number of social affairs on the calendar.

Few brides are venturesome enough to tempt fate by selecting a May day for their wedding. Tuesday, the last of April, was therefore a busy day for the "marrying parson." It was also the date chosen for two beautiful church weddings. The first took place at noon in St. Thomas' Church, the bride being Miss Mary Blackford Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding Lewis Marshall, and the groom, Richard F. Amphlett of England. The Episcopal marriage service, read by Rev. C. Ernest Smith, rector of the church, was followed by a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents. A feature of this marriage was the group of pretty maids, who, like the bride, represented some of the best families of the South. First on the list was Miss Allene Stokes of Richmond as maid of honor. Next came Miss Anne Phinizy of Augusta, Ga., and Miss Rebecca Nash of Portsmouth, Va., followed by little Miss Helen Curtler of Worchester, England, who served her cousin as flower girl. Master Charles Gwatkin was the page.

The other Tuesday wedding of social importance was celebrated in St. John's Episcopal Church on Lafayette Square. There, before the altar made famous as the place where many Presidents of the United States have knelt for holy communion, and where so many semi-official couples have plighted their troth, Miss Zaidie Gaff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Gaff of Cincinnati and Washington, became Mrs. Carey Langhorne. The groom, a near relative of the "only original Gibson girl," and the latter's sister, now Mrs. Waldorf Astor, Jr., is a surgeon in the United States navy, and the third member of his family to be married within the year. The others were Miss Langhorne, who married Capt. Powell Clayton, U.S.A., soon after the latter's sister became Baroness Moncheur, wife of the Belgian Minister to this capital; and Miss Nora Langhorne, whose union with Stanley Washburn, son of former Senator Washburn of Minnesota, was an event of the late autumn.

Engagements next to weddings are of social importance at a season when, as the poet tells us, "a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love." And so people here are much interested in the engagement of Miss Harriet Southerland, daughter of Commander and Mrs. Southerland, to Alfredo Calderon, son of a former Minister from Peru, and at one time Charge d'Affaires of the Peruvian legation in this city. Miss Southerland inherited a valuable library from her maternal grandfather, which may account for her serious turn of mind and literary aspirations.

Another engagement of peculiar interest to people in general, which was recently announced in New York, is that of Gen. James Grant Wilson and Mrs. Mary H. Nicholson, widow of Rear Admiral Nicholson, U.S.N. The marriage is to take place on May 16 at the bride's home in New York and be a very quiet affair because of the mourning of Mrs. Nicholson's family for her brother, the late Henry A. Martin of St. Louis and New York. It was not intended that the news should get out until after the couple had started South on their wedding trip, but Gen. Nelson A. Miles, who is to serve as best man, was too pleased over his friend's prospect of happiness to keep the matter a secret.

Not since the adjournment of Continental Congress has the D.A.R. Hall been filled with such a fashionable audience as assembled Monday evening to witness the performance of "Everyman" by the Ben Greet players, and again on Tuesday evening to see "Much Ado About Nothing." On the first night were wresent Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, the British Ambassador and Mrs. Bryce, the Russian Ambassador and Baroness Rosen, Mrs. Beekman Winthrop, wife of the newly-appointed Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, who enjoys the distinction of being among the youngest of the group of representative matrons in official life; Miss Corrie Scheffer, the young Dutch violinist, who, dressed in the quaint peasant costume of the Netherlands, entertained Mrs. Roosevelt's guests on Tuesday evening; Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Holmes and the Misses Holmes of Kentucky, who are here for the Langhorne-Gaff wedding festivities, and many others prominent in resident circles.

The British Ambassador and Mrs. James Bryce were dinner hosts par excellence on Wednesday evening, when their guests of honor were Admiral Neville, in command of the second cruiser squadron at Jamestown, and his officers. Later in the evening several hundred persons called in response to an invitation to meet the distinguished men of the British fleet. Mrs. Grant Watson, who was formerly Miss Low of New York, Mrs. Ryan, wife of the naval attaché, and Lady Isabella Howard, wife of the counselor, were the Embassy ladies assisting Mrs. Bryce in receiving.

Hon. Maud Pauncefote, daughter of a former Ambassador, was also an assistant, and took her place quite naturally in the center of a group of friends, whom she had known when her family lived and dispensed charming hospitality within those same walls. Later in the week, Miss Pauncefote joined the Minister from the Netherlands, Madame von Swinderen and a number of Washington people for a trip to North Carolina, where they are to form part of a house party being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. George Vanderbilt, at Biltmore.

A distinguished visitor of the week was Dr. Thomas Law, the English Low Church representative, who is in this country in the interest of church federation and union. Dr. Law was entertained by the President, and listened to by the ministers of all evangelical denominations. But the real social lion of the season is Herr Edgardo Oberstetter, composer, virtuoso and eminent opera and concert singer of Germany, who was heard by a select few at the Washington Club. The hosts on this occasion were members of the Friday Morning Music Club, an exclusive organization, presided over by Mrs. Bradford, wife of the admiral, who, since his retirement from active duties in the navy, has won quite a reputation as a whist player.

The following Californians were seen on Pennsylvania avenue within the week; Mr. and Mrs. McInerney of San Francisco; Miss Warner of Oakland and Mr. Marshall C. Harris of San Francisco.

GRACE PORTER HOPKINS.

THE RIVER AMAZON.

Itself and Tributaries Give More Than Fifty Thousand Miles of Navigation.

A sea rather than a river is the Amazon with 160 miles of width at its mouth. The Amazon drains a territory of 2,500,000 square miles, ten times the area of France, and in connection with itself and its tributaries there are said to be 50,000 miles of navigable water, one-half of which is suitable for steam navigation by large vessels. The number, length, and volume of the Amazon's tributaries are in proportion to its magnitude. More than twenty superb rivers, 1000 miles and upward in length, pour their waters into it, and streams of less importance are numberless. At the junction of the Ucayali with the Amazon, a line of fifty fathoms does not reach the bottom, and in breadth it is more like a sea than a river. The longest tributary, the Madeira, has a length of 2000 miles. The distance from the source of the Amazon in the Andes to the Atlantic Ocean is 2000 miles in a direct line, but by the course of the river it is nearly 4000 miles.

The Earl of Portsmouth's interests are not by any means confined to politics. He is devoted to music and is a regular attendant at the opera. He is noted for his courtesy and his high sense of duty, both social and political.

LOS ANGELES

Welcome, Shriners! Welcome, Strangers! Welcome, Los Angelans!

A downtown home is this—a place to shop, to rest, to visit. Be your pleasure what it may, this store is here to serve. It's usefulness ends only where the impossible begins—all has been done that can be done to make of it a pleasant, cheerful, attractive store. To whom La Fiesta bring the want of newer things and they who in the city seek a more elaborate showing of merchandise than can be seen at home, will find much of interest here. The story in part is told below—a short chapter from a great volume. You'll be welcome to look, welcome to visit—always welcome.

ample Garments and Odd Sizes From Los Angeles' Greatest Suit Showing day sees the climax of this season's more than successful suit selling—the offering at half of all single styles and odd sizes that have accrued during the six weeks since this store opened. Nearly every line ltra-fashionable spring creations contributes one or more garments—making in itself a style collection worthy of special prominence in any store in the world. To this are added several sample lines are just received. Prices are halved for Monday—a fifty per cent. discount applies to every garment in this sale. All sizes, of course, are not to be had in every style, but we're able to offer to early buy- choice of any size from several of the most desired fashions. We advise early purchasing Monday. The choicest garments are sure to be quickly chosen.

Real Souvenirs of The San Francisco Disaster

The Sing Fat Company, of San Francisco (Los Angeles branch on third floor of this store) is known to nearly every curio lover in the land. At the time of the earthquake, Sing Fat Co. was located at 614 Du Pont St., and lost in that terrible disaster something over a million dollars worth of rare Oriental goods. Stored away in the third basement of a down town building were several hundred cases of inexpensive china, crockery and earthenware. Through a catastrophe for which modern history has no precedent, through a fire which destroyed hundreds of human lives and millions of property, these little trinkets survived. They are scarred and blackened but the sentiment attached increases their value a hundred fold.

Because of Sing Fat Co.'s present limited quarters in San Francisco these goods were sent here to dispose of. They will be placed on sale Monday—not at a price commensurate with their value as relics, but at figures sufficently low to permit every Los Angeles visitor taking home a real souvenir of the San Francisco disaster. Prices will be 5c, 10c, 15c and up.

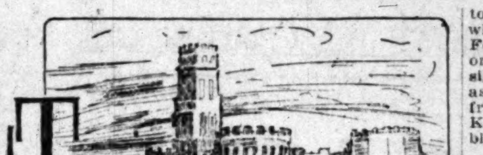
FAIR MARGARET CASTELL



By H. RIDER HAGGARD. FOR READERS of the SUNDAY TIMES.

he stared. Peter was not in the habit of making her presents of flowers. No wonder he had looked strange.

"Then I will help you tie them. Do you know why I am up so early? It is for your sake. I behaved badly to you last night for I was cross because you wanted to thwart me about seeing the King. I never thanked you for all you did, you brave Peter, though I thanked you enough in my heart. Do you know that when you stood there with that sword in the middle of those Englishmen you looked quite noble? Come out into the sunlight, and I will thank your properly."

In his agitation Peter let the remainder of the flowers fall. Then an idea struck him, and he answered:

"Look! I can't; if you are really grateful for nothing at all, come in here and help me to pick up these violets—a pest on their short stalks!"

She hesitated a little, then by degrees drew nearer, and bending down, began to find the flowers one by one. Peter had scattered them wide, so that at first the pair were some way apart, but when only a few remained, they drew close. Now there was but one violet left, and, both stretching for it, their hands met. Margaret held the violet, and Peter held Margaret's fingers. Thus linked they straightened themselves, and as they rose their faces were very near together, and oh! most sweet were Margaret's wonderful eyes; while in the eyes of Peter shone a flame. For a second they looked at each other, and then of a sudden he kissed her on the lips.

CHAPTER IV.

LOVERS DEAR.

"Peter!" gasped Margaret—"Peter!"

But Peter made no answer, only he who had been red of face went whiter, so that the mark of the sword-cut across his cheek showed like a scarlet line upon a cloth.

"Peter!" repeated Margaret, pulling at her hand, which he still held, "do you know what you have done?"

"It seems that you do, so what need is there for me to tell you?" he muttered.

"Then it was not an accident; you really meant it and you are not ashamed."

"If it was I hope that I may meet with many more such accidents."

"Peter, leave go of me. I am going to tell my father at once."

His face brightened.

"Tell him by all means," he said; "he won't mind. He told me——"

"Peter, how dare you add falsehood to—to—you know what. Do you mean to say that my father told you to kiss me, and at six o'clock in the morning, too?"

"He said nothing about kissing, but I suppose he meant it. He said that I might ask you to marry me."

"That," replied Margaret, "is a very different thing. If you had asked me to marry you, and, after thinking it over for a long while, I had answered yes, which of course, I should not have done, then, perhaps, before we were married you might have——. Well, Peter, you have begun at the wrong end, which is very shameless and wicked of you, and I shall never speak to you again."

"I dare say," said Peter resignedly; "all the more reason why I should speak to you while I have the chance. No, you shan't go till you have heard me. Listen. I have been in love with you since you were twelve years old—"

"That must be another falsehood, Peter, or you have gone mad. If you had been in love with me for eleven years, you would have said so."

"I wanted to always, but your father refused me leave. I asked him fifteen months ago, but he put me on my word to say nothing."

"To say nothing—yes, but he could not make you promise to show nothing."

"I thought that the one thing meant the other; I see now that I have been a fool, and, I suppose, have overstayed my market," and he looked so depressed that Margaret relented a little.

"Well," she said, "at any rate it was honest, and of course I am glad that you were honest."

"You said just now that I told falsehoods—twice; if I am honest, how can I tell falsehoods?"

"I don't know. Why do you ask me riddles? Let me go and try to forget all this."

"Not till you have answered me outright. Will you marry me, Margaret? If you won't, there will be no need for you to go, for I shall go and trouble you no more. You know what I am, and all about me, and I have nothing more to say except that, although you may find many finer husbands, you won't find one who would love and care for you better. I know that you are very beautiful, and very rich, while I am neither one nor the other, and often I have wished to heaven that you were not so beautiful, for sometimes that brings trouble on women who are honest and only have one heart to give—or so rich either. But thus things are, and I cannot change them, and, however poor my chance of hitting the dove, I determined to shoot my bolt and make way for the next archer. Is there any chance at all, Margaret? Tell me, and put me out of pain, for I am not good at so much talking."

Now Margaret began to grow disturbed; her wayward assurance departed from her.

"It is not fitting," she murmured, "and I do not wish——I will speak to my father; he shall give you your answer."

"No need to trouble him, Margaret. He has given it already. His great desire is that we should marry, for he seeks to leave this trade and to live with us in the Vale of Dedham, in Essex, where he has bought back my father's land."

"You are full of strange tidings this morning, Peter."

"Yes, Margaret, for our wheel of life that went so slow turns fast enough today, for God above has laid His whip upon the horses of our Fate, and they begin to gallop, whither I know not. Must they run side by side, or separate? It is for you to say."

"Peter," she said, "will you not give me a little time?"

"Aye, Margaret, ten whole minutes by the clock, and then if it is nay, all your life, for I pack my chest and go. It will be said that I feared to be taken for that man's death."

"You are unkind to press me so."

"Nay, it is kindest to both of us. Do you then love some other man?"

"I must confess I do," she murmured, looking at him out of the corners of her eyes.

Now Peter, strong as he was, turned faint, and in his agitation let go her hand, which she lifted, the violets still between her fingers, considering it as though it were a new thing to her.

"I have no right to ask you who he is," he muttered, striving to control himself.

"Nay, but Peter, I will tell you. It is my father—what other man should I love—unless indeed, it were yourself?"

"I can bear no more of this play," he exclaimed. "Mistress Margaret, I bid you farewell. God go with you!" And he brushed past her.

"Peter," she called when he had gone a few yards, "would you have these violets as a farewell gift?"

He turned and hesitated.

So back he came, and with little trembling fingers she began to fasten the flowers to his doublet, bending ever nearer as she fastened, until her breath played upon his face, and her hair brushed his bonnet. Then, it matters not how, once more the violets fell to earth, and she sighed, and her hands fell also, and he put his strong arms around her and drew her to him and kissed her again and yet again on the hair and eyes and lips, nor did she forbid him.

At length she thrust him from her, and, taking him by the hand, led him to the seat beneath the elms, and bade him sit at one end of it, while she sat at the other.

"Peter," she whispered, "I wish to speak with you when I can get my breath. Peter, you think poorly of me, do you not? No—be silent; it is my turn to talk. You think that I am heartless, and have been playing with you. Well, I only did it to make sure that you really do love me, since after that—accident a while ago (when we were picking up the violets, I mean), you would have been in honor bound to say it, would you not? Well, now I am quite sure, so I will tell you something. I love you many times as well as you love me, and have done so for quite as long. Otherwise should I have not have married some other suitor, of whom there have been plenty? Aye, and I will tell you this to my sin and shame, that once I grew so angry with you because you would not speak or give some little sign, that I went near to it. But at the last I could not, and sent him about his business also. Peter, when I saw you last night facing that swordsman with but a staff, and thought that you must die, oh! then I knew all the truth, and my heart was nigh to bursting, as, had you died, it would have burst. But now it is all done with, and we know each other's secret, and nothing shall ever part us more till death comes to one or both."

Thus Margaret spoke, while he drank in her words as desert sands, parched by years of drought, drink in the rain—and watched her face, out of which all mischief and mockery had departed, leaving it that of a most beauteous and most earnest woman, to whom a sense of the weight of life, with its mingled joys and sorrows, had come home suddenly. When she had finished, this silent man, to whom even his great happiness brought few words, said only:

"God has been very good to us. Let us thank God."

So they did, then, there seated side by side upon the bench, because the grass was too wet for them to kneel upon praying in their simple, childlike faith that the power which had brought them together, and taught them to love each other, would bless them in that love and protect them from all harms, enemies and evils through many a long year of life.

Their prayer finished, they sat together on the seat, now talking, and now silent in their joy, while all too fast the time wore on. At length it was after one of those spells of blissful silence—a change came over them, such a change as falls upon some peaceful scene, when unexpected and complete, a black storm cloud sweeps across the sun, and, in place of its warm light, pours down gloom full of the promise of tempest and rain. Apprehension got hold of them. They were both afraid of what they could not guess.

"Come," she said, "it is time to go in. My father will miss us."

So, without more words or endearments, they rose and walked side by side out of the shelter of the elms into the open garden. Their heads were bent, for they were lost in thought, and thus it came about that Margaret saw her feet pass suddenly into the shadow of a man, and, looking up, perceived standing in front of her, grave, alert, amused, none other than Señor d'Aguilar. She uttered a little stifled scream, while Peter, with the impulse that causes a brave and startled hound to rush at that which frightens it, gave a leap forward toward the Spaniard.

"Mother of God! Do you take me for a thief?" he asked, in a laughing voice, as he stepped to one side to avoid him.

"Your pardon," said Peter, shaking himself together; "but you surprised us, appearing so suddenly where we never thought to see you."

"Any more than I thought to see you here, for this seems a strange place to linger on so cold a morning," and he looked at them again, with his curious, mocking eyes, that appeared to read the secret of their souls, while they grew red as roses beneath his scrutiny. "Permit me to explain," he went on. "I came here thus early on your service, to warn you, Master Peter, not to go abroad today, since a writ is out for your arrest, and as yet I have had no time to quash it by friendly settlement. Well, as it chanced, I met that handsome lady who was with you yesterday, returning from her marketing—a friendly soul—she says she is your cousin. She brought me to the house, and having learned that your father, whom I wished to see, was at his prayers, good man, in the old chapel, led me to its door and left me to seek him. I entered, but could not find him, so, having waited a while, strayed into this garden through the open door, purposing a walk here till some one should appear, and, you see, I have been fortunate beyond my expectations or deserts."

"So," said Peter, shortly, for the man's manner and elaborate explanations filled him with disgust. "Let us seek Master Castell that he may hear the story."

"And we thank you very much for coming to warn us," murmured Margaret. "I will go find my father," and she slipped past him toward the door.

D'Aguilar watched her enter it, then turned to Peter and said:

"You English are a hardy folk, who take the spring air so early. Well, in such company I would do the same. Truly she is a beauteous maiden. I have some experience of the sex, but never do I remember one so fair."

"My cousin is well enough," answered Peter, coldly, for this Spaniard's very evident admiration of Margaret did not please him.

"Yes," answered d'Aguilar, taking no notice of his tone, "she is well enough to fill the place, not of a merchant's daughter, but of a great lady—a Countess, reigning over towns and lands, or even a queen; the royal robes and ornaments would become that carriage and that brow."

here comes Master Castell seeking you."

D'Aguilar advanced and greeted the merchant courteously, noticing as he did so that, notwithstanding his efforts to appear unconcerned, Castell seemed ill at ease.

"I am an early visitor," he said, "but I knew that you business folk rise with the lark, and I wished to catch our friend here before he went out," and he repeated to him the reason of his coming.

"I thank you, señor," answered Castell. "You are very good to me and mine. I am sorry that you have been kept waiting. They tell me that you looked for me in the chapel, but I was not there, who had already left it for my office."

"So I found. It is a quaint place, that old chapel of yours, and while I waited I went to the altar and told my beads there, which I had no time to do before I left my lodging."

Castell started almost imperceptibly, and glanced at d'Aguilar with his quick eye, then turned the subject and asked if he would not breakfast with them. He declined, however, saying that he must be about their business and his own, then promptly proposed that he should come to supper on the following night—that was, Sunday—and make report how things had gone, a suggestion that Castell could not but accept.

So he bowed and smiled himself out of the house, and walked thoughtfully into Holborn, for it pleased him to pay this visit on foot, and unattended. At the corner who should he meet again but the tall, fair-haired Betty, returning from some errand which she had found it convenient to fulfill just then.

"What," he cried, "you once more! The saints are very kind to me this morning. Come, señorita, walk a little way with me, for I would ask a few questions."

Betty hesitated, then gave way. It was seldom that she found the chance of walking through Holborn with such a noble-looking cavalier.

"Never look at your working dress," he said. "With such a shape, what matters the robe that covers it?" A compliment at which Betty blushed, for she was proud of her fine figure.

"Would you like a mantilla of real Spanish lace for your head and shoulders? Well, you shall have one that I brought from Spain with me, for I know no other lady in the land whom it would become better. But, Mistress Betty, you told me wrong about your master. I went to the chapel, but he was not there."

"He was there, señor," she answered, eager to set herself right with this most agreeable and discriminating foreigner, "for I saw him go in a moment before, and he did not come out again."

"Then, señorita, where could he have hidden himself? Has the place a crypt?"

"None that I ever heard of, but," she added, "there is a kind of little room behind the altar."

"Indeed. How do you know that? I saw no room."

"Because one day I heard a voice behind the tapestry, señor, and, lifting it, saw a sliding door left open, and Master Castell kneeling before a table and saying his prayers aloud."

"How strange! And what was there on the table?"

"Only a queer-shaped box of wood, like a little house, and two candlesticks, and some rolls of parchment. But I forgot, señor, I promised Master at me like a watchdog out of its kennel! You won't say that I told you, will you, señor?"

"Not I; your good master's private cupboard does not interest me. Now I want to know something more. Why is that beautiful cousin of yours not married? Has she no suitors?"

"Suitors, señor? Yes, plenty of them, but she sends them all about their business, and seems to have no mind that way."

"Perhaps she is in love with her cousin, that long-legged, strong-armed, wooden-headed, Master Brome?"

"Oh! no, señor, I don't think so; no lady could be in love with him—he is too stern and silent."

"I agree with you, señorita. Then perhaps he is in love with her?"

Betty shook her head, and replied:

"Peter Brome doesn't think anything of women, señor. At least he never speaks to or of them."

"Which shows that probably he thinks about them all the more. Well, well, it is no affair of ours, is it? Only I am glad to hear that there is nothing between them, since your mistress ought to marry high, and be a great lady, not a mere merchant's wife."

"Yes, señor. Though Peter Brome is not a merchant, at least by birth, he is high-born, and should be Sir Peter Brome if his father had not fought on the wrong side and sold his land. He is a soldier, and a very brave man, they say, as all might see last night."

"No doubt, and perhaps would make a great captain, if he had the chance, with his stern face and silent tongue. But, Señora Betty, say, how comes it that, being so handsome," and he bowed, "you are not married, either? I am sure it can be from no lack of suitors?"

Again Betty, foolish girl, flushed with pleasure at the compliment.

"You are right, señor," she answered. "I have plenty of them; but I am like my cousin—they do not please me. Although my father lost his fortune, I come of good blood, and I suppose that is why I do not care for these low-born men, and would rather remain as I am than marry one of them."

"You are quite right," said d'Aguilar in his sympathetic voice. "Do not stain your blood. Marry in your own class, or not at all, which indeed, should not be difficult for one so beautiful and charming." And he looked into her large eyes with tender admiration.

This quality, indeed, soon began to demonstrate itself, so actively, for they were now in the fields where few people wandered, that Betty, who although vain was proud and upright, thought it wise to recollect that she must be turning homeward. So, in spite of his protests, she left him and departed walking upon air.

How slender and handsome this foreign gentleman was, she thought to herself, really a great cavalier, and surely, he admired her truly. Why should he not? Such things had often been. Many a rich lady whom she knew was not half so handsome or so well born as she was, and would make him a worse wife—that is, and the thought chilled her somewhat—if he were not already married.

From all of which it will be seen that d'Aguilar had quickly succeeded in the plan which only presented itself to him a few hours before. Betty was already half in love with him. Not that he had any desire to possess tool, a stepping-stone by means of which he might draw near to Margaret. For with Margaret it may be said at once, he was quite in love. At the sight of her sweet yet imperial beauty, as he saw her first, dishevelled, angry, frightened, in the crowd outside the King's banqueting hall, his southern blood had taken sudden fire.

Finished voluptuary though he was, the sensation he experienced then was quite new to him. He longed for this woman as he had never longed for any other, and, what is more, he desired to make her his wife. Why not? Although there was a flaw in it, his rank was high, and therefore she was beneath him. But for this her loveliness would atone, and she had wit and learning enough to fill any place that he could give her. Also, great as was his wealth, his wanton, spendthrift way of life, had brought him many debts, and she was the only child of one of the richest merchants in England, whose dower, doubtless, would be a fortune that many a royal princess might envy. Why not? He would turn Inez and those others adrift—at any rate, for a while—and make her mistress of his palace there in Granada. Instantly, as is often the fashion of those who have eastern blood in their veins, d'Aguilar had made up his mind, yes, before he left her father's table on the previous night. He would marry Margaret and no other woman.

Yet, at once he had seen many difficulties in his path. To begin with, he mistrusted him of Peter, that strong, quiet man who could kill a great armed knave with his stick, and at a word call half London to his side. Peter, he was sure, being human, must be in love with Margaret, and he was a rival to be feared. Well, if Margaret had no thoughts of Peter, this mattered nothing, and if she had—and what were they doing together in the garden that morning. Peter must be got rid of, that was all. It was easy enough if he chose to adopt certain methods; there were many of these Spanish fellows who would not mind sticking a knife into his back in the dark.

But, sinful as he was, at such steps his conscious halted. Whatever d'Aguilar had done, he had never caused a man to be actually murdered, he who was a bigot, who atoned for his misdoings by periods of remorse and prayer, in which he placed his purse and talents at the service of the church, as he was doing at this moment. No, murder must not be thought of; for how could any absolution wash him clean of that stain? But there were other ways. For instance, had not this Peter, in self-defense it is true, killed one of the servants of an ambassador of Spain? Perhaps, however, it would not be necessary to make use of them. It had seemed to him that the lady was not ill pleased with him, and, after all, he had much to offer. He would court her fairly, and if he were rejected by her, or by her father, then it would be time enough to act.

Meanwhile, he would keep the sword hanging over the head of Peter, pretending that it was he alone who prevented it from falling, and learn all that he could as to Castell and his history.

Here, indeed, fortune, in the shape of Betty, had favored him. Without doubt, as he had heard in Spain, and been sure from the moment that he first saw him, Castell was still secretly a Jew. Mistress Betty's story of the room behind the altar, with the ark and the candles and the rolls of the Law, proved as much. At least here was evidence enough to send him to the fires of the Inquisition in Spain, and, perhaps, to drive him out of England. Now, if John Castell, the Spanish Jew, should not wish, for any reason, to give him his daughter in marriage, would not a hint and an extract from the commission of their majesties of Spain and the Holy Father suffice to make him change his mind?

Thus pondering, d'Aguilar regained his lodgings, where his first task was to enter in a book all that Betty had told him, and all that he had observed in the house of John Castell.

CHAPTER V.

CASTELL'S SECRET.

In John Castell's house it was the men, to eat their morning and mid-day meals with him in his hall, seated at two lower tables, all of them save Betty, his daughter's cousin and companion, who sat with them at the upper board. This morning Betty's place was empty, and presently Castell, lifting his eyes, for he was lost in thought, noted it, and asked where she might be—a question that neither Margaret nor Peter could answer.

One of the servants at the lower table, however—it was that man who had been sent to follow d'Aguilar on the previous night—said that as he came down Holborn a while before he had seen her walking with the Spanish don, a saying at which his master looked grave.

Just as they were finishing their meal, a very silent one, for none of them seemed to have anything to say, and after the servants had left the hall, Betty arrived, flushed as though with running.

"Where have you been that you are so late?" asked Castell.

"To seek the linen for the new sheets, but it was not ready," she answered glibly.

"The mercer keep you waiting long," remarked Castell quietly. "Did you meet any one?"

"Only the folk in the street."

"I will ask you no more questions, lest I should cause you to lie and bring you into sin," said Castell sternly. "Girl, how far did you walk with the Señor d'Aguilar, and what was your business with him?"

Now Betty knew that she had been seen, and that it was useless to deny the truth.

"Only a little way," she answered, "and that because he prayed me to show him his path."

"Listen, Betty," went on Castell, taking no notice of her words. "You are old enough to guard yourself, therefore as to your walking abroad with gallants who can mean you no good, I say nothing. But know this—no one who has a knowledge of the matters of my house," and he looked at her keenly, "shall mix with any Spaniard. If you are found alone with this señor any more, that hour I have done with you, and you never pass my door again. Nay, no words. Take your food and eat it elsewhere."

So she departed half weeping, but very angry, for Betty was strong and obstinate by nature. When she had gone, Margaret, who was fond of her cousin, tried to say some words on her behalf, but her father stopped her.

"Pshaw!" he said, "I know the girl; she is vain as a peacock, and, remembering her gentle birth and good looks, seeks to marry above her station; while for some purposes of his own—an ill one, I warrant—that Spaniard plays upon her weakness, which, if it be not curbed, may bring trouble on us all. Now, enough of Betty Dene; I must do my work."

"Sir," said Peter, speaking for the first time, "we would have a private word with you."

"A private word," he said, loking up anxiously. "Well, speak on. No, this is not private; I think its walls have ears. Follow me," and he led the way into the old chapel, whereof, when they had all passed it, he bolted the door. "Now," he said, "what is it?"

"Sir," answered Peter, standing before him, "having your leave at last, I asked your daughter in marriage this morning."

"At least you lose no time, friend Peter; unless you had called her from her bed and made your offer through the door, you could not have done it quicker. Well, well, you ever were a man of deeds, not words, and what says my Margaret?"

"An hour ago she said she was content," answered Peter.

"A cautious man also," went on Castell, with a twinkle in his eye, "who remembers that women have been known to change their minds within an hour. After such long thought, what say you now, Margaret?"

"That I am angry with Peter," she answered, stamping her small foot, "for if he does not trust me for an hour, how can he trust me for his life and mine?"

"Nay, Margaret, you do not understand me," said Peter. "I wished not to bind you, that is all, in case——"

"Now, you are saying it again," she broke in, vexed and yet amused. "Do so a third time, and I will take you at your word."

"It seems best that I should remain silent. Speak you," said Peter humbly.

"Aye, for truly you are a master of silence, as I should know, if any do," replied Margaret, bethinking her of the weary months and years of waiting. "Well, I will answer for you. Father, Peter was right; I am content to marry him, though to do so will be to enter the Order of the Silent Brothers. Yes, I am content; not for himself, indeed, who has so many faults, but for myself, who chance to love him," and she smiled sweetly enough.

"Do not jest on such matters, Margaret."

"Why not, father; Peter is solemn enough for both of us—look at him. Let us laugh while we may, for who knows when tears may come."

"A good saying," answered Castell with a sigh. "So you two have plighted your troth, and, my children, I am glad of it, for who knows when those tears of which Margaret spoke may come, and then you can wipe away each other's? Take now her hand, Peter, and swear by the Rood, that symbol which you worship"—here Peter glanced at him, but he went on—'swear both of you', that come what may, together or separate, through good report or evil report, through poverty or wealth, through peace or persecutions, through temptation or through blood, through every good or ill that can befall you in this world of bitter-sweet, you will remain faithful to your troth until you be wed, and after you are wed, faithful to each other till death do part you."

These words he spoke to them in a voice that was earnest almost to passion, searching their faces the while with his quick eyes as though he would read their very hearts. His mood crept from him to them; once again they felt something of that fear which had fallen on them in the garden when they passed into the shadow of the Spaniard. Very solemnly then, and with little of true lovers' joy, did they take each other's hands and swear by the Cross and Him Who hung on it, that through these things, and all others they could not foretell, they would, if need were, be faithful to the death.

"And beyond it also," added Peter; while Margaret bowed her stately head in sweet assent.

"Children," said Castell, "you will be rich—few richer in this land—though mayhap it would be wise that you should not show all your wealth at once, or ape the place of a great house, lest envy should fall upon your heads and crush you. Be content to wait, and rank will find you in its season, or if not you, your children. Peter, I tell you now, lest I should forget it, that the list of all my moneys and other possessions in chattels or lands or ships or merchandise is buried beneath the floor of my office, just under where my chair stands. Lift the boards and dig away a foot of rubbish, and you will find a stone trap, and below an iron box with the deeds, inventories, and some very precious jewels. Also, if by any mischance that box should be lost, duplicates of nearly all these papers are in the hands of my good friend and partner in our inland, British trade, Simon Levitt, whom you know. Remember my words, both of you."

"Father," broke in Margaret in an anxious voice, "why do you speak of the future thus?—I mean, as though you had no share in it? Do you fear aught?"

"Yes, daughter, much, or rather I expect, I do not fear, who am prepared and desire to meet all things as have you not? And you [illegible] will you not?"

"Aye!" they answered [illegible] breath.

"Then prepare you to [illegible] weight of the first of the[illegible] whereof it speaks, for I will [illegible] hold back the truth from you. [illegible] I, whom for all these years you [illegible] thought of your own faith, am [illegible] as my forefathers were before [illegible] back to the days of Abraham."

The effect of this declaration [illegible] its hearers was remarkable. [illegible] jaw dropped, and for the second [illegible] that day his face went white. [illegible] Margaret sank down into a chair [illegible] stood near by, and stared at [illegible]lessly. In those times it was a [illegible] terrible thing to be a Jew. [illegible] looked from one to the other [illegible] feeling the insult of their silence [illegible] angry.

"What!" he said in a bitter [illegible] "are you like all the others? [illegible] scorn me also because I am of [illegible] more ancient and honorable th[illegible] of any of your mushroom [illegible] kings? You know my life; [illegible] have I done wrong? Have I [illegible] Christian children and crucif[illegible] to death? Have I defrauded [illegible] bor or oppressed the poor? [illegible] mocked your symbol of the [illegible] Have I conspired against the [illegible] the land? Have I been a fal[illegible] or a cruel father? You sha[illegible] heads; then why do you stare [illegible] as though I were a thing acc[illegible] unclean? Have I not a right [illegible] faith of my fathers? May I [illegible] ship God in my own fashion?" [illegible] looked at Peter, a challenge [illegible] eyes.

"Sir," answered Peter, "w[illegible] doubt you may, or so it seems. [illegible] But then why for all these y[illegible] you appeared to worship [illegible] ours?"

At this blunt question, so [illegible]istic of the speaker, Castell [illegible] to shrink like a pin-pricked [illegible] or some bold fighter who [illegible]denly received a sword-thrust [illegible] vitals. All the courage went [illegible] the man, his fiery eyes grew [illegible] appeared to become visibly [illegible] and to put on something of [illegible] of those mendicants of his [illegible] who whine out their woes [illegible] alms of the passer-by. When [illegible] spoke, it was as a suppliant [illegible]ciful judgment at the hands of [illegible] child and her lover.

"Judge me not harshly," [illegible] "Think what it is to be a [illegible] outcast, a thing that the low[illegible] spurn and spit at, one beyond [illegible] one who can be hunted from [illegible] land like a mad wolf, and [illegible] to death, when caught, for the [illegible] of gentle Christians, who fir[illegible] stripped him of his gains [illegible] garments. And then think [illegible] means to escape all these [illegible] terrors, and by doffing of a [illegible] and the mumbling of certain [illegible] with the lips in public, to [illegible]tuary peace and protection [illegible] the walls of mother church [illegible] fostered, to grow rich and [illegible]

He paused as though for [illegible] but as they did not speak, we[illegible]

"Moreover, as child, I was [illegible] into your church; but my [illegible] that of my father remained [illegible] Jews, and where the heart [illegible] feet follow."

"That makes it worse," [illegible] as though speaking to himself.

"My father taught me thus," [illegible] went on, as though pleading [illegible] before a court of law.

"We must answer for our [illegible] said Peter again.

Then at length Castell took [illegible]

CLEVER IN MANY WAYS IS THIS NOBLEWOMAN.

BARONESS ORCZY,
the Austrian noblewoman who is said to be one of the most versatile and clever women of the day—a painter, a novelist and a playwright.

AMONG those in the public eye in England at the present is Baroness Orczy, who is known as an extremely versatile and clever woman. She is at once novelist, playwright and painter. She has exhibited several times at the Royal Academy; she has done some excellent black-and-white work, and has delved into the mysteries and beauties of silver-point drawing; she has written many short stories, including a popular series of detective stories for the Royal Magazine; in the last two years she has published four novels, and a fifth is on the point of issue; and she has written two successful plays, one, "The Scarlet Pimpernel," in collaboration with her husband, Montagu Barstow. In addition to all this, she sat for many of his most popular pictures to Edwin Long, R. A., who had an intense dislike for professional models.

In a moment of autobiographical reverie, Baroness Orczy recently said:

"Although all my literary successes have been achieved in England with English books, I am a Hungarian by birth, and never came to England or spoke a word of English until I was 15.

"I was born at Tarna-Eors, in Hungary, and am about the last of a very ancient Hungarian aristocratic family, who all served their country from time immemorial in the diplomatic and foreign service. My father, Baron Orczy, was a distinguished diplomatist, as well as an accomplished musician, and at one time was director of the National Operahouse of Budapest. Thus it was that I distinctly recollect my first experiences of the theater—namely, at 4 years of age witnessing part of a performance of Gounod's 'Faust.'

"I originally meant to be an artist—a great artist, nothing short of Angelica Kauffman's fame would satisfy me. I studied art very seriously for years, and, strange to say, was most enthusiastic about it—strange, because I never had more than a very superficial talent for it, and never seemed to have had the faintest desire to write, or exhibited the slightest talent for it.

"But I was always a great reader and an ardent playgoer, and I suppose was quite unconsciously storing away in my mind ideas and knowledge of technique, observations of character, and dramatic notions, which must have fermented for years, and stood me in good stead when I finally took up literature as the work of my life."

Baroness Orczy's first play, "The Scarlet Pimpernel," was afterward brought out as a novel. She and her husband did not have the traditional experiences of budding playwrights. Referring to this play, which was a great success when produced at the New Theater in London by Julia Neilson and Fred Terry, the Baroness says:

"'The Scarlet Pimpernel' was first written as a play by my husband and myself in collaboration. Unlike the habitual outcry of the unknown dramatist, we are bound to confess that we had no difficulty in getting our play read and accepted by the very first management to whom we submitted it.

"It may interest the aforesaid despondent and still unknown dramatists that our first play was written, accepted and produced (tentatively in the provinces) all within nine months. We had no connection with the stage in any previous capacity; my husband was an artist, and I was then only a writer of short magazine stories, and with the exception of an extremely able and kind critic, knew not a soul connected with the stage."

rse, the careless person may misled by a casual glance To settle this question of the law of supply and de- money, it will not do to a table showing the gold and coinage of the world of years, however long covered may be. One can periods in the history of money was larger than at another given period, and yet the one with the largest per capita of money in existence may be dull, while the period with the smaller per capita of money in existence may be brisk.

Some of the writers very lucidly point out that we must take into account the volume of money and multiply that by the velocity of its circulation in order to find the effective power of money upon the industries of the time. Another thing: this law, like other economical laws, does not work with the promptitude of the law of gravity upon the body unsuspended in the air. There may be times when many other influences come into play which may tend to retard the operation of this law. Such a time as referred to here may be compared to an eddy in a stream. The water may seem to be running up hill, but, in spite of the eddy, the volume will get to the sea in time.

One of the most valuable features in the book is the elaborate tables showing the production of gold in different periods for the nations of the world, the coinage of the precious metals, and the prices of commodities and the wages paid for labor.

Of course, the conclusion reached by nearly all the writers engaged in making up this symposium is, as might be expected, in favor of the proposition that an increased supply of gold or any other stable must always result in a period of greater prosperity, with rising prices for commodities and for labor, and lower rates of interest for the money itself.

A New York Story.

UNDER THE HARROW. By Ellis Meredith. Little, Brown & Co., Boston. (Price $1.50.)

This is a New York story. It is not only about the great city, but it is of it. No thoroughbred New York story would do without a divorce, and a divorce is part of the action in "Under the Harrow." Also no genuine New York tale would be without some up-to-date ism. Ellis Meredith has incorporated in the story some debates pro and con (and the debates are not without point and merit) on the euthanasia theory. But in one respect the New York code of procedure is grossly violated. Some of the band of struggling geniuses whose trials and triumphs form the theme of the book, are taken in by two fine old maids and given a basement rent-free. It warms the cockles of the heart to read of such kindness, but it is not New York. The great city gives returns only for coin, blood or toil—and not always for these.

These are, however, the excrescences of the book. The title is an excellent one, and one that tells something of the story. A girl's chances of success in making a living by her brains is the theme. There isn't a girl journalist, an artist, and a girl who is trying to write, but has a hidden talent for the stage; and among their men friends, a struggling attorney, a Columbia student, a second violinist and a playwright. Their experiences are human and entertaining and they all come out right in the end, although there are some perilous passages to be made. The characters are fairly well drawn, and the dialogue and incident are good, but a too accurate description of death by cancer, and too frequent returns to the euthanasia theory, make one question the tone of the whole.

NEW PHILIPPINE BOOK.

Writer Whose Work Is Familiar to Readers of The Times Has Completed History of the Islands.

Hamilton Wright, who has lately returned from the Philippines, has just completed "A Handbook of the Philippine Islands," covering a period of time dating from the early occupation by the Spaniards down to the present date. Mr. Wright spent many months in all the islands and traveled further through the interior than any other American writer. He made a most thorough research of their civil and political government, agricultural and mineral resources, together with conditions as they exist at the present time. He was instrumental in securing the best permanent collection of Philippine industrial exhibits yet sent to this country. Coming from Mr. Wright the volume should assuredly be most interesting and readable, and should be in the hands of all interested in our insular possessions. The book, which will contain more than one hundred original unpublished photographs, will shortly be issued by A. C. McClurg & Co. of Chicago.

Hamilton Wright is not unknown to readers of the Los Angeles Times, a series of his Philippine articles having appeared from time to time in the Sunday Magazine section. Mr. Wright is planning a South American trip during the coming fall and winter, at which time his Sunday letters will be resumed.

HE BECOMES WHIMSICAL.

Howells Turns His Genius to Socialism, and Draws a Fanciful Picture of How It Might Work.

A new novel by William Dean Howells is always an event, but his latest book, "Through the Eye of the Needle," is doubly interesting, because in it he is actually caught in the act of poking fun. This novel tells the whimsical story of how a certain kind of Socialism really works.

A traveler from Altruria falls in love with and marries a charming American woman, takes her to Altruria, where she has an interesting time learning how to live in a country which has no money, and where one can get things only by working three hours a day—a country where you can't tell a cook from a lord, or a farmer from a poet. It is a delightful story of love among peculiar conditions.

The significance of the title lies in the fact that the heroine finds herself confronted by the dilemma of relinquishing her great fortune, which would be in no use in Altruria, or relinquishing happiness, as represented by the man she loves and the ideal land to which he would take her.

ROME'S STORY IN ENGLISH.

Ferrero's Classic History, Long Known to Students, Has Now Been Translated.

"The Greatness and Decline of Rome," by Guglielmo Ferrero, will be published in the near future, under the Putnam imprint in a two-volume edition. The translation has been made by Alfred E. Zimmerman, M.A., Fellow of New College, Oxford. This book is known to students as a great work, remarkable alike for profound and minute knowledge, vivid picturesqueness, philosophic significance, charm of style and for its "architectonics"—its just structural proportions and its fine sense of relative values. Something of the author's purpose may be gathered from the following passage from his preface:

"I hope that my book has enabled me to demonstrate that the Roman world-conquest, one of the most amazing spectacles in history, which, seen from a distance, seem to defy both comparison and explanation, was in reality the effect, remarkable, indeed, for its special conditions of place and time, of an internal transformation which is continually being reenacted in the history of societies on a larger or a smaller scale, promoted by the same causes and with the same resultant confusion and suffering—the growth of a nationalist and industrial democracy on the ruins of a federation of agricultural aristocracies."

ACCEPTED FIVE TIMES.

A Story by Miss Hannis Is Taken by Four Publishers With Reservation and Fifth Without.

The public is familiar with anecdotes of books which were rejected again and again, and then, after many trials, were accepted by some discerning publisher. An anecdote of another kind related to Myra Kelly, whose first short story was sent simultaneously to four magazines, and then, much to the author's astonishment, was accepted by all four.

A recent occurrence, recalling in some ways Miss Kelly's experience, relates to a story by Margaret Hannis, entitled "The Emancipation of Miss Susana." Having sent it to the magazine of largest circulation in the country, Miss Hannis received a letter accepting it, on condition that she would shorten it. Unwilling to do this, she tried another famous magazine, but obtained the same response—acceptance if shortened. On making a third attempt, she again got a request for condensation, with a promise to publish.

In trying for the fourth time, she reluctantly shortened the story, and then sent it to another prominent magazine, which replied that it would publish the story as received. Meanwhile the story, in its original long form, had been submitted by the author to the Funk & Wagnalls Company as a book in their "Hour-Glass Series." The same mail which brought from the fourth magazine acceptance of it in its short form, brought from the Funk & Wagnalls Company an acceptance in its long form. As Miss Hannis from the start had desired publication without condensation, she at once closed a contract for its addition to the Hour-Glass Series. "The Emancipation of Miss Susana" will be published in the early autumn.

MAKING USE OF MISFORTUNE.

Injuries in Helicon Hall Fire Do Not Discourage a Well-Known Writer, Who Recreates Lost Work.

Grace MacGowan Cooke, one of the well known "MacGowan Sisters," who were severely injured at the recent fire at Helicon Hall, had just previously completed a novelette for Lippincott's Magazine. The day of the catastrophe but before the news had gone abroad, the editor wrote a letter to Mrs. Cooke suggesting certain changes in the plot of her story. When able to dictate a reply Mrs. Cooke said, "when I was in such pain the night after I was hurt, that story ran in my head and I revised it a great deal. When your letter was received a day later I found that our thoughts had run along the same line regarding revision. Was this telepathy?"

Mrs. Cooke lost everything, as she herself put it, "except my two children and my sister." From $10,000 to $15,000 worth of manuscript went up in the flames, besides personal effects. Her spine is injured seriously, though, it is hoped, not permanently; yet her courage and optimism are epitomized in her words: "I feel that anything of value which I had thoroughly realized will be recreated in better shape." Surely so brave a spirit deserves success a thousandfold.

PEOPLE AND THINGS LITERARY.

The Macmillan Company will publish this month a book entitled "The Reform Movement in Judaism," by David Philipson, D.D. Dr. Philipson is a rabbi of Cincinnati, and a writer well known to the Jews of this country.

Messrs. McClure, Phillips & Co. will introduce a new novelist this spring, whose first book, to appear under the title of "The Artist Temperament," has already made a great hit in London. The identity of the author is kept even from the publishers, the pen name "Jane Wardle" being used. The story deals with the lives of London painter folk.

A second edition of "Songs from the Golden Gate," by Ina D. Coolbrith, will soon be issued by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. Besides attractive illustrations by William Keith, the volume will contain a photogravure portrait of the author. It will be remembered that the little library in San Francisco, of which Miss Coolbrith was librarian, was totally destroyed by the earthquake a year ago.

It has been printed in many papers that "The Silent Door," by Florence Wilkinson, published by McClure, Phillips & Co. this spring, is this author's first novel. This is a mistake, as she has had two novels published previously, namely, "The Strength of the Hills," published by Harper Brothers, and "The Lady of the Flag-Flowers," published by Herbert S. Stone.

Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, who was one of the experts in the Thaw trial, is making the translation of J. Grasset's work of half-mad and half-responsible persons (in the French edition called "Demifous et Demiresponsibles") which the Funk & Wagnalls Company are soon to bring out by arrangement made with the author's representatives in Paris.

Marion L. D. Barton, the author of the new psychological novel "A Study in Perfection," writes that remembering how Henry James said that when he read American novels he "did not feel that he had had $1.50 worth of life." "I have drawn all of my characters from life." The purpose of the story, she says, "is to draw attention anew to the precariousness of union with people of neurotic or unfortunate hereditary taints."

That there are two Duncans, both of them authors, has given rise in some quarters to a confusion of the two. They are brothers; Norman Duncan and Robert Kennedy Duncan. Norman Duncan is the author of the new novel, "The Cruise of the Shining Light," and other notable fiction. Robert Kennedy Duncan has won wide popularity as a scientific writer who writes with knowledge and authority and at the same time with charm, and whose most recent work is the series on "The Chemistry of Commerce," which has been appearing in Harper's Magazine.

Nearly thirty years have elapsed since the first publication of W. G. Rawlinson's description and catalogue of "Turner's Liber Studiorum." In this period the author has acquired a considerable amount of new information, which he has embodied in the revised edition of his work just issued by the Macmillan Company. In addition to an exhaustive annotated catalogue, the volume contains a carefully prepared introduction, and a large number of letters and memoranda bearing on the Liber.

The popularity of the Teddy Bears of the moment recalls the fact that the origin of this whole idea was the Johnny Bear of Ernest Thompson Seton. Mr. Seton created in story and in drawing in 1897 that inimitable and lifelike small animal whose charm has started the bear fashion that has made the bear the leading nursery animal of the day.

"Police Courts as News Centers" is one of the striking chapters in John L. Given's "Making a Newspaper," which Messrs. Henry Holt & Co. will issue on the 20th. Mr. Given, who till recently was on the staff of the New York Evening Sun, is said, in this compact book, to give a detailed account of the business, editorial, reportorial and manufacturing organization of the daily newspaper in a large city, written particularly for the young men and women who want to know the requirements, best methods of making a start, and rewards of journalism; and for country newspaper workers who aim for the prizes of metropolitan journalism.

In "Engines of Social Progress" the author, W. L. George, has described a number of movements of great social significance which have originated in recent years in England. The book is neither a political tract nor a systematic sociological treatise, but is rather a searching though informal discussion of certain phases of the modern movement looking to the improvement of social conditions. Among the subjects discussed are: Organized Emigration; Small Holdings; Rural Housing; Model Villages; Coöperation, etc.

Much of what is written on the labor problems is so theoretical that readers will welcome an intensely practical work by Samuel G. Smith, of the department of sociology in the University of Minnesota, "The Industrial Conflict." The basis of Dr. Smith's book is letters that he has obtained from both sides of the conflict, laborers and employers. These letters are mostly unsigned and therefore more valuable, as being more free in expression. Dr. Smith finds in them a remarkable composite type of mind of the American laborer and the American employer. His own part of the book is his deduction from these novel and confessedly accurate statements of conflicting ideas and demands. The volume is announced from Revells for May 15.

FAIR MARGARET.

But privately they wondered what he would do who could not always remain sick, since not to go to church and partake of the sacraments was to be published as a heretic.

But if he did not accompany them himself, Castell, without their knowledge, sent two of his stoutest servants, bidding these keep near to them and see that they came home safe.

Now, when they left the church Peter saw two Spaniards, whose faces he thought he knew, who seemed to be watching them, but, as he lost sight of them presently in the throng, said nothing. Their shortest way home ran across some fields and gardens where there were few houses. This lane, then, they followed, talking earnestly to each other, and noting nothing till Betty behind them called out to them to beware. Then Peter looked up and saw the two Spaniards scrambling through a gap in the fence not six paces ahead of them, saw also that they laid their hands upon their sword hilts.

"Let us pass them boldly," he muttered to Margaret; "I'll not turn my back on a brace of Spaniards;" but he also laid his hand upon the hilt of the sword he wore beneath his cloak, and bade her get behind him.

Thus, then, they came face to face. Now, the Spaniards, who were evil-looking fellows, bowed courteously enough, and asked if he were not Master Peter Brome. They spoke in Spanish; but, like Margaret, Peter knew this tongue, if not too well, having been taught it as a child, and practiced it much since he came into the service of John Castell, who used it largely in his trade.

"Yes," he answered, "what is your business with me?"

"We have a message for you, señor, from a certain comrade of ours, one Andrew, a Scotchman, whom you met a few night ago," replied the spokesman of the pair. "He is dead, but still he sends his message, and it is that we should ask you to join him at once. Now, all of us brothers have sworn to deliver that message, and to see that you keep the tryst. If some of us should chance to fall, then others will meet you with the message until you keep that tryst."

"You mean that you wish to murder me," said Peter, setting his mouth and drawing the sword from beneath his cloak. "Well, come on, cowards, and we will see whom Andrew gets for company in hell today. Run back, Margaret and Betty—run." And he tore off his cloak and threw it over his left arm.

So for a moment they stood, for he looked fierce and ill to deal with. Then, just as they began to feint in front of him, there came a rush of feet, and on either side of Peter appeared the two stout serving men, also sword in hand.

"I am glad of your company," he said, catching sight of them out of the corners of his eyes. "Now, Señors Cutthroats, do you still wish to deliver that message?"

The answer of the Spaniards, who saw themselves thus unexpectedly outmatched, was to turn and run, whereon one of the serving men picked up a big stone that lay in the path, hurled it after them with all his force. It struck the hindmost Spaniard full in the back, and so heavy was the blow that he fell on his face in the mud, whence he rose and limped away, cursing them with strange, Spanish oaths, and vowing vengeance.

"Now," said Peter, "I think that we may go home in safety, for no more messengers will come from Andrew today."

"No," gasped Margaret, "not today, but tomorrow or the next day they will come, and oh! how will it end?"

"That God alone knows," answered Peter, gravely, as he sheathed his sword.

When the story of this attempt was told to Castell he seemed much disturbed.

Some Matters of Especial Interest to the Women.

Woman and Home.

ODDS AND ENDS OF GOSSIP AND INFORMATION.

BY CATHERINE ALLMAN.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

"Maybe I'm squeamish," said the woman in russet brow effects, "but I had a weird experience with canny Scotch forehandedness last summer that made my blood run cold. The person in question was a widow, twice removed or bereaved, or reprieved, however it may strike your point of view, and she still wore mourning. However, she was quite cheerful with it all, and when I took supper with her one evening I found her unexpectedly delightful. Her silver spoons, though evidently of recent origin, were patterned after antique designs, and I could see they were very bonny in her eyes, and so fell to admiring them extravagantly.

"Well, yes, I am proud of my silver," she said, and then with a sigh and lapsing into her Scottish brogue, 'Jeems and Tammas were both guid men, guid men, and when I came to lay them away I said, "Nought is too good for them," and so I had coffin plates of solid silver made for each of them.'

"I nodded sympathetically at this somewhat material expression of wifely appreciation, but what in the world was she saying?

"'But of course, 'twould have been feckless to bury so much guid silver with the dead and gone, and so—'

"Yes, that's where those spoons came from, and I had to sit and sup tea for half an hour afterward, and look the picture of calm self-enjoyment."

There is a woman in this town who vainly flattered her that she had solved the eternal servant problem. This woman has socialistic leanings, a small dab of philosophy just big enough to misapply, and a wondrous sense of humor respecting other people's trials and besetments. Of course, as you can see, she is a particular friend of mine, and I wouldn't tell a soul in the world, but the truth of the matter is that no real credit was due her for her phenomenal success with her maid, and when it came to an end, like all the other fairy tales, I could see plainly that it was but the workings of Providence.

The servant was a wholesome looking Irish girl, with a very natural capacity for enjoyment and with a string of suitors that would have reached from Cork to Dublin. That is where the lady plumed herself on her sagacity. Instead of discouraging the evening calls of Mary's "followers," she entered into the spirit of the thing, gave the maid some pretty Swiss curtains for the kitchen windows, bought one or two scarlet geraniums for the window sills, and recklessly expended $2.98 for a rocking chair with gayly colored cushions. Of course, Mary was tickled to death, and kept the kitchen neat as wax, with pots and kettles shining.

His mistress was even deep enough to bring about a serious flirtation with the butcher and the grocer, with the canny result that when she sent Mary to the store to market, Mary brought home six lamb chops for a quarter and the pick of the vegetables.

But human nature is the same, or, in other words, Mary, obeying the mandates of her maiden heart, eloped one joyous evening with the policeman on the beat, and that, too, right when madam was entertaining a family reunion sort of an affair. Madam has recalled her forthcoming publication on "How to Treat Servants," for a few necessary revisions and heart-to-heart hints.

I forgot to mention that it was I who told the policeman about Mary.

Coffee was introduced in England about 1650. In the last days of Cromwell's Commonwealth, on May 17, 1657, the Publick Advertiser printed the following notice:

"In Bartholomew Lane, on the back side of the Old Exchange, the drink called coffee, which is a Wholesom and Physical drink, having many excellent vertues, closes the orifice of the Stomach, fortifies the heat within, healpeth digestion, maketh the heart lightsom, is good against eye-sores, coughs, or colds, rhumes, gout, scurvy, or King's evil, and many others, is to be sold both in the morning and at three of the clock in the afternoon."

Tea was introduced into France prior to coffee, but the volatile Gaul did not take to the beverage, and continued to sip his native wine. Finally in 1672 an Armenian, Pascal by name, set up his first coffee shop at the fair of the St. Germain, which was held during the first two spring months of each year. Thither flocked the merchants of all France and foreign countries, and opened stalls and bazaars, where purchasers might procure anything from a Turkish rug to the German wienerwursts. The wily Pascal made cups of steaming hot coffee for merchants and buyers, and so popular became the beverage that he sent boys with pots through the streets of Paris, and made a fortune in trade, and lords and ladies were wont to await his coming with the spring fair with great impatience. Finally, in 1689, an Italian opened up a spice store across from the King's theater of the Comedie Francaise. He also made coffee, and called his place a café, from which the word originated.

"And with the introduction of that insidious drink," says one writer, "the nerves of the French nation became unstrung, and to coffee may be ascribed the French Revolution and other kindred calamities. Voltaire and Diderot met their friends daily at the Café Procope, and, taking their coffee, they overthrew all religions, and while they attacked heaven, they prepared unwittingly the upheaval of the earth."

Visiting cards originated with the Chinese as long ago as 618, during the period of the Tong dynasty. The cards were large and of a bright red color.

Forks were first used in 1220; sugar in Europe about 1250; cabbages were introduced in England in 1510, turkeys in 1523, and bread was first made with yeast about 1631.

The early Greeks knew nothing of the use of butter, while ancient Romans used it as a medicine, never as food. The Christians of Egypt burned butter in their lamps instead of oil.

Hemstitching makes a pretty finishing touch to summer clothes, and may be done on the machine to perfection. First draw the threads as for hand hemstitching, folding the hem and basting, with the edge in the center of the drawn threads. The tension of the machine must now be loosened carefully, and the material stitched as nearly to the edge as possible. When that is done, remove basting threads, pull the edge of the hem to the bottom of the drawn threads, and the hemstitching is done.

Animals that live under water attain great age. A carp has been known to live 200 years (I suppose it was a family pet,) while common river trout have been confined in a well, where they have attained an age of fifty years; and when you come to think of it, goodness only knows how far they had traveled on the river of life before they were caught and incarcerated. It is said, but please understand that the writer does not vouch for the truth of the tale, that a pike was caught in 1497 in a lake near Heilbronne, in Swabia, with a brass ring attached, recording that it had been placed in the lake in 1230.

A FRIEND IN NEED.

Odd Calls on a Woman Who Is a Good Housekeeper.

[New York Sun:] A professional friend in need is the description given by Mrs. Anna J. Dowling of her method of earning a living. necessary for me to support myself," explained Mrs. Dowling, "I felt that I was willing to do almost anything that would not compel me to give up my little home.

"My mother was a practical housekeeper, and believed in her daughter knowing how to do all sorts of housework. When other girls were having a good time we were at home making our own beds and sweeping the stairs. Mother said it was healthy exercise and some day we might be thankful to her for teaching us.

"Well, I have been thankful every minute of my life since I began to earn my own living. My work consists in doing well such things as fall to the lot of most home-makers.

"My patrons are not the very wealthy. That is the very class that I have fought shy of.

"When I began to look around to see what chances a woman with my training had to earn money I noticed that everybody seemed struggling for the patronage of the extremely rich. Nobody seemed interested in getting or keeping the patronage of persons of small means.

"'Very well,' I replied to a friend, who remonstrated with me on learning that I had stated that I did not care for wealthy patrons. 'Very well, it may be absolutely necessary to have the name of one or two wealthy patrons on your card to make a success in New York, but I'm going to try to get along without them. They have money to pay exorbitant prices and everybody is struggling to serve them.

"'I shall make no effort to join the strugglers, but shall devote myself to the great middle class in New York. They have the means and are willing to pay a fair price for my services. That is about all I want. I am not out hunting for a get-rich-quick scheme.'

"What do I do with my patrons? Just about everything a woman with my homely training can.

"In about half an hour's time I have an engagement to take a fat girl to the gymnasium. She goes every day for two hours and her mother does not care to have her go alone. As it was not convenient for her mother or her maid to accompany her every day I was called on.

"Oh, my, no, that is not the first work I have done for the family. My first work was remodeling an armful of silk petticoats. Then there was sickness and a death in the family. I was called on and took entire charge of things.

"Since then this family has continued to call me in for any and every sort of emergency. Not only because they feel that I can be depended on, but because I have learned the working of their household and the little peculiarities of each member of the family.

"Now, this young girl with whom I go to the gymnasium at times becomes very much depressed. From the very first she has worked like a Trojan to reduce her weight, and you can imagine how she felt when at the end of the first week the scales proved to her that she had lost less than three pounds.

"She is young and sensitive and at once wanted to give right up. Of course her physician was against that, and her mother and I had everything we could do to persuade her to go back to the gym.

"That lasted for about three weeks. Since then her flesh has been disappearing as if by magic and she has become quite tractable. Those first three weeks were a strain, and for a time I was sure I would have to give up and possibly lose one of the very best of my patrons.

"Another case I have just now is a young girl who suffers with hallucinations. She does not appear to be able to see and hear things in a normal way. As an instance, when I was with her the other day she insisted that the door was open, though to every one in the room it was plainly visible that the door was closed.

"Then too, she is troubled by hearing voices. No, not spirits, but her friends, the people with whom she is thrown.

"She will be talking in a perfectly rational way and suddenly stop to answer a question which she declares has been propounded to her by another person. Sometimes, that person is present, but as likely as not she is miles away.

"She has been examined and treated by all manner of specialists. None of them has done her any good. She is now convinced that she can be cured only by hypnotism, and I am making arrangements with the hypnotic specialist to give her treatment. So far as I know I shall have to take her to the sanitarium and remain with her during the treatment.

"Oh, I have more peculiar undertakings than that thrust on me. Sometimes I accept such calls, then again I refuse. I refused one call last week, and from a woman who for several months has been an easily satisfied and generous patron.

"Previously she called on me to take charge when she was giving entertainments such as card parties, dinners, and once a dance. Then, too, when she was not feeling in the humor I was sent downtown to do a little shopping or select special pieces of furniture to be sent up for her inspection. Our figures are very much the same and twice I have gone to the dressmaker's to take her first fittings.

"After all this when she called on me the other day I not only refused, but I still feel indignant at her for making me such a proposition. She wanted me to go uptown to act as a detective on a woman whose husband was urging her to promise to marry him.

"Was the man married? Why, certainly, it was his wife I was to go to see.

"I declined and I was so vexed that I told the woman who made me the proposition that it was the first insult I had ever received, and I meant just what I said. I have been called on to cook and serve a dinner, to do the family wash, to scrub the floor of one of the dirtiest hovels on the East Side, but it was all honorable, straightforward work. They were cases of emergency and I not only did them willingly, but I would as willingly do them again; but this woman's proposition was more than I could stand.

"Did the woman who wished to employ me have a husband? Yes, indeed. Had she been a single woman she wouldn't have been so wise, and the man who wanted to get her to promise to marry him wouldn't have been so candid.

"I know of more than two cases in which men and women are engaged to marry each other before either of them begins proceeding for divorce. If it wasn't so tragic, for it is bound to cause suffering to some one, it would be funny watching their manoeuvers.

"From my observations I am convinced that unhappy marriages are caused by idleness more than anything else. Yet today nobody seems willing to work. Everybody must have servants.

"Of all the people for whom I have worked there has been but one who didn't express the greatest sympathy with me on learning that I did my own housework. That one exception was what I might call the only break I have made in my rule against the extremely rich.

"When I refused to come to her before 11 a.m. and explained that I needed time to do my own housework she looked at me enviously. Yes, actually with envy written on her face, and she was not ashamed to own it.

"'I envy you,' she said, 'for having to do your own housework. The happiest years of my life were when I had to do my own housework. It was when we were first married and both my husband and I were poor. Since he has made so much money, why, even if he and the children would allow me to work people would think I was crazy.'

"I believe that as a class American men are too indulgent to women. I know it is seldom that I have come across a woman who didn't get about all the money she wanted.

"Some of them certainly have strange ways of throwing it away, too. The last instance of that sort that I recall just now was a woman from Jersey. She paid me $5 to go over to Brooklyn and find out the name of a woman who lived in a certain house.

"So far as I have been able to learn she didn't know the Brooklyn woman and has never made any use of the information. She just took it into her head to know the name of the woman who lived in that particular house, and paid me $5 to go over and find out. Now, if $5 had had its proper valuation with that woman, don't you know she would have satisfied her curiosity in some other way? It was a case of easy come, easy go.

"Judging by my experience, I fancy the people in Mexico have a better idea of the value of money. When I first began my work I was advised by a friend who had visited the City of Mexico to put an advertisement in one of the Mexican papers. You could never imagine the ridiculous commissions that came to me from that venture.

"A young doctor in one of the hospitals write, asking me to send him a wife. He not only told all the accomplishments he required, but the sort of disposition she must have, and just exactly how she must look.

"No, I didn't accept that commission. I wrote him that I thought he would have to send to heaven to get a woman to fill his order, we certainly didn't have them to spare in New York.

"He wrote again, making some few concessions, but even then I didn't know any one who was quite up to the mark, certainly not a girl who would have been willing to go out to Mexico to meet her affinity. I didn't care to begin a matrimonial bureau, so I let the matter drop.

"Another man from the City of Mexico wrote me that he wished to send his wife and child to San Francisco, and he wanted me to find a boarding place for them. Well, I scurried around among my acquaintances until I got track of a good boarding place in San Francisco at about the price he said he was willing to pay.

"I wrote to the boarding house asking the mistress if she has a vacancy. Then I wrote the man in Mexico. He sent me $1 to pay me for my trouble and wrote that if his wife and child were pleased he would send me yet another dollar. That second dollar never came, so I think you can understand why I say I didn't make much money from my patrons in Mexico.

"About the ghastliest undertaking I ever had was going to the morgue to identify a young Canadian. The girl had met with an accident and had been taken to a hospital, where she died in a short while.

"Her mother was the only other member of the family in New York, and I was called on to identify the body of a girl I had never seen. Oh, yes, I was successful. Afterward I made all arrangements for having the body prepared and shipped to the poor child's home.

"Strange as it may seem, I had much rather be called on to take charge of a household in time of sickness and death than for an entertainment. In the first instance I feel that I am really doing some good in the world, for people in affliction are very helpless, whereas, at an entertainment I am sure I am only supplying the place of a trusty maid.

"The results, too, are generally different. Never yet have I seen a family through trouble that they haven't called on me again and again. Troubles take off that outside crust with which we all cover ourselves. As a result the bond between us becomes more that of friendship than of employer and employé. After an entertainment when I get my money I know that is the end of me so far as they are concerned.

"Of course, every day my circle widens, though as one person's time must always be limited there have been and always will be, I hope, many calls which I cannot accept. As a work for a practical woman who wishes to keep her own home, I don't believe I could have made a better selection."

Finnish Women Vote.

There is no doubt that the elections produced the deepest impression upon the whole of the Finnish population. For the first time in the history of Finland women have voted, and the general opinion in Finland is that they have perfectly acquitted themselves of their new rights and duties. Little Finland, with her population of less than 3,000,000, has 1,331,421 voters, male and female.

The latter showed greater interest, as a rule, than the men. The greatest activity was displayed by the Prohibitionist party, which demands the total prohibition of alcoholic drink in the towns, it being already forbidden in the villages. Their leaders, Matti Helenius and his wife, Alli Trug, succeeded in having their candidates included in the lists of almost all the parties participating in the elections. The most favored Prohibitionist candidate seems to be the schoolmistress of Ekenes—Edwiga Solberg. The Social Democratic party had among their female candidates a housemaid and another working woman. The editor of a popular paper, Mme. Elene Wertermark, was put up as a candidate by the Swedish party.

How strong was the interest aroused by these unique elections is seen in the fact that from 75 to 80 per cent. of the voters have used their voting right. There will be 200 Deputies to the new Diet.

"We don't want to swamp the Diet," Mme. Anni Furujelm, the daughter of Admiral Furujelm, a lady of high education, explained to me. "We want only a few good women there. We wish to purify the political atmosphere. We have no special women's parties, but we have a special programme of our own. We shall demand in the Diet the abolition of the liquor trade and the prohibition of prostitution, the revision of marriage laws, of the status of illegitimate children, and the recognition of woman's economic independence. Lastly, we shall ask for equal rights with men in the communal elections, for which we are not now eligible and in which married women have no vote."—[Correspondence London Tribune.

Her Choice.

STORY OF THREE PROPOSALS AND AN ACCEPTANCE.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

Her eyes brightened as she sat alone in the flickering firelight. The cool greens and grays of the room took on a little flush, and her face shared it.

The next hour would decide her life; she was gambling with Fate, and there was a pleasurable excitement about it.

It mattered little to her which came first; the colonel could give her devotion, not to speak of his wealth and position.

The doctor could give her an equal devotion, and the companionship of a keen and vigorous intellect.

Jack did not count. She had given him the rendezvous only that she might complete her revenge. He was not really in the running.

Why should she marry again at all? But then, why not? She was young, and widowhood had begun to pall. It was a life habit with her to rid herself of things when they palled.

A servant brought a card. So! It was to be the colonel.

Picking from a tall vase one of the long-stemmed lilies the colonel had sent that morning, she went slowly down, her soft, white gown floating about her and deepening the dusky shadows in her hair.

A great tenderness filled the heart of the old man as she entered the bright room, with his lily in her hand. He came toward her eagerly; with old-fashioned courtesy he took her hand and led her to a chair.

He spoke of the weather and other trivial things. She watched him and listened. His step had not elasticity, his figure was no longer vigorous, the ring had gone from his voice, and his lips—

"It pleases me to see you with my lily. They reminded me of your fair sweetness when I saw them this morning. May I hope?"

He stopped abruptly, and she turned her face to his. She noted the flabby lids of his eyes. Still—

She opened her lips to say "yes," and in a moment was surprised to find she had said "no."

When he had gone, she went to her own room again. The lilies oppressed her; their perfume seemed heavy and weak. She buried her face gratefully in a huge bowl of vivid red roses, with cool soft petals and a spicy breath. The doctor had thought them so like her marked personality and abundant vitality when he selected them.

She rang.

"Send Mary with these lilies to old Mrs. Barnard, and take this bowl of roses to the library."

So, it was to be the doctor. Would he come next, or should she give Jack Farnham his conge first?

A nervous ring was followed by the doctor's card on the tray of the immaculate maid. She was rather glad he had come first. It would add a sharp little point to her remarks to Jack Farnham, if she had already promised herself to another man.

She ran lightly down the stairs. He was standing by a table turning the leaves of a magazine.

"Fine article that, on the chemistry of foods," he remarked, when the greetings were over.

She felt chilled. The chemistry of foods! Probably that was his daily diet. How professional he was! Those keen eyes behind the spectacles were likely at this moment taking her in as a "subject." She knew this was an injustice, but the thought came to her all the same.

Was he considering capillary action when her cheeks flushed and her eyes brightened? She moved, impatient of her own thoughts.

She felt like an insect under a microscope. His presence had never impressed her like this before. Assuring herself of her own absurdity, she smiled back at him, and he, pleased that he had gracefully prevented the formation of ice in the atmosphere, went on deepening her impression.

Oh, it would never do. She could not sit opposite those professional eyes three times a day for the rest of her life. She would just be a widow.

She broke on him almost abruptly, not answering the sentence he had barely finished.

"Dear doctor, I am sorry to pain you. You came for an answer today, and I must say 'no.'"

"There is nothing I can say? Nothing could change your decision? It will be a deep sorrow to me else." He spoke in a measured tone, keeping a firm hold on himself.

"No," she said. "No. But, believe me, I am sorry."

He stood up, very grave and white. "You will pardon me, if I go at once?"

Bowing over her hand, but not venturing to look in her face, he went out of her life.

She felt ashamed at the relief that came to her, when she knew she was not, after all, to be the doctor's wife. She sat, thinking still of him, when "Mr. John Fabian Farnham's" card was brought her.

"Show him into the back parlor, and say that I will see him presently."

When the servant had gone to do this bidding, she rose and stood before a tall glass. Was her hair right? This man must be made to feel her desirability. It must be crowded on him, and he must then be made to feel, what he had seemed a little blind to heretofore, that this desirability was beyond his reach.

Should she wear some of his violets? How nice Jack always was about remembering what flowers one loved, and all those little things that flatter women.

No, she would wear none of his flowers. They were filling with perfume at this minute that back parlor, where this masterful person was likely tramping about.

He was not tramping about; he was standing very still as she came into the room.

Tall, very dark, with a thin, keen face, his one beauty was his eyes. He had several years the advantage of her 30, and he bore heavier traces of those that had passed over him.

He did not seat himself, and his attitude seemed to forbid her doing so. Breaking resentfully through this impression, she sat down, forcing herself to say, as she tucked a cushion into just the right spot: "Sit down, won't you? It seems more friendly. And don't glower at me, I beg. It intimidates me."

Laughing a little at the idea of intimidation, he hesitated a moment, then came quickly to her.

"Thank you, yes. I will sit down, but I can't, I really can't, rise to frivolities in conversation. It takes a woman," he went on, a little bitterly, "to absolutely disguise every feeling."

He sat down before her, he took her hands, he almost crushed them, indeed. "Nell, you will come to me? You do love me? Is the love of a life not worth the taking? I have loved you always, dear—I think from the foundation of the world. Can you get along without a love that needs you so?"

Alas! for Jack. There it was—the old masterfulness. She would none of it. Could she "get along," indeed!

She drew back from him. "Thank you; yes, I am getting along very well."

He only stared at her, still leaning toward her.

"The love of a good man is an honor to any woman—"

"Bosh!"

"But I cannot accept yours, and give none in return," she went on, unheeding his scornful interruption. "My heart is in the grave with Herbert."

"Really, and truly?" he spoke slowly, as if trying to grasp it. "Do you mean that? You—will—not—marry—me?"

"No."

"I will say good night." He spoke briskly, as he arose. His shoulders looked very square; his brown eyes had lost all the softness of a moment ago.

Bowing stiffly, he left her. She listened. The servant had left the hall, and she heard him pause. She knew he was getting himself into his overcoat.

Now he was going to the door.

She leaped from her cushions. She ran. Oh, suppose he should get out before she reached him.

"Oh, wait," she gasped. He stopped.

"Jack, Jack," she panted. "Come back. My heart isn't in the grave with Herbert at all. It is going out of the door with you this minute, and I've just found it out."

THE STUDY ROOM.

A New Feature of Hartley House Settlement Work.

A children's study hour has been a novel feature of this year's work at Hartley House settlement in West Forty-sixth street. So far as its founders are aware, it is the first trial of the experiment in this city.

"The study hour was organized because we realized that children in districts like this have no proper place in which to prepare their lessons," said Miss Marot, under whose special care the plan has been developed. "The crowded front room of a tenement in the evening, when all the family is at home, is not conducive to quiet attention to books, and very few of the children are allowed to burn an extra jet in another room. Moreover, the lights in tenement flats are apt to be very poor, and many children's eyes are ruined by trying to study at home.

"From time to time I have asked the children who have been attending the study hour more or less regularly since it was opened last October why they would rather bring their books here than study at home; and the replies of many of them were significant. 'My sister always has company at night,' said one small boy. 'My little brother, he runs away with my pencil,' was the reason given by another. 'Dey's always singing the baby to sleep,' and 'I ain't got a table to write on,' were other answers I received.

"This gives a slight idea of why the children appreciate a room where they have a good light and quiet, and to which they can come for half an hour or more of an evening, as they wish. That regular attendance is not compulsory, and that a child may drop in at any moment and leave without question, is one of the most necessary features.

"It also proves one of the hardest for the children to comprehend. They could not get it into their heads that anything connected with school was not compulsory, and a child who was absent for a night or two would make all sorts of excuses and explanations.

"Now, however, the children begin to appreciate the voluntary side of the arrangement, and the study hour has become so popular that some time ago we were obliged to limit attendance to those who are formally enrolled; and we have now a long waiting list."

In an old building which opens into the backyard of the settlement and served as a laundry and servants' quarters when the house was a fashionable establishment is the room devoted to the study hour movement. It is furnished with exceeding plainness—a few old desks, two well worn tables and a number of chairs constitute its entire outfit. It is open from 7:15 to 8:30 every evening. Not more than sixteen children can be seated at a time, but then few of the children stay for more than half an hour, and some prepare two days' lessons at a time and so do not have to come every evening.

"Of course it is a small beginning," Miss Marot said, "and our object has not been so much to give these few children a chance to study properly as to demonstrate the value of rooms set aside for such a purpose in the poorer districts of the city and the way they would be appreciated by both children and teachers. Several of the public school teachers are now aiding us in an effort to have a large room in one of the public evening schools devoted to the study hours of such children as wish to avail themselves of it.

"That can be the only satisfactory solution of this important problem in all the crowded districts of the city, for the rooms at the command of the settlement are too small to serve the purpose.

"No, the afternoon would not be a more suitable time for the study hour in any case. We started with the idea that it would, but we soon discovered our mistake. It was quite impossible to get any of the children to consent to devoting even half an hour of their afternoon to preparing their next day's lessons. Some of them merely wanted the time in which to play, and others had to help their mothers about their homes; but the majority proved to have extra classes in the afternoon.

"Many, of course, come here, one or two afternoons a week, and nearly all, we found, were taking music lessons besides. No matter how poor the mother may be, it seems to be a matter of pride with her that as soon as she can save a little money her daughters shall learn to play the piano.

"Absolute silence is not enforced in the study hour, and from various corners come animated whispers, as 'No, that's not it. You don't understand. Wait now, I'll get it,' etc., for two children having the same lesson are allowed to study together, though no other child may 'get lessons' for a younger.

On the whole, excellent order is observed. Once or twice it has become apparent to the teacher that certain of the girls were not devoting themselves earnestly to their studies while in the room; but it was only necessary to remind these that others were waiting for the privilege which they enjoyed and to put them on a week of probation to insure their taking a serious view of the situation.

The "Tearkerchief."

A CUSTOM THAT ORIGINATED IN THE TYROL MANY YEARS AGO.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

It does not necessarily mean that this year's spring bride is a creature of sobs and tears just because the edict has gone forth that she shall carry a "tearkerchief" to the altar.

She may blush and dimple and smile and be as full of suppressed joy and sunshine as her last year sisters, but she must carry in full view of groom and assembly a dainty bit of lace and linen which has been especially worked to catch the few conventional tears which she must shed perforce when she puts her maidenhood aside and enters the estate of a wife.

This custom originated in Tyrol many many years ago and it still prevails there.

The first London after-Lenten brides carried the historic bit of linen and lace and so, of course, American brides are rummaging in lavender-scented chests in hope of finding a precious heirloom which will enable them to fall in line with their English cousins. The pretty fancy has already reached our land and there are to be seen in the jewelry departments of the most select shops a case or two containing dainty bits of hand-spun linen and lace with jeweled clasps marked "Tearkerchief for the bride."

Although these may be bought complete it is not considered as graceful a compliment to present a shop-made tearkerchief as to have the gift made by loving fingers at home.

The bride's mother procures the necessary materials as soon as the "secret" has been whispered in her ear and she immediately sends out invitations to four or six of her daughter's closest friends to attend a tearkerchief bee. This is a clever way of announcing the engagement.

The girls arrive equipped with work bags and some dainty pieces of sewing. While one girl embroiders her initials on the tiny linen square the others stitch away on some gift for the bride-to-be. The center for the tearkerchief is passed from girl to girl and when all have embroidered their initials and perhaps a flower or scroll, it is given over to the mother, who places her daughter's monogram in the center and sews on the lace.

This tearkerchief is the first article to be laid carefully away in the girl's chest or "glory box" and it is the first to be taken out on the wedding day. She carries it throughout the ceremony and lays it carefully away with her wedding gown.

This bit of lace and linen is considered one of the bride's choicest possessions and should she lose it or should any accident happen to it, it is a brave girl, in Tyrol at least, who does not feel a sinking of the heart, for a mishap to the tearkerchief in that land is considered as dark an omen as a serious slip-up in the marriage service.

There is a legend to the effect that should the tearkerchief be lost and never found by the bride, the couple will be childless. Should it be torn or damaged in any way except by the tears of the bride—and they are supposed to lend charm and not cause damage—the first child will be sickly or afflicted in some way.

Before packing the tearkerchief away, the bride tries her fortune by standing on the stairs and tossing it down to the group assembled below. If it is caught by a man the first child born to her will be a male; if a girl friend catches it she will be given first a daughter. Three times she tosses it and each time the sex of the fortunate catcher determines the sex of the little bit of humanity which will make happy the future of the bride.

Should the tearkerchief fail to be caught even once during the three tosses the bride will have no little gift to keep her company during the first six years of her married life. So the story goes and in Tyrol much stress is put upon it. It is doubtful, however, whether our American girls will accept the history of the tearkerchief when they bring forth the quaint and romantic custom.

Let it be understood that those to whom the tearkerchief is tossed must be maids and bachelors, for he or she catching the bit of linen is destined to enter the estate of matrimony before the expiration of twelve months.

To continue with the life of the tearkerchief: After the bride has assumed her traveling gown it is placed between layers of sweet-scented tissue paper and put in a silver case or a sweet wood box made especially to hold it, and there it remains until the first baby comes, when it is brought forth and placed upon its downy head as a blessing after its first bath.

Again it goes back into its box and there remains until the advent of another little one. The initials of each child are worked upon the tearkerchief together with the date of birth. This the mother does on her first days up, and so a history of the growing family is kept in a novel manner.

When the babies are christened the tearkerchief is used to protect the little ones' heads from any possible draught in the church. At the confirmation the daughters carry the mother's tearkerchief. When all these ceremonies are things of the past and the grandchildren commence to arrive the tearkerchief is put away to remain in its box until death claims the one-time bride, now mother and perhaps great-grandmother, if the fates have been kind. It is then brought forth for the last time and spread tenderly over the quiet features.

Thus the tearkerchief never becomes an heirloom. Each bride must have one made especially for her own fair self. And so, too, although this newness means that the tearkerchief starts upon its life with no fond memories it also means that it has no sad associations.

Auto Eye Effect.

The latest thing in auto head gear is the silk hood that droops from the back of your Milan braid sailor hat and ties under the chin in a chic bow. The ribbon on the hat must precisely match the silk hood in color and must be arranged in two smart pompons—one over each eye—to harmonize with the eyes of the auto.

A Convenient Fire Kindler.

Put a small teacup of kerosene oil into a half-gallon tin bucket of water. Into this chip about an eighth of a bar of laundry soap and let boil on the stove until all the soap is dissolved. Then take the mixture off the fire and stir into it all the sawdust it will take and stir thoroughly. Let the mass cool and congeal, then cut into small squares or blocks the size of a thimble and keep in a covered can. This makes an economical, safe and convenient kindler.—[Pictorial Review for April.

WOMEN AS ARCHITECTS.

Several Have Entered the Profession and Also That of House Decorators.

The number of women who practice the profession of architecture is greater than the number of women architects, anomalous as this may seem. This is as it should be for women who are architects only frequently are associated with men and in the majority of cases are greatly influenced by a man's theoretical knowledge, yet the woman builder can comprehend the intricate problem of closets and cupboards more keenly than the majority of men, though she may have had less experience.

The first woman graduate in architecture in America was Miss Mary Hicks, who graduated from Cornell in 1880. The following year Miss Mary Whitford of Syracuse obtained a degree and since then the number of graduate women architects has steadily increased. Mrs. Louise Bethune of Buffalo is the only woman, however, who is a member of the American Institute of Architects. There are many women decorators now prosperous enough to have architects in their employ, for it has been proved that women have a "knack" for house decoration that few "mere men" can equal, once the correct training is secured. From decorator to architect, then to builder is but the natural sequence of woman turning her attention to making more attractive the houses in which we live.

WONDERS OF BACTERIA.

Funny Names That Cover the Peculiar Results of Scientific Knowledge.

It is often said that the most interesting facts of science are frequently concealed under the hard and repellent names. Who would suppose, for example, that such words as "phototaxis" and "chemiotaxis" really cover very fascinating discoveries, to enjoy which no scientific knowledge is required?

Phototaxis means the influence of light on the movements of the simplest living organisms. The facts that it includes are surprising and interesting.

There is a kind of bacterium, shaped like a minute rod, and of purple color, which exhibits this influence of light in a beautiful manner. Indeed, it has been named the light measuring bacterium. If a drop of water containing these bacteria is placed under a microscope, and a narrow beam of light is thrown upon any part of the field of view, the organisms immediately flock to the illuminated spot until by their great numbers they turn that part of the water to the color of wine.

It appears, too, that these bacteria discriminate between colors; for when there is thrown, instead of a beam of white light, a microscopic spectrum into such a drop, the bacteria avoid the purple and crowd into light of the color which is absorbed in passing through their bodies.

Just so another bacterium, the euglena, which is red or orange colored at the forward end, always advances toward blue light when a choice is given to it among the colors of the spectrum.

Chemiotaxis is a similar phenomenon, depending not upon light, but upon the presence of chemicals agents. An instance of this is furnished by the behavior of the common bacterium termo when a little xoygen is liberated in the water drop containing it. Immediately the organisms flock to that part of the water where the oxygen is being liberated. Similarly other organisms are attracted by sugar or by acid.

One of the most wonderful cases is that of a kind of plasmodium, called Badhamia, an organism that consists of transparent, structureless, living material that spreads itself along a wet surface. When a bit of fungus is placed near the edge of this flat, shapeless, yet living thing, that part of the Badhamia that is nearest becomes excited, and streams of living matter begin to flow through the mass toward that point. Then the organism begins to grow out toward the fungus and gradually envelope it, and the operation ends with the absorption of the fungus.

These curious phenomena assume new interest when we learn that what we call inflammation is a result of chemiotaxis. Whatever disintegration takes place through injury inflicted upon any of the living tissues of the body, certain organic cells that exist in the blood and other fluids congregate at the inflammatory center and feed upon the products of disintegration. It has, therefore, been suggested that these "chemiotactic cells" are the scavengers in the blood, which tend to free it from infection.—[Sunday Magazine.

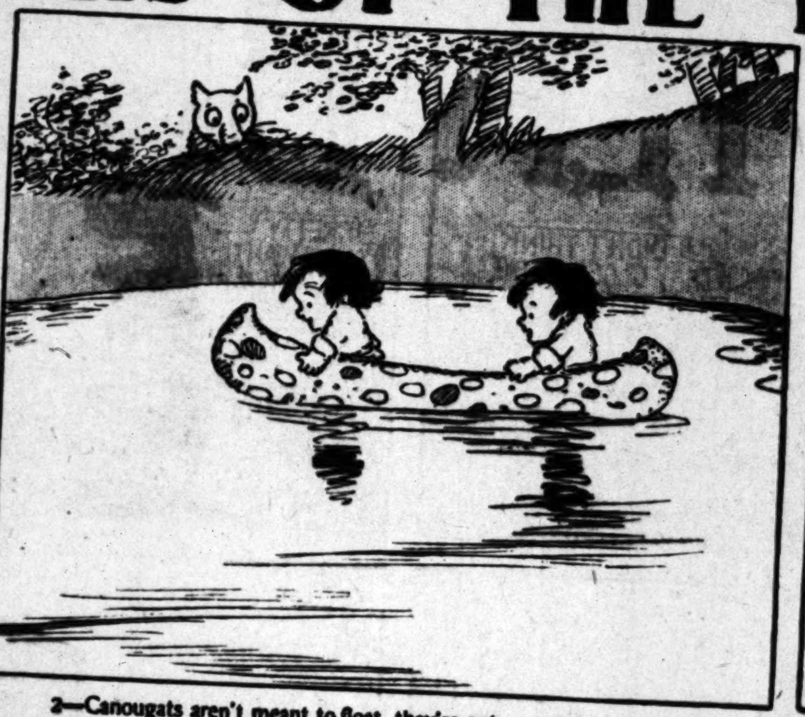
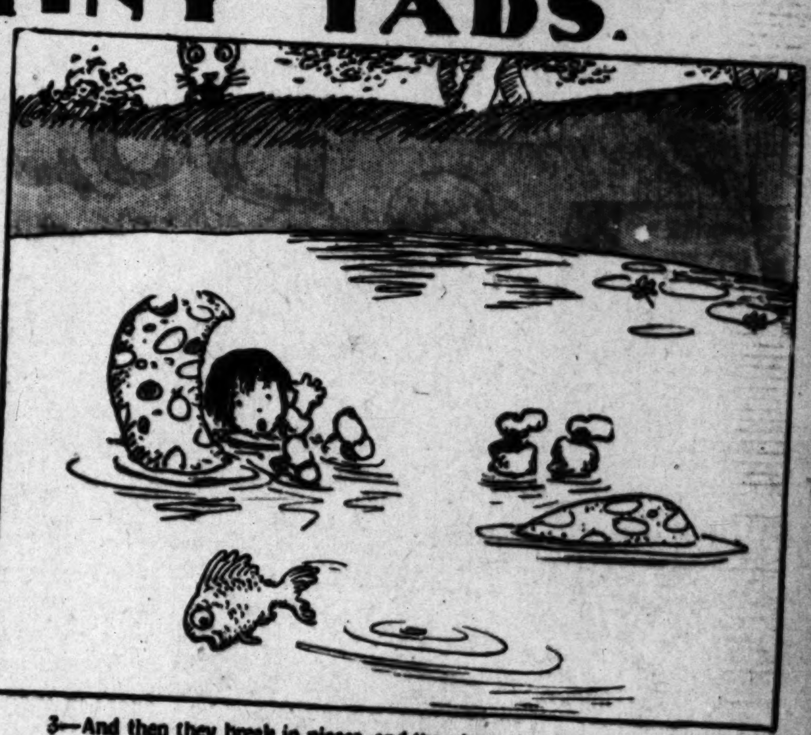
1—Oh see the nice Canougat, made of nuts and candy, too!
The Tads have put it on the lake, a thing they shouldn't do.



2—Canougats aren't meant to float, they're only meant to eat,
They melt as soon as they get wet, like anything that's sweet.



3—And then they break in pieces and the pieces drift about,
"Confound the old Canuisance!" says the Tad whose head sticks out.

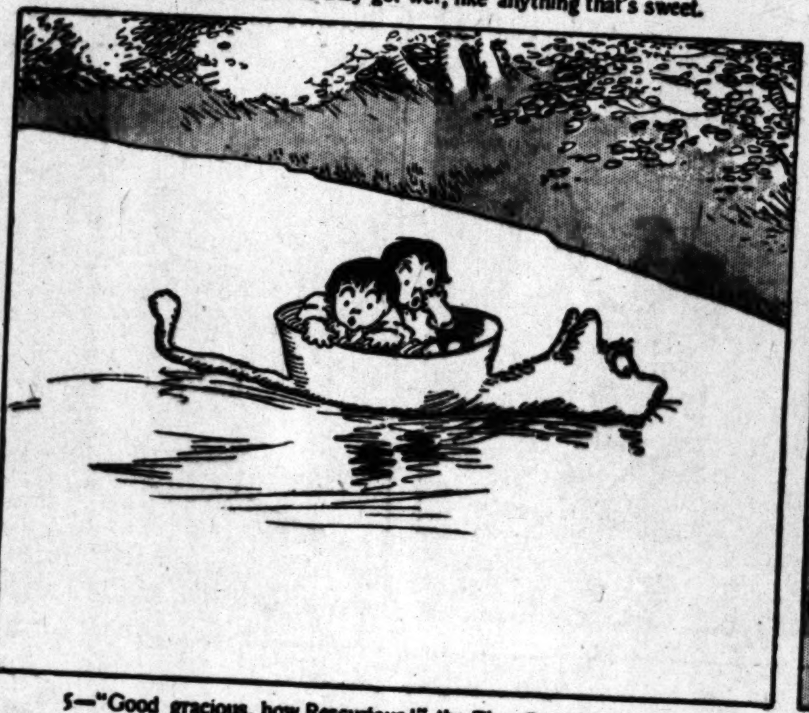
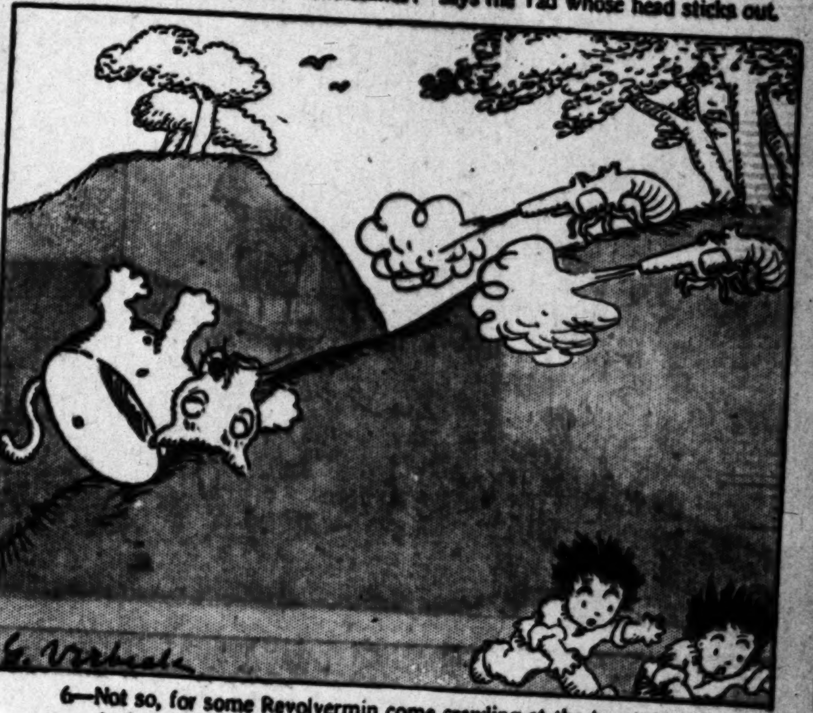
4—A Dishpanther who watches them now plunges in and helps;
She thinks these boys are nice and fat, she'll take them to her whelps.



5—"Good gracious, how Rescurious!" the Tiny Taddies cry,
"But this Carnivoracious thing will eat us sure as pie!"



6—Not so, for some Revolvermin come crawling at the beast
And send her rolling down the hill with twenty holes at least.

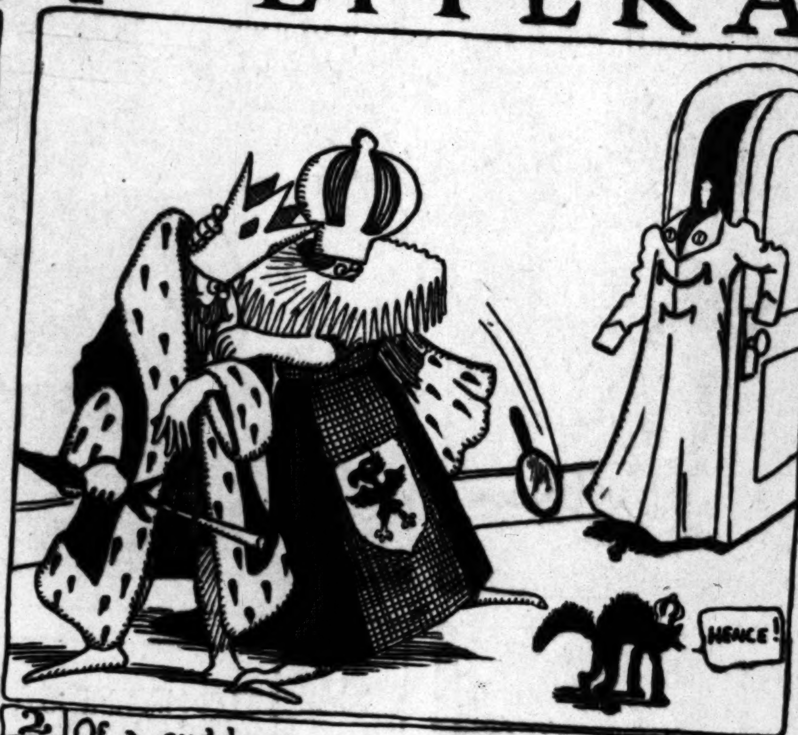
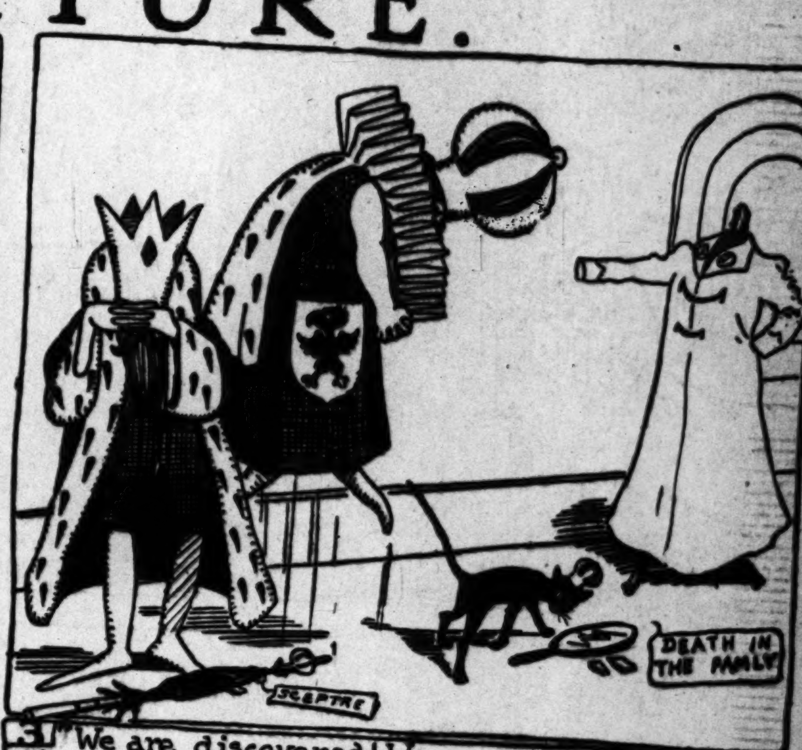
SCEPTRE
A CAT MAY LOOK AT A KING

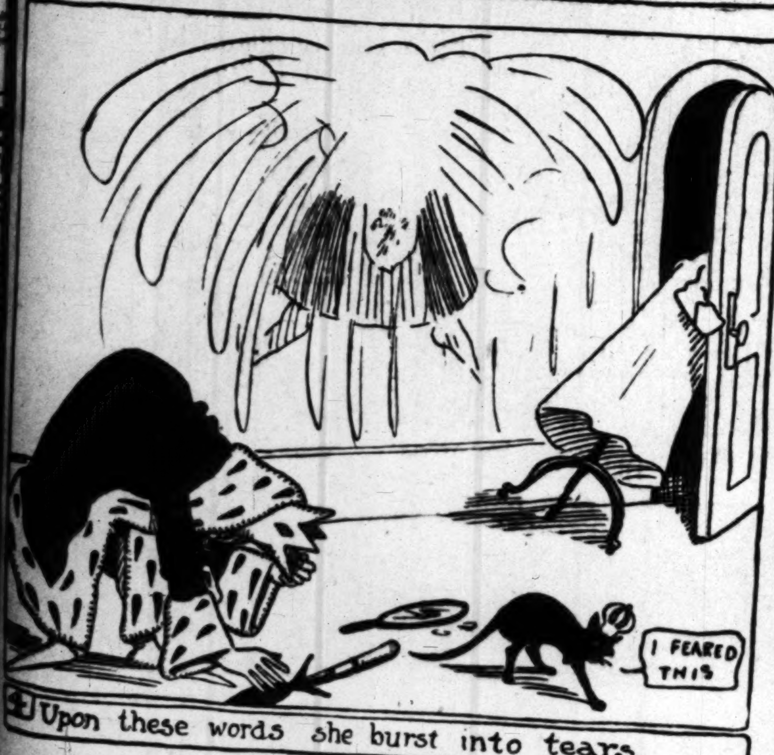
1 The King was in a brown study. His Royal Consult was in a mauve tea-gown.



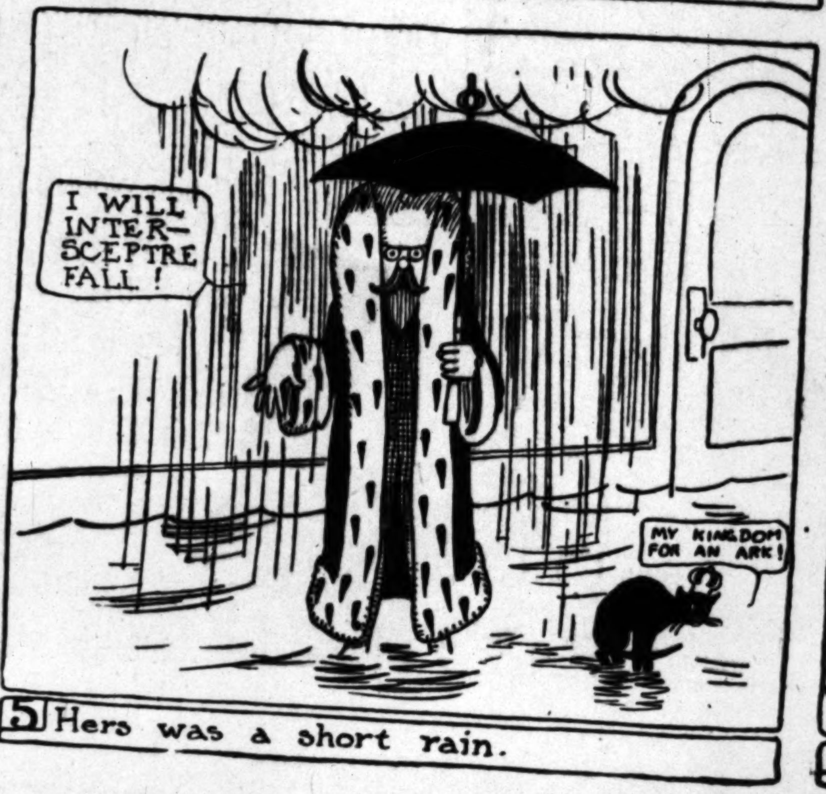
2 Of a sudden came a wrap at the door.



3 "We are discovered! We are discovered! We are discovered!" intoned the Queen, rising.



4 Upon these words she burst into tears.



I WILL INTER-SCEPTRE FALL!
MY KINGDOM FOR AN ARK!

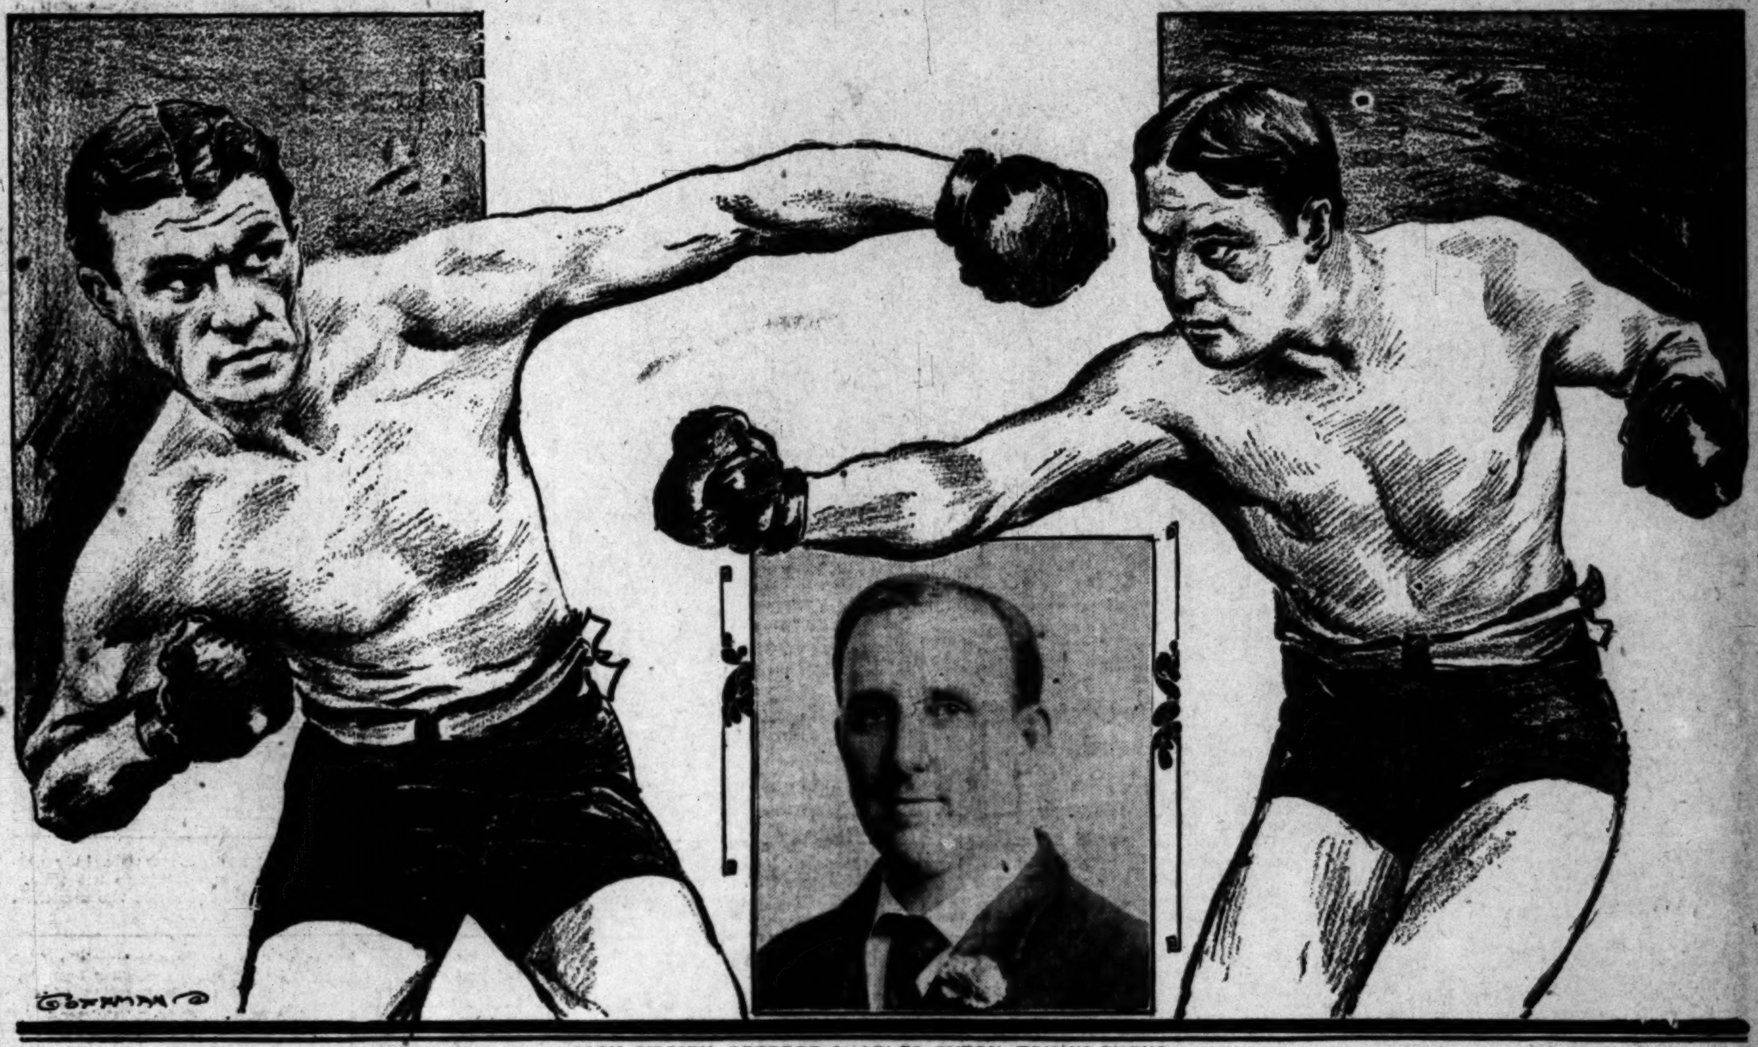
PRINCIPALS IN GREATEST HEAVYWEIGHT MATCH SINCE DAYS OF JEFFERIES-FITZSIMMONS.



JACK O'BRIEN, REFEREE CHARLES EYTON, TOMMY BURNS.
three men who are to be in the ring in the great championship contest to be pulled off at Naud Junction, Los Angeles, Wednesday night.

BIG FIGHT FOR FORTUNE, HONORS AND HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP.

Battle of Fists Will Be no Greater Than Clash of Opinions on Outcome of Contest Between Burns and O'Brien.

TOMMY BURNS and Jack O'Brien will fight for the heavyweight pugilistic championship of the world and a purse of $30,000 under the auspices of the Pacific Athletic Club at Naud Junction, Wednesday night. The purse is one of the largest ever offered two fighters, and one of the most select crowds which ever witnessed a boxing contest is expected to be on hand.

Thousands of Shriners will be in Los Angeles by Tuesday, and a large number of them propose to witness the fight. Many persons come to Los Angeles especially to see the battle, the Nevada gold fields sending several large parties.

Not since the days when Corbett met defeat at the hands of Fitzsimmons, and when Ruby Robert fell before the mighty prowess of Jeffries at Coney Island, has there been such keen interest in a boxing contest as is manifested in that between Burns and O'Brien.

Although the impending shadow of Jeffries clouds the championship claims of any heavyweight who may enter the lists for stellar honors, Burns and O'Brien are considered the best timber out of which to carve a champion to take up Farmer Jim's gauntlet.

Absolutely the only qualification lacking in either Burns and O'Brien is size and weight. Neither fighter is a legitimate heavyweight when classed with men like Jeffries, Corbett, Sullivan and old-time heavyweights. Both have qualifications out of which champions are made and no doubt each can whip the best men now before the public in the heavyweight division, but it is not to be presumed that, other things being equal, either man could defeat Jeffries or any man near his equal in size and ability.

The fact remains that Burns and O'Brien are the best men in the heavyweight division today, and the fight they put up last Thanksgiving Day left much in doubt as to which is the better man. Fight fans are about equally divided as to the merits of each and the engagement will be no more one of "individual supremacy" than a battle of opinions.

FIGHT TO FINISH.

The fight should prove to be the greatest pugilistic affair ever pulled off in Los Angeles. The battle is carded for twenty rounds, but when the conditions were suggested at the time the match was made, it was understood tentatively that the bout should go twenty-five rounds; in any case, that it should go far enough to return a decisive winner. This means that a draw decision practically is an impossibility, and that either Burns or O'Brien will be a defeated man when he comes out of the ring Wednesday night.

Manager McCarey has no explanations to make on this point and says that instructions will be given the referee the night of the fight. As McCarey is anxious that the battle be decisive, those instructions may be imperative. Probably some understanding with the principals will be effected before the battle.

Opinions on coming sporting events usually are reflected in the betting odds. O'Brien is the favorite in this case, so far as money wagers are concerned, but opinion is about evenly divided among the rank and file of fight fans as to the outcome of the battle.

Betting odds are 10 to 8 in favor of O'Brien, but little money has been wagered. Burns has many friends here, for most of his fights have been fought in Los Angeles, but they have not come out with the cash.

FIGHTERS ANALYZED.

Analysis of the situation reveals the following conditions:

O'Brien's friends are basing their belief that Jack will win on the strength of his former perfomances, and on the fact that they figure he was handicapped in his former fight by the blow on the nose delivered by Burns in the fifth round.

The friends of Burns contend that he is better than ever he was and that the only thing that saved O'Brien in the former battle was his running away and holding. They contend that if Jack will fight, Burns will be able to deliver more blows like the one on the nose, and thus be able to put O'Brien away.

Much has been said of the former battle, and the claims of both men have been argued pro and con. It will require the coming bout to settle the dispute. The outcome of the battle hinges on many points.

During the early rounds of the former fight, O'Brien easily outpointed Burns. Some say Burns was badly hurt; others say he could stand all such punishment O'Brien might deliver. For twelve rounds O'Brien ran away and held at every opportunity.

Jack's friends say that if Burns could not catch and punish O'Brien when the latter was in such a serious condition, he will not be able to do it when O'Brien is fit, and that meanwhile Jack will be delivering punishment.

The friends of Burns say that under ordinary circumstances O'Brien will not have the excuse to run and hold the way he did the last time, and he will have to fight; and that if he fights, Burns will get to him and beat him at the game.

In the latter part of the battle O'Brien recuperated and made a valiant stand. He closed Burns's left eye and outpointed him. Burns slowed up and seemed to be very weary. O'Brien partisans say that Jack would have whipped Burns in a few rounds more. Burns's backers say that Tommy wore himselw out chasing O'Brien and that the latter's finish was spasmodic. They claim Burns was not hurt and could have gone much farther, while O'Brien would have faded away.

It is certain that both fighters will have a well-laid battle plan. O'Brien probably will be very careful not to run into any more "chance" blows, and will fight Burns at long range. He will attempt to peck Burns to pieces and finish him at his leisure.

Burns probably will not follow O'Brien about the ring with bull-like rushes, as he did before, but will attempt to make Jack come into the center of the ring and fight. Burns no doubt will be the aggressor, but will not allow O'Brien to wear him out in a foot race.

The principal fights fought by O'Brien and Burns are:

JACK O'BRIEN.

Won in six rounds from Mike Schreck.

Won from Jack Sullivan in fifteen rounds.

Ten-round draw with Hugo Kelly.

Six rounds with Tommy Ryan.

TEN-MILE RELAY RACE.

Al Lawton Plans New Feature for Tournament of Roses as Permanent Event.

A ten-mile relay race between Los Angeles and Pasadena is the latest thing to be flashed on the sport lovers of the south. This great event is scheduled to be held next New Year's Day, but Al Lawton, A.A.W. leader of amateur athletics in this section of the country, says that, although it is a long way off, nevertheless it is a sure thing.

When Lawton was in the north a short time ago, Walter Christie, trainer at the University of California, suggested that a ten-men relay race be arranged between northern and southern athletes, and stated that the Olympic Athletic Club stood ready to back such a relay team to invade the south.

Lawton has been considering the matter carefully, and has about decided that such an event would be a drawing card par excellence to be run off in connection with the next Tournament of Roses. A route exactly ten miles long could easily be laid out from this city to Tournament Park in Pasadena, and each runner would run one mile.

The details of this great event, evolved by Lawton's fertile brain, are nothing short of spectacular. He purposes to have Mayor Harper write a message in duplicate to the Mayor of Pasadena, who will be awaiting the runners in Tournament Park.

A copy of the message will be committed to each of the first runners of the competing teams, and they will pass it on to the next pair of sprinters when they finish their relay. The team that first delivers the message to the Mayor of Pasadena will be declared the winner.

As soon as a runner finishes his relay, he will be scooped up in an auto and whisked to Tournament Park, so that all the contestants will be on hand at the finish. The members of the victorious team will then be crowned with laurel and decorated with gold medals before the assembled multitude. This idea is a good one and will probably work out very successfully. Lawton thinks he will have no trouble in selecting men from the local amateur ranks who will be able to hold their own against a contingent from the north.

EASTERN ATHLETES VISIT LOS ANGELES.

A jolly party of athletes from the George Washington University of Washington, D. C., is visiting Los Angeles, taking in the sights and looking for suitable places to hang out their shingles after they have finished their work in the eastern institution.

The members of the party are: J. E. Babcock, W. G. Beard, G. H. Peterson, and George W. Vierra, who are pursuing studies in the law and science departments of the Washington University, and they are all athletes of renown in the locality from which they hail.

Babcock and Peterson had places on crack rowing crews last year. The Potomac is an ideal river for rowing, and boating is a favorite sport in the Capitol City. Babcock is a member of the Potomac Rowing Club, and Peterson rowed No. 3 in the senior eight of the Analosta Boat Club of Washington. In addition to their work on the river, these two men are prominent athletes in the university. Babcock was fullback on the 'varsity football team last year, and has been on the track team for two years.

Vierra and Beard are also track and football men. The former was right guard on the football team, and has the reputation of being a crack quarter-miler. Beard runs the 100 and 220-yard dashes.

After a short visit in this city, the party will leave for the Nevada gold fields to look over the ground. The eastern students are favorably impressed with Southern California, and are thinking seriously of remaining in the Southwest. These men would be a valuable addition to amateur athletics in the Southland.

MISS SUTTON IS SHINING.

Plays High-Class Tennis in New York Tourney.

Defeats Raymond D. Little in Doubles Match.

Experts Think She Will Win Honor in England.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Playing daily against the leading exponents of lawn tenis in America on the indoor court at St. Nicholas Rink, Miss May G. Sutton of Pasadena, who will sail for England next month in quest of the all-England championship, is developing a game far superior to that shown by her last year's work prior to her departure for England, and unless the signs fail she should secure a second leg on the British trophy. Her backhand stroke, heretofore considered her one weakness, showed surprisingly strong in her match against N. W. Miles, the Harvard expert, on Saturday, when she lost only after two closely contested sets by the score of 6-4, 6-5.

In the semi-final round of the special mixed doubles played yesterday afternoon in which Miss Sutton paired with Theodore Roosevelt Pell, she defeated Mrs. Barger Wallach and Raymond D. Little in a three set match. Miss Sutton played consistently at the net in a style of play that is calculated to strengthen her single games which she has heretofore been almost entirely from the base line. When she has mastered this feature of the game, as she no doubt will in a short time with her characteristic determination, she will be able to play tennis that will be well nigh unbeatable and keep her at the top of the list for many years to come.

Although playing brilliantly at times, Mrs. Wallach and Mr. Little were no match for the California girl and her partner. The first set brought out the best tennis and gave Mrs. Wallach and Mr. Little an opportunity to show what they could do in the face of almost certain defeat. With the score 5-2 against them, they won four games straight and assumed the lead, only to lose the next at love.

The thirteenth game was long and exciting, being marked by well sustained rallies at close range, in which Miss Sutton scored successfully by playing at Little's feet, where it was impossible for him to get the ball.

The score went to advantage for the fifth time when Mrs. Wallach and her partner changed their tactics and by well directed lobs secured the necessary points to win. They took the next two games and the set. The effort, however, cost them the match, as they displayed evidence of fatigue in the following sets, which went to Miss Sutton and Mr. Pell at 6-3, 6-1.

Miss Nora Iselin and W. A. Larned defeated Miss Margaret Behr and Karl H. Behr in straight sets yesterday afternoon. There was an apparent lack of team work between Miss Behr and her brother, which gave their opponents frequent openings for easy passes down the center court. Both Miss Iselin and Mr. Larned showed superior net work, which was responsible in a large degree for their victory.

The series of indoor tournaments will conclude with the women's singles, which will be started tomorrow. Seven leading players of the East will be entered with Miss Sutton. While all the acceptances have not been received the list will probably include Miss Sutton, Mrs. Barger Wallach, Miss Iselin, Miss Elizabeth Moore, national indoor champion; Miss Emily Scott, Miss Martha Coster, Miss Juliet Adee and Miss Margaret Behr or Miss Virginia McVeigh.

CUPID RACE STAR EVENT.

Good Sport Furnished at First Day of Auto Meet.

No Racing Records Broken, but Fair Time Made.

Record Set in Stock Car Event by Little Tourist.

Four thousand people saw some very good automobile racing yesterday at Agricultural Park, and they saw one record broken, although it was not a racing record. Indeed, it is a question of whether a record was not set, instead of broken. In the first race a two-cylinder Tourist, with four people up, made twenty-five miles in 29:47. This is claimed to be a world's record, as, so far as can be found, is one. The pace is over fifty miles an hour—50:26, to be exact—and for a two-cylinder car it is certainly wonderful.

The racing attacks on the world's records did not prove to be such an attraction as the open runabout event and the Cupid race. The latter was the hit of the afternoon, and will be repeated today.

In spite of the dust, inefficient timing and a delightful disregard of the programme, the races were successful, and today should see still better events.

The first event of the afternoon was the twenty-five-mile race for two-cylinder touring cars carrying four passengers. The Tourist won the pole, with the Northern, the two Buicks and the Reo in the order named. The Mason and the Jackson scratched.

At the start Hanshue shot the Reo over in an effort to get the pole from the Tourist, but could not make it, and the Tourist headed the procession, with the Reo right after. The two leading cars speedily opened a gap between themselves and the rest. At the end of the first mile the Northern was nearly a half-mile to the bad, and by the end of the second round the Buicks were left as far behind. On thethird mile the leaders lapped the Northern; in the fifth they passed it again and lapped one of the Buicks and in the sixth mile they lapped the other Buick. On the eighth mile they lapped the Northern again.

The fight was clearly between the Tourist and the Reo, both going very fast indeed. The first ten miles were reeled off in 11:30, a pace that the cars did not quite keep up to the finish.

WINS IN ELEVENTH.

The Tourist practically won the race just after the end of the eleventh mile. The leaders overhauled one of the Buicks for the second time just at the grandstand, and had to pass it on the first curve. Hanshue swung the Reo out to pas the Tourist as the Tourist was passing the Buick. C. McKeague, driving the Tourist, was equal to the emergency, and Hanshue was forced out to the edge of the track. He lost the trail of the Tourist, and no longer traveling with the car as a wind-shield, began to lose ground very slowly.

By the thirteenth mile he was distinctly behind, and losing ground. The Tourist hugged the rail and pounded on, covering the first fifteen miles in 17:38 2-5. After this it was simply a question of the margin by which it would win. McKeague handled his car well and kept it up to the pace. At the end of the nineteenth mile he had a lead of one-eighth of a mile. The twenty-mile mark was passed in 23:43. By the end of the twenty-third mile the Tourist had a lead of one-quarter of a mile, which was slightly increased at the finish.

The Tourist won in 29:47, with the Reo second. One of the Buicks had withdrawn at the fifteenth mile, having burst a tire. The other Buick finished third well behind the leaders, and the Northern was last.

CUPID RACE STAR EVENT.

The Cupid race was the star event of the afternoon, but it was some time before it could be got under way, owing to the dearth of volunteers to act as passengers. Finally, after the megaphone man had made an unsuccessful appeal to the grandstand, Billy Ruess invaded the bleachers with a personal appeal, and he was found irresistable.

The necessary dozen of volunteers were finally secured, and they lined up by the judges' stand, ready to brave the dust of the track and the speed of the cars. An exceptionally careful man was picked out, and to him were committed several very beautiful hats.

Then the Beau Brummels of Gasoline Row lined up also, and the race was on. A Thomas, a Cadillac, a Tourist and a Pope-Hartford were started.

The Thomas got the pole and came sailing up the stretch, while the fair passengers stood in the offing and waited. The Thomas went past the mark a little, but Miss Jacoby ran it down and hopped in beside the driver with half the Beau Brummel contingent helping. Meanwhile the Tourist had come up. The passenger for the Tourist must have been praticing, for she "flipped" the runningboard as neatly as you please, and was snuggled down behind the dashboard in true mechanic fashion, before the driver could shift his gear. The Tourist pulled out in hot pursuit of the Thomas, and meanwhile the Beau Brummels had deposited the other two passengers in their cars. "Deposited" is as near as language can come to describing the manner of esconcing the ladies in their cars. The Beau Brummels wouldn't think of throwing a lady into a car like a sack of corn, but speed was a necessity.

Twice more the Beau Brummel manned the track and put Venus in the care of Mars, or words to that effect. By the last time they had acquired a polish and savoir faire in the manner of procedure that brought forth plaudits from the grandstand.

The superior team work of the Thomas's passengers had given them a big lead, and Mr. Jacoby finished first by a large margin. The smiling Billy Ruess was second. The Cadillac and Tourist were in the last division, and it was a tight race between them, especially when they came in together for their last load. The time, 6:59, was remarkably fast, as three stops had to be made.

ATTEMPT ON RECORDS.

Barney Oldfield was then announced for an attempt on all the world's records from one to ten miles. He started the "Green Dragon" around for a warming up trip, and then halted in front of the grandstand, announcing that the inner tube which the Buick had shed in the first race, was on the back stretch turn. Billy Ruess went to the rescue, and then Oldfield started on another warming up trip. Finally he had the car going to his liking, and threw up his hand as a signal to the timers. There was some difficulty about understanding the timing, and it was not satisfactorily done. The first mile was announced in 0:55¾, the two miles in 1:51 2-5, and the five miles in 4:38 2-5. After the sixth mile Oldfield pulled up, and it was found that his right front tire was worn to the canvas, on account of the hard track. He withdrew and replaced the tire.

The open runabout event, which followed, was one of the best events of the day. There was a couple of extra entries, so that the event had to be run in heats. For the first five mile spin there came out a two-cylinder Tourist, an Aerocar, a Stoddard-Dayton and Earle Anthony's Packard, with the Tourist on the pole and the rest in the order named. The surprise of the event was the showing of the little Tourist. Apparently outclassed completely, McKeague drove a splendid race and finished second by a big margin.

The Packard took the lead in the first mile, and held it to the end, winning in 5:42 3-5. The Tourist was second all the way. The fight of the race was between Clarence Smith in the Aerocar and Ross Foster in the Stoddard. The Aerocar got a lead on the Stoddard at the start, which it held until the back stretch of the second mile, when Foster shot by. On the first turn of the third mile Smith took the lead again only to loose it in the back stretch. The finish between the two was close, Foster pulling out third place by a small margin.

SECOND HEAT EASY.

The second heat was simply a procession. E. R. Bronson's Packard, W. S. Hook's Apperson, and the yellow Tourist which went through the fence Friday, lined up in the order named. The Packard took the lead and was never headed, winning in 5:41 3-5. The Apperson got a bad start, but pulled up very rapidly, and was apparently a figure in the race, when it went bad in the back stretch and withdrew.

The final was entirely a race between the two Packards. Bronson's Packard, driven by Ed Thompson, had the pole and held it for three miles. Bert Latham, driving Earle Anthony's Packard, caught the cream-colored car just at the grandstand at the end of the third mile, and after a hard struggle passed it. It was a nip and tuck race for the remaining two miles, but Latham drove to the finish a little ahead of Thompson. The time was given as 5:41 flat.

The two-cylinder Tourist again distinguished itself by clinging to the dust of the flyers, finishing less than 1-8 of a mile behind them, a remarkable performance for the little car, completely surpassing the big Tourist, which finished a bad fourth.

PROFESSIONAL RACE.

As the "Reo Bird" did not arrive in time for the races yesterday, for the event in which it was entered there was substituted a five-mile race between Barney Oldfield in his "Green Dragon" and Bruno Seibel in his "Red Devil." This was a very pretty race. Oldfield has seldom had a better racing partner than Seibel, and they turned off some very good miles, considering the state of the track. Seibel in his bright red car with a broad back covered with a scarlet Norfolk jacket, and Oldfield with his famous green speed-wagon and equally famous green coat, made two spots of color which slid through the dust like little streaks of variegated lightning.

Seibel had the pole, and held it all the way. He gained a little from Oldfield on the turns, which Oldfield regained on the stretches. On the last lap Oldfield held his own on the turn, and pulled past Seibel at the finish by a very slight margin. The race was the most exciting of the day. The time was announced as 5:14 2-5, good for the track, but a long ways from record time.

The last race of the day was a four-mile event for two-cylinder touring cars with four passengers. Six cars lined up for the start, the biggest field to be sent away together. The cars, from the pole out, were the Mason, the Reo, the Tourist, two Buicks, and the Jackson. The little Tourist, which had done so well in the other events, jumped out at the start and won the pole from the Mason and the Reo. It apparently had the race won, but in the back stretch of the third mile it went wrong, and the Reo gained first place, the Jackson, which had been running a good third, taking second. In this race occurred the only thing like an accident, when the two Buicks and the Mason tried to take the pole all at the same time. A couple of fenders were smashed, but no serious damage done.

NO RECORDS BROKEN.

The last event of the day was an exhibition by Barney Oldfield, in an attempt to break the world's mile record. The best he could do was 55 3-5, slightly better than his other attempt, but not seriously near the record. The dusty track bothered him a good deal, and he went wide at the turns.

Today there will be another programme of racing, in which the "Reo Bird" and "999" will participate. The programme has already been announced in The Times.

During the past week Stoddard-Dayton cars have been delivered to W. S. Morse, J. F. Hughes, J. F. Atkinson and Frank Bement.

H. O. Harrison has had a busy week, delivering Peerless "30" cars to A. B. Daniels, P. B. Roy, J. W. Owen, Ernest Quinan and H. W. Putnam, Jr.; a Peerless "45" to J. W. McAllister, and Oldsmobiles to J. F. Grant, Robert Gollner, Mrs. P. H. Lyon and J. H. Nolan. In addition he has sold a Peerless "30" to H. Newmark, and Oldsmobiles to H. L. Percy and Frank Bement.

Winners of the star event of the day at the automobile meet yesterday—the Cupid Race, where each driver ran a mile, stopped and picked up a lady passenger, ran another mile, picked up a second passenger, ran a third mile and picked up the third passenger, and then ran two miles to the finish. The winning car was Jacoby's Thomas, which he drove himself, and the passengers, whose adroitness in getting aboard made possible the excellent time of 6:59 for the five miles, were Miss Jacoby and the two Misses Hoeffle.

WINDY CITY IS GLIDDEN MECCA.

RACING MATINEE PLANNED IN HONOR OF TOURISTS.

Drivers in Tour to Participate in Match Events, but no "Pros" to Be Invited—Funeral of Auto Dealer Occasion of "Motor Obsequies" Held in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Preparations for the coming of the Glidden tourists monopolize a considerable part of the attention of local motorists. The Chicago Automobile Club, which has taken the initiative in preparing for the two days' halt of the Gliddenites, July 13 and 14, has authorized its Racing Committee to complete plans for a race meet on Saturday, July 13.

Harlem track will probably be used for the speed events. It was on this track nearly three years ago that the Chicago Automobile Club conducted the most successful race meet ever held in the West. The track is the only oval in the Chicago district which has been kept in condition since the death of racing hereabouts.

Chairman C. E. Gregory of the Racing Committee does not deem it wise to depend upon professional speedmakers to attract the throngs. Instead, he is planning to induce some of the Glidden drivers, with a fondness for speed dashes, to participate in special match events. No event on the programme—which Mr. Gregory terms a matinée rather than a race meet—will be more than ten miles in length. To promote safety, entries will be limited in each event. Stock cars and high-powered runabouts will be depended upon to hold interest.

While it is taken for granted that the Glidden cars will be under lock and key during the Chicago halt, Chairman Gregory believes it will be possible to overcome this obstacle in the case of the Glidden drivers by arranging for cars for their use at the local agencies. Men like Ralph Owen, Frank Nutt, Guy Vaughan and others will, it is expected, have no trouble in arranging for cars to drive at Harlem.

As a committee to represent the Chicago Automobile Club in planning for the observance of Orphan's Day, June 12, president Ira M. Cobe last week appointed Joseph F. Gunther, C. E. Gregory and Frank H. Pietsch. The Chicago Motor Club has already appointed its committee and the Chicago Automobile Trade Association will follow suit next week.

Percy P. Platt, manager of the Michigan-avenue branch of the Excelsior Supply Company of Chicago, one of the most popular tradesmen on the "row," died last Tuesday and his funeral was the occasion for the first "motor obsequies" ever held in Chicago. More than a score of automobiles followed the cortege to the cemetery.

Arrangements for the third annual tour of the Austin Automobile Club, a flourishing little motoring organization in one of the suburbs of Chicago, will be made at a meeting of the club this week.

NEW HOME FOR MITCHELL.

Another Addition to South Main Street's Gasoline Row—Novel Feature of Repair Shop.

During the last week the Greer-Robbins Company, agents for the Mitchell car, moved into their new home on South Main street. The first floor of a large two-story brick and cement building in Mission style has been built to their specifications, and the result is a showroom and garage that ranks with the best in Los Angeles. The area is 60x135 feet, which gives plenty of room.

In front is a showroom 32x44, finished in cement and dark green-stained woodwork, where automobiles will be exhibited. This faces on two streets. The offices of the company open off this. Behind is another showroom for gas engines. In the rear is a large garage, but this is only for the convenience of customers, for the company does not do a regular garage business.

A machine shop is at one side of the garage, and this shop includes an unusual feature—a pit 30 feet long, so arranged that every car must stand over it. The pit is electrically lighted, and has an offset floor, so that workmen can stand on two different levels.

NEW CAR TO MAKE DEBUT.

Ralph Hamlin Will Introduce Lozier to Pacific Coast—Never Before Sold West of Chicago.

Still another has been added to the large family of motor cars represented in Los Angeles. The Lozier, a car well-known in the East, but never before handled west of Chicago, will be sold by Ralph Hamlin, who has consistently stuck to the Franklin alone up to this time. Hamlin has ordered two cars, which are already on the way. One is the regular 40-horse-power touring car, and the other is the roadster of the same power and much less weight.

The Lozier is built along standard lines, the only unusual thing about the car being the finish of the cylinders. The outside of the gray iron castings is smoothed to a glass finish, on which is baked a coating of pearl gray enamel. French ideas are followed in the construction details to a considerable degree. The drive is by double chain, through a four-speed selective gearset and a 38-plate multiple disk clutch. About thirty Hess-Bright bearings are used in the car. Ignition is by both battery and magneto, with a double set of plugs.

Some New Colors.

H. O. Harrison has just received two Oldsmobile roadsters upon which the paint shop of the factory lavished all the colors that could be found in the place. Harrison walked around the cars a long time before making up his mind just what the colors were, but with the aid of a shade-chart and a pair of blue goggles he reached a decision. It is officially announced that one is Chinese vermillion with a dash of crimson lake, and the other a porcelain gray with high lights of silver fizz and stripping of sloe gin rickey.

WHIMSICAL IS STILL A JOKE.

HIGH-CLASS FILLY IS NOT UP TO BRUISING RACE.

Cannot Be Considered a Factor in the First Big Handicap Unless She Shows Much Improvement—Trainers Are Already Trying to Guess the Winner of Metropolitan.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is nearly a week before the Metropolitan Handicap will be run at Belmont Park, but many of the leading trainers are already forecasting the result of the rich race. Few of the eligibles have so far done much to attract attention, but from now on many of them will be seen in public in the races at Jamaica. Actual racing is better than all the morning work a horse can get and no one appreciates that fact more than the trainers themselves.

Yesterday the high-class filly Whimsical made her appearance for the season. Her début was not a very auspicious one for she was badly beaten. In fact, unless she improves wonderfully in the next few days she could hardly be called a factor in the rich race. She did not run the first mile yesterday in better than 1:44 3-5, and she was timed separately at that mark. She had no foot or flash of speed and was never dangerous. Whimsical's début was in the mile and a sixteenth handicap, which was won by Tommy Waddell and in which Athlete, Good Luck and Sam H. Harris all finished in front of her. She ran in the colors of the Siwanoy stable. This is a new one on turf goers, but the owners, Messrs. Looram & Biddle, have been known on the turf for years.

Some one knew that Whimsical was hardly up to a bruising race, for she opened up at 7 to 5. Few wanted her at that figure and the books had to go to 3 to 1 to get the money. Jack Martin had the leg up on her and Trainer Frank Weir believed she would win, for she had worked nicely for him at Gravesend. Once she covered seven furlongs in 1:28 and on another occasion went a mile in 1:42 1-5, so that her race yesterday will have to be excused. She will probably do better in her next effort.

RACING AT OAKLAND.

Thirty-six Bookmakers Cut in to Skin the Gambling Suckers Out of Their Good Money.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—A good card with two handicaps as features drew a large attendance at Oakland today and interesting sport was witnessed. A record for the number of books operating was made when thirty-six layers drew in. The Chitos Handicap went to J. C. Clem, while Edwin Gum, which was kicked at the post, finished second. Lisaro, the favorite, was third after having a rough journey. The Prime Handicap was taken by Turnaway. Results:

Five and a half furlongs: Phalanx, 108 (Sandy,) 8 to 1, won; Escalante, 108 (Gross,) 7 to 10, second; Dollie Dollars, 90 (W. Kelly,) 16 to 1, third; time, 1:07 2-5. Gemmell, Peggy O'Neil, Bonnie Reg and Senator Warner also ran.

Prime Handicap, four and a half furlongs: Turnaway, 108 (C. Ross,) 4 to 1, won; Raleigh, 108 (A. Brown,) 7 to 1, second; College Widow, 110 (Gross,) 5 to 2, third; time, 0:54 2-5. Galmoore, Abbey, Rey Hindoo, Marge D, and Import finished as named.

Six furlongs, selling: Bucolic, 106 (A. Laric,) 7 to 1, won; Royal, 106 (J. Hunter,) 7 to 5, second; Ban Posal, 105 (Sandy,) 9 to 2, third; time, 1:13 3-5. Burning Bush, Silverskin, Nothing, Givonni, Balerio and Darum finished as named.

Chitos Handicap, one mile, purse $1000: J. C. Clem, 95 (C. Ross,) 5 to 1, won; Edwin Gum, 112 (J. Hunter,) 18 to 5, second; Lizaro, 112 (F. Kelly,) 11 to 5, third; time, 1:40. Princess Titania, George P. McNear, Earl Rogers and The Borgian finished as named.

Mile and a sixteenth, selling: Bragg, 110 (Keogh,) 8 to 5, won; Dolinda, 102 (Lycurgus,) 4 to 1, second; W. B. Gates, 107 (A. Williams,) 15 to 1, third; time, 1:46 4-5. The Reprobate, Talamund, Belvoir and Dutiful finished as named.

One mile, purse: Sanfara, 105 (C. Ross,) 12 to 5, won; Bedford, 107 (Hunter,) 11 to 10, second; Tavora, 105 (Sandy,) 9 to 2, third; time, 1:40 3-5. Treasure Seeker and Woolma finished as named.

WINANS AFTER HORSE HONORS.

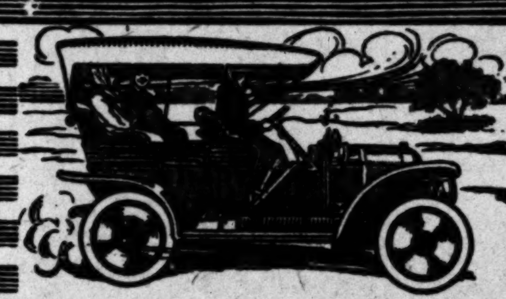
[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] England is to have a doughty champion at the international horse show, to be held at Olympia next June, in Walter Winans, whose stable is probably the most important and certainly the most varied in the country. Mr. Winans has declared his intention of entering horses in no fewer than 93 of the 124 classes arranged for. As he will enter two or three horses in some of the classes, he is likely to exhibit more than a hundred animals. Alfred Vanderbilt has sent only twenty-seven horses to England.

A keen sense of international rivalry has resulted in Mr. Winans's enormous entry for the show. The challenge thrown down by foreign owners has been accompanied with no less enthusiasm by other well-known English exhibitors, and though names cannot yet be published, it is common knowledge among the show officials that practically all the most famous stables in the home country will do everything possible to beat their American and Continental rivals.

Burke Wants Fight.

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Bill Burke, the former Philadelphia lightweight, who defeated all the good men in his class in that city, is now located in Brooklyn and has placed himself under the management of Tom McGinty, who is looking for some worthy opponent to meet his man for any number of rounds.



OLDSMOBILE

Roadability = Style

Glidden Tour—Perfect Score. 505-Mile Non-Stop Run—Bretton Woods to New York—begun one minute after Glidden Tour was finished.

75 Miles Poughkeepsie-New York Non-Stop—high gear sealed in; New York-Florida Run—1400 miles of mountain, mud, swamps, river fords; car winning one mile gentlemen's touring class event and making 100-mile record for its class on completion of run, without adjustment or overhauling of engine. Winning $6000 Race—Los Angeles to San Francisco—under the most terrible road conditions ever met.

These are tests of Oldsmobile Roadability never equaled by the highest priced cars sold in the world. These records were made by stock cars—duplicates of which may be bought at any Oldsmobile agency.

To make the Oldsmobile 100 per cent. right—it has Style as well as Roadability. You don't need the power, the mobility, the reserve force and perfect action on the asphalt especially—you do need the style—the smart appearance that gives a little extra flourish to the car's performance. The Oldsmobile has the style, speed and endurance of a thoroughbred.

The car that's good for bad roads—is the best car for good roads

The Los Angeles Cricket Club has been split up into three teams, viz.: The Marylebone, Zingari and Wanderers. The former is named after the famous English club, which not only frames all the laws governing the game, but settles all disputes arising from whatsoever sources, and is looked upon as the premier cricket club of the world.

The local Zingari team is named after that exclusive amateur club of England, which includes as members some of the finest batsmen and bowlers of the British Isles.

G. F. Gadsdon, secretary of the cricket club, has received a letter from A. I. Stewart, the secretary of the Driving Club, promising that no vehicles will be driven across the cricket pitch. Horsehoof prints and buggy wheels cut up the pitch considerably, causing straight deliveries and driven balls to deviate, making it a difficult matter for the fieldsmen to pick the ball up adroitly.

Extra benches are being provided to accommodate the crowds expected to attend the league matches each Sunday up to June 30.

HOW IT IS PLAYED.

Cricket is divided into single and double wicket; the latter being the most popular and requiring eleven players on each side.

The bat should be 4¼ inches at the widest part and not more than 38 inches in length. The ball, which is similar to a baseball, is not so reboundant. It must weight from 5½ to 5¾ ounces, and from 9 to 9¼ inches in circumference.

The stumps, of which there are three at either end, must be 27 inches out of the ground; the balls or cross pieces, of which there are two, should be 4 inches each in length. The stumps should be of equal thickness and so placed that a ball may not pass through them without dislodging the balls. The wickets are pitched opposite to each other at a distance of 22 yards.

The eleven fielders are assigned respectively to the following positions: Bowler, wicket-keeper, long stop, slip, point, long slip, cover point, mid on, long on, long off, and leg. The duties of the fielders are to dislodge their opponents who are batting either by bowling them out, stumping, or by catching. If a batsman hits a delivery and a fieldsman fails to stop it, the batsmen score a run by dashing to opposite creases before the ball can be thrown to the wicket-keeper. If a batsman fails to reach his ground in time, the wicket-keeper may put his wicket down with the ball, the batsman so out giving place to another of his side.

The bowling crease (whitewashed mark) should be in a line with the stumps, and 6 feet 8 inches in length, with the stumps in the center. The batsman's crease must be 4 feet from the wicket and parallel to it and not shorter than the bowling crease.

The bowler delivers a ball with one foot on the ground behind the bowling crease and within the batsman's crease; any infringement of this rule constituting a "no-ball." The ball must be delivered with the wrist rigid and not thrown or jerked.

The batsman is out if either of the balls are dislodged; a stump be bowled out of the ground; if he strikes the ball and it is caught before it touches the ground; if he hits his own wicket while making a stroke; if he gets his legs in front of the wicket, thus preventing a ball from dislodging the balls; or if his wicket is thrown down by a fieldsman or the wicket-keeper before he can regain his crease.

NOTED PLAYERS.

A. E. Barwell played for the Essex county second eleven, and also for the honorable artillery company, both strong English aggregations. He headed the batting averages, last year.

H. M. Bowen was a member of the Essex Club and ground, was captain of the Acorn soccer team, and a member of the Clapton, London, eleven.

Tom Brown is a steady bat and an enthusiastic member of the L.A.C.C.

J. C. Brown was a noted West Indian player of the St. Vincent team, which lowered the colors of Lord Hawke's English eleven. He has played against Barbadoes, St. Lucia, anr the strong eleven from the Island of Trinidad.

T. D. Bamford is a slow, right-arm bowler and a good wicket-keeper. He played for the Peninsular team of Detroit, Mich., against such teams as Toronto and Hamilton, Canada, Chicago and touring English elevens.

M. J. Bhumgara was a member of the famous Parsee team of cricketers of Bombay, India. He also has played for the Crescents of Hampstead, London. He is a good under-arm bowler.

W. H. Crouch is a good fielder. He donated the trophy for the post-season games last year, which was won by Santa Monica.

Thomas Cadman formerly was of the Dukinfield eleven of Manchester, England. He is a good batter and has been with the L.A.C.C. two years.

H. N. Dormer played with the Essex second eleven, and also with the Calgary, Alberta, team. He is a medium fast bowler.

G. F. Gadsden is secretary of the club. He is a good bowler and fielder, and thoroughly conversant with the game.

P. Huggins is captain of the L.A.C.C. He is an Australian, and the best man so far in the club. He is an excellent wicket-keeper, fast bowler and plays a dashing game, displaying the style only acquired by practice.

W. Morris, late of the Fall River, Mass., team, is one of the staunch members of the club, this being his third season. He is a good batter and fielder, and an excellent football player.

A. R. Mitchell recently was a member of the St. Clackmannan county team, Scotland. He is a fast right-arm bowler, and vice-captain of the club.

M. O. Mould is an all-around man, particularly good in the field. He played with the Priory Park team of Chichester, Sussex.

W. Meggett is one of the best cricketers on the team, a fast bowler, steady bat and an enthusiastic player.

C. E. Packman played with the Hyde Park, Mass., eleven. He is a good batter and fielder.

G. Salter is a good left-arm bowler. He played with the Alden College team of Leyton, Essex.

P. Tomkims recently was a member of the Sydney Electorate, Australia, team. He is a good left-arm bowler, a dashing bat, being particularly partial to loose balls on the leg side, which he puts away to the boundary with great force.

GUN EXPERTS DO GOOD WORK.

FIRST DAY'S BLUE ROCK SHOOT VERY SATISFACTORY.

Varien, Holling and Gus Knight Do Great Execution, Beating Hagerman, Vaughn and King by Few Targets. Thirty-five Sharps Enter but Conditions Not the Best.

Variable winds and uncertain light did not tend to make conditions the best for the first day's shooting yesterday, of the two day's tourney at blue rock, that is being given on the Sherman grounds by the Los Angeles Gun club and yet, some very good scores were made. The high guns of course were those of the northern professionals, but Gus Knight of San Bernardino finished third on the day to Varien and Holling. Hagerman was fifth, just one bird behind Arnold. Then came Vaughn and below him were King, Reed and Justins. They will all shoot again today in twenty-bird events.

There were ten events at twenty birds each and the story is best told by the scores, which were as follows, thirty-five men shooting during the day:

VAUGHN A WINNER.

HIGH AT REDLANDS SHOOT.

Shooting his usual steady and consistent gait, J. Ed Vaughn of Peters fame won professional high average at the Redlands shoot Wednesday and Thursday last in competition with a number of high-class amateurs and some of the best "pros" on the Coast, breaking 181 out of 200 shots at each day for an average of 90 1-2 per cent. on the 400 birds programmed.

Fred B. Mills of Bolsa was in his usual splendid form and had no great difficulty in cleaning up amateur honors with indeed a better score than the professionals. Mills is a wonderful shot, and can make his mark in the fastest company. His scores of 182-184 out of the 200 birds shot at each day figure 91 1-2 per cent., which is a gait that gets the money in any shoot where they bar Bill Crosby and his gang.

Gus Knight, the one-eyed veteran of San Bernardino and his screw-stocked howitzer, got in their deadly work with a vengeance the second day when Gus broke 98 out of 100 with the cannon. He ran out his second hundred with 10 lost, for a 90 per cent. gait. The old man is always to be reckoned with in any race and whoever beats him will know he has been to a shooting match. Knight broke 174 and 188 respectively, averaging 94 per cent. the second day.

A number of local and visiting shooters made the trip and the little shoot was quite a successful one for the club which gave it. The birds were thrown up to standard and it was not easy game for anybody's gun.

EXPERT ACCOUNT OF THE REGATTA.

O'DEA TELLS HOW STANFORD BEAT CALIFORNIA.

Perfect Utilization of Power and Constant Application Is Secret of Cardinal Success—Blue and Gold Rowed Prettier Race, but Failed to Keep Up Clip.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—Pat O'Dea, official referee, writing of the rowing race between Stanford and California, said:

"California, rowing a stroke of 39 a minute, hit the water first with Stanford following at 37. After traveling 100 yards, California was leading by three-quarters of a length. California rowed well. The men had perfect time and a perfect swing, evidently a modification of the English stroke, with this difference, that in the English stroke the oars are close to the water on the catch, while the California boys skied their oars and were too far from the water on the catch and consequently lost quite a little before taking the water.

"Although Stanford did not row in such pretty form as California, nevertheless the power was there. It was the old sculling stroke adapted to eight-oared rowing—a good hard catch with the shoulders, the seat held well under, the oar being driven through the water by a powerful leg drive, the arms being kept perfectly straight until the finish of the stroke, when the hands are dropped into the lap to release the oar from the water and are then shot forward, quickly followed by the body moving up slowly on the side on the recovery. As the hands pass over the feet the oar is turned slightly so that when the oarsman comes to the full reach the oar is close to the water and ready for the next stroke.

"In a perfect exhibition of oarsmanship there is no stop to the action—it is a case of perpetual motion; and it was on this point that California was at fault. They hung on the catch, in rowing parlance; or, in plain English, paused slightly before the catch of the stroke.

"At the mile California's boat commenced to wabble owing to the men losing form, and at the mile and three-quarters Stanford led by two and a half lengths. Stanford now raised her stroke to 40 per minute, the highest she rowed at any time during the race, but only maintained it for about fifty strokes. California followed with 38. Stanford passed the two-mile point four and a half lengths to the good.

"California lost its form rapidly and, commencing to row very ragged, Stanford lowered its stroke to 34 and crossed the finish line rowing strongly, six lengths ahead of the blue and gold. As California crossed the finish line, her stroke and No. 3 fell exhausted in the boat.

"It was quite apparent that Stanford was in better physical condition than California. This was evidenced by the way California went to pieces in the last half mile. In justice to California, however, it may be stated that condition for a rowing race must be gotten in the boat, and California claims that she did not get as much practice on the water as Stanford. Both crews, however, are to be congratulated on their showing; they compare favorably with the eastern crews, even though they have less material to choose from.

Scroggs Is Ready.

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Harry Scroggs, the Baltimore lightweight, who has been boxing here for the past three weeks under a handicap of a bad hand, announces that the sore member is well again and that he is ready to meet anyone at his weight. Kid Coffey, Amby McGarry, or anyone near his weight can have a match for the asking.

PASADENA TRACK TEAM.

Y.M.C.A. Has Put Out Fine Cinder Path Aggregations—This Year's Team Best.

The Pasadena Y.M.C.A. always has put out a good track team. The team has been more active this year than that of any association team on the Coast. This year the team lost early in the season to Occidental College, defeated Whittier College, and made a good showing in the P.A.A. meet. The team is scheduled to wind up the season with a dual meet against the Long Beach Y.M.C.A. track team.

Carnes, Wolf, Hendricks and Mersereau especially are strong. Wolf did 5 feet 9¾ inches in the high jump in competition, last week. Carnes has made 11 feet with the pole this year. Hendricks won the shot put at the P.A.A. meet with a good put of 38 feet 11 inches, beating Dean Cromwell, the erstwhile champion. Mersereau is a "comer" at the hammer, winning easily in the recent P.A.A. meet with a throw of 131 feet 5 inches.

HARD HITTING BEATS SMITHYS

Three Doubles Banged Out in Second Inning.

Burns Makes a Hit Pitching and Two Batting.

plits His Finger Stopping a Sizzling Grounder.

Los Angeles 6, Oakland 2.

It was the same old thing with the mithy Kanes yesterday in the ball ame.

They beat the Looloos away from e barrier, but at the quarter the cals passed them and led by two ngths, and then after that all the ling of all the Huey Joneses that er made a 90 per cent. book couldn't ake the Blow Ups finish. It was taf trying to make Roseben back p, and the attempt was to ha-ha.

There was nothing very sensational out the race except the first appear- this season of Pitcher Burns. He s the real commencer, and if he had l perfect support the Smithys uldn't have scored any runs off He has speed and all his old- curves, and although eight hits picked off his southpaw, these scattered through seven innings. ndolph was the last man to bat in first of the seventh inning, and he a scorching grounder to Burns, in stopping it the third finger of right hand was torn open, and had to retire, Nagle taking his place pitching the last two innings. gave but one base on balls.

ndolph was in for the Smithys, was hit freely, being slaughtered the second inning for three two- gers and one single, and these, d to Truck Eagan's juggle of a nder and a bad throw, netted four for the Looloos. After that two runs were made that could not ed in the score, or were not ded.

Umpire Derrick had another day of guessing, and was roasted ratly by the fans and players for decisions. These rulings made difference in the result, however, the locals won the game in the by powerful batting. Mayor was among the fans present.

second inning is the only one really needs any history. Cra- opened it by popping a high fly third base. Then Eager hit a double field, and Delmas followed with fly to Eagan. This looked bad, to the joy of the big crowd of Hogan slashed another double to scoring Eager, and came in him- when Burns ripped off a double Burns ran to third when Car- hit safely to right field, Carlisle to second on the throw in. Ellis first, and Burns scored on blunder of Ellis's grounder. to give Carlisle a chance to Ellis dashed towards second on steal, and then turned and ran first. Eagan got the throw- from Hackett, and then heaved wild to first after Ellis, and throw let in Carlisle. Two came in the sixth on three a pass and Hackett's pass of -in from right field, after El- lied out.

mithys got their first two runs ly. Jim Smith drew the only the game from Burns, and n Haltren bunted safely to- third base and beat it out. n to get the ball, and threw over first base, Jim Smith and Van running to third base, ich he easily scored after the Heitmuller's fly to center. ninth, with Nagle pitching, ithys bunched three singles off pectant bridegroom and made run. The game as a whole trifle stupid, the only noticeable ce being the doubles of the in the second inning.

To Play Whittier.

U.S.C. and Whittier will play their second game of baseball Wednesday afternoon on Hadly field, Whittier. The Methodist team, because of the prolonged track season, was late in getting started at baseball, making continual practice with little rest necessary to get the men accustomed to their positions. As a result the team has evidenced little energy and snap in their playing.

L. A. GIRLS WIN SNAPPY CONTEST.

ARE CHAMPIONS OF ACADEMIC ATHLETIC UNION.

Pomona Beaten in Game Replete With Fouls—Widde Kendrick Is Star of Match—Famous Combination Play Scores Heavily for Visitors—Full of Sensations.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Los Angeles High School girls' basketball team won the championship of the Academic Athletic Union of Southern California this afternoon when they defeated the girls from Pomona High School on the Pomona court by a score of 22 to 12.

The game was snappy and well played, but the Los Angeles guards were penalized continually for fouling. A. C. Braden of Pomona College umpired the contest and his very strict interpretation of the rules was very unpleasant to the city girls. It seems that in the women's league it has been the custom to give the players the benefit of every doubt instead of being especially strict, as is done in the East, where Mr. Braden has had wide experience as an official.

All the players did well, but Miss Kendrick was the particular star.

On the first pass in the game Capt. McFarlan of Pomona secured the ball and threw a beautiful field goal. The Pomona supporters were wild with enthusiasm, which almost doubled when she followed with another goal from the foul line. The Los Angeles guards began to get busy then, and although the ball was often in Pomona territory, no more field goals were thrown during the half.

Down in the High School territory the famous combination play had been brought into use and "Wizard Widde" Kendrick had thrown five field goals before the half was ended. In addition, she threw four foul goals during the half, while the Pomona forwards caged three out twelve chances from free throws. The half ended with the score 14 to 6 in favor of Los Angeles.

The second half was the first over again except for the fact that the Pomona guards found the combination, and the Los Angeles girls were not able to use their pet play to such a good advantage. Miss Kendrick was awarded one point because of being fouled as she was attempting a basket. Pomona scored 6 points in this half and Los Angeles 8.

The line-up:

L.A.H.S.		P.H.S.
Kendrick	forward	McFarlan
Shortridge	forward	Pocock
Shepard	center	Cogswell
Ford	guard	Poston
Winstanley	guard	George

Field goals, Kendrick 8, McFarlan 1, Pocock 1; goals from fouls, Kendrick 4, McFarlan 4, Pocock 5; fouls, Los Angeles 32, Pomona 15; awarded points, Kendrick 1; referee, Miss Spencer of Hollywood; umpire, Mr. Braden of Pomona College.

SAINTS BEAT OCCIDENTAL.

Batting of St. Vincent's Proves Too Strong.

Phillips Pitches Good Ball for the Catholics.

Great Play by Big Twirler Features Game.

St. Vincent defeated Occidental by a score of 7 to 1 in baseball yesterday afternoon. The game was fast and featured by the heavy batting of the Saints.

Occidental's crack second baseman, Beal, was out of the game on account of sickness, and his absence weakened the team considerably. Nevertheless, the team played good ball and the defeat was due to the terrific stick-work of the Saints.

From the first the Saints started out to win, getting enough hits and runs the first inning to win any ordinary game. Lamer, the first man up, started the fireworks by a three-bagger over the center fielder's head. McCann was safe on an error by Ross. Flick scored Lamer and McCann with a clean two-bagger. Cunningham was an easy out to McKenny. Lane came next with another two-bagger, scoring Flick. Olhasso sacrificed and Ammann scored Lane by a neat single. Winne, the next man up, struck out, which ended the scoring of the Saints for this inning.

In the fourth, the Saints added another run on a walk and two errors by Occidental. Cunningham scored in the fifth on a hit, a stolen base and a hit by Winne.

Occidental secured her lone run in the sixth when Thomas reached first on the error of Ammann's and made the circuit on the outs of Baer and Thacker.

In the seventh the Saints secured their seventh and last run on a hit by Flick, and hits of Cunningham and Lane.

The game in every detail was one of the cleanest of any game played on any southern diamond this year.

Philips was in fine form and distinctly showed it by the ball he pitched, allowing but two hits and only passing two men. Thacker did not seem to pitch in his usual form, for although he passed but three men, the Saints managed to find him whenever hits meant runs.

The feature occurred in Occidental's half of the third inning. Thomas hit a swift one between first and second which looked like a clean hit, but Phillips ran over and, seeing he did not have time to throw the man out at first, batted the ball with his hand to Ammann, who was waiting, barely getting the ball before the runner.

For St. Vincent's, Phillips was the star, with Lamer, Lane and Flick coming close after. For Occidental, the catching of Brooks and fielding of Thomas were the features.

Occidental was somewhat weakened by the loss of Beal, and as the next game with St. Vincent's will be on their grounds, they still have a fighting chance.

POMONA IS WINNER.

EASILY DEFEATS U.S.C. TEAM.

Pomona College baseball team trimmed the ball tossers of the University of Southern California, yesterday afternoon at Boyard Field, the final score being 7 to 1 in favor of the Claremonters. Incidentally, the visitors shut out the Methodists from making a respectable showing in the 'varsity finals, as today's winners already have been defeated in contest with the Occidental nine, which recently easily disposed of the Methodist aggregation.

The sage-brushers imported a string of stick artists who started in to knock Bridwell out of the box, but the local slabster, despite the onslaught, steadied considerably and secured ten strike-outs as against two for Spurgeon and Gally, respectively.

The game was featured by numerous errors, U.S.C. being responsible for the lion's share of the muffs. The Methodists' defeat was due in a large measure to poor judgment in the arrangement of the team, McKnight being shifted to short, and the infield showed the lack of Bridwell's fielding.

U.S.C. commenced activities in the second inning, securing their only tally. Bridwell got a hit, stole second, and was passed to third by Allison, scoring on a long drive to right field by Burck. The remaining hits were scattered, all attempts at scoring proving futile.

In the fourth inning the visitors opened fire, finding Bridwell for the first time with four safe hits, netting three runs; and again in the fifth they annexed four additional runs.

W. Spurgeon, having practically won the game in this, his initial appearance, retired in favor of Gally, who more than held his own.

The result of the contest places Pomona third in the percentage column, relegating the university to strive for consolation honors with Whittier. The score:

PASADENA WINS.

HARVARD SCHOOL LOSES.

Pasadena High School outplayed the Harvard Military School baseball team on the latter's diamond yesterday afternoon, and the Crown City aggregation carried off the game by the score of 6 to 2.

Lafferty had an off day in the box and the Pasadena boys batted him to the bench in the sixth inning. Ball, who was substituted, proved slightly better, although he was wild. The military boys were only able to find Lockwood for three hits, but they were bunched in the second inning and netted two runs.

Pasadena started off with a rush and scored three runs in the first inning. Rice and Wachob rapped out clean singles and both scored on Boynton's hit. Lockwood was passed to first, reached third on errors and came home on Heaton's three-bagger.

Harvard made her only tallies in the second inning. Ball opened up with a long three-bagger to left field and tramped home a minute later on a wild throw. Caddagan batted out a pretty single, was sacrificed to second, stole third, and was sacrificed home by Kingman.

The Crown City players made three more runs by hard batting. One came in the second inning, one in the third, and the last one in the seventh. Harvard was unable to connect with Lockwood's delivery and drew goose eggs after the second inning.

Scott's playing was the feature of the game, although Rice and Kobbe were conspicuous on account of their brilliant fielding. Rice led the batting with three clean hits.

ANGEL TEAM IS THE BEST.

Analysis of Clubs in League so Far This Season.

Looloos Best in Batting and Fielding Averages.

Portland Needs Bracing Up in All Departments.

The season of the Pacific Coast League has progresed far enough to give the local fans a line on the different teams, and an impartial analysis makes it appear as if the Los Angeles team is the best in the league.

The best evidence of this is the fact that Los Angeles in the first three weeks of play, with the three other teams in the league, won 14 and lost 6 of the 20 games played. Like many other games, baseball largely is made up of luck, but Los Angeles has had no more than its share of this so far, the games having been won by good fielding and batting.

Taken as a whole, the fielding of the four teams has been about equal, Los Angeles having made 39 errors to 41 for the three visiting teams in the 20 games. In the same games, Los Angeles made 163 hits to 156 for the other teams. How the four teams batted and fielded here for the first 20 games is shown by the following table:

Club	BH	E
Oakland	70	11
Los Angeles	68	15
San Francisco	51	11
Los Angeles	54	12
Portland	35	19
Los Angeles	47	12

The fielding of the local team was less costly than it looks on paper, for while Brashear alone made 14 errors in 20 games, 12 of these blunders did not figure in runs, and thus resulted the same as perfect plays.

The position of the clubs at this time shows very plainly which is the best team in the league, and, barring unforeseen accidents, the Los Angeles team should stay in the lead all year. It has better individual batsmen than any other team, and probably it is true that Los Angeles has had the best fielding team that any Coast League ever had. It certainly has the most "heady" aggregation of any that has played here this season, and it does the best team work of any, and it seems to have "it on" all the clubs.

PORTLAND IS WEAK.

Portland undoubtedly is the weakest in the league, and unless Manager McCredie does something, and does it quickly, his team will be at the bottom all year. He lost his strength when Mitchell, Sweeney, McHale, Essick, McLean and Henderson left him, and it is too late now to replace such men. He has Donahue and Henderson back, and may get McHale. Kane is out of the game for good, and the boys who have taken the places of these good ones are looked upon as a lot of kids.

Oakland is an in-and-out aggregation that cannot be depended on, but there are some good players in the line-up. Devereaux, Haley, Hackett, Bliss and Van Haltren are the goods, and the pitching staff is fairly good. Truck Eagan is too well known to need mention, but the others are not much. Heitmuller is roasted by the Northern papers as a stupid, but he hits and fields admirably here, and some of the Northern scribes must have an ax out for him.

The San Francisco team is rather a surprise, for it has had a bad slump in the past two weeks. Los Angeles beat Oakland six out of the eight first games, and then broke even with San Francisco. Then Oakland played the Seals and beat them six out of seven, and Portland has been putting the harpoon into them in great shape the last week. How such players as Spencer, Mohler, Wheeler, Hildebrand and Street can be beaten by both Oakland and Portland is a mystery that needs explaining.

The season, of course, is very young yet, and the route to the end is a long one, but the chances are all in favor of Los Angeles leading the league at all times, unless the other clubs brace up with new men. They will be compelled to do it, if they desire to remain in the race, for the Looloos are too well balanced to be beaten very much by the teams opposed to them. With a fair share of luck, Los Angeles hardly can lose the pennant, for its pitchers are getting into shape fast.

LADY SWIMMER HERE.

Female Champion of England Arrives in New York and Will Lave in American Rivers.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Annetta C. Kellerman, a champion woman swimmer of England, and hailed as a born water nymph, arrived Monday on the steamer Celtic from Southampton. Miss Kellerman comes here, literally speaking, to get "into the swim." The young woman comes from Australia and has been an expert swimmer since she was 14 years of age. Her mission here is to demonstrate to the American women who are desirous of being expert swimmers. Before she returns to Australia she may decide to swim many of the great American rivers, including the New York Bay. She will tackle the Mississippi, the Hudson, the Missouri and the Rio Grande. She may even try to swim from the narrows to Coney Island and she will undoubtedly have a try at the St. Lawrence.

SUPERSTITION CURES.

Instances of the Effect Imagination Has Upon Relief from Disease.

Superstition is by no means dead, even in ultra-civilized England. One Sunday, a few months ago, an interesting proof of this fact was seen in the parish church of Sutcombe, in North Devon. A woman who suffered from epilepsy sat in the porch as the congregation came out from morning service and thirty married men, who at her request had attended church, passed her one by one. As they passed each dropped a penny in her lap. The thirtieth took the pennies and gave the woman a half crown, which was to be made into a ring for her to wear.

Vain superstition, you exclaim! Yet another woman, also a martyr to epileptic fits, who went through the same ceremony at the same place nineteen years ago has never since suffered.

Devonshire is the home of the faith cure. For instance, to cure thrush, a complaint of children, the eighth psalm is read three times, three days a week, for three weeks, over the sufferer's head. Another cure for thrush is to catch a duckling and place its head with open bill inside the mouth of the afflicted child.

The extraordinary effect which imagination exercises over human health or disease is familiar to the medical profession, and no doubt that is why the faith cure is so often efficacious. Where the illness is merely an effect of imagination, as is very frequently the case, it is only natural that the imagination must be used to effect a cure. Some time ago a case of the kind was recorded in the Lancet. An elderly woman was brought into a hospital suffering terribly. She had been an invalid for some time and was supposed to be suffering from a complication of disorders. She was terribly thin and looked wretched.

The doctor who examined her said that there was little actual disease; yet he did not either laugh or roughly tell her that she was shamming. He said very gravely that there was only one remedy which would cure her. It must be administered with the greatest care as to quantity and at certain hours to be observed most carefully. One tablespoonful of distilled water was given to the poor woman every five hours. Within three weeks she was as well as she had ever been in her life.—[Chicago Chronicle.

NOLAN TALKS LOGIC ABOUT JIM JEFFRIES.

"I AM serious about having O'Brien meet Jim Jeffries if Jack is successful in his bout with Tommy Burns Wednesday night," said Billy Nolan, manager for Jack O'Brien, last night, "and I will back my statement with $5000, to be posted as a side bet.

"Many persons are of the opinion that Jeffries is invincible. I know that Jeffries's work in the ring has been marvelous, but you can never make me believe that Jim Jeffries can't be beaten, and again bear in mind that it has been three years since the boilermaker has been in the ring. This fact alone is the greatest detriment to a fighter who wishes to attain success in any walk of athletic life. Inactivity will force a man to the back ranks quicker than anything else, to say nothing of the abuse of strong drink and tobacco. Neither of these vices are strangers to Jim Jeffries.

"How well do I remember when the old California Athletic Club talked of matching Jim Corbett with Peter Jackson. This was about sixteen years ago. Up to this time Corbett had done nothing to warrant meeting the tough negro, who had been defeating the best men in the country with ease, while Corbett's star effort was the defeat of poor old Jake Kilrain in a limited go, the latter at that time being old enough to be his father.

"On the night of the Jackson-Corbett battle Jim tipped the scales at exactly 169 pounds, while the colored man was a trifle over the 200-mark. The bout lasted sixty-one rounds and was declared no contest; in other words, there was no advantage.

"The club received a severe censuring for attempting to make such a match. It was a case of Peter not taking the best of care of himself. In fact he was continually drinking, and abused himself in every way. Corbett, a shrewd fellow, knew this, and met him just at the opportune time and gave the negro all he could bargain for.

AFTER SULLIVAN.

"A year later Corbett kept after John L. Sullivan and finally forced him to a meeting, which took place in New Orleans. You could write your own ticket on Corbett if you wanted to bet on him, so eager were the Sullivan admirers to place their money on their favorite; ninety-nine out of every hundred men in the country were ready to think you were a fit subject for a lunatic asylum if you said that Corbett would beat the big fellow, the same as a lot of them will say about me when they hear of my opinion of O'Brien's chances.

"There is no more disparity as to the relative sizes of Jack O'Brien and Jim Jeffries than there was between Corbett and either Jackson or Sullivan. True, Jeff may be twenty or thirty pounds heavier than either when he enters the ring the next time. This extra poundage will be a detriment to him. I honestly believe that Jeff could not train down under 240 pounds. Jim Corbett never did anything that Jack O'Brien could not do. I know that O'Brien is equally as clever, as for punching ability O'Brien certainly has the call and the Philadelphian's gameness was never questioned.

"Corbett fought Jeffries when the latter was in his prime; in fact when he was at the zenith of his fighting days. The former was then a dead one from a pugilistic standpoint, being more than thirty-four years of age and having gone the pace that kills. At that, Corbett made Jeff look pretty cheap. For twenty-three rounds Corbett hit the big fellow where and when he wanted; in fact the crowd were prepared to see Jeff collapse within the next two rounds, as the contest was scheduled for twenty-five. A lucky punch from Jeff caught Corbett and ended what looked like sure defeat.

"At the time of this battle Jim Corbett had passed his useful days in the ring. With a physique wrecked as it was, he was able to give the mighty Jeff one of the hardest rubs of his career, especially when the latter was never fitter. It is just a bit over seven years ago. Since that time Jeff has been enjoying himself with all the luxuries of life. Last, but not least, he has not engaged in a ring battle for more than three years.

CASE OF SLOAN.

"As to the weight, this last fact bears on the case I will illustrate of Tod Sloan, once the premier jockey of the world, credited by all horsemen to have been the peer of all saddle artists. He was ruled off in England and after retirement of about two years was again given a chance to ride the best horses that were running at New Orleans. The apprentices could ride all around him. This was what his retirement did for him. He lost his nerve, his eye—in fact he had gotten out of practice.

"In the case of a pugilist the ring work is more necessary. In the history of the ring show me a single case where an individual ever returned and amounted to anything after as long a retirement as that of Jeffries.

"This mainly is the reason why I claim that Jack O'Brien has a good chance to defeat the boilermaker, and if the former is successful on next Wednesday night we will emphasize our belief by posting $5000 as a side bet to establish our sincerity. If Jeff is able to defeat the Philadelphian he can get as much money as he ever received in a ring encounter."

"PEDLAR" PALMER AND HIS CHECKS.

"Pedlar" Palmer, in his day, was a real champion, in which he had the advantage of his countryman, Jack Palmer. Through his sensational defeat at the hands of Terry McGovern in fifty seconds at Tuckahoe, he ended his championship career forever. He was a monkey fighter that depended on a lot of antics and funny stunts, to mislead an opponent, and a series of left jabs and right hooks to beat him. He has been in the fight game more than fifteen years and has a fair record, as English boxers go, these days.

Palmer's arrest and approaching trial charged with manslaughter is an unexpected end. Boxers in England seem to be in a very bad way, socially as well as athletically. Their greatest living exponent of the manly art, Jack Burge, still languishes in jail for his participation in the Goudie frauds. "Chesterfield Goode was arrested in London when his houses of ill-fame were raided by the authorities, while dozens of the lesser luminaries are kept constantly active eluding the hands of the police.

A good story is told in England of Pedlar. When he arrived home after his defeat by McGovern, Manager Bettinson took him aside and said: "Now look here, Pedlar, you've been a pretty bad lad with money, never saved a penny. So I'm putting this £1500 ($7500) in the bank for you. Here are a couple of check books. You can draw out five pounds whenever you need it.

"Now look 'ere, Governor! Wot th' 'ell's all this about?" Pedlar queried suspiciously.

"Why," said Bettinson, as he showed him how to make out a check, "just fill in a check like that, take it to any bank or tradesman and they will cash it for you."

"Oh, hi sees," said Pedlar, gaily, and departed.

Palmer went on the "bear" down the Mile End road and his native Cunning town, and the checks he threw about were numerous and mainly by the outcome of drunken folly. In a few weeks the account was overdrawn and Manager Bettinson sent for the Pedlar in a hurry.

"What ever have you been doing, Palmer? You must be mad," he cried.

"Why, wot the 'ell, Governor!" Pedlar replied in his grossest cockney lingo, added to his most offensive manner.

Bettinson explained at some length how the account was overdrawn, when to his dismay Pedlar planked the remaining check book on the table and said: "Garn, you must be dreaming. I've got all that blooming lot left, yet!" and he strode from the room in a rage.

KELLY IS READY FOR SULLIVAN.

GREAT MIDDLEWEIGHT FIGHT FOR CHAMPIONSHIP.

Battle May Be More Interesting Than That Between Burns and O'Brien, Who Were Defeated Respectively by the Middles—Hard Work-outs Scheduled Today.

Hugo Kelly and Jack Twin Sullivan are to meet Friday night for the middleweight championship of the world before the Pacific Athletic Club.

With the possible exception of Tommy Ryan these two men have the best claim for the middleweight title. They have defeated not only middleweights, but heavyweights, and have no serious blots on their records. In fact, Sullivan has the credit of defeating Tommy Burns in a 20-round battle, while Kelly defeated O'Brien in ten rounds at Indianapolis.

It might be said that these two men, therefore, are the best candidates for heavyweight honors, but both Burns and O'Brien have good excuses for their defeats. O'Brien declares he was ill, while Tommy Burns had to make a weakening weight for Sullivan. Nevertheless, Kelly and Sullivan are about the toughest nuts in pugilistic circles today, for they are scientific in addition to being able to absorb or avoid much punishment.

The battle between Kelly and Sullivan will be more interesting as a contest than the Burns-O'Brien fight, according to the belief of many. Kelly is a hard fighter and good mixer, while Sullivan's specialty is infighting. Sullivan's excellent defense saves him much punishment, and he has thus been able to fight men much heavier and harder than himself. He therefore should be able to withstand many of Kelly's rushes where other men would have to stand the gaff.

Sullivan's one weakness is inability to deliver knockout blows against good men. If he is able to gradually wear them out, he can put them away as good as any man; but a fighter with the stamina of Kelly usually can absorb all his punishment and come back for more. The probabilities are that if there is a knockout, Kelly will score a victory, but if it goes to a decision, Sullivan has as good a chance to win. The two met in Los Angeles last year and went to a twenty-round draw.

Kelly is working at the East Side Athletic Club, and is in very fair condition. He will box with Kid Dalton, Dick Murray, and Jim Tremble this afternoon. He will work Monday and Tuesday, and rest up after that to the day of the fight, taking light exercise. Sullivan, at Arcadia, is already in trim for the battle. He expects to box with Mike Twin Sullivan, Sunday afternoon.

TOO STRONG FOR O'NEIL.

JOE LEAHY SHOWS UP WELL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Joe Leahy won a well-deserved decision over Willie O'Neil, the clever little Australian boy, at Dreamland Friday night. Leahy was too strong for O'Neil, and although the latter displayed the same speed that characterized his opening fight some weeks ago with Kid Webster of Los Angeles, his blows lacked steam and he was extremely tired when the gong sounded at the close of the final round.

Leahy used his right to good advantage, and all the way through jolted his lighter opponent. In spite of his cleverness and his speed, O'Neil has a bad way of leaving his jaw unprotected and it was on that point that Leahy scored. The Australian lacks the punch to put out his man, but has a style that pleases the crowd. One of the three judges voted for O'Neil, but where he could see any reason in that course, is a mystery.

One rank decision marred the bouts and that was when the judges gave Joe Willis the fight over Battling Johnson. Once before Johnson lost to Willis on a decision but last night there should have been no question. Johnson won all the way, and the decision simply was in line with willful ignorance heretofore displayed by some of the men chosen for judges.

There were two rank bouts—they could hardly be called fights. They were the matches in which George Martin won from Dan Divaul, who appropriated to himself the name of the "fighting conductor," and the one in which Joe Somers won from English Jack McLaughlin. In the former Divaul had the grit but lacked the strength. Martin lacked gameness and ought to have knocked the conductor out. The McLaughlin-Somers affair was largely a hugging match and lacked everything.

The curtain raisers, while anything but classy, were full of action and more than satisfied the crowd. Tommy McCarthy knocked Eddie Lennon out in the second round.

Jim Gillette, alias Cole, lost to Kid Sullivan in the second number on the card. It was a whirlwind match with vicious swings that were not aimed anywhere in particular.

MAKING READY FOR POOL PLAY.

HANDBALL TIME APPROACHING AT ATHLETIC CLUB.

Preparations for Tournament Soon to Be in Progress—Many Aspirants for Honors Already in Training for the Event—More Courts in the New Club.

Plans for the Los Angeles Athletic Club's pool tournament, which is the next thing on the tapis, are going ahead steadily, the committee in charge, composed of C. F. Reuman, W. J. O'Bannon and L. L. Staggers, having already secured a number of entries.

Among the expert cue wielders who already have come forward with their entrance fees are Charles Brownstein, Theodore Gordon, George S. Hupp, James W. Routzahn, W. A. Willmot, T. E. Stanton, Adolph Frankel, Jack Watlington, Roy Snyder and L. G. Guernsey.

The next semi-annual handball tournament is scheduled to start June 1, and considerable hustling is being done by the experts to get into condition for the strife, which bids fair to be fought even harder than it was early in the year, when "Stan" Mitchell carried off honors.

The courts are being renovated and put into good shape for the practice play, and doubtless will be gone over again just before the tournament.

There is a steady increase in the number of players, which is making more courts much needed. In the new clubhouse plenty of handball facilities will be provided.

Wrestling, which for a long time was rather dead at the club, is beginning to take a little firmer hold. "Big Bill" Weber, who in his day was a hard nut for any middleweight to crack, is in training for the next bout, W. A. Hammel having secured the requisite three falls in record time in the last.

DeWitt Van Court is turning out a classy lot of boxers, and among them are two or three boys that already have made quite a mark around the gym.

Treloar is having his hands full with business men's classes in the gym, noon and evening, but still finds time to put a few pupils through a course of gymnastic training, and is developing some very creditable tumblers and acrobats.

Two chess evenings a month have been decided upon, probably the second and last Wednesday evenings. A club championship button, with conditions putting the holder out of the competition, are in prospect. By this rule, all the players stand a chance of winning the button and wearing it two weeks. Considerable practice has been noticed, two or three games going on nearly all the time.

JAY GOULD CHAMPION.

Defeats Englishman in Court Tennis in Brilliantly-played and Hard-Fought Sets.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, May 4.—Jay Gould of New York won the championship match in the international amateur court tennis tournament at the Queens Club, defeating Eustac H. Miles, holder of the title. Score: 6-4, 3-6; 6-2, 6-4.

In the last set, when the score was 5-3, the American suffered from a cramp in his left arm and the game was stopped for a few moments.

The match was as hard fought as any ever witnessed in Enland. Exceptional interest was taken in the contest and the court was crowded with spectators.

Miles took the lead in the first set and reached 4-2, when the American rallied and brought the score up to 4 all and won the set without letting his opponent score again.

The hard work showed in Gould's play in the second set, Miles making the score 2-1 and then 5-1 before the American pulled himself together. Gould won the next two games, but was unable to prevent his opponent from winning the next game and the set.

In the third set the British player again led off, winning the first three games. Gould then made the score 3-1, but was unable to further hold Miles, who took the set, 6-1.

The fourth set opened with a magnificent exhibition on the part of both players and the greatest excitement prevailed. Each of the champions took a game and Miles then won the third and Gould the fourth, making the score 2 all. Playing with splendid precision, the American won the remaining four games and the set without allowing Miles to score again.

With the match standing at 2 sets all, the excitement was at fever heat. Miles again took the lead and won the first game, but Gould quickly responded and made the score one all. The players took the succeeding games alternately until the score stood 3 all. The American then made it 4-3 and then 5-3.

Miles took the next game, but Gould won out, 6-4, capturing the match and title of British champion, which is equivalent to the world's championship.

RACE COURSE TO BE ENLARGED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] From good authority it has been learned that the Metropolitan Jockey Club at a meeting held on Monday decided definitely to enlarge the Jamaica track and to have the work begun as soon as possible after the conclusion of the present meeting. With the addition contemplated, the track, which is at present a mile in circumference, will be an oval of a mile and a quarter, with a homestretch approximately as long as the one at Aqueduct—that is, about seven-sixteenths of a mile on a direct, straightaway from the turn into the stretch to the finish line. The alterations and additions will make Jamaica the equal of any course in the Jockey club circuit, and it is not improbable that in a short time it will be recognized as the best racing grounds in the vicinity of New York.

HOSPITAL FOR GRAVESEND TRACK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There will be a private hospital added to the Gravesend course of the Brooklyn Jockey Club before the fall meeting. This most important addition to the popular course is bound to be greatly appreciated by the horsemen and jockeys. It is the intention to maintain the institution for the treatment of boys who are injured in races and there will be a staff of surgeons on hand during each race meeting. On several occasions there has been the need for just such an institution.

Men's Diseases
A Specialty

No matter what your ailment, if your case is curable, we can cure you, even though others may have failed. Years of unremitting research, of painstaking study and conscientious methods have built up for us a reputation which is not approached. We cure:

BLOOD POISON, BEBILITY, CHRONIC DISEASES, CONTRACTED AILMENTS, INFLAMMATORY CASES, VARICOCELE, RUPTURE, ETC.

EVERY PROMISE FULFILLED; NO FALSE HOPES HELD OUT

Contracted Ailments

It is important that an affliction should be treated speedily—and scientifically. Do not let any trouble get fastened on you. And do not go to a general practitioner, but to a SPECIALIST. We are specialists in men's diseases. We cure speedily and painlessly. We check the local inflammation and clear the system of its poisons. No detention from business or inconvenience of any kind is caused by taking our remedies.

Chronic Diseases

We solicit the most stubborn and long-standing cases, because it has been our success in curing where others have failed that has gained us our reputation. Our effort is to effect a cure which shall be immediately beneficial and lasting for the remainder of your life. Many men incur diseases peculiar to their sex through lack of education upon the subject. We are able to help you regain your powers and retain them. We charge you nothing for the advice, only the cure.

Varicocele

We cure Varicocele positively without pain or suffering. We relieve the most aggravated forms of this affliction. Our treatment restores the circulation of stagnant blood, and renews your vigor and vitality. If neglected, Varicocele often undermines the physical robustness, and eventually racks the nervous system until irreparable damage is done. We not only cure but prevent recurrence of the trouble.

Weak Made Strong

Some men are born weak, but hundreds of men incur weakness through their own carelessness or imprudence. If you are growing nervous and melancholy over what seems to be debility, let us help you. Do not seek temporary stimulants. We preach temperance. We can remove the effects of imprudence and restore functions to normal power when overtaxed and in a state of declination. SEEK OUR CURE. SECURE OUR ADVICE. We give satisfaction.

A Few Words to You Who May Be In Need of My Services

It may interest quite a number of readers to know the reason why I have such a high standing as a specialist among regular physicians and the public generally.

FIRST—Many years of the most painstaking efforts in the study and practice along the lines of which I make a specialty—Disorders of Men.

SECOND—An earnest desire to cure quickly and permanently every man who places his case in my hands—not only from a sense of duty and a humanitarian point of view, but because it does, and always has, paid me to do so.

THIRD—Complete apparatus and general equipment, regardless of cost.

FOURTH—Remedies that cause no injurious effects during or after a cure.

FIFTH—Frankness. If I cannot cure a man, I will not undertake his case. This not only makes me many friends, but creates no enemies.

SIXTH—Operations. I perform operations when necessary only. If the patient cannot be cured permanently without an operation, I so inform him at once.

German silver, 300-yard reel for boatman to angler catching largest fish on light tackle.

Gaff, for boatman to angler catching largest yellowtail.

Cash prizes of $10 given to the boatman who brings in the most new members during the season of 1907.

SPECIAL LINES.

There is nothing in the rules to prevent the use of a specially made nine-thread line, plenty of which can be had that will pull twenty-four pounds, but by "standard nine-thread line" the committee means a line that will not pull over twenty pounds. L. P. Streeter and Thomas McD. Potter, in purchasing lines for their present trip to the island, specified for lines of not over twenty pounds and it seems to be the sentiment of the officers of the club generally that only such are standard tackle.

The provision regarding the weight of solid rods without any joints in them was made to prevent the saving of weight by leaving off ferrules and other furniture, thus making a stronger and stiffer rod.

By "wood rod" is meant anything else than steel. Steel rods have been a failure on this Coast.

White sea bass of gold button size have been running at the island, a number having been caught during the last two weeks, and several anglers having qualified for the much prized gold buttons.

CLUB OFFICERS.

The Catalina Light Tackle Club was organized for the purpose of encouraging the use of light tackle in the taking of the game fish of the waters of Santa Catalina Island for the protection of the same and in the interests of a higher standard of sport.

Arthur J. Eddy is president; L. P. Streeter and Thomas McD. Potter, respectively, are first and second vice-presidents, and Edwin H. Brewster is secretary-treasurer. The governing board, in addition to the officers, is composed of Prof. Charles F. Holder and Gilmer Sharp and Thomas S. Manning. All these men, with the addition of Vincenti Moricich, M. C. Holcomb, J. T. Brown, Charles Parker, and Harry Allen, compose the Weighing Committee of twelve.

Two angling tournaments are now in progress. The Southern California Rod and Reel Club claimed the same dates for its light tackle tournament as the Catalina organization—May 1 to October 1. Blanks for the registration of catches have been issued by the local organization. The local club intends to discourage the practice of fishing for a record and joining the club only to register a prospective prize-winning catch, and to that end no catches will be recognized unless the captor is a bona fide member in good standing. Local club members can compete for prizes in both tournaments.

CROAKERS ARE FEEDING AGAIN.

RENEWAL OF ACTIVITIES TOLD OF IN SAN PEDRO BAY.

Not Much Encouragement for the Surf Fishermen—Great Sport Reported from Barney's Camp—Mackerel Taking Bait Freely at Redondo Just Now.

Croakers resumed activity in San Pedro Bay with the coming of the present month, after taking a week's lay-off, which proved very disappointing to some of the anglers, who stole a day here and there to woo the spotfin and lose leaders on the multitudinous, crawling cables of the big steam dredgers that are slowly eating out a bigger harbor. Some of the men who work on these two boats have harvested enough lead from the croaker fishermen to ballast a good-sized ship.

As a whole, the sea fishing last week was poor. Cold, foggy weather had a great deal to do with it. The present is about as early as surf fishing may be expected, and in most years not much is doing with the corbina until pretty well along toward Memorial Day; so the anglers need not feel slighted because the unusually early sport of two or three weeks ago failed to continue.

Pretty much the entire directorate of the Southern California Rod and Reel Club gathered last Sunday at Anaheim Landing to prospect for corbina, and the combined catch was very small. Walter Geft, Charles V. Barton, Henry Loewenthal, William F. Weber, Edwin L. Hedderly, Sherman Baker, Charles Luckenbach, J. Winston, "Broncho" Spear, Robert Campbell, F. J. Bauer, Dionisio Botiller, among others, shied sinkers into the channel and lost leaders on the rocky fringe that lines the depths of the inlet. Luckenbach landed a small yellowfin, Bauer a turbot, Hedderly a "surf."

In the late afternoon Weber and Baker tried the south side of the inlet, inside the trestle, with surprising success. Weber hooked a huge smooth-faced sand bass on his light rod, and had a pretty fight of five minutes. It weighed about six pounds. Mrs. Baker landed a good-sized spotted bass, a rare fish in these waters, and excellent for the table.

The Baker-Weber party got a nice netful of fish, and were the only ones in the vicinity who did. Sherman Baker during the morning distinguished himself by catching a fine four-pound corbina off the beach below Sunset, and then failed to tie a secure knot in the mouth of his pouch net, with the result that the corbina escaped.

"Broncho" Spear caught about a dozen small surf fish at Sunset Beach during the morning, and one or two big corbina were landed by others.

There was nothing going on at Bay City. At Huntington Beach several four-pound corbina were reported during the week, and it looks somewhat as if that resort might regain some of its popularity with sea anglers.

The cornfed mackerel have come in at Redondo almost a month earlier than they did last year. George Pomeroy and others have had some excellent sport, the fish running from eight to ten inches and biting quite well some mornings.

Sensational sport is reported from Barney's Camp, south of Redondo. Shorty Greenback, who bears the reputation of being the best professional fisherman on that part of the coast from the variety of fine fish he catches, has been sending box after box of big ten and twelve-pound sea trout to market, together with rock bass, croakers and other big fish. This place is reached by the beach from the end of the Redondo cars at Cliffton, by walking or driving, and anglers desiring to try it would do well to time their trips so that they can go and come when the tide is out, fishing while it is in. The fishermen at the camp sometimes have spare bait, but it is well to lay in a supply at Redondo, mackerel and sardines going best, but smelts being better than nothing. Clams will take whitefish and rock cod off the rocks.

Fishing outside is slow and unproductive at present. Yellowtail are scarce. Bonita and barracuda can be had on the southern trolling grounds, but are scarce elsewhere. Some bright, sunny weather is needed to start the biting.

C. W. Winston, who is looking after Game Warden Morgan's business during the latter's absence in Pocatello, Idaho, prosecuting the elk thieves, says complaint has come to the office regarding the catching of small striped bass at Cliffton.

Tides are rather favorable for sport in the afternoon today at most of the resorts. The water will be low about 10:30 o'clock in the morning and high in the afternoon at 3:15 o'clock. The rise is about two feet and a half.

Big sardines are being caught at Redondo by Japanese with a sort of rude flies. Some of the fish weigh as high as a pound. J. F. Jones has decided to see if the "mullet trick" cannot be worked more succesfully on the sardines.

ROD AND REEL MEET.

Chance to Recommend Fish Commissioner from Southern California.

Advices received from the North state that Gov. Gillett is about to appoint a new Fish Commission and local sportsmen see in the news a chance to secure what has been very sorely needed here ever since Henry W. Keller resigned from the board—a commissioner from Southern California, well-posted at first hand upon the peculiar needs of this section in game and fish matters.

A campaign to secure the selection of a Southern California man from Los Angeles already has been started by the Southern California Rod and Reel Club and other sportsmen's organizations in this county. Several gentlemen have been named, and it is thought that if any one of them can be placed upon the board, it will have a salutary effect toward correcting some of the abuses the interests of this section in fish and game maters already have received.

A meeting of the Southern California Rod and Reel Club has been called, to which all persons interested in the matter will probably be invited to come, and at that meeting resolutions favoring the selection of a man qualified to properly see to the interests of Southern California will be drafted and sent to the Governor.

The economic value of the game and fish has come to such a point in California through the attraction it offers tourists that steps to preserve it meet with the interest of many who are in no sense sportsmen, but view the matter in the hard light of dollars and cents. The present campaign launched by the Southern California Rod and Reel Club is to be carried through until California's game and fish laws, which, until recently, have been considered a disgrace to the State, are equal to those of any State in the Union.

RULES FOR PRIZE FISH CATCHES.

Rules under which fish must be caught to win prizes given by the Catalina Light Tackle Club are:

The line used must be a standard nine-thread linen line. Fifteen feet of the line used must be turned in with the catch at the time of weighing and if, on examination, the line is found to be of extra size and strength, the catch will be disqualified.

The rod used must be a wood rod of not less than six feet in length, including butt, and the weight of same, including butt, shall not exceed sixteen ounces. Rods which are of one piece (without joints or detachable butt) must weight two ounces lighter, that is, a single-piece rod must weigh seven ounces to be rated as a nine-ounce rod and so on.

Where the weight of rod is less than sixteen ounces, 5 per cent. shall be added to the weight of catch for each ounce less down to nine ounces. No additional allowance shall be made for rods less than nine ounces in weight.

In addition to allowances made by rule No. 3, a special allowance of 20 per cent. shall be added to actual weight of yellowtail. For instance, 55 per cent. will be added to weight of a yellowtail caught on a rod weighing nine ounces or less.

Anglers desirous of competing for prizes shall submit their tackle for inspection to one of the Weighing Committee for approval. Tackle shall also be submitted for inspection at the time of weighing in catch.

Any amateur angler may compete for prizes offered, it not being necessary to become a member of the club in order to do so.

Every angler must bring his fish to gaff unaided, and the fish must be reeled in. A broken rod either before or after gaffing disqualifies the catch.

MALONEY HURLS SWEEPING DEFI.

The intimation that W. H. Maloney won his title of champion fencer of the Pacific Coast at a contest of which the other professional fencers of the Coast had not received notice, has called forth an answer from the choleric Irishman. He insists that due notice was given and that all knights of the sword who were anxious to test their skill had ample opportunity to compete.

In regard to the imputation that he is not the bona fide champion, Maloney says that he is ready and willing to meet any man of the Pacific Coast in a bout and will abide by the decision of the judges.

"I have no desire to win my honors as a carpet knight," said Maloney. "I am not only willing but anxious to defend my title against any and all comers. If any one thinks that he can best me in a contest with the foils, he has only to come forward and he will have a chance to make good his claims. I do not want to appear immodest in my contention, but I shall insist on the man who claims the championship proving that he is a better man with the foils than I am before I will admit that my claim is invalid."

The only condition that Maloney imposes in his challenge is that the fight shall be held at once, as he soon is to sail for France, where he will take a course of instruction under the supervision of some of the masters of the art of swordsmanship.

WILD WEST SHOW AT SEAL GARDENS.

Beginning this afternoon, a wild west show will be held at the Seal Gardens every Sunday. This resort, which is located on the Long Beach Division of the Pacific Electric Railway, is gaining favor as a place for recreation, and the management purposes to bill first-class features for the entertainment of visitors.

The show this afternoon is scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock. The feature will be a broncho race between Mabel Geisha, heralded as the greatest woman rider in the West, and "Happy Jack," who is billed as the most spectacular rider in California. These two celebrities will compete for a prize of $100.00. Bucking bronchos and wild cattle will be lassoed, ridden and subdued.

WITTER ELECTED CREW CAPTAIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, May 4.—Dean Witter, '09, was elected captain of the 'varsity crew for next season, by the members of the present 'varsity crew. Witter stroked the crew this year and has proved to be an excellent oarsman. He was captain of his class crew and is very popular with all the members of the squad.

Coach Garnett will be retained to conduct the training, and he and the new captain already are making plans to improve rowing conditions next spring and retrieve this year's defeat. Of this year's crew, Evans, No. 1, Bush, No. 5, and Williams, No. 4, will not be in college next year. Tuller, No. 7, will be in college, but will be unable to do any more rowing on account of the press of his law studies. Witter, No. 8; McKillican, No. 6; Ashley, No. 3, and Ball, No. 2, will form a good nucleus for a strong crew, and with conditions improved, as it is expected they will be, the 1908 'varsity crew should prove a very strong one.

ONLY FIVE MOVING PARTS.

New Two-Cycle Motor Car Arrives and Attracts Attention by Reason of Unusual Engine.

The long-expected Atlas runabout has at last arrived at the home of the Renton-Williams Motor Car Company, and is now on exhibition. This car is of much interest to the motor enthusiasts, on account of the engine employed. It is practically the engine developed during the past four years by the Sunset Automobile Company of San José and San Francisco, and it is an unusual kind of the two-cycle type.

Harry Knox, one of the old-timers in the automobile industry, who founded the Knox Automobile Company and is now president of the Knox Motor Truck Company, is the power back of the company which is now making the Atlas. It is said that an interesting patent situation may develop between the new Sunset company, which was reconstructed after the San Francisco disaster, and the new Atlas company.

The engine has only five moving parts, and yet is rated at 20-horsepower. Like other two-cycle engines, it has no valves or half-time gears, but unlike some others, it is claimed for it that it cannot be run backwards. The transmission is by shaft and a two-speed planetary gearset.

STEEL STOCK ADVANCING

Only a Few Shares Left to Sell at $1.25
When These Are Gone Price Goes Up to $1.50 or $2 a Share
This Is the Stock With Almost Unlimited Money
Earning Possibilities Expected to Reach $5 a Share

As was expected, the Wills process of making steel is IT. Shares started at $1 advanced to $1.25, and now they are going to $1.50 or $2.00. Then they will go higher. After that who knows? Investors are not asleep. The shrewd ones know the Delaware & Lackawanna Steel Company has the biggest thing since the Bessemer converter and they are taking every share they can carry. There are only 200,000 shares in the entire capitalization.

The Delaware & Lackawanna Steel Company will then really be a small, close corporation with dividends to divide among a few—AND SUCH DIVIDENDS!

History Repeats Itself

Bessemer was thought insane when he said he could convert melted pig iron into steel simply by blowing air through it for a few minutes.
Elias Howe was well laughed at when he offered a machine that would sew seams.
Morse had a great idea in his electric telegraph—but many people of his day thought him crazy.
Railroad magnates left Westinghouse to cool his heels when he first presented the air brake.
Bell telephone, too—you remember that. The stock was offered at a very low price to begin with.
Merganthaler and his Linotype is another instance. The stock was offered for a mere song, and it took much pushing before investors could see its future clearly enough to invest.

The Wills process of making steel is faring better. Past experiences show men the importance of getting in at the beginning. This is only the beginning of the Wills process—and its future is too great even to imagine.

What the Wills Process Can and Does Do

The Wills invention is a newly discovered process of making STEEL that greatly reduces the cost over all other methods. BY IT STEEL IS CAST DIRECT FROM THE CONVERTERS, thereby eliminating the expensive process now in general use of forging and rolling, by vast and expensive machinery, the steel into the desired form. It thus saves time, wages and the cost of expensive machinery while the quality of the steel is better and stronger.

That Means a Revolution of the Steel Business

No steel plant in the world can compete with this company making steel by the new Wills process—none will think of trying to.
Just figure it out for yourself—by the ordinary process one converter turns out a quantity of steel equal to 40,000 pounds of castings daily. By the Wills process one converter turns out steel equal to 60,000 pounds of castings daily with the quality of steel better and the cost lessened actually one-fifth. That tells its own story.
The market for steel made by the Wills process does not have to be created. It is already made. Railways, ship builders, contractors, subways and bridgebuilders everywhere are clamoring for a better and cheaper grade of steel.
More than 10,200,000 tons of steel were made and used at a profit of something like $180,000,000 in the United States alone in 1906 and the demand is still increasing.
Think what this means to you as an investor in the stock of a steel company—and especially in the stock of this company that makes a better and cheaper grade of steel than other plant in existence.

The Delaware & Lackawanna Steel Company has but to operate its plant with a capacity of one converter making 60,000 pounds of steel daily at a profit of 2 cents a pound to earn nearly 200 per cent. annually on its entire capitalization, yet the maximum capacity of this first plant to manufacture steel by the new Wills process of making steel is to be six converters. This does not include the profits from the cast iron department, which will also be enormous.

That is the kind of a proposition the Delaware & Lackawanna Steel Company is. Only a few more shares left to sell at $1.25. When they are gone stock advances to $1.50 or $2.00 a share. AND MAYBE WITHDRAWS ENTIRELY.
The capitalization of the company is very conservative—$200,000. The immense steel plant, iron foundry, cupolas, cranes, etc., acquired from the Board of Trade at Oxford, N. J., to induce this company to locate in that city, would cost to build alone two or three times the amount of the entire capitalization. The shares are full-paid and non-assessable, and the company has no indebtedness of any kind.

Yacht Races Are Postponed Until Fair Weather.

Artistic Features Successful Nevertheless.

Big kites, little kites, round kites, square kites, green and yellow and red and blue kites, kites that looked as though they had had a fit and been caught in the middle of it—they all dotted the windy skies and mingled tails and strings out at Stephenson and Lorena avenues, yesterday afternoon.

Twenty-two schools entered the contest, and from among them Euclid came out champion, winning two first and one second place with a total of 13 points. Boyd-street school came next with 8 points, and Vermont, Hoover and Union-street schools had 5 points each.

The result, according to the events, was as follows:

The quarter-mile dash—Joe Ganahl, of Vermont-street school, won; Hiram Hamer, of Norwood, second.

Best decorated kite—Robert Haynes, of Hoover-street school, won; Gerald Craig, of Temple-street, second.

Most artistic kite—Kizo Katayuma, of Boyd-street, won; Constance White, of Euclid-avenue, second.

Kizo Katayuma, the boy from Boyd school, evidently is a past master at the art of making kites. The one he had yesterday was a curious square affair with two tails and a profusion of Japanese hieroglyphics blazoned across the front. Kizo's kite might have won the hard-puller prize as well as the most artistic. When first entered, the kite registered a pull of sixteen pounds, but after sustaining a generous rent or two, this was reduced to eleven and one-half pounds, and the kite had to take second place.

COMES TO GRIEF.

Florence Simmons had a very beautiful kite which unluckily suffered such severe injuries from the strong wind that it could not be sent up. Willy Tritt entered one of the largest parachutes on the field.

One rather unexpected entry was a long gopher snake brought in by Reynolds King. The entry dangling from said Reynold's chubby fist was entirely unpremeditated but it caused a considerable stampede for a while until ruled out of the contest.

Top—William Neal; middle—Brace Carter, Clarence Bean, Grover Adams, Alvin Frank, Jack Beman; standing—O. S. Lowsley, Edwin Bly, Harold Paulin, Gordon Boller, Ned Manning, Johnny Burke; sitting—Ward Giffen.

The high wind that prevailed yesterday afternoon was instrumental in preventing the other scheduled events from being pulled off. This interfered particularly with the yacht race which otherwise would have formed a star feature of the afternoon.

If kite-day is sufficiently popular, it may be an established annual event and a new sport will be added to the list for school competition.

The prizes for this contest awarded by James Reinhard, L. J. Baldwin, Miss Gearhart and Miss Samuels will be tendered the lucky winners at some future date and will be kept as trophies of the respective schools.

Afraid of Trust.

Both Tommy Burns and Jack O'Brien are evidently afraid of anything that looks like a fight trust promoter from San Francisco, for both have turned down Coffroth and will not sign with him for a fight with Squires of Australia. Coff thus has had his trip here for nothing and it would seem that the two pugs here now want a rest. Coffroth declares he did not come here to knock the fighting game, but a lot of the sports are inclined to believe that this was the real object of his trip here. He must certainly know that neither Burns nor O'Brien would care to begin at once to get ready for Squires or any other fighter. If the northern bunch is so anxious to get a fight, let them hang up about $40,000 for Jeff and Squires, with $30,000 to the winner, and they will probably have little trouble in getting Jeff to come back from the alfalfa patch.

Tom Sullivan Peevish.

NEW YORK, May 4. — [Exclusive Dispatch.] Tommy Sullivan, the Brooklyn featherweight, who has been acting as boxing instructor at the Missouri Athletic Club of St. Louis, is anxious to get on a match with Abe Attell or Harry Harris of this city. Sullivan will accept any reasonable purse for a battle of six rounds in this city during the latter part of this month.

Murphy Is Sassy.

NEW YORK, May 4. — [Exclusive Dispatch.] Eddie Murphy, the Brooklyn lightweight, who has been out of the game for over two years, has started training again in the hopes of getting back into form again. Murphy is ready to meet any of the 130-pounders for any distance.

After Abe Attell.

NEW YORK, May 4. — [Exclusive Dispatch.] Howard Smith, the Elizabeth, N. J., featherweight, who has fought some of the best boys of his weight in this city, is anxious to get a match with Abe Atteli for six rounds. Smith's manager, Paddy Carroll, will post a forfeit any time to bind the match.

Head of Cab and Delivery Company Says Advent of Automobiles Spells Death to Equines.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Regarding the talk about a rate war among two or three prospective gasoline cab companies, C. W. Kelsey, president of the New American Cab and Delivery Company, does not seem to be at all worried regarding the situation.

The company of which he is the organizer, will put 1000 gasoline-driven cabs on the streets of large cities within the next eighteen months, at the rate of thirty a day until the demand is satisfied.

While it is announced that none of the concerns contemplating the operating of the cabs will charge the legal rate of 50 cents a mile, the American Cab and Delivery Company's rates will be 5 cents for one-eighth of a mile for two persons or 40 cents a mile. This is 10 cents less than the fare fixed by city ordinance. For three or four persons an additional half fare will be asked, making the rate 60 cents a mile for four passengers, whereas the legal rate for four would be $2.

According to Mr. Kelsey, the maximeters will outnumber horse-drawn cabs in the larger cities within a very short time. He also predicts that the equine-propelled hacks will be extinct and supplanted by the automobile within the next five years.

The French press regards King Edwards continental tour, which ended yesterday, with his departure from Paris for London, as being fraught with large political significance.

DRAWINGS MADE FOR GRAND PRIX.

"LUCKLESS" LANCIA SECURES FIRST POSITION.

This Means no Small Advantage, Considering His Whirlwind Style of Racing—Contest to Take Place in July Over Five-Hundred-Mile Course—Thirty-eight Entries.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, May 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] News of the result of the drawing for order of start in the Grand Prix has just come to hand. It will to be run on July 2, over a 500-mile course. There are thirty-eight entries, representing five nations and seventeen makes of cars.

The meteoric and luckless Lancia this time has met with good fortune in that he has drawn first position, a place of no mean advantage, considering his whirlwind style of racing from the jump-off, for he will have a clear road ahead of him. E. R. Hollander, for the Holtan Company, tells a good story of the circumstances of the drawing.

"The entry of the Fiat team," said he, "was a belated one. It was made but three hours before the closing of entries and called for the payment of an extra fee, which amounted to $6000 in all. Lancia, Nazarro and Weillschott make up the team, which is the same as represented the Fiat in the last Vanderbilt race. M. Lamberjack, who drew for the Fiat trio, was the last one to put his hand in the 'sacred vase' and pulled No. 1 for Lancia, No. 18 for Nazaro and No. 29 for Weillschott. Lancia started fourth in two Vanderbilt races and the Grand Prix. Walter Christie evolved as twelfth starter. Other former Vanderbilt cup racers drew numbers as follows: 3, Wagner, Darracq; 4, Duray, De-Dietrich; 7, Clement, Clement Bayard; 11, Le Blon, Panhard; 13 Jenatz, Mercedes; 25, Heath, Panhard; 31, Gabriel, De-Dietrich.

Parisian Poke Shapes that are Copyable

Wire Frames Lend Themselves to the Poke Shape.

PARIS has provided the woman with a fine forehead, the woman with a plump face, the woman who wears a low coiffure and, above all, the woman who makes her own hats, with cause for rejoicing in the new hats that flare sharply from the face at all sorts of quaint and picturesque angles; for these shapes are not only becoming, but they are easily copied by the amateur milliner.

There are several decided types in the spring and summer hats: the simple, somewhat severe ones of toque, mushroom or marquis shape for morning wear, the panamas and sailors for outing, and the picturesque shapes which are, many of them, evidently modeled on the 1850 and Empire headgear as seen in old prints and portraits.

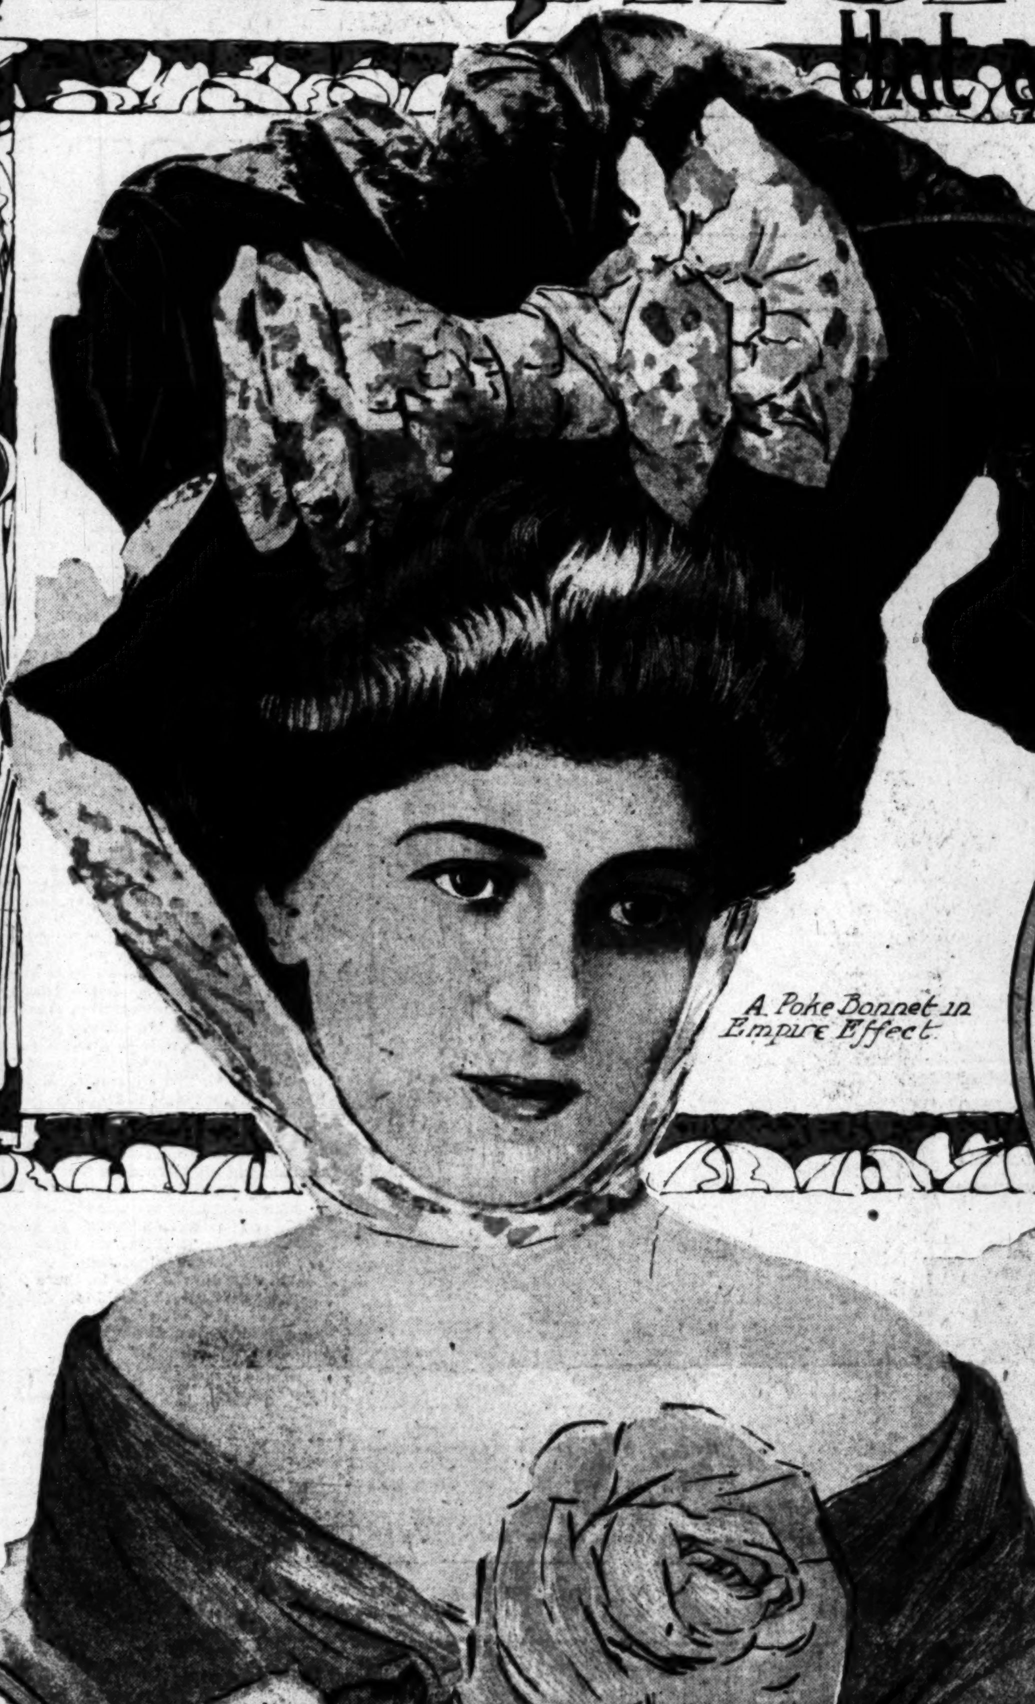
These picturesque shapes are specially in favor with French women, and most of the imported models show their influence. Charming and attractive as they are, however, they must be used with discretion.

Yet the picturesque in moderation is most attractive, and can be made very becoming by remembering that every hat that is admirable in a show window has not equal charm on every head. As a woman naively said recently: "These hats look right until you put them on." That is just the point. If they do not look just a little more than right, then eschew them for a less noticeable and more becoming shape.

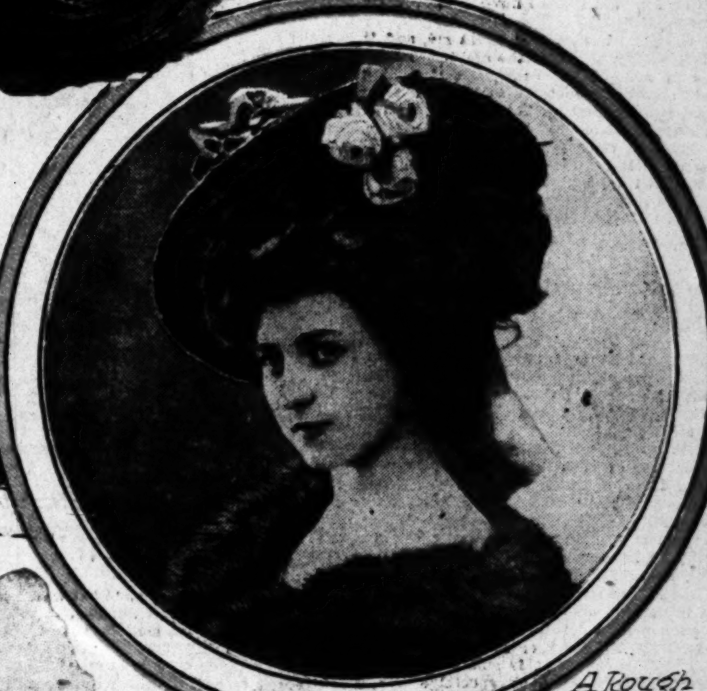
After all, this should not be hard to manage, for it is a season of many and beautiful colors, with tans and old apricot predominating, closely followed by smoke grays, dull blues and greens, with many hats of white Neapolitan straw and leghorns. Red is less of a favorite than for some seasons past. Among the novelties there are even embroidered brims, sometimes done in floral designs on silk crewels worked right on the straw itself, but more often with straw banding embroidered in silk.

As for the trimmings, they may be flowers or feathers, or both; big headed jewelled pins, dotted taffeta velvet, lace and the almost inevitable maline, which is even more used this summer than last for cache-peignes.

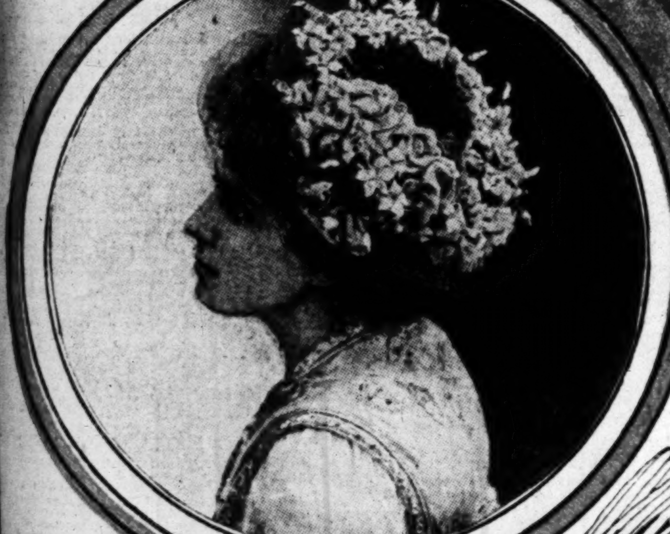
As for the shapes of the poke as worn by the Parisienne, just reverse all your ideas of headgear.



A Poke Bonnet in Empire Effect



A Rough Straw Worn at a Smart Angle



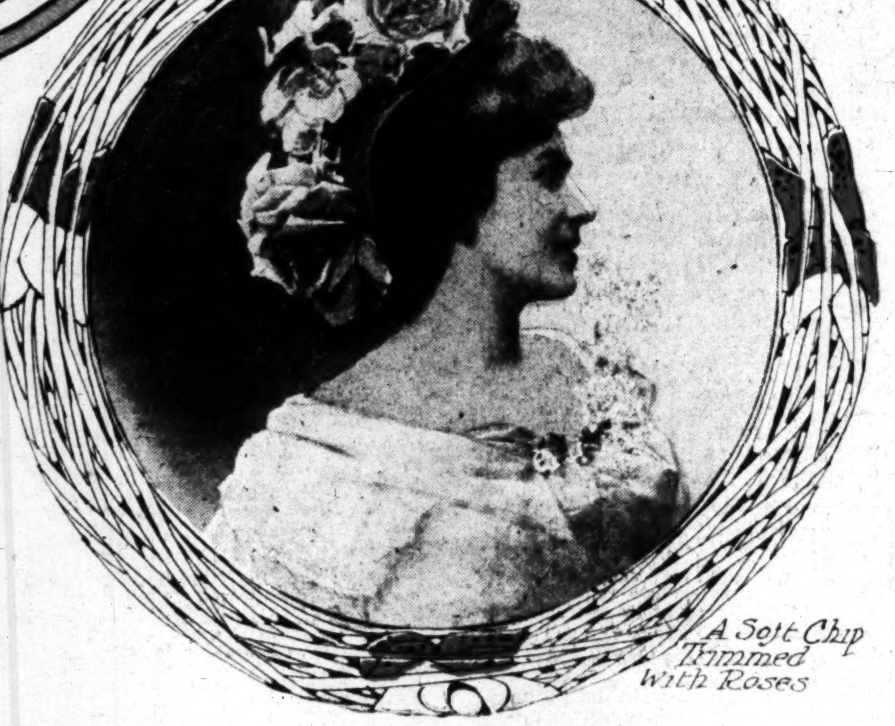
Floral Hats Will Be Much Worn.

Instead of a brim long in the back and raised on a bandeau, the exaggeration is now at the sides, with a dip in the back, the upward movement being from the face.

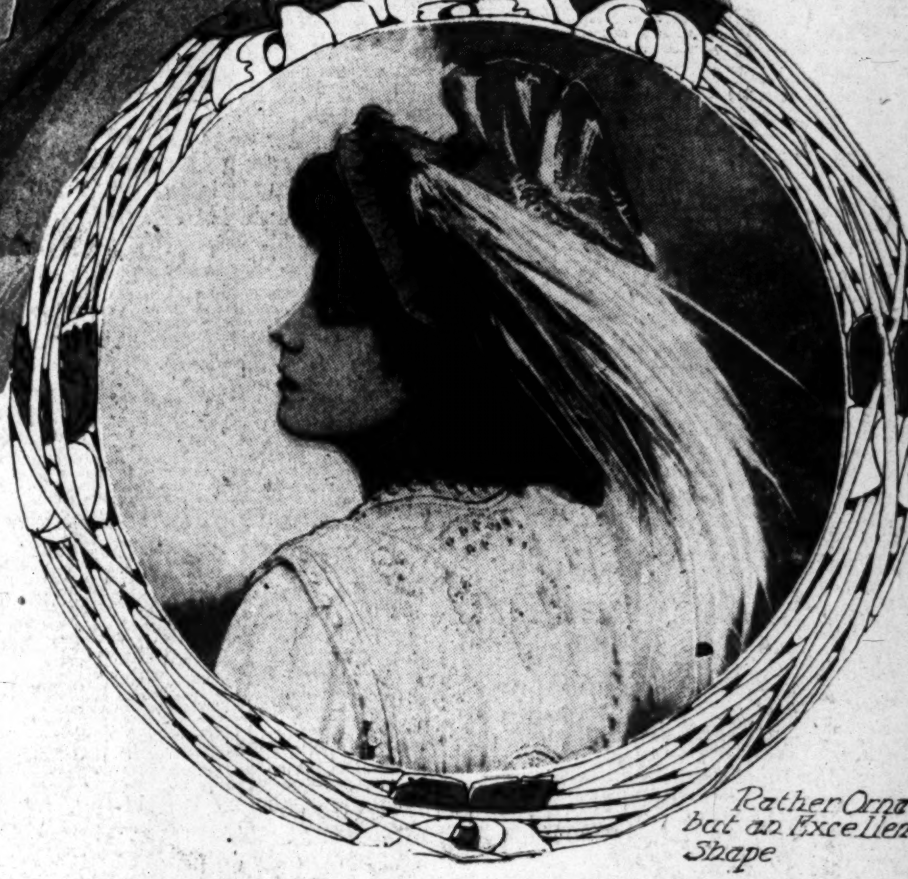
Whether it be the monstrous poke of the first Empire or the modest poke of the second Empire that furnishes the inspiration (both of which, in the original, were set well down on the head), the copies of today, for all their dipping, are raised all around on a bandeau. This bandeau means that, however ponderous may be the effect, the lightly waved pompadour, which seems to have become indispensable to our conception of feminine beauty, may still frame your face without fear of being crushed. In fact, the coiffure plays an important part in the new hats. The space between the face and the brim needs to be well filled in with puffs and waves and curls in profusion; otherwise much of the picturesqueness is lost.

In big hats brims are thin, sweeping in great curved lines all about the head. Pressed shapes of fine Milan braid are used rather than those that are made up by hand. Sometimes there is an entire facing of taffeta silk; again, for lighter effects, an inch-wide binding of taffeta or thin satin is used, usually matching the straw in color.

In copying one of these Parisian models, remember that the quainter and more unusual the shaping the more fashionable you will be; provided, that is, that it does not match the gown



A Soft Chip Trimmed With Roses



Rather Ornate but an Excellent Shape

Many of the French hats are made of dotted Brussels net, while others are of taffeta or a combination of the two, as in the very quaint poke in Empire effect that has its full pleated net crown of black net held by gay pompadour ribbon ties and a stiff bow on the taffeta brim, over the left side of which hangs a sweeping black ostrich plume.

Lamballe or tam-o'-shanter crowns are the favorite, with old-fashioned looking little shirred brims. The soft leghorn and Milan hats are bent into the oddest, even fantastic, shapes, by wiring crown and brim in walls-of-troy fashion. These may be worn at any angle as long as it is becoming and falls well away from the face. The hat is held by means of a bandeau that goes all around the crown, often broadening slightly in front or toward the left side.

After the hat is shaped the rest is comparatively plain sailing, for the trimming is usually simplicity itself. Generally it is rather flat, any and every sort of flowers, mixed or of a single variety, being the favorite mode at present. Occasionally these are tied with a little velvet bow, but the flat wreath is used just as much. If you happen to own an osprey or a long ostrich plume, you can easily make yourself a hat after the somewhat ornate, but well shaped, model shown, with its long plume sweeping over the left shoulder in the way that is the acme of Parisian elegance. For mid-season wear, the brim may be made of shirred liberty silk, with a Lamballe crown; later in the summer it could be developed in net or lace.

If you have an old wire frame you can easily bend it into a becoming poke shape, like the simple but coquettish hat with a shirred gray silk binding and net crown, whose only trimming is a bow of violet velvet ribbon and wreath of snowdrops.

The rough straw hat, turning up sharply at the side, is of sage green, with deep pink roses under the brim, and a large chou of lighter green taffeta ending in a wreath of wheat around the crown.

The all floral crown will be much worn, a favorite combination being lavender phlox and yellow roses, such as fall gracefully over the plateau of leghorn.

Very stylish is the soft beige-colored chip hat, trimmed with huge pink roses of almost solferino tints, with facing and ribbon of old blue.

EACH AND ALL SOCIETY

CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK, PRESIDENT

WHAT IS YOUR CHIEF OBJECT IN LIFE?

I WONDER if you girls have any idea how much you interest me, not only as a big club, but as separate and individual girls? You are so good about writing to me and telling me about yourselves that sometimes it takes a little mental effort to appreciate that I have never met most of you, and that possibly I would not recognize you if I met you in the street. I don't believe it. I am sure there are some of you whom I could pick out in a crowd, and I am always planning for the day when I shall stop a girl in the street wearing an Each and All badge, and say, "What is your name? You are one of my girls."

It is a wonder to me that I keep so many of you clearly in my head, for there are thousands of you now. Each one of you has her own special joy and trouble and ambition and plan for work, and this leads me to what I meant to say when I began this paper, before I went wandering off and talking about meetings. I wanted to ask you girls to write and tell me something more about yourselves that will help me to know you even better than I do now. Here is the question I would like to have answered, "What do you want most?"

Some of the girls have already told me, and it has been very interesting. None of the ambitions has been unworthy, and some have been beautiful in their earnest desire for helpfulness to others and for their own personal growth and improvement in order that they might make the world a better and brighter place to live in. Some of the letters have seemed to touch superficially on a life object, while others have evidently come from the heart.

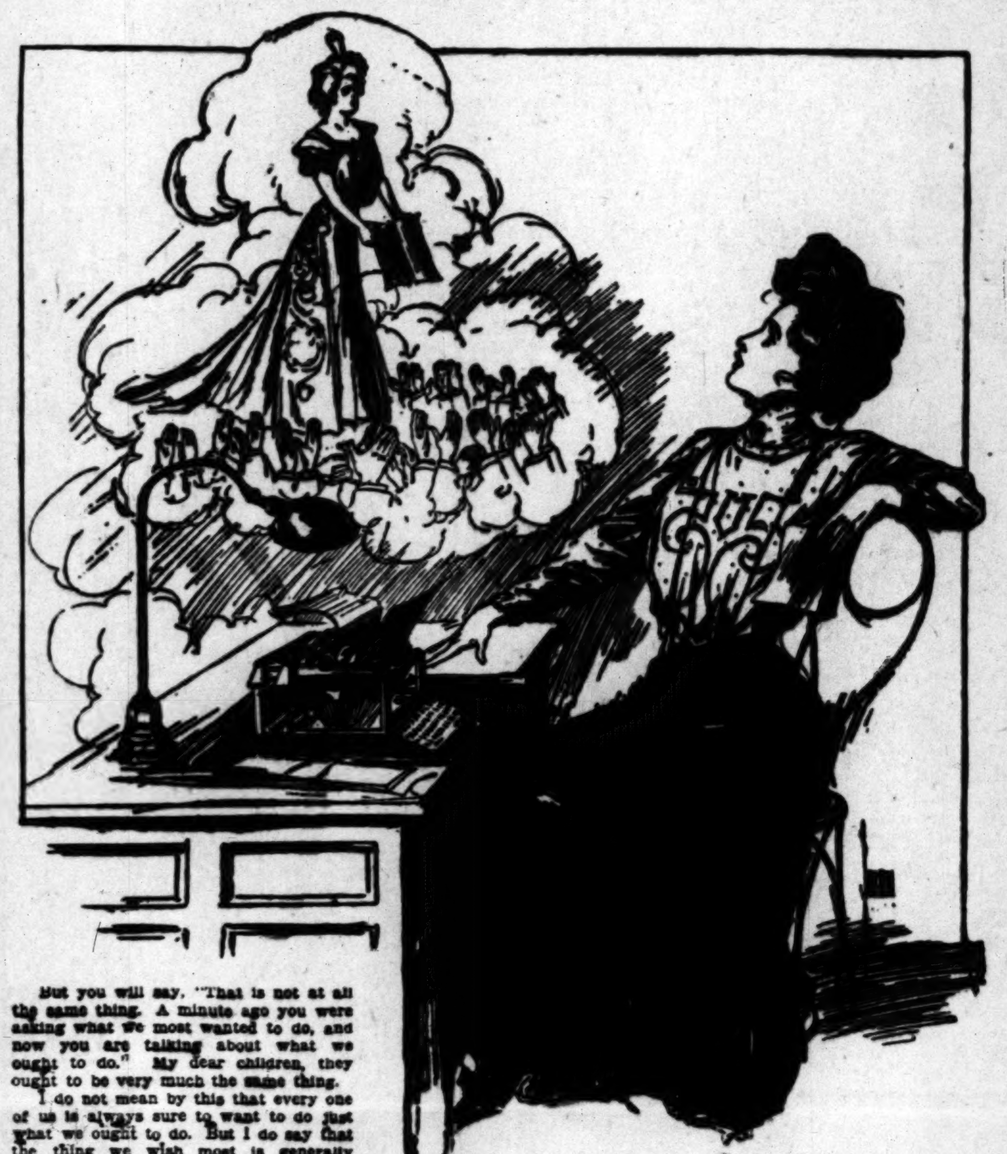
GIRLS MAY "FIND THEMSELVES"

I wish to have more of that sort of letters sent in to me. I wish it for a variety of reasons. One, as I have already told you, is that I may know you better. Another is that I may have a clearer idea of the proportion of different sorts of interests in which the club girls take part, so that I may get the correspondence chapters into more systematic running order. And still another reason is, that I think such a "round-up" of ambitions will help many of the girls to find out for themselves what is their chief object in life. A symposium of this sort ought to be of value in helping many girls to "find themselves."

Just for curiosity's sake, I wish I had kept a list of the various lines of work in which my girls have professed interest. Housekeeping, teaching, nursing, sewing, dressmaking, millinery, art, music, landscape gardening, physical culture, including such branches as hairdressing, massaging and manicuring, office work, acting, stenography. I set them down at random, and I know I am leaving out a number of them.

But that is not the only direction in which I wish you girls to tell me what interests you and what you want most in life. The number of persons who have some special branch or talent is small in proportion to the great band who have no special aptitude or talent for any one important thing. Do you remember President Lincoln's remark, "God must have loved the common people; He made so many of them"? Let me change it a little and say, "God must have had a great deal of use for the persons without talent; He made so many of them."

"But what is that use?" I can hear you girls asking now. Ah, that is for you to find out! That is why I am writing as I am today. Each one of us has some place to fill in the world. It is waiting for us at this moment. Have we ever thought just what it is?



But you will say, "That is not at all the same thing. A minute ago you were asking what we most wanted to do, and now you are talking about what we ought to do." My dear children, they ought to be very much the same thing.

I do not mean by this that every one of us is always sure to want to do just what we ought to do. But I do say that the thing we wish most is generally—generally, I say, for there are exceptions to the rule—the thing that we can do best. And the thing that we do best is the thing we ought to do in this world.

There are so many examples of this. Look for the persons who do the best work, and do you not find out that they love the work they do? Yes, in nine cases out of ten. True, there are conscientious persons who do as well as possible the tasks that are unpleasant to them—but they would do much better something they liked.

And so I say to you: Find out what you want most to do, if you do not know already, and write and tell me about it. Don't you think it will be very interesting for a lot of you to compare notes and talk it over? Think before you write, for a question of this sort is not to be answered hastily. I don't wish "quick-on-the-trigger" opinions. You all of you know girls who will reply to a query of this sort, "Oh, I wish to be an actress or a great singer." They may think so, but do they know what they are talking about? Do they wish to be actresses or singers with all that that means of hard work, of discipline, of self-denial? Or, are they thinking only of the applause and the success that may come after the years of apprenticeship? Do they love the work well enough to take it up if the reward is never to come? That is the test.

I know a successful author who has been writing ever since she was a child. For years she wrote with no thought of publication, but for the love of it. Such a woman as that has the root of the matter in her. Even if she had never been known, she would have had one of the best joys of life, for she would have been doing the work she loved.

Which brings us back to where we started. What do you love best to do? What do you want most to do? Don't be ashamed to confess your ambition because you think it is petty. It may be just as great and important as something much more high-sounding.

CAN CREATE HAPPINESS

Take, for instance, the cases of the stay-at-home housekeeping girls from whom I have had letters. Does it seem a little thing to you girls who are aiming at the stage or authorship or art to be a good housekeeper? Stop a minute and think what gives more comfort, and in a way, does more good. I have been so unfortunate as to know houses where the mistress was an artist or a musician, and where the housekeeping was a terror. One such case I recall where everything was dirty in a way that would have reflected disgrace upon a poor tenement. The husband was unhappy, the children were neglected and wretched. Can there be any comparison between that state of affairs and the comfort that would have been wrought by good housekeeping? Mind you, I am not saying that an artist or a musician is of necessity untidy. I have known too many good housekeepers among them to make this statement. But I am just trying to show you that one can create happiness and comfort with no talent beyond that of an ability to keep house and to do it well.

Take also the case of the girl who is at service or working in an office or a factory. Is it a small thing that her ambition is to do good work in the station to which she has been called? Properly conducted, her work and she are as worthy as success as they would be were they a thousand times more important as the world counts importance.

So don't be afraid to lay bare your ambitions, girls, because they seem so trifling. Write and tell me about them, and then let us talk them over. We shall all be much better friends for it.

Christine Terhune Herrick

P. S.—Every mail brings a host of letters asking one or the other (or both) of these two questions: "How shall I address your letter?" or "How can I get a badge?"

Address all letters to me, in care of the paper in which you see our page, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope if you wish a personal answer.

For the badge—send 10 cents in stamps, registered letter or money order, made payable to me, and addressed to me in care of this newspaper.

WHAT THE MEMBERS OF THE VARIOUS CHAPTERS ARE SUGGESTING

She Will Make Baby Clothes

I WILL willingly make little dresses for any of the mothers who so desire. I make all my own baby's clothes. EVELYN (Somerville, Mass.).

This is a very kindly offer, and I trust it may be seen and accepted by some overworked mother.

Something to Live By

I think this a very good rule to try and live by:

"Count that day lost whose low, descending sun Views from thy hand no worthy action done."

NAN (Westminster, Mass.).

An excellent rule and much like our pledge.

Here comes a cluster of chapter reports and appeals for more members:

More Members Wanted

We, the Utopian Chapter, would like to have new members from Dorchester and nearby suburbs join our chapter. Our hall is centrally located and easy to reach. I will personally send explicit directions to get there to any girl who would like to join us. I am sure we can promise a pleasant evening to all, and, besides, we are helping those who happen to be unfortunate in life, which in itself makes the chapter interesting.

G. S. M. (Dorchester, Mass.).

Reports of this chapter have before this found place on the page. Its members are doing good work in helping one another and in bringing aid and comfort to those outside their ranks.

Our New Williamsport Chapter

There are seven of us girls, and I am sending you applications for membership. We are all High School chums, and intend to meet every Friday afternoon and sew, while one reads a good book. Definite plans have not yet been made. We hope to increase our membership and do some good work.

MARTHA S. (Secretary, Williamsport, Pa., Chapter).

This is the way in which I would like to see a chapter formed. If the girls who know one another get together and work, they are far more likely to win good results than when girls are gathered at random with their Each and All membership as their only bond of union.

The Fancy Work Chapter's Report

Our chapter is increasing in numbers and activity. One of our rules for the coming year is for each member to write to at least two other members and report progress to the chairman once in three months, if not oftener. During the Christmas preparations I tried to have each one do work in her particular line, for which she received money or exchange of work.

A. M. S. (Black Gap, Pa.).

A fine chapter and a fine chairman. I wish all of the girls interested in fancy work would connect themselves with this chapter. It is of help and pleasure to many.

Report of Domestic Science Chapter

My girls are increasing in number rapidly. We have eighteen members now, and since the last new ones joined us I have not had a round robin, but am looking for one every day now. Our cook book is going the rounds nicely and bringing out some splendid things, and I wish it could be possible to publish it some time.

We haven't decided on a pillow-top design yet, but since the chairman of one of the Fancy Work Chapters has joined us, I think we will come to some decision soon. Our fullest number is "Suggestions." You'd be interested to find how many little tricks of the trade that series brings out—so many things that help us in our daily work. We had Christmas suggestions, too, and some of those are still going the rounds. Any number of simple little gifts were described. Our "Travel" series has just gone out. That takes us first into the home of each member, because there are so many new ones, we must become acquainted all around. Aside from their general usefulness, these letters are intensely interesting. Not long ago a round robin contained a plea from one girl—our baby—for help to curb an impulsive temper that was causing her to lose friends. Can we help her? Serious proposition, but we'll try! Then there was a wail from our Northern member way up in Minnesota because she was snowbound away from her babies for the first time in her life. She had gone from home, still farther north, into the wheat belt, to buy flour (because it was cheaper there), and a blizzard delayed the train for twenty-five hours. She had our round robin with her, and said it was such a relief!

M. P. R. (Santa Ana, Cal.).

An admirable report from one of our best workers.

A "Current Events" Chapter

How many read the suggestion of "Sophomore" (Medford, Mass.) in regard to a Current Events Chapter? Is it not a good one? I, for one, should love to belong to such a chapter, and as I was born in Los Angeles, Cal., and have traveled a good deal, I think I could help by writing a paper of travels, or in some way. It would be very pleasant to meet and have a social gathering at first, and my home is open to all the girls who could come this distance. I should be glad to correspond with "Sophomore" in regard to the above. Perhaps some of you Each and All girls would be glad to know more of this new member. Well, I am a young married bee, 21 my last birthday (February 22), and am keeping house. I have been married since a year ago last October. I dearly love music, and have until recently sung in church. I do all kinds of fancy work, and am a lover of burnt work, of which I do a great deal. I would gladly help any one in any way I could in regard to the above. I should be glad to hear from any of the members.

Mrs. A. P. L. (Stoneham, Mass.).

A cordial, friendly letter like this should meet with a prompt response, and I only wish that, with the help of the writer and some others, the Current Events Chapter could be established.

Report of Literary Chapter

There are nearly thirty members in our chapter, and if all co-operate, much of interest and improvement will be forthcoming. I hope the word "literary" will not debar other than writers from the chapter; in fact, the greater number are readers. Standard books, poems, histories, etc., are to be read and criticised by each. Any suggestions for new phases of work will be greatly appreciated by the chairman. More members are desired. Addressed and stamped envelopes are to be inclosed for reply when corresponding on club work or on information of the same.

J. S. B. (Chairman Literary Chapter, Nantucket, Mass.).

This is so interesting a chapter to those who work in it that I am eager to have for it more members who will have a conscience in the discharge of its duties.

Invalid Help Chapter Report

My monthly report is as follows: Reading material in the form of magazines, stories and clippings from papers sent, and copies of poems, souvenir postals and pictures—some of the latter being small photographs of the helpers. Of course, the invalids were delighted with those. Some of my invalids are acting as helpers, too, sending less fortunate ones bright, cheery letters, cards and magazines.

M. P. D. (Aspinwall, Pa., Chairman Invalid Help Chapter).

We have so many invalids, and their need is so constant, that there is always room for more in this chapter. I know of no other which brings more cheer and comfort into lonely and suffering lives.

Still Another View

I would like to say a few words to the girls who marry and give up good homes and positions for men who can hardly support them, leaving comfort out of the question. If girls must marry, why not keep their employment and help the husband get on his feet while still young? The wages of two certainly would enable them to live comfortably, and in a year's time, or sooner, they would be able to fit up a nice little home. I have heard girls say, "I would not work for any man," forgetting entirely that the man is her husband—the man to whom she has given her life and everything she held dear in it. Why not give him your assistance, and make married life a true partnership? Two can carry the load much more easily than one. Besides, women are striving for their rights of equality. Why not deserve it?

H. R. S. (Philadelphia, Pa.).

To me it looks as though the saying "Circumstances alter cases," is the best one to apply in this connection.

Sketching and Fancy Work

I am interested in pen and ink sketching, and pencil sketching as well. I do considerable fancy work. I am now making some crocheted corset-cover yokes, which I would like to get orders for. I would sell them for 50 cents apiece. I would like to help some one in fancy work, cooking or drawing, or anything else I can do. I have some story magazines I will send to any one who would like them. Mrs. E. C. R. (Cambridge, Mass.).

We have not many members who do sketching, and there will probably be several who would like to exchange other work for pen and ink or pencil drawings.

A Little Verse

Those of the girls who recollect the bit of verse founded on a childlike saying that appeared on the page some time ago will be glad to see another from the same source:

OH, DEAR!

Little daughter loves pets, but there's one little kitty
She loves best of all, he's so soft and so pretty.
She sits by the fire while the tea kettle sings,
She and the cat and her little playthings.
She warms "kitty's foots" and strokes his soft fur,
Till kitty's so "comfy" he will just lie and purr.
Then she looks up at me, her eyes large with fear,
"Mamma, kitty is beginning to boil, oh, dear!"

M. B. B. (Sierra Madre, Cal.).

Other mothers hear their children's droll sayings without being able to put them into verse.

More on the Marrying Question

I read the letter of "L. B. J." of Shamokin, Pa., on the page referring to the matrimonial problem which you mentioned some time ago. I do not agree with "L. B. J." in regard to the girl who wrote you on that question. If she loved the young man well enough to overlook his deficiencies, she would have married him regardless of consequences, and not have stopped to write to Mrs. Herrick for advice. If she did marry him, she would most likely always be trying to excuse him to herself, trying to make one good quality of his make up for a bad one. Every true woman wants to be able to look up to her husband, and when she sees him mingling with her friends and not up to their standard, try as she will, she cannot help but be a little ashamed of him; and I don't think there can be anything that leads to the loss of love more quickly than to begin to realize that your choice is much lower than the majority of your friends, no matter how much you respect him. I think marriages between persons of equal position and intelligence generally turn out best, and that no girl should marry a man she does not both respect and love; don't you? Of course, the case of "L. B. J." (who, by the way, is a friend of mine by postcard exchange) is different, and I agree with her in not marrying a man that she only likes. Besides, when a man has a wife and family to support, and comes home tired from his day's work, he is not going to have very much time or desire to elevate himself, particularly if those things have not interested him before. He marries his wife for a companion, not an instructor. Do you think I am wrong, Mrs. Herrick? I am only speaking from observation, not experience. MARY (Los Angeles, Cal.).

So far from thinking you wrong, I think you take a very just and sane view of the situation, and I agree with you that marriages "between persons of equal position and intelligence usually turn out best." I also feel as you do, that a loss of respect and admiration often leads to a loss of love.

A "Home Girl" in the Oil Fields

I am interested in a number of different things, but chiefly in fancy work and photographs. At present I am living in the oil fields. I am an at-home girl, and have or see little out of my home duties. I am 23 years of age, and have not lived in one place any length of time, so have few friends. I am very fond of books, music and art. In the pursuit of the first, I pass many happy hours. I want to become a member of the "No Evil Society." You know what I mean, although that is not a very pretty name. Z. B. V. (Bakersfield, Cal.).

Are there not some of our girls who will write to this new member and supply her with the friends she lacks?

Who Has These Pages?

Will you please print a request for Lessons IV, V and VI of the course in Esperanto, which appeared on our page of September 16, 23 and 30? If any of the Each and All girls have these lessons, and are not using them, I will gladly pay postage and assist in any small way that I can. I have two copies of Lessons XI and XII of the course in Esperanto. If any one lacks those two, I will gladly supply them if they will send postage.

How about the Father-Chumming Chapter? Where are the girls and the dads?

J. M. L. (Bridgewater, Mass.).

Can any one supply the missing Esperanto lessons? Does any one wish the two lessons proffered? And how about that "Father-Chumming Chapter"? It is going to take shape—and when?

Wants Help in Embroidery

I am a young mother, and not very talented, but I will try to do all the good I can for Each and All. I may be of some use in helping shut-ins. I do not get away from home very much, as my two children are small. I may be of help also in cooking and making children's clothing, as I do all our own sewing. Will some of the members please help me in shadow, eyelet and blind embroidery? Also will some one lend me a design for a waist in shadow embroidery? I will lend a helping hand in any way I can for the kindness.

Mrs. M. B. (Pottstown, Pa.).

Some one else who ought to join the Fancy Work Chapter. I wish she and the Worcester member would exchange addresses and become friends by letter.

Suggestions to Workers From a Worker

Some time ago you asked me to tell you of what I did to live up to my pledge. I am not able to do much, but try never to let an opportunity slip by, and am surprised to find how many little ways and means are offered.

There is one family in which are three small children. The mother is nearly blind and the father far from strong. They were burned out just before cold weather, and, as you may see, there are many ways in which to help. I make over all our old clothing for the children, and they use everything. Even our stockings are cut over. I sent them a box for Christmas, as I knew Santy could not do much for them, and when I read the letter I got in return it almost made me cry to think that mite meant so much to them.

There is another family in the West. I have quite lost count of the children—there are so many. I send them postcards, pictures, books, papers, little articles of wearing apparel which can be sent through the mail. I always feel drawn to the lonely ones, especially those making their own way in the world. I know of several, and give them all an occasional letter. They tell me it takes off the sharp edge to find a cheerful letter awaiting them when they go to their lonesome room after a day's work. I send them little handmade collars, handkerchiefs and other little things.

These are very homely little matters of which I have told you, but as I have no chance of doing greater things, I content myself by doing that nearest at hand, and I assure you it brings me great happiness. This is a very dull town during the winter months, and I have long days by myself, so I am glad to keep busy. I could almost wish there were a few more hours in each day so I might accomplish more. LORETTA (Woods Hole, Mass.).

I print this letter almost at full length because I think it is so rich in suggestions for some of the girls who write and say, "I would like to do work in Each and All, but I can't think of anything to do." There is work enough, if we will only look for it. Always there are in the home chances by which we can live up to our pledge, and for those who have time to spare or few home duties there are such opportunities as "Loretta" points out. If you wish to do the work, the way is pretty sure to declare itself.

Making Ready for Christmas Now

I am very much interested in all kinds of fancy work, and particularly wish to help all others who are, most of all the shut-ins; but all are welcome to what ideas I can give. I will exchange patterns of embroidery if I have any the others would like. I knit and crochet edging, etc., and have many patterns. I hope to hear from others who are interested in this line of work. I am already looking for new ideas and want to commence my presents for the coming Christmas, so I will have everything ready two months, perhaps, beforehand. I think it a fine idea.

T. M. A. (Braintree, Mass.).

An excellent idea. Who else does this?

A Report From Boston

You of course have heard from the Queen Bees, of Roxbury, the details of the dance held February 6. I will say, however, that we had a beautiful time, and the affair was a success from every point of view. Last evening our chapter held a whist party and social, which was a grand success—far beyond our wildest expectations. There were seventy-five people playing. I made the two first prizes myself—a crocheted collar and crocheted corset sachet for the lady, and a whisk-broom and holder for the gentleman. The holder was made of two leather postals, laced together with yellow ribbon. We had two second and two booby prizes—all donated by the members. There were blue and gold streamers of twisted, fluted crepe paper running from the chandelier to all parts of the hall; also Japanese lanterns here and there. Candles with shades were on the table; also a lot of plants. A big silk flag was draped over the table, with two smaller flags crossed over it. The tablecloths and napkins were of white crepe paper with a border of yellow flowers.

We had a short entertainment. One member sang, another read, I played, we had a male quartette, and afterward I played for them to dance. The dance started a fund for the floating hospital, and we are going to help raise the amount to where it can be used.

M. B., Secretary Herrick Chapter (Boston, Mass.).

This is an interesting and encouraging report, and I am proud that it comes from a chapter which honors me by bearing my name.

Flowering Bulbs Wanted

I hope the Each and All card exchangers who sent me postcards will forgive me for not exchanging sooner, but they will all be mailed as soon as I can get time to mail them. I would like to say to any of our members that if when they are planting their spring flowering bulbs, such as dahlias, lilies, tuberoses, etc., or digging up and thinning any roses or ornamental shrubs, they have any they do not need, I would be delighted to receive some, and will pay postage on them. I am a very great lover of flowers, but was unfortunate in getting all my collection frozen this winter while I was away.

Mrs. R. H. R. (Melita, Manitoba.).

New Pillow-Cover Design

I have an idea which may be of use to the girls, as I see so many are making pillow tops. It is this: Take heavy ecru linen and stamp the monogram of each one's friends on it. These are to be worked in satin-stitch, in each one's favorite color. The monograms may be plain or elaborate, as suits one's fancy. Other materials may be used with good effect, such as silk, satin, white linen and others. Velvet would be very rich. I have been collecting for a leather postcard pillow. Please mention this on the page.

MABEL (Bangor, Pa.).

This style of pillow cover has not been mentioned before, and will doubtless be copied.

SHEPHERD BOY'S SONG

He that is down need fear no fall,
He that is low no pride.
He that is humble ever shall
Have God to be his guide.

I am content with what I have,
Little be it or much,
And, Lord, contentment still I crave
Because Thou savest such.

Fulness to them a burden is
That go on pilgrimage.
Here little, and hereafter bliss,
Is best from age to age.

How Philip Realized His Ambition

PHILIP WARING was fond of tales of adventure, but, above all, it was the thrilling stories of exploration in Africa that delighted him. Uncle Robert, you know, had spent most of his life in these great mysterious regions, and so Philip learned about all there was worth knowing regarding the Dark Continent.

On the evening before his departure for Paris, at the close of his short visit to the Warings, Uncle Robert engaged in a long talk with Mr. and Mrs. Waring, the result of which apparently gave him considerable satisfaction.

Next morning, while all were seated at the breakfast table, Uncle Robert turned to Philip with the question:

"Lad, how would you like to go to Paris with me?"

"How would I?" shouted Philip. "Just try me.

"That is," he added, in reply to his mother's rather reproachful look, "for a time, anyway."

"Well," smilingly returned Uncle Robert, "your father and mother have consented to spare you for a short time, provided I return you in safe condition."

So Philip went to Paris.

Uncle Robert and Philip had been hardly a month in Paris before Uncle Robert received a letter from an old comrade in Africa, who lay on the point of death. He had been wounded in a raid upon his trading station by a tribe of hostile savages, and in which his 5-year-old daughter, Mary, had been carried away.

Uncle Robert felt himself bound to carry out the wishes of his old friend, who requested that search be made for the little girl. Philip refused to leave his uncle, and so Uncle Robert, with many qualms of conscience, was obliged to take him along. Baptiste, Uncle Robert's loyal servant, and Baron, a great, noble mastiff, comprised the rest of the party.

SAILING FOR AFRICA

A week from the time the letter was received they started. The voyage was a quick one and Philip found that his dreams were at last coming true when one bright afternoon he set foot on the land he had long wished to visit.

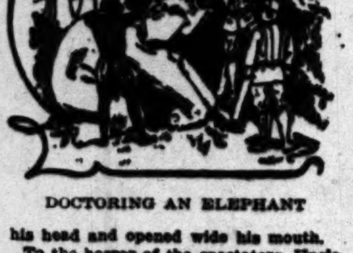
Uncle Robert desired to proceed immediately with the matter in hand, so carriers were engaged and other provision made for the journey.

Soon they were wending their way through dense tropical forests peopled with the strange animals of that country. Occasionally they would come upon scattered villages.

Finding that traveling would be made easier thereby, an elephant was purchased from one of the native chiefs. It was a very intelligent animal, and Philip really believed he could talk if given half a chance.

But within a day or so the elephant refused to eat and seemed to be laboring under some pain in his throat.

Uncle Robert determined to make some sort of an examination. Commanding the animal to kneel, he placed a ladder against a tree beside him, so that he was brought up to a level with the beast's head. In obedience to his command, the elephant then threw up his head and opened wide his mouth.



DOCTORING AN ELEPHANT

To the horror of the spectators, Uncle Robert, after looking very carefully for a moment, plunged his arm to its full length into the huge mouth and then began, apparently, to pull something from the beast's throat. But the intelligent animal, knowing that all this was being done to relieve his sufferings, still kept his mouth open, although big tears of pain rolled from his eyes. Uncle Robert strained and pulled until the veins stood out on his forehead. At last, with a mighty heave, he accomplished his purpose, and out came a long stalk of sugar cane which had lodged in the elephant's throat. The huge beast immediately began to trumpet joyfully, while he looked his gratitude at Uncle Robert. The others rushed about Uncle Robert, both exulting in his happy escape from the peril in which he had placed himself and chiding him for his carelessness of his own safety.

Having heard rumors of a white child being held as a sort of god in a near village, one of the faithful bodyguard was dispatched to find out if this were true. He returned with the information that he had actually seen a little white girl playing with the boys and girls of the savages.

By the time they reached the village, however, the natives, hearing of their approach, had sent the little girl into the forest, professing to know nothing at all about her.

Believing that she could not be far away, Uncle Robert directed his efforts to searching in the immediate vicinity. But he was unsuccessful, and it was chance alone that threw in his way the little girl he sought.

One evening the party camped on the edge of a great prairie. The animals, for some reason, seemed to be restless and alarmed. Finally, one of the negroes declared he could smell the grass burning. Uncle Robert began at once to take precautions to insure their safety.

A broad, shallow ditch was dug in a circle, inclosing a large plot of land nearby. Applying a torch to the dry grass, the ground within the circle was soon cleared. The ditch being wide, the flames could not, of course, leap across to the surrounding prairie.

Moving within the charred area, they awaited the fire sweeping toward them from the distance.

The smoke began to roll toward them in clouds, while the heat grew decidedly uncomfortable.

Suddenly, from out the mist wall in front of them, burst a gigantic savage, carrying on his shoulders a little white girl.

Blinded by the smoke, he stumbled into Uncle Robert and Philip, who, leaping upon him, seized and bound him almost before he knew what had happened.

ALL OVERJOYED

All were overjoyed. There could be no doubt that the little girl was she whom they sought. She looked, wonderingly at first, toward the two white strangers, but soon made herself well acquainted, and, perching herself on Uncle Robert's knee, chattered like a magpie.

Now that the quest was ended, a rapid journey was made to the coast, and from there they took ship to London, where little Mary was left with relations.

Philip reluctantly bade adieu to Uncle Robert, and started for home. He never wearies telling of his travels in Africa, and stoutly declares that the life of an explorer is the only thing in the world for him. Just now he is attending Centreville Academy, but if you ask him what he intends to do after graduation he shakes his head with an air of secrecy that means volumes. Perhaps Mr. and Mrs. Waring will have to be consulted, however.

Floating Paper.

It is astonishing how much weight must be placed upon a sheet of writing paper floating on water before it can be made to sink. It will sustain the weight of articles as heavy as penknives. Try it for yourself.

WHERE THEY MAKE CORAL ORNAMENTS

"OH, Father, you're just too dear for anything! The necklace is as pretty as it can be—and, oh, it's of coral, too!"

"I'm glad you like it, dear. I bought it from a charming old lady in Torre del Greco, a delightful little town on the Bay of Naples and not far from the city of Naples."

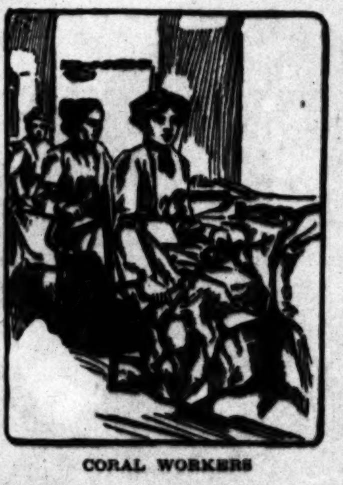
"Do tell me all about it," pleaded Alice.

"Very well, Puss," laughed her father, "I do believe you'll find it quite interesting.

"Last time I was in sunny Italy I had occasion to visit Naples, and, while there, the thought came to me to take a look at the coral fisheries, so I traveled along down the coast to Torre del Greco.

"Nearly all the men of the town are employed in coral fishing, while the women do most of the work in preparing it for market.

"Down under the waves millions of the tiny animals labor, secreting the hard substance that forms the masses and branches of coral.



CORAL WORKERS

"This coral is gathered by the fishermen from May to September.

"When it is brought home, women first carefully separate the branches according to their size and their color, which varies from black to white, passing through all shades of red and pink.

"Next a division is made, according to quality, into three grades: best, medium and inferior.

"Then it passes on to the women who cut off the long branches with immense shears, and from them to the polishers, who remove all the rough, sandy particles that cover the outside, by washing the branches in lime or grinding them on the emery wheel.

"Women pierce holes in the coral, using a contrivance that somewhat resembles a sewing machine, the needle of which is kept cool by water dripping constantly upon it.

"After this preparatory work, it is put in the hands of men who turn it into the shapes of those beautiful ornaments we so much admire.

"Engravers make the finishing touches, and then the article is ready for sale. All the people of Eastern countries, especially India and China, are fond of wearing coral ornaments."

"Yes, indeed, it is interesting," said Alice, when her father had concluded; "I never knew before that it took so much work to make a coral necklace. I shall appreciate this one all the more for knowing its entire history."

Why Betty Forgot to be Lonely

NO, BETTY didn't mind being called "old-fashioned." Of course, she was "old-fashioned." Aunt Jane told her so every day, so it must be true, although Aunt Jane did say people were "odd" mostly when they didn't do things her way. You know they say you're "old-fashioned" when you see things that other people can't see, when you dream such beautiful dreams, and when you play nice games with what Aunt Jane would call the people of your imagination—though to you they're real girls and boys, just the same.

Oh, it's nice to be "old-fashioned," especially when you live in a big farmhouse, with the nearest neighbor a mile away. It keeps you from growing lonely.

But, in spite of all your imagination, sometimes you get a wee bit lonesome. At least Betty did, until she found her Other Self. Let me tell you how this came about.

Betty liked rainy days. Sounds funny, doesn't it? Not that she didn't enjoy being out-of-doors, but next to swaying in the branches of her favorite tree in the orchard, she liked to be up in the big, roomy attic, listening to the raindrops pattering on the roof. Somehow it made her feel sort of sad—and you know it's nice to feel that way sometimes. 'Tisn't that you're altogether sad, for your heart gives such a funny throb when you look around the shadowy nooks that it makes you feel almost happy and yet a little bit afraid, as though some strange person you would like to see were near, yet you were afraid to meet her.

ANOTHER BETTY

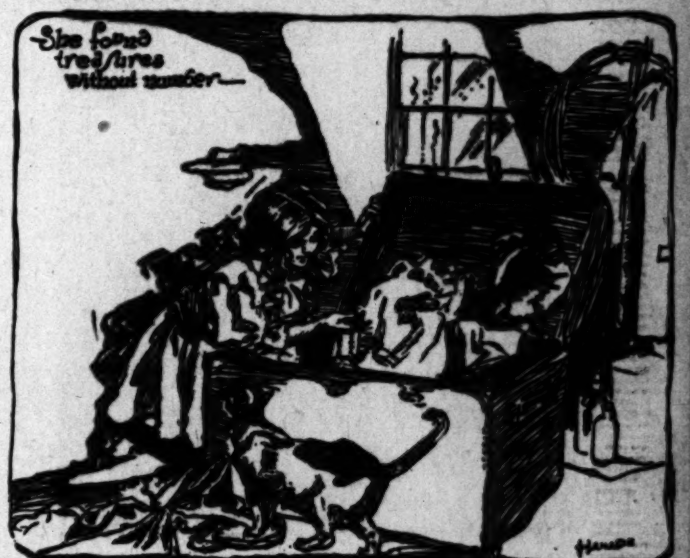
It was just such a day when Betty made the acquaintance of her Other Self. Many and many a time she had climbed the narrow stairs to the attic. So often had she rummaged through the old trunks and furniture that she could have named everything there. That is, almost everything, for near the window there was one great chest, inside of which she had never peeped. The big, rusty lock seemed to mock her whenever she tugged at it—sometimes so strongly that she felt sure it must give way.

You may know how surprised she was when, upon giving it a jerk this time, the lock gave way with such suddenness that she fell back into the old cradle. But still more surprised was she when she raised the lid. She found treasures without number. There were handsome dresses all made in queer fashions. Trying one of these on, she found that it just fit. Somehow, it seemed to feel more comfortable than her own, but perhaps that was because she, like the gowns, was "old-fashioned."

Eagerly she now went on with her search. Soon she came upon an old leather-covered diary. Opening it, she started on finding her own name on the flyleaf.

Betty's heart beat quickly as she sat down in her grandfather's armchair and began to read the curious old diary. Reading from the very beginning, she saw this entry:

"May 6, 176[illegible].—Aunt Priscilla says it is wicked for me to keep anything secret from her. Be it so, and this diary is wicked. I must ask Uncle Richard if it be wicked to dream or think to one's self. Such beautiful thoughts come to me that I must write them down. Last time, while I was dreaming in church, I thought that the minister and the people grew wings and flew away. It was splendid, only I didn't go along with them. But when I wrote about the dream in my other diary, Aunt Priscilla said it was nonsense and not fit for a diary, and that it was wicked to dream in church. I wrote about duty and obedience in my other diary today, and Aunt Priscilla was so pleased that I almost owned up about this Thought and Dream Diary. But I cannot write love and obedience forever, and I must write about my dreams. I do feel so wicked. Tomorrow I wear my new lavender bonnet for the first time. Mary will want one like it as soon as she sees it."



She found treasures without number—

Betty was in raptures. Why, this Betty was "old-fashioned," just like herself. How nice it was! "Aunt Priscilla," she felt sure, must be like Aunt Jane, too.

Never after this did Betty feel lonely. Whenever she wished she could live the life of the other Betty. Putting on the quaint dresses, she could easily imagine herself going through all that the other Betty told of in her Thought and Dream Diary. Indeed, she grew so that she sometimes forgot which Betty she really was, and, as Aunt Jane said, grew more "old-fashioned" than ever. But what did that matter? Aunt Priscilla had most likely often said the same.

THE MESSENGER SPARROW

IT WAS one of those summer days in the middle West when, the heat becoming unbearable, the farmer was compelled to retreat from his fields and take refuge from the scorching sun.

Reclining in the coolest room in the house, he managed to repose in comparative comfort.

He had been resting for some little time when he became conscious of a persistent twittering about his ears. Looking up he saw a little sparrow, which had evidently come in through the open window.

The farmer tried to drive the bird away, but each time it returned, immediately darting off again and constantly chirping as though in an effort to attract his attention.

At last, his curiosity aroused, he followed the little bird to the doorway. When he looked out he saw, to his astonishment, that a fierce storm was rapidly approaching. He turned in gratitude to the sparrow, but the kindly little messenger had darted away as soon as its mission was accomplished.

Immediately the farmer drove the cattle under cover. As is their wont, they were apparently enjoying the intense heat that precedes such a storm, and were grazing far from shelter.

In the violent storm that followed hail of immense size descended with such great velocity that all the cattle would undoubtedly have perished had they not been sheltered.

You can imagine how thankful the farmer was to the little sparrow for his timely warning.

LEVI P. WEBSTER.

Returning Good for Evil

"FELLOWS, we've just got to win the game tomorrow. Those Jonesville chaps have been strutting around in a way that's unbearable ever since they beat us last year. We've got to take the pride out of them, and that in a hurry."

Captain Jack Dunsmore's delivery of this speech made a profound impression on his hearers, among whom were the entire Boyceville nine and three or four of their loyal supporters.

"Well, Jim Warner's arm is entirely well again, and, if he takes care of himself until tomorrow, I don't see how we can help winning," said Catcher Bob, and the rest of the group murmured assent.

"Bet I'll reach the swimmin' hole first!" yelled Bill Wolf, sprinting down the dusty road at a mad pace as the clump of trees that marked their favorite bathing place came into view. Every boy there accepted the challenge and away they dashed, raising such a cloud of dust as would have done credit to a herd of cattle.

Bill Wolf dived down the long slope that led to the edge of the creek, but before he had gone half way he reappeared from among the trees, hoarsely calling: "Hold up, fellows; that nervy Micky O'Toole is down there swimmin'. Let's teach him and his gang to stay where they belong, at the other end of the town."

Arming themselves with pine-cones and sticks and clods of earth, the party, at a signal from Bill, swept down the bank like an avalanche and discharged their missiles as one man at the unoffending Micky. The suddenness of the onslaught staggered Micky, but he quickly recovered himself and hurriedly made for the opposite shore, where, from the shelter of a tree, he answered their screams of laughter with words of defiance. Soon he disappeared, with a final taunt for any fellow to come over if he wanted a licking.

AN ILL FATED FROLIC

The next minute all were disporting themselves in the water, having a jolly good time, if one might judge from the roars of merriment that arose on every side.

All at once a sharp cry of pain rang out, followed by a sliding and rattling and scuffling as something crashed down the steep bank just by the bend.

"Whistling fishes!" exclaimed Pete Hamilton, as he arrived on the scene, "if it ain't Jim Warner—and something's wrong with his arm, too!"

He was right. Jim had slipped at the top of the slope, had fallen heavily on his arm, and then rolled down the bank.

When Captain Dunsmore mustered his men on the ballground the following day any one could see with half an eye that the Boyceville team had lost all hope, although still prepared to fight their hardest. But Will Brant couldn't pitch worth a cent and he was the best they had.

The game was just about ready to begin when Captain Jack felt somebody tap him on the shoulder. Looking around he saw Micky O'Toole, his freckled face adorned with a broad, friendly grin.

"Say," he said, "I hear you fellows are hard up for a pitcher. I can pitch a little myself, and if I can help you out—why, I'm willin'."

"You're a trump, Micky!" cried Jack, shaking him heartily by the hand. "It's downright splendid of you after the way the fellows treated you yesterday."

As Micky had modestly suggested, he could pitch a little—indeed, it was said that he was a shade better than Jim Warner, the star.

Boyceville, of course, won the game, and you may rest assured that Micky went swimming in the Old Swimming-Hole whenever he pleased thereafter.

AN INTERESTING EXPERIMENT

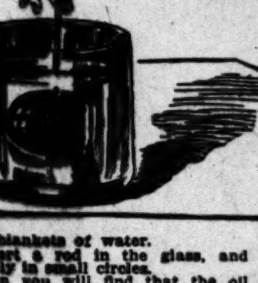
HERE is an interesting little experiment, showing how the earth, once a great molten mass, attained its present shape.

Pour water into a glass until it is one-third full.

Upon this pour slowly some thick oil, to the depth of not quite one-half inch.

Lastly, pour in, very gently, a small quantity of water.

You now have a layer of oil between two blankets of water.



Insert a rod in the glass, and stir rapidly in small circles.

Soon you will find that the oil has gathered around the rod in the form of a ball, and if you stir fast enough the ball will flatten at the top and bottom and bulge at the sides, taking the shape of our globe.

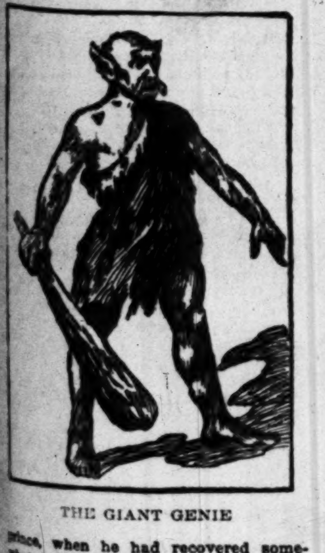
The Prince and the Genie

PRINCE MOHAMID was sad. And well he might be, for the beautiful Princess Corisande had refused, for the eighth time, to marry him. So you cannot wonder that he was mournful.

Slowly and reflectively he gazed down into the dark waters that bathed the base of the high cliff by which the royal castle stood.

All at once he heard a rushing of wind behind him. Turning, he saw a terrible giant of immense size brandishing a great club.

"Well, who are you?" demanded the prince, when he had recovered somewhat from his astonishment.



THE GIANT GENIE

"I am a genie!" thundered the giant, in tones that rumbled long after he had spoken.

"I am minded to be your friend. Do you want the Princess Corisande for your bride?"

"By the beard of the prophet, I do!" cried Prince Mohamid.

The genie continued, "Then do as I bid you.

"You will find in the Mediterranean Sea a huge rock that rises almost to the clouds. Upon the summit a gigantic bird has its nest. You will find there a yellow parchment with three red seals. Bring it to me. The paper is valuable to none but me, and I myself am forbidden to remove it from the nest.

"I give you a ring, without which you could not set foot on the island, for you would be killed instantly by enchantment. It will protect your life in two attempts for the parchment. Should you fail the second time, I would not advise you to try again, for nothing could save you."

So saying, the genie vanished as mysteriously as he had appeared, leaving behind him the ring of which he had spoken.

While pondering over this strange happening the prince saw approaching from the distance a little boat. When it reached the base of the cliff it rested on the water.

The prince, without hesitating, seized the ring left by the genie and climbed down the cliff into the boat, which immediately moved off of its own accord, heading for the open sea.

On and on the boat sailed until the prince could see on the horizon the great rock described by the genie.

The boat grounded ashore and he leaped out.

Not a green thing was to be seen on the island, nothing but the bare rock rising sheer to the sky. How could one reach the top of it? It was clearly too steep to climb.

Perplexed, the prince sat down on a flat stone, when suddenly he became aware that the sun seemed to have ceased shining. Raising his head, he beheld a terrible bird above him. Its wings were as big as sails; each wicked talon was as long as six fingers; its beak was long and sharp and pointed; the head was massive and shaped like that of an owl.

Hastily grasping his bow, the prince shot an arrow at the bird with all his strength, but though it struck the black, glossy plumage of the bird, it broke as though made of glass.

A HAIRBREADTH ESCAPE.

With horrible cries the bird pounced upon him, seized him in its talons, ascended with him to a point far above the sea, and then released its hold. The prince plunged into the water with a force that dazed him so that he was barely able to swim to land.

He rested in the boat, discouraged but not yet daunted.

Just then he saw the bird leaving the nest accompanied by her brood of little ones. Fitting another shaft to his bow, he shot once more. This time the arrow struck one of the young birds, last in line, and stunned it so that it fell on the shore just by the boat.

Hurriedly picking up the bird, which was larger than a man, he bound it to his back in such a way that the talons could do him no harm when the bird recovered, and then crouched low beneath it.

Soon the parent bird missed her young one, and looking about her, finally sighted it on the shore. Swooping down with shrill cries, she caught it in her claws and rose to her nest. The Prince, who was bound to the young bird, of course, went, too.

The nest was a dark cavern in the very summit of the rock, right among the clouds. As soon as the prince felt his feet touch the ground he hastily cut the cords that bound him to the bird and glided silently into the other end of the cavern.

There, amid ghastly skeletons and remains of awful feasts, he saw the precious parchment. Leaping forward, he caught it up and pressed it to his heart.

No sooner had he secured the paper than he saw the genie standing before him.

"You have done well," rumbled the old familiar tones, "Princess Corisande is yours."

In a moment Prince Mohamid was standing by his castle, rubbing his eyes to assure himself that it was not all a dream. Remembering the genie's last words, he then rushed away to again plead his cause to the princess.

And the genie's words came true.

A Little Dressmaker.

MAKING dolly's dresses,
Don't you think it's fun?
Here is one already,
This I've just begun.
Oh, how many stitches!
And what tangly thread!
When I pricked my finger,
I just guess it bled.
There! the needle's broken—
Bending all about—
That's a sign my dolly'll
Wear the dresses out.

A Candle Trick.

YOUR friends may not have much confidence in your statement that you can light a candle without touching the wick, but you may easily convince them that it can be done.

After a candle has burned until it has a long snuff, blow it out with a sudden puff. A white cloud of smoke will immediately arise from the hot wick. Apply a match to this smoke, at a distance of even from two to three inches above the wick, and you will see the flame run down the smoke and ignite the candle.

The Ostrich That Didn't Grow.

ON A big ostrich farm in Los Angeles, Cal., there is a little chick that has stopped growing. Ostrich chicks grow at the rate of one foot every month, but this one never grows.

His life until recently was not the happiest in the world, for, being so small, the bigger ostriches pecked at him and treated him badly, indeed.

But now he is allowed to wander along the walks all by himself, and he is such a plump, funny-looking little fellow that he is quite a pet with visitors.

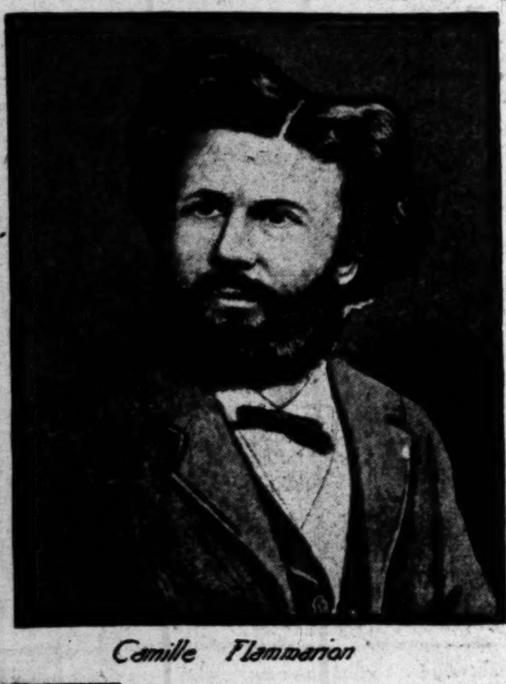
IRRIGATING AN ARID WORLD

LIFE SUSTAINED ON MARS THROUGH THE MEDIUM OF ITS WONDERFUL CANALS



Camille Flammarion

FANCY a company of Martian laborers, imported from their distant planet to dig the Panama Canal. How the dirt would fly!

Digging such a little ditch would be a matter of merely a few weeks' exercise. Each Martian, according to the most recent estimates of scientists, could toss over his shoulders two and a half tons at a shovelful—and the supreme achievement of the race is canal digging.

For the giants of Mars are canal makers through stern necessity. It is not for purposes of commerce that they have lined and ribbed their dying planet with a vast system of waterways. Only through the most gigantic network of canals conceivable are they able to keep life in their arid world and provide sustenance for themselves.

Scientists now declare that the many lines and dark spots on Mars represent verdure along a most wonderful canal system, which the inhabitants of the planet have constructed for purposes of irrigation.

Through these artificial waterways the melting snow and ice of the poles are carried to various parts of the planet, and so the Martians are able to raise their crops in season and to stay, for a time, the menacing dry decay of their world.

SEVERAL of the greatest present-day astronomers—Lowell, Pickering, Flammarion, Morse and others—have practically agreed on the theory that Mars contains no rivers, lakes, oceans or any other source of water supply than the great caps of snow on the north and south poles.

In the summer time, when the people must produce vegetation or starve, the melting snow from those extremities of the sphere is carefully, systematically coaxed through artificial waterways to the furthermost sections where it is needed. The Martians even make the water run up hill, it is declared.

Among recent contributions to the learning of nations on the subject of Mars is the result of thirty-four days' study of the planet made in the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., by Professor E. S. Morse, member of the American National Academy of Science.

Of course, Professor Morse believes that Mars is inhabited. The astronomers all do, now. It is with relation to how the inhabitants live that his investigations are of value.

He goes on the assumption that Mars is a very old planet—millions of years older than this earth; that with the gradual flattening of her hills and filling in of her valleys, combined with seismic disturbances, she has retained none of her great bodies of water so necessary to life, and that her people would perish if their ingenuity did not every year bring water at critical times from the poles.

"In one important matter Morse disagrees with some of the leading astronomers—with respect to the weather conditions in Mars.

Other authorities have stated that the atmosphere there is perfectly placid, so much so that when the weather becomes cold enough to cause frost and snow, the settling of the flakes cannot be considered a storm, only an accumulation.

But Morse is said to have become convinced that winds sweep over the surface of Mars; that there are dust storms on its deserts—in short, that it is a world in many respects like ours.

But most tragic of all the deductions which the astronomer has made from his thirty-four nights in the observatory is that Mars is making the greatest fight for existence ever recorded—the attempt of a planet to hang on to existence after its resources for the sustenance of life have been exhausted.

And the way in which this is done is the perfecting of a canal system.

The curious markings on the face of Mars which are now accepted to be canals were first discovered by Professor Giovanni Schiaparelli, an Italian astronomer, many years ago. Of the recent studies as to the meanings of these lines, by far the most important have been made at the Lowell Observatory.

"The lines of Mars are," Professor Morse says, "almost without exception, geodetically straight, supernaturally so—and this is in spite of their leading in every possible direction. They invariably begin and end at definite places."

As to the meaning of the lines, the scientist believes that they cannot possibly be earthquake fissures, because Mars long since ceased to show any activities which might have caused cracks in her surface; and the old ones would have been long ago eliminated.

Therefore he thinks it perfectly reasonable to suppose that they were designed for a definite purpose—to conduct water from those regions where water is found for the purpose of irrigation.

He admits that he had not been a believer in the idea of canals on Mars when he began his study; he desired to acquire all his information relating to the subject at first hand.

"As to the existence of water," he says, "one has only to consider the polar snowcaps. In the height of the southern winter the snowcaps measure more than 2000 miles across, covering 55 degrees of latitude unbrokenly. As the spring advances the snow begins to melt, disappearing rapidly as summer comes on, its place being taken by dark patches of water."

Some time ago actual photographs of the Martian canals were taken at the Lowell Observatory by C. O. Lampland. This was a wonderful accomplishment, considering that the nearest point of Mars is 35,050,000 miles from the earth, and even when the atmosphere is clear enough to permit a view of the fine lines, the dancing rays of nebulous light make it almost impossible to see with distinctness.

The photographs in themselves were small and of little worth pictorially, but it has been possible from them to make a chart of the Martian canals which may be accepted as practically correct.

But even when the atmosphere is perfectly clear, the canals are not visible all the year round. In fact, they appear and disappear with seasonal regularity.

Some critics have used this fact as argument against the lines being really canals, for, they said, if it be assumed that a finite power dug the canals how can we account for that power's foolishly filling them up again?

This, Professor Percival Lowell, non-resident professor of astronomy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, explains in a novel way.

The strips which we see, says Professor Lowell, are not really the canals, but are strips of vegetation which spring up along the canals when the great sluices are full of water, and are not visible at other times.

And this he apparently substantiates by saying that the green strips deepen in color as the days pass, just as foliage deepens in hue with the advance of the season.

Another argument. The photographs show that one or two of the canals show double lines, while the others are in single lines. This might indicate that the double-lined ones are the main canals—the feeders—which are so much wider than the others that the vegetation on both sides may be distinguished, while in the narrower ones it seems—so great is the distance—like a single line.

On Mars, not only do two and three lines run through a common point, but as many as seventeen lines may be observed running through a common centre. Such exceptional accuracy of form points to a mind which directed the power that wrought the change.

Ordinarily—leaving the lines out of the question—the surface of Mars as revealed by the telescope, consists of spaces of two different colors—some orange, others blue-green.

A few years back the blue-green spaces were considered seas, and were christened by various names. The orange parts, on the other hand, were presumed to be continents.

Changed are these old physical geography notions. Now the blue-green spaces are practically known to be the vegetation created by the annual inundation from the canals, while the orange spaces are called deserts.

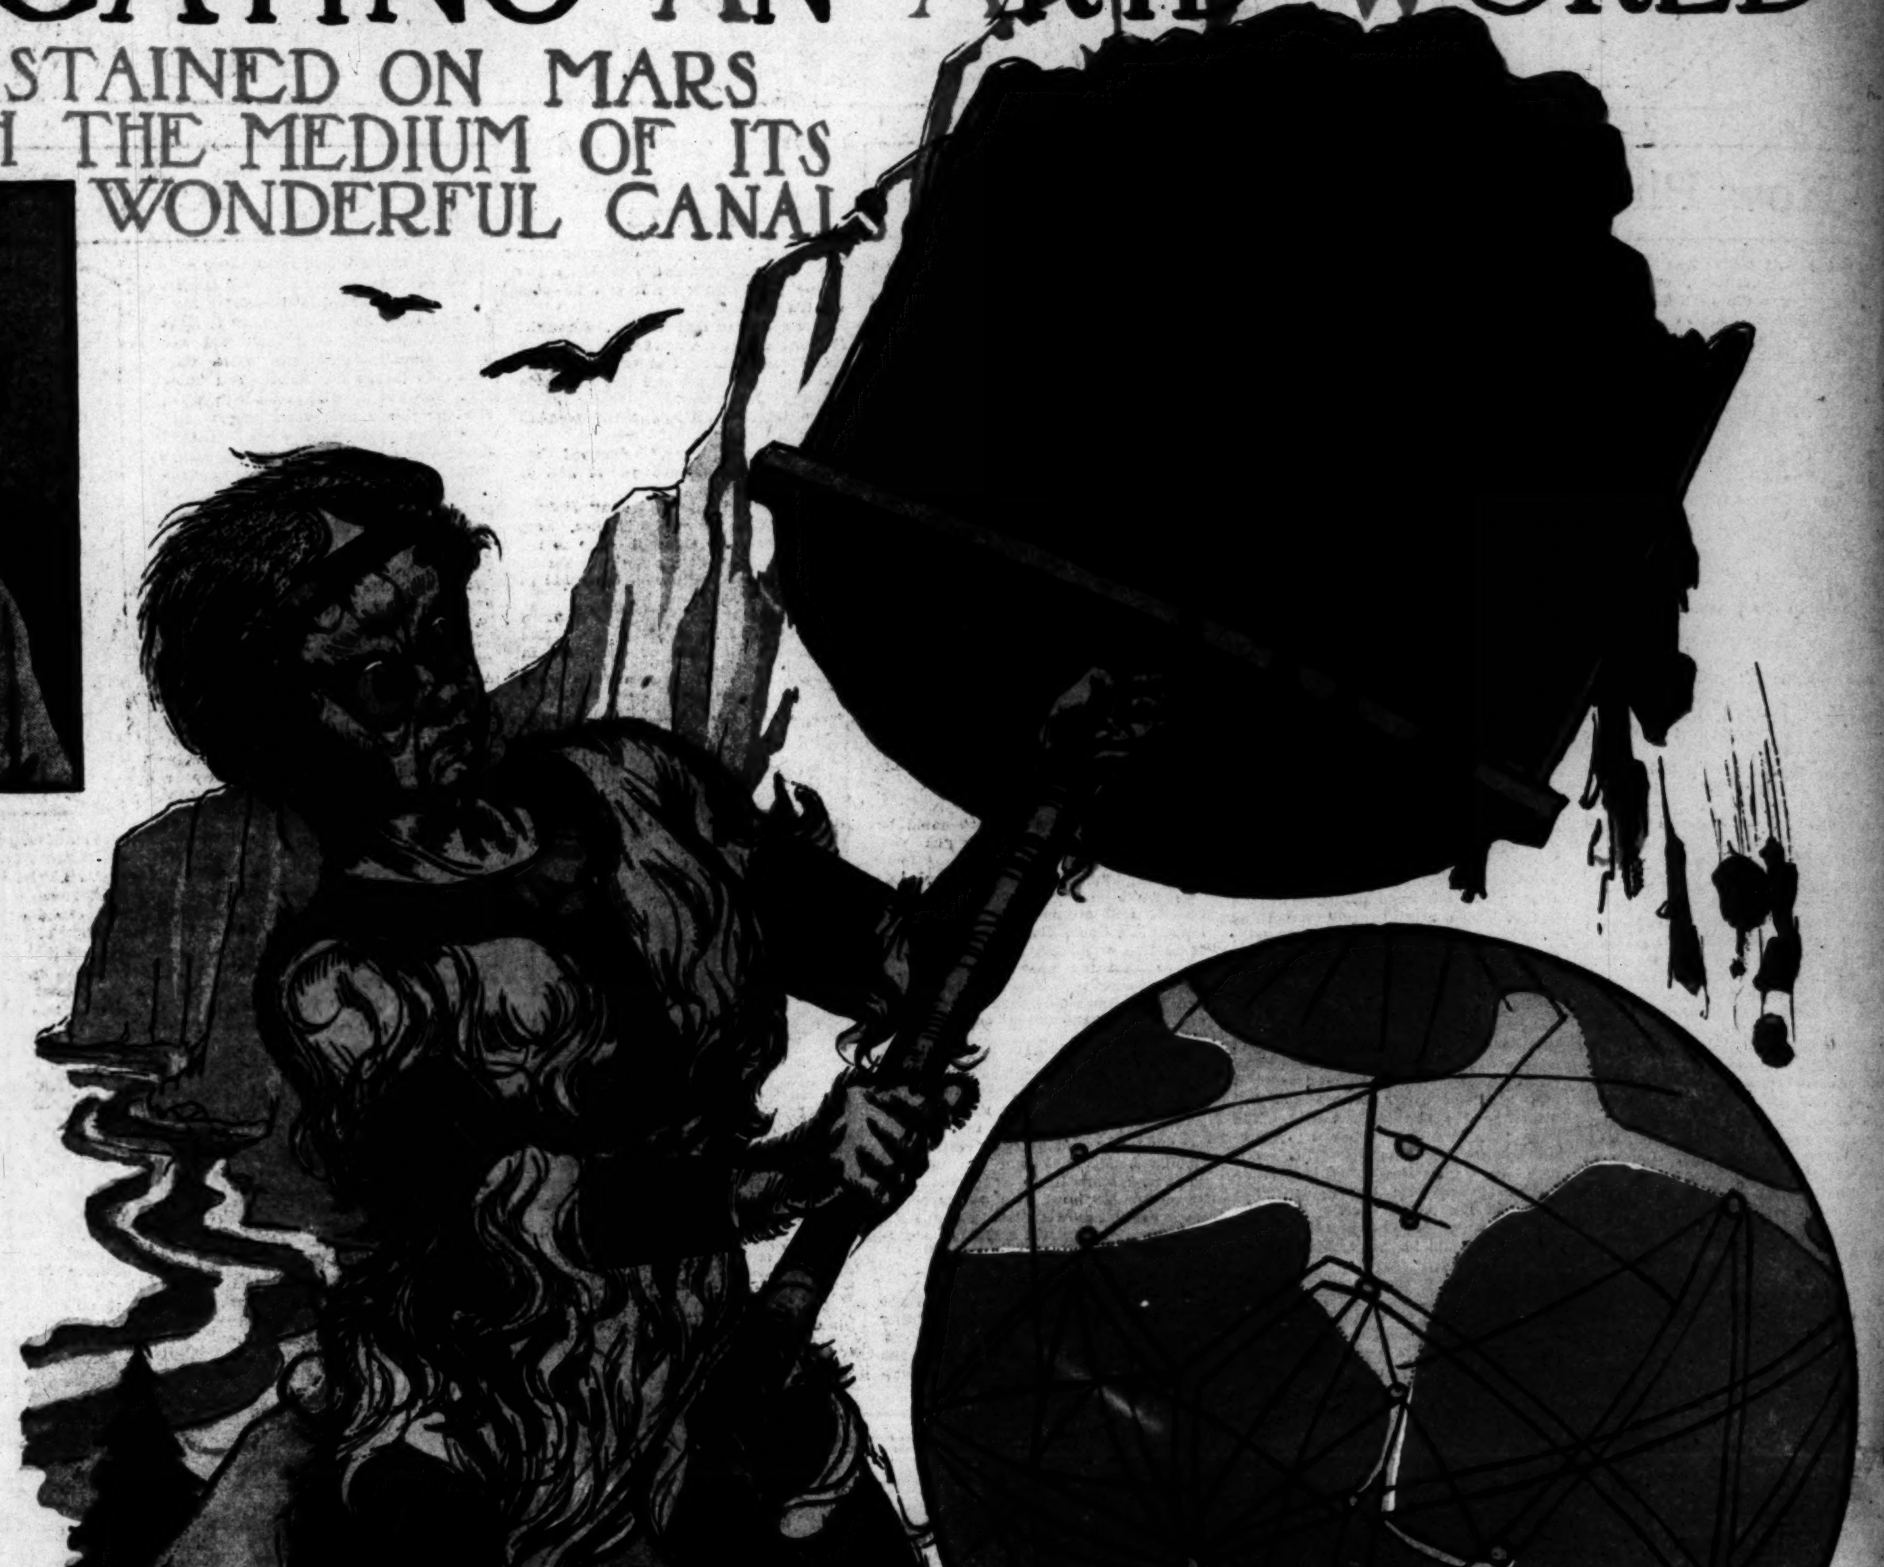
In other words, Mars is all land, except that the parts which sometimes show up blue-green have water in them at one season of the year, while the orange parts are continuous Saharas.

What are the spots where the canals interlace? Professor Pickering's polariscope has apparently dispelled the idea that they are lakes.

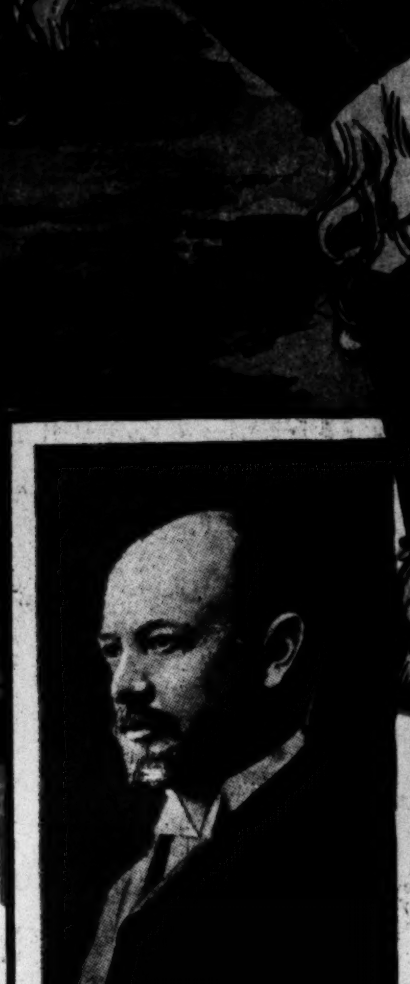
Professor Lowell, who has located 185 of these spots, is said to be of the opinion that they are oases, and that they are each spring irrigated by the canals, which approach them from different directions.

"Whatever constitutes the canals," said Professor Lowell recently, "it is evident that their development proceeds from the pole down the disk, and, furthermore, that it advances over the surface at a fairly regular rate.

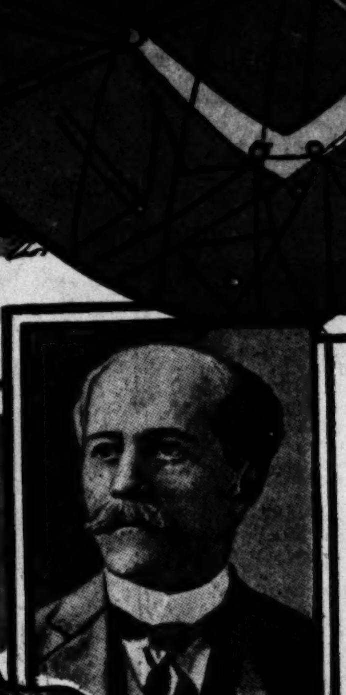
"It starts at the summer solstice; that is, it follows the melting of the polar cap. In consequence of the water then let loose, the canals come into being."



Surface of Mars Showing the Lines of the Canals.



Prof. W.H. Pickering



Professor Lowell believes that practically the only source of water supply for the planet is about the poles. So long as the sun remains over the equator there is no water.

On Mars the vegetation spreads from the poles, because the snow must melt and the water flow into the canals before verdure can grow. And in this connection Professor Lowell has made one of the most astounding of all his statements. He says:

"The quickening proceeds rapidly, and very nearly, if not quite, uniformly down the disk. It takes the darkening only five days to descend from the seventy-fifth parallel to the equator, a journey of 2606 miles. This means a speed of fifty-three miles a day, or two and two-tenths miles an hour. And it does this in the face of gravity."

In fact, in plain language, the astronomer declares that not only does human intelligence in Mars dig the vast canals thousands of miles in length, but that, by some mysterious method, it causes the water to run up hill!

Professor Camille Flammarion, who has made a careful study of the planet, has been for several years watching the snowfalls on Mars. He believes that the Martian seasons may be subject to as many vicissitudes as ours, instead of being actuated by the exceptional constancy hitherto attributed to them. He agrees that the canal systems are artificial and were constructed with a view to irrigation.

What manner of people are these who do such remarkable things? Obviously, a quite different kind from the inhabitants of this earth.

According to the best authorities, founded on the most recent investigations, the Martian is a creature immensely more powerful, physically, than earth mortals, even earth giants. This is deduced from the lesser pull of gravity on Mars.

A Martian could run 100 yards in three or four seconds, could leap over a high tree, could kick a football a quarter of a mile.

Because of the lesser attraction of gravity he may be at least three or four times as big as the average human being, perhaps even much larger than that. Another thing which, perhaps, adds weight to this belief is that, on account of the rarefied air on Mars, a Martian must require three times as much lung space as an earth mortal to get enough air to live; and his body must be proportioned accordingly.

Bodies on the planet Mars weigh but a third as much in proportion to size as they do here; so it is believed that a Martian laborer could perform as much work in a given time as fifty or sixty terrestrial ditch diggers; that he could handle two and a half tons of dirt at a shovelful. So his annual irrigation work may not be as difficult as it seems.

The Martian year is much longer; in fact, nearly twice as long as ours. It takes Mars 687 days to travel on its orbit around the sun.

The next few years may see the secrets of Mars disclosed as never before. It is conceded that in the clear light of the earth's South Pole telescopic observations may be made with unprecedented success, and Don Philipe Bevrier, a wealthy Argentine citizen, is equipping an expedition which, headed by three Americans, will start toward the South Pole in June with this end in view.
